Joseph W. Babcock Very Ill
Recovery of Former Representative is Doubtful
Mrs. Babcock Also in a Serious Condition

Son Charles Summoned From Chicago

Joseph W. Babcock of Wisconsin, formerly chairman of the House committee on the District of Columbia and of the republican congressional committee and for many years a representative in Congress, is critically ill at his home for the past few weeks. Up to four or five days ago, however, his condition was thought to be improving. Then he had a relapse, and while his physicians will not admit that they have lost hope, they do not express themselves as sanguine of Mr. Babcock's recovery. Mrs. Babcock is also critically ill, having been in a semi-conscious condition since last Tuesday.

Long-distance telephone communication was had yesterday with Mr. Babcock's son, Charles, in Chicago, and with Harry Barney, formerly clerk of the House District committee, now president of a bank in the district formerly represented by Mr. Babcock and in which latter is interested. Both are expected in Washington by tomorrow evening.

Leaves $10,000 To His Cook

Will of Former Representative Babcock

Balance of Estate Goes to Widow and Children, Adopted Children and Nieces

The will of Joseph W. Babcock, former representative from Wisconsin, has been filed for probate. It is dated May 25, 1907, and is accompanied by a codicil of March 18, 1909. His adopted daughter, Amelia B. Reed of Sparta, Wis., is given only $1 of his estate.

The codicil makes only one bequest, that of $10,000 to Mrs. Annie Vander Las, whose residence or relationship is not mentioned.

The will, in addition to the $1 given to the adopted daughter, contains the specific bequests of $5,000 to his niece, Mary M. Merrill of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and $5,000 to his first wife's niece, Mary F. Barney of Necedah, Wis.

The widow, Mrs. Kate Woodman Babcock, is given absolutely the contents of the home in this city and the horses and carriages. The furniture in the residence in Necedah, Wis., is given to the son, Charles E. Babcock.

The remainder estate is to be divided into three parts, one-third for the widow absolutely, one-third for the son, Charles E. Babcock, and the remaining third for the American Security and Trust Company in trust to pay the net income to an adopted son, George W. Babcock, during his minority. When he attains the age of twenty-one he is to receive the principal of his share.

The American Security and Trust Company is named as executor.

Mrs. Annie Vander Las, mentioned in the codicil of the will, is the Babcock family's cook. She came with them more than twenty years ago, when she was fifteen years old and has been with them ever since. Her husband, an appointee of Speaker Henderson, was a messenger in the office of the register of wills, but died about three and a half years ago, a victim of the brief smallpox epidemic at that time. Some months after his death a little girl was born to Mrs. Vander Las. The child was named Catherine, after Mrs. Babcock, and it was for the education of this little girl, who is a favorite of Mrs. Babcock, that the money was left. Mr.

Tribute to Mrs. E.A. Babson

At a special meeting of the board of children's guardians held at its offices, in the Gunton building, Thursday night resolutions were adopted in eulogy of Mrs. Eliza A. Babson, deceased, the late secretary of the association. This tribute was furnished to the members of the family and to the Commissioners, and recites that the board, in special meeting assembled, declares that "In her death it suffers the loss of a faithful, efficient and sympathetic member. She was at all times willing and anxious to further the great objects of the board's work in behalf of unfortunate children and contributed liberally of her time and talent towards its success.

"A faithful attendant at the regular meetings of the board and its committees, she visited the office frequently between meetings to render additional service in its work. Her mainspring of action was 'service to others.' Her ever-cheerful presence will be greatly missed by the members of the board, who hereby tender their sympathies to the family of our departed friend."

Those present at the meeting were B. Pickman Mann, president; Thomas E. Sewell, J.B.T. Tupper, Miss Ella Moore and John Wesley Douglass.

J.W. Babson's Funeral. Interment will be in Congressional Cemetery Deceased Engaged Extensively in Charitable Work -- Came to This City in 1861

The funeral of the late John Walker Babson will be held at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Babson home, 108 11th street southeast. The services will be conducted at the house by Rev. John Chester of the Metropolitan Presbyterian Church, and the interment is to be in Congressional cemetery. The pallbearers will be Mr. Chapman, principal examiner of the patent office; Mr. Amos Hadley, chief of the stationery division of the patent office; Messrs. Davis and Rust, clerks in the division over which Mr. Babson president; Gen. Ellis Spear and Mr. Y.C. Slater.

A number of floral remembrances were received today from friends and the several organizations with which Mr. Babson was connected. These include the Masonic fraternity, the Oldest Inhabitants' Association, Geographic Society, East Washington Citizens' Association, of which he was president for five years; the Board of Trade of which he was one of the directors; the Sons and Daughters of Maine, the...
Mr. Babson was one of the originators of the Patent Centennial; was the chairman of the committee on scope of the general committee on the celebration of the anniversary of the laying of the corner stone of the Capitol in 1893; was treasurer of the Admiral Dewey reception committee in 1900 and always took a leading part in all movements for the upbuilding of the national capital.

He engaged extensively in charitable work "under cover," as one of his friends expressed it today. That is, he did not believe in letting his left hand know what his right hand was doing in this sort of effort for the amelioration of human suffering. In consequence, he always substituted the name of his wife for his own, and Mrs. Babson, therefore, appears as a member of the Associated Charities, the Central Relief committee and the board of Children's Guardians, of which she is secretary.

Special meetings of the East Washington Citizens' Association and of the Oldest Inhabitants have been called for the purpose of adopting resolutions of regret and taking suitable action on the death. Delegations from these and other societies of which deceased was a member, will also attend the funeral this afternoon.

Secretary to Vice President
John Walker Babson came to this city in 1861 as secretary to Vice President Hamlin, and while serving in that capacity enjoyed a personal acquaintance with President Lincoln and other great figures in the civil war. He became chief of the finance division of the pension office in 1866, being afterward promoted to be deputy commissioner of pensions. In 1878 he was transferred to the patent office and placed in charge of the Official Gazette. The Gazette and issue divisions were consolidated in 1880, and Mr. Babson was placed in charge of the combined bureau. Since that time the Official Gazette has been continuously under his charge. When he first assumed control of the issuance of the Gazette that publication comprised about seventy-two pages. It now runs over 300 pages.

Mr. Babson was born at Brookville, Hancock county, Me., August 15, 1835, and always retained a fond love for his old home state, having been identified with every movement of the sons and daughters of Maine which has taken place here. His first public office was as postmaster at his birthplace. He gave up this place to come to Washington as Mr. Hamlin's secretary, the Vice President having great confidence in the then young and sturdy son of the state mentioned.

The History of Washington City, Its Men and Institutions
Hon. John Walker Babson, descended from an old and influential Puritan family, has been identified with the official life and public affairs of Washington since 1861, when he left his native State of Maine, and from that time until the present has uninterruptedly held important posts in the Government service, his present position being that of a chief of division in the United States Patent Office. Mr. Babson was born at Brooksville, Maine, on August 15, 1835, and is a son of Samuel Brown and Nancy Tapley Babson, both of whom died at a ripe old age. The advent of the ancestors of Mr. Babson to this country is somewhat unique. In a party of emigrants which left England in 1632 were James Babson, his wife, Isabel, and their son James, two years old. While en voyage the father died. The widow, a woman of courage and ability, proceeded to Salem, Massachusetts, and thence to Cape Ann, where a lot was apportioned to "the widow Isabel and her son James." This lot, through which now passes Front street, Cape Ann, remained in the possession of the Babson family for upwards of 150 years. From the infant James have descended all the Babson's now in this country. A great-grandson, James Babson, who died October 10, 1790, was a captain of privateers in the Revolutionary War, and still another, who died December 30, 1831, was engaged in privateering during the War of 1812. John W. Babson, the subject of this sketch, is the seventh in lineal descent from the widow Isabel. Mr. Babson was educated in the Maine public schools, and Bluehill Academy, and finally at the Maine Wesleyan College at Redfield. Mr. Babson taught for a time at the latter institution, as well as in the public schools.

Early in life Mr. Babson manifested a keen interest in politics, and on his twenty-first birthday was elected chairman of the Republican town committee of his native town, and has participated in every campaign since then. He was president of the stormiest Republican convention ever held in Hancock county. In the Fremont campaign in 1856, when accompanying Hon. Hanibal Hamlin, afterwards Vice-President, an incident occurred by which the latter's life was endangered. A friendship then started between the two which remained unbroken until Mr. Hamlin's death. When the Lincoln administration began in 1861, Mr. Babson...
was made postmaster of his native town, but resigned the same year to come to Washington with Vice-President Hamlin, and remained with him until the expiration of his term in 1865, and continued an officer of the United States Senate, where he remained until February, 1866, resigning to accept an appointment tendered him by Secretary of the Interior James Harlan, in the Pension Bureau. Here he soon reached the position of chief of a division, which he held for some years. Mr. Babson was commissioned by President Grant Deputy Commissioner of Pensions on December 21, 1875. This post he resigned in February, 1877, to enter the more inviting Bureau of Patents, where in 1878 he assumed charge of the publication of the "Official Gazette," then a comparatively small weekly, which under his capable management, has expanded to its present imposing proportions. In 1880 the Issue division was absorbed by the Gazette division and it has since become known as the Issue and Gazette division, of which Mr. Babson is the chief.

In the affairs of the District he has always taken an active interest. He was one of the originators of the East Washington Citizens' Association -- the oldest organization of its character in the District, permanently organized in 1871, and in active existence since that date. He was its president for five years, voluntarily retiring, but has ever since continued a member of its executive committee. He was a member of the Old Citizens' Committee of One Hundred, and chairman of its committee appointed for the purpose of securing the selection of this city as the location of the World's Exposition of 1893, and made an exhaustive and vigorous report in its favor, which was commended by the public press. The initiative of the movement for the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the laying of the cornerstone of the National Capitol on September 18, 1893, was taken by the East Washington Citizens' Association at its monthly meeting May 5, 1893. An elaborate report made by Mr. Babson, then its president, resulted in a delegation waiting upon the District Commissioners, the calling of a public meeting, and the appointment of a general committee, of which Mr. Babson was one. He was also chairman of the committee on scope. Mr. Babson was also one of the promoters of the "Patent Centennial," held in this city April 8, 9 and 10, 1891, chairman of its central committee and a member of its executive committee. He was appointed by the Commissioners of the District on June 1, 1899, a member of the committee of one hundred to make suitable and timely preparations for Washington's welcome to Admiral Dewey, upon his return from Manila, and was selected as a member of its executive committee, and elected and served as its treasurer. Mr. Babson was a member of the special escort committee, who met Admiral Dewey at New York with a palatial railroad train on October 3, 1899. He is a member of the Board of Trade, and chairman of its committee on public library. He has now entered upon his second (three years) term as one of the directors of the Board of Trade.

Mr. Babson has twice married. His first wife was Louise A. Tibbetts of Brookline, Maine, to whom he was married on November 5, 1855, and who died in this city, October 2, 1863. By this marriage there were three children. His second wife was Eliza A. Tibbetts, a cousin of his former wife, to whom he was married in Boston, Mass., September 1, 1868. Mrs. Babson has vied with her husband in active interest in the affairs of the city and has become well known in charity work. She is a member of the Board of Children's Guardians, a member of the Citizen's Relief Committee, appointed by the District Commissioners, and a veteran in the work of the Associated Charities, of the board of managers of which she has for many years been an active member. She is a member of the Church of the Reformation, and prominent in the ladies' work of that church. By this marriage there have been five children.

While for over forty years a resident of this city, and an owner of property here, Mr. Babson has retained the ownership of the old family homestead in his native town, in Maine, where his family spend their summers and he his vacation, and where he has uninterruptedly retained the right of suffrage.

the Church of the Reformation, her mother's place of worship, will conduct the services, which will be held at the family residence, 108 13th street southeast. The pallbearers will be Radesford French, Morrison French, Milton Tibbetts and Edward Halley.

Miss Babson was exhausted, it is thought, by her work among the poor, and was taken ill at 18th and A streets southeast about noon yesterday, dying a few minutes after being carried to a nearby dwelling. Dr.
Charles V. Pettys who was attending a patient a few doors distant, was summoned, but by the time he reached Miss Babson life was extinct. He gave a certificate of death from valvular heart trouble. Miss Babson practically devoted her life to charitable work, being a constant attendant on the poor. She was one of the volunteer agents of the Associated Charities and was in charge of a system of savings collections in East Washington. It was while making collections for this purpose that she became ill.

For some time she had not been in the best of health. Several boys saw her fall and aided in carrying her into the house named. The body was removed to her home yesterday afternoon.

Miss Babson was thirty-five years of age, the daughter of Mr. John W. Babson, chief of the issue division of the patent offices, one of the directors of the Board of Trade and a prominent citizen of East Washington.
She was a sister of Mrs. William B. French of East Capitol street. Mrs. Babson, her mother, is a member of the board of managers of the Associated Charities and secretary of the board of children's guardians. Her brother, J.W. Babson, and Mrs. French are the only surviving children of a family of eight.

Miss Babson was also prominently connected with the Maine Association of this city. Never of a strong constitution, she was nevertheless always ready and willing to do something for the pleasure and comfort of others. Four months of each year she spent in her native town on the coast of Maine, where she prosecuted her work along charitable lines, as she did in this city. Her love for little children was especially strong, and many hearts were gladdened by her kind words and deeds.

Miss Babson's death was announced at a meeting of the Associated Charities yesterday afternoon, and the expressions of regret and sympathy for her relatives were unanimous and sincere. Resolutions to the above effect were adopted and forwarded to the family.
No man within the present generation was more widely known in the walks of practical science; none has been so closely identified with collateral service in the various public departments.

Alexander Dallas Bache was born at Philadelphia in April, 1806. He graduated at the Military Academy in 1825 and there remained a year as assistant professor. Subsequently, having resigned from the Corps of Engineers, he filled at intervals, until the year 1843 an important chair in the University of Pennsylvania.

Within the same period he was, during five years, president of Girard College, and matured the system of education adopted for the Philadelphia High School, yielding to that object time for examining the principles of systematic education in Europe.

His devotion to practical science, and his abilities as an administrative officer, being well known, Professor Bache was appointed, in December 1843, to the vacant post of Superintendent of the Coast Survey. Under his direction, that great national work has been eminent no less for its abundant results than for its high scientific character, which has won the approbation of the leading learned bodies of the world, among whom his name has long been held an honor. He possessed by nature the qualities most conducive to success in the management ... Invariably mild and forbearing towards those serving under his direction, his unremitting energies and his untiring patience were an as invariably given to the accomplishment of the service in view.

His sympathy with the efforts of others, and readiness to give credit for their exertions, secured a cordial spirit of cooperation. Sagacity, perfect freedom from bias, and constant activity within the sphere of his public duties, strongly marked his relations with this Department.

He was a member of the Lighthouse Board, and participated in its organization; a Regent of the Smithsonian Institution; and ever the valued associate of leading men to whom are committed questions in regard to matters of public utility. His advice was eagerly sought in the determination of many local and general facilities to further the interest of commerce and navigation.

That the deceased Superintendent had become illustrious in American and in Europe is due to the steady devotion of his great talents to the service of the people.

His genial disposition attracted the love of associates and of subordinates; his wisdom commanded their respect. He leaves us a name of unsullied purity, and a memory that adds lustre to the many public records upon which it is borne.

As a tribute to his memory, The Coast Survey Office will be draped in black, and will be closed on the day of the funeral.

Arrival of the body of the Late Professor Bache.
The body of the late Professor Bache arrived in Washington at a quarter past six o’clock last evening, by the train from Philadelphia. A committee of officers and others who had served under the immediate directions of the deceased superintendent were in attendance at the depot, and accompanied the remains to the Coast Survey office on New Jersey Avenue whence the funeral procession will move at 3 1/2 o’clock p.m. on Sunday.

The Will of the Late Alexander Bache
The will of the late Alexander Dallas Bache was admitted to probate at Philadelphia on Wednesday. After reciting several legacies to the members of his family, the will contains the following:

That after the death of my wife, all the rest and residue of my estate shall be paid over to and vest in the corporation of The National Academy of Sciences, incorporated by act of Congress, passed the 3d day of March, 1863, whom I hereby appoint trustees to apply the income to researches in physical and natural science by assisting experimentalists and observers in such manner and in such sums as shall be agreed upon, the class of subjects to be selected by the Board of Directors, consisting of Joseph Henry of Washington; Louis Agassiz; and Benjamin Pierce, of Harvard College, Massachusetts; and the results of such observations and experiments to be published at the expense of my trust estate, under their direction, out of the income thereof, but without encroaching on the principal.

Cullum, The Biographical Register of the U.S. Military Academy
Class of 1825: Alexander D. Bache
Born and appointed, Pennsylvania, Graduated 1st of 37 Cadet at the Military Academy, July 1, 1821, to July 1, 1825, when he was graduated and promoted in the Army to Bvt. 2d. Lieut. and 2d Lieut., Corps of Engineers.

Served at the Military Academy, as Asst. Professor of Engineering, Aug. 31, 1825 to July 31, 1826; and as Asst. Engineer in the construction of Ft. Adams, Newport Harbor, R.I., 1826-29. Resigned, June 1, 1829.

Bache received his early education in his native city, where he was an apt and studious scholar. His after education was given at the U.S. Military Academy, from which he was graduated July 1, 1825, at the head of a distinguished class. He was thence promoted to the Corps of Engineers, from which he resigned, June 1, 1829, after a service of one year as Assistant Professor of Engineering at the Military Academy, and three as Assistant Engineer in the Construction of Ft. Adams Newport harbor, R.I.

Before leaving the Army, Bache was called to the chair of Natural Philosophy and Chemistry in the University of Pennsylvania, which position he filled with marked success for eight years. During that time he was also engaged upon scientific researches in chemistry and physics; and, as a member of the Franklin Institute, actively participated in its work, particularly in experimenting on steam-boiler explosions, a line of investigation often as dangerous as difficult.

Bache, in 1836, organized the college, for the building of which the rich banker, Stephen Girard, had bequeathed $2,000,000; became its first President, and went to Europe to study the methods of instruction and discipline there adopted; and, upon his return in 1838, made an elaborate report on European systems of scientific and literary education, which subsequently proved so useful in improving our own methods of instruction. Girard College being unfinished on Bache's return from abroad, he gratuitously undertook the organization of the school system of Philadelphia, which has since been adopted in other cities. Then, for a year, he resumed his old chair in the University of Pennsylvania, besides devoting much time to magnetic and meteorological observations for the American Philosophical Society, which materially contributed to a more extended knowledge of these subjects.

On the death of Professor Hassler, Bache was appointed, on the recommendation of the principal scientific and literary institutions of the country, Dec. 12, 1843, Superintendent of the Geodetic and Hydrographic Survey of the Coasts of the United States, and of the Office of Weights and Measures. This great National work of the Coast Survey, recommended by President Jefferson in 1807, had not been commenced till 1817, and small progress was made before Bache assumed its control. To the day of his death, he devoted his untiring energies and pre-eminent talents to accomplish its great purpose of producing accurate charts of the whole coast; of making detailed surveys of reefs, shoals, harbors and navigable waters; of determining the character of the Gulf Stream and littoral ocean currents; of developing the laws of the tides and winds; of ascertaining the depth, character of bottom, and animal life along our seashores; and of determining, astronomically, triangulation points for any subsequent survey of the interior country. For conducting the great operations necessary to carry out these varied operations, Bache was admirably suited for to his scientific abilities he added high administrative talents, admirable tact in the management of his many subordinates, a genial and earnest manner which won the confidence of superiors upon whom depended the means for successfully conducting his great work, and a readiness to assume any amount of collateral labor for the advancement of science, not only in the interest of the Government, but for the benefit of the whole world.

Though so devoted to the prosecution of the Coast Survey, Bache found time for many other duties; the construction of standard Weights and Measures for the United States; as Regent of the Smithsonian Institution from its establishment, Aug. 10, 1846; as member of the Light-house Board from its inception in 1829, after a service of one year as Assistant Professor of Engineering at the Military Academy, and three as Assistant Engineer in the Construction of Ft. Adams Newport harbor, R.I.
1851; and as Commissioner for various harbor and river improvements. Even beyond these constant taxes upon his time, his industrious pen wrote many elaborate papers on a great variety of scientific subjects.

During the Rebellion Bache made himself useful in many ways, and was an active and very efficient Vice-President of the U.S. Sanitary Commission. He was in succession President of the American Philosophical Society; of the American Association for the Advancement of Sciences; and of the National Academy of Sciences, of which he was the founder and one of the original Corporators. Degrees were conferred upon him by many colleges at home; and foreign societies showered upon him honorable memberships and golden medals for scientific merit and researches in many fields of learning.

Bache, as a student, was distinguished by his untiring application to acquiring knowledge. From early boyhood he was impressed with a sense of responsibility which attached to his lineage. He therefore resolved to devote the utmost energies of his vigorous mind, and to suppress all tendency to self-indulgence, in order that he might fit himself for a reputable career. As an educator, he was not satisfied with imparting the piled-up learning of others, but added much from his own resources. With him the drudgery of drilling youth in the rudiments of education did not dwarf his expansive mind, which soared above the pedagogue’s chair to grasp the most perfect methods of teaching of the experienced schoolmen and philosophers of the Old World. His researches and reflections were published in a report upon "European Systems of Instruction," which almost revolutionized the theory and practice of the school systems of our country. As a scientist, he had few equals and no superiors in his day, as fully attested by more than an hundred papers exhibiting his skill in original investigations and familiarity with the laws of the universe. Not to a single branch did he devote himself, but with his many-sided faculties embraced the whole field of natural philosophy and chemistry. His scientific ability was also conspicuous in the Light-house System, in establishing the policy of the Smithsonian Institution upon a sound and durable basis, and in largely shaping the measures for the development of the many scientific societies of which he was one of the most prominent members. As an executive, his management and successful prosecution of the Coast Survey is a perfect illustration of his administrative ability, which was only excelled by his skillful application of the most approved scientific expedients in carrying out its various requirements. He assumed its charge when in a languishing condition, and left it at his death one of the highest achievements of the diversified labors of our people. As a patriot, he quickly applied, when our country was involved in civil war, the many resources of his office to securing the success of the Union cause; efficiently used his engineering apprenticeship in fortifying his native city; and as a valued member of the U.S. Sanitary Commission was active in ameliorating the condition of our soldiers in the field and hospital. And as a man, he added, to his continually ascending series of scientific and utilitarian triumphs, a high moral nature evinced by a nice perception of right with a determination to enforce its mandates. His familiar intercourse with distinguished people, his own practical wisdom and purity of purpose, and his genial disposition and self-possession of manner, always made him a welcome guest. The learned scientist and profound scholar never overshadowed his merry humor and playful fancy among intimates, all of whom devotedly loved him.

"God, when heav’n and earth he did create, Form’d man, who should of both participate."

Frightful Explosion at the Arsenal
A large number of the female employees killed or frightfully wounded. 18 dead bodies taken out of the ruins already.
At 10 minutes of 12 today a terrible catastrophe occurred at the Arsenal which has cast a gloom over the whole community, and rendered sad many a heart that was buoyant a few minutes previous.
While 108 girls were at work in the main laboratory making cartridges for small arms, a quantity of fire works, which had been placed on the outside of the building became ignited, and a piece of fuse flying into one of the rooms in which were seated about 29 young women set the cartridges on fire and caused an instantaneous explosion.

The Funeral of the Victims of the Arsenal

The funeral of the unfortunate victims of the explosion at the Arsenal on Friday last took place from that place yesterday afternoon … The remains … were enclosed in handsome coffins, silver mounted, with three handles on each side, and a plate on the breast, bearing the name of the inmate, when known. The coffins were lined with muslin, and were made in the Arsenal carpenter shop … The coffins were tastefully decked with bouquets and wreaths composed of white lillies and roses and other appropriate flowers. These flowers were the feeling tribute of the fellow employees (female) of the deceased at the arsenal.

Following the hearses:
President Lincoln and Secretary Stanton, and the son of the latter, in a carriage as chief mourners.

Newbern, N.C., September 15.

We experienced a stout breeze here on Monday, the 7th instant, which continued all night and the most of the next day; the wind blowing first from northeast, but veered to northwest. Our fears were much excited for vessels on our unfortunate coast; and our latest intelligence confirms our worst fears. By the kind attention of our friend, Capt. John B. Hunter, at Portsmouth, we are furnished with the following distressing particulars. Of the twenty vessels lying at and near Ocracoke, eighteen were driven ashore, and one driven out to sea. The following were driven ashore:

Brig. Washington, Montford, loaded with lumber, schooner C. Slover, Davis, naval stores, and Frances Fulford, naval stores, all of this place, are on the beach.

The following are also ashore, but we are not advised where they belong:
Schooners Patrick Henry, Smith, lumber; Sophia, Toller, iron etc.; E. Townsend, Smith, salt; Conquest, Bensley, corn; Defiance, Kline, shingles; Paragon, Wayhab, wheat; and Lucius, Styron, corn. Schooner Emeline was driven to sea with three men on board. Schooners David Farrow, E. Farrow, Paradox, Williams, Industry, Manumit, Nancy, and G.C. Merchant, lighters are all ashore.

Several lives are said to have been lost during the gale, and fears are expressed that few, if any, of the vessels can be gotten off. A passenger who came up yesterday in the Ann Hyman states that, so far as he could learn, the schooner Isabella was the only vessel which outrode the gale.

We are glad to learn that most of the vessels from this port which went over the bar on Friday and Saturday before the gale have arrived safely in New York.

In addition to these dreadful particulars, we learn that the gale was so violent at Cape Hatteras that not more than six houses were left standing.--Newbernian.

The U.S. Brig Washington -- This vessel arrived at Philadelphia on Friday, having been towed to within fifty miles of the Capes by the frigate Constitution, which vessel was bound to Boston, and continued on her course. She was last from Rio with a convoy, and is reported all well.

The Washington arrived in command of Lieut. John Hall. The names of those lost in the gale are Lieut. Bache, Benj. Dalloff, James Dorsey, John Washburn, Samuel Schroeder, Peter Hanson, Edward Grennen, a seamen named Counsel, William Stanford, and two colored servants, Francis Butler and Lewis Maynard.

The U.S. Brig Washington
Philadelphia, September 22, 1846

To the Editor of the Baltimore Patriot:

Sir: Should you deem the enclosed details of the wreck of the United States brig Washington, in the hurricane of the 8th instant, off Cape Hatteras, worthy a place in the columns of your valuable paper, they may prove not uninteresting to some of your readers, as being connected with the fate of a gallant officer, well known in your city, and wherever known beloved.

A Naval Officer.
After a pleasant cruise of about a month in the Gulf Stream, where she had been employed surveying, the United States brig Washington, Lieut. Commanding George M. Bache, stood in on the 7th instant for the Capes of Virginia. As the weather appeared threatening, the wind fresh and blowing on shore, great anxiety was felt to reach an anchorage. The night came on dark and lowering, and, as we neared the land, all eyes were turned to windward to catch the glimmer of the light for which we were striving, (that upon Smith's Island,) through the haze and squalls, now beginning to obscure the horizon to windward. About eleven, our hearts were gladdened by the welcome cry of "light ho!" from the lookout; but the joy was doomed to be of short duration. The light upon Cape Henry, without making which the harbor cannot be entered, must have been obscured by a squall, for when we brought by the wind, after bearing up for it, expecting every moment to make the looked-for beacon, always cheering to the mariner, (in our case we felt it to be our only hope,) the terrible cry of "breakers ahead!" struck a pang to hearts throbbing with hope, and told that we were abandoned to the horrors of a lee shore, and that our only prospect of safety lay in being able to carry sail against the wind. Sea and current forcing us upon Cape Hatteras, the terror of seamen, this all felt to be a forlorn hope, for the gale, now increased in violence, howled ominously through the rigging, and already our little vessel staggered under her canvass. The sky was obscured by flying masses of dark clouds; the crests of the waves, heaving their dark volumes to the sky, flashed with the ghastly phosphorescent light often observed in storms, and once the sea ahead was lit up for a few seconds by a pale blue light, known to seamen as the Corpus Santo, and whose appalling appearance they superstitiously regard as the precursor of misfortune and wreck; the barometer fell rapidly, and every thing foretold a terrible strife of the elements.

Upon discovering the breakers, the brig was immediately worn with her head off shore; the courses reeved, her topsails double reefed and set. Nobly the gallowant craft did her part; groaning in every timber, her tall masts bowing to the blast. Daylight found her still dragging on and rising to the seas which appeared pressing on to her destruction; it brought an increase of wind and most gloomy prospect; the sea ran fearfully high, and appeared one sheet of foam as far as the eye could reach. We had lost during the night the lee boats, which had filled and torn from the davits; jib and flying-jib booms, topmast, staysail, etc. The lead, every cast of which had been watched with deep anxiety, told that we were rapidly drifting upon the shore. By seven the wind had increased to a hurricane; sail after sail had either been taken in, or, splitting with a noise like thunder, blew into ribands to leeward, the yards shivering like pipe-stems. Nothing remained but the fore-topsail, unbonneted, under which the brig "lay to" until 11 a.m., when the hurricane had reached its height, and raged with extraordinary violence, surpassing any thing we had ever seen. The brig lay over completely on her side, the water boiling over the lee rail; we were obliged to cling to the rigging to prevent being blown or washed overboard, for the sea, appearing uprooted from its bed, and borne in huge masses through the air, constantly swept our decks. The lee guns were thrown overboard, and subsequently the weather ones, and the helm put up; she refused to answer it, and the order was given to cut away the mainmast; it was promptly obeyed, as was every other, our noble crew behaving with the steadiness and discipline characteristic of "men-of-war's men." In its fall the mainmast carried away the head of the foremast, topmast, and fore topsail yards, which hung in a mass to leeward; every exertion was made to get clear of the wreck, and the shattered hull of the Washington steered wildly on before the hurricane to the shore she had striven so well to clear. The anchors had been prepared for letting go as the last hope; yet no one imagined that the cables would hold for a moment in that furious sea. The horrors of the scene baffled description. The fierce howling of the hurricane, the roaring of the waves, breaking in irregular masses around us, and pressing on madly in our wake, as if eager to be in at the death, were added to the crashing of spars, which, falling from aloft or launched on board by the sea, now made sad havoc among us. Two officers and several of the crew had been borne wounded below; scarcely one among us escaped injury; and already our little vessel staggered under her canvass. The sky was obscured by flying masses of dark clouds; the crests of the waves, heaving their dark volumes to the sky, flashed with the ghastly phosphorescent light often observed in storms, and once the sea ahead was lit up for a few seconds by a pale blue light, known to seamen as the Corpus Santo, and whose appalling appearance they superstitiously regard as the precursor of misfortune and wreck; the barometer fell rapidly, and every thing foretold a terrible strife of the elements.

At or near meridian the helm was put down, and the starboard anchor let go; as she came to the wind a heavy sea broke on board, throwing the brig upon her beam ends, shifting tanks, ballasts, etc. in the hold, carrying away on deck cabin, wheel, boats, bulwarks, etc., and washing overboard nearly every soul; but thrown aboard by the sea, as she righted half full of water, or clinging to fragments of the wreck towing, all succeeded in regaining the deck, except our lamented commander, Lieut. Bache, and ten of the crew, whose names are subjoined. In a moment they were swept from our view; that moment showed them calm and composed--the determined spirit which supported them on board seemed still to animate them. One noble fellow, as he passed astern, waved his hat in token of adieu, and the driving spray hid them forever from our sight. We supposed ourselves among the breakers, and that our unfortunate shipmates had but anticipated our doom--still it was a bitter pang to see them thus cut off from among us, and many an eye which had calmly confronted death mistrusted at their fate. They were among the flower of our crew; better seamen never trod a deck, and long will be cherished the memory of their generous, kindly natures. My pen is unequal to the task of paying a fitting tribute to the memory of our departed commander. To rare professional accomplishments, he added every virtue which ennobles the human character. Never was a commander more sincerely beloved and respected by those who served under him; his duty was always uppermost in his mind, and the last words we heard him utter were addressing his officers when they stood together upon the brink of eternity: "Gentlemen, I hope you think I have done my duty--have used every exertion to save the vessel." He had indeed done his duty, with the skill and courage which distinguished him; no mortal could have done more. Yet, when there appeared no earthly hope, God was mercifully pleased to succor us; the hurricane abated, our cables, veered to the "better end," (contrary to all expectation,) held, and the anchors dragging checked her drift; soon after the wind suddenly shifted to the northward and westward, the sea went down considerably, and, still dragging, the brig tailed off shore. She was lightened of kentledge, etc, the foremast cut away, and rode easily; at sunset Cape Hatteras was seen close aboard. Until the 12th, we rode to a heavy gale from the northward, with two anchors ahead--the stream cable had parted. It was a period of painful suspense. Our cables bearing a heavy strain, we expected every moment to part, and the breakers upon the cape roaring astern. We were employed rigging jury masts, but, having saved only a few light spars, managed badly. Upon the evening of the 12th, the wind dying away, hoisted in on the larboard chain, and found the anchor gone. In heaving up the starboard one, when near the bows, its shackle-bolt drew, and it was also lost; made sail upon the jury masts and stood to sea. The next day spoke the brig J. Peterson, of New York, and by her was kindly supplied with an anchor and a few spare spars, and the next day the steamer "Palmetto," obtained from her a small boat. Upon the 15th, wafted by light airs from the southward, got within thirty miles of Cape Henry, when the wind again coming out fresh from the northeast, were again in great peril--barely succeeded in weathering "Hatteras Shoals," and again were blown into the Gulf stream, where she "lay to" in a gale from the northward and eastward until the 17th., when it abated, and in the afternoon, to the great joy of all hands, a man-of-war, showing American colors, was descried standing towards us. As she neared we were recognized with emotions of pride and pleasure the well-known figure-head of the "Constitution." We were immediately boarded, and taken in tow by her, and upon the evening of the 21st exchanging with her gallant crew three hearty cheers, we cast off and stood in to the Capes of the Delaware, where we anchored upon the 22d, accompanied by a pilot boat. We were nearly destitute of water, provisions, and of every comfort, when we fell in with "Old Ironsides," and shall long remember with gratitude the kind sympathy extended towards us by her officers, and the alacrity and generosity with which they supplied all our wants.

The following is a list of those who perished upon the 8th: Lieut. Com'g Geo. M. Bache, Benj. Derloff, John Fishbourne, Jas. Dorsey, quartermasters; Henry Schroeder, sailmaker's mate; Thos. Stanford, Francis Butler, Lewis Maynard, Wm. Wright, seamen; Peter Hanson and Edward Grennian, ordinary seamen. The surviving officers of the Washington are John Hall, R.N. Stembel, J.R.M. The Late Lieut. Bache

Extract from the minutes of the Philosophic Society, Princeton, New Jersey, October 12, 1846.
Whereas we have heard with feelings of the deepest regret of the melancholy and untimely loss of Lieutenant George M. Bache, United States Navy, while in command of the United States brig "Washington," from the deck of which he was washed during a violent storm on the 8th of October last, and, with ten of his crew; perished in the waves: Therefore --

Resolved, That in our sad bereavement, we recognize the hand of an all-wise and mysterious God, whose ways are unsearchable, and whose power none can resist. We bow in humble submission to his will, while we deeply lament the loss which we, our navy, and our country have sustained.

Resolved, That we tender our warmest sympathy to the family, relations, and friends of the deceased, with the prayer that our Heavenly Father may comfort and bless them in this sad hour of their affliction.

Resolved, That in testimony of our esteem and respect for the deceased we wear the usual badge of mourning thirty days,

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of the deceased, and be published in the Princeton Whig, in the National Intelligencer and Daily Union, in the Pennsylvanian, and in the New Orleans Jeffersonian.

Mr. Bacon's Accounts

A Shortage of Over $33,000 Discovered,

Which May be Reduced to $17,000

The committee which was appointed by Secretary Lamar to settle up the accounts of the late Levi Bacon, financial clerk of the Patent Office, have practically completed their labors.

Their statement, made late this afternoon, shown that the examination of the committee covered the period from June 1 to 22 last, and that the balance unaccounted for is $11,523.00 of a total receipt held by Mr. Bacon of $67,790.40 during that period.
The deficit in the special deposits with Mr. Bacon by attorneys is $4,555, of which $1,500 cannot be collected. There is also some $16,000 in due bills from employees, clerks, etc., which, if collectable, will reduce the total deficit from over $33,000 to $17,580.60. The bondsmen, J.A. Hubbell and Jas. L. Norris, are on a bond for $10,000.

The Evening Star, July 11, 1887
Levi Bacon and the Patent Attorneys
To the Editor of The Evening Star

The alleged misappropriation of governmental funds during the late Levi Bacon's occupancy of the disbursing office of the United States Patent Office has been deemed of sufficient importance by the Secretary of the Interior to warrant an investigation, which investigation has been progressing ever since the deceased's death.

During the pendency of such examination numerous rumors purporting to emanate from the investigating committee have been current, to the effect that a number of patent attorneys have been implicated, i.e., that certain attorneys, whose names are to be reserved from publicity, have imposed upon the credulity and benevolence of the deceased by presenting for payment of Government fees, checks, drafts, etc., which, when presented were never honored, and that the amount involved by such procedure has aggregated more than $10,000.

To reserve the names of the members of this profession who have been guilty of such conduct would be a gross injustice to the profession and to the memory of the revered and beloved Levi Bacon, whose unselfishness, generosity, and misplaced confidence in his fellowman have been solely instrumental in eliciting a premature and unjust criticism from the press.

In the face of existing circumstances, no matter who or how many are involved, it would seem only fair and equitable that they should, at least, be subjected to the same criticism and judgment as the dead man who is powerless to refuse, and whose kindness and belief in human nature had been thus ignobly and criminally imposed upon.

Dr. Bacon's Accounts
A Member of the Examining Committee Says the Published Reports Have Been Misleading

Since the publication of the charge of a shortage in the accounts of the late Dr. Levi Bacon, as financial clerk of the Patent Office, the friends of that gentleman have been somewhat indignant over the publicity given the results of what they claim was a hurried and cursory examination of the affairs of the office, covering only a period of a few days, and not including a thorough examination of the books.

Mr. Schuyler Buryee, late chief clerk of the Patent Office, who was one of the committee to examine into and report upon Dr. Bacon's accounts, was asked today by a Star reporter as to the facts concerning the published reports. Mr. Duryee said: "The published reports of Dr. Bacon's accounts at the Patent Office have been misleading. The committee appointed by the Secretary of the Interior made an inventory of the contents of the safe used by Mr. Bacon, but did not examine his books. This examination should alone have been made before announcing the result of the inventory, and, until the footings of the journal kept by Dr. Bacon, showing the daily receipts of fees, are verified, and the total amount of money received by him during his eleven and one-half years of service (about $11,000,000) definitely determined and compared with the aggregate of his deposits, it is impossible to say just how his accounts stood at the time of his decease. In my judgment, and I am not alone in this, such an examination will reveal that Mr. Bacon was not in arrears. The practice of making advances to employees of the office had existed during his entire term, and it was with the knowledge of his superiors."

The whole amount of cash reported short was $28,000. Of this amount $17,000 is said to be accounted for by due bills and other papers found in the office, and the whole amount has, it is said, been paid by the persons owing it. As to the remaining $11,000, Mr. Duryee says that it is more than probable that this discrepancy—an inconsiderable sum compared with the $11,000,000 handled by Dr. Bacon—will be shown when the books are vised, to be due to clerical errors, and that errors to such an amount in a series of accounts covering 36,000 pages, which have not been examined for eight years, would not be unexpected or remarkable.

| Witnessed Inauguration of John Quincy Adams and Every President Since
| Mrs. Mary Ann Bacon, ninety-nine years old, widow of Samuel Bacon, a life-long resident of the District of Columbia, and believed by friends to be the oldest white person in the capital, died early today at her apartment in the Northumberland. Funeral services are to be held at the home of her son, Samuel H. Bacon, 1326 Columbia road northwest, Friday morning at 11 o'clock. Interment is to be private.
| Mrs. Bacon was born August 22, 1816, in a house where the navy yard now stands. She saw John Quincy Adams take the oath of office as President of United States in 1825, and had seen every President since, it is said. She was but a few months old when President Madison was succeeded by President Monroe. During the civil war period she lived at 620 E street northwest, and in 1885 moved with her husband, Samuel Bacon, to a new house at 1318 Rhode Island avenue.
| Her husband, Samuel Bacon, was one of the prominent men of the National Capital for twenty years following the civil war. He was president of the Norfolk and Washington Steamboat Company and an officer of the National Union Fire Insurance Company, and did much to promote the growth of the city.
| Health Failed in Last Two Years
| Mrs. Bacon retained all her faculties until recently, her friends say, and it was only within the last two years that her general health began to fail. When past ninety years old she could discuss world problems as intelligently as any of her grandchildren, it is recalled.
| In addition to her son, the following children are living: Mrs. Charles Heywood, widow of Maj. Gen. Heywood, late commandant of the United States Marine Corps, and Mrs. F.C. Ainsworth, wife of Maj. Gen. Ainsworth, U.S.A. retired, and former adjutant general for the War Department.
| A third daughter, who was the wife of the late Col. James P. Martin, U.S.A., died about fifteen years ago. Besides her three children, Mrs. Bacon is survived by six grandchildren and eleven great-grandchildren. |

Gen. Peter F. Bacon's Death at Garfield Hospital
A Native of the District and for Many Years Prominent in the Area

General Peter F. Bacon died yesterday afternoon at Garfield Hospital. He had gone there for an operation, which was duly performed, but owing to his advanced age he did not recover from the influence of the anaesthetic. The news of his death came with the shock of sudden surprise to a large circle of friends and acquaintances in this city. Although to those within the immediate home circle it was believed the outcome of the operation was doubtful. The remains were removed to the family home, 336 Indiana avenue, where he had resided for so many years. Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock, at the family residence. Interment will be in Congressional cemetery and will be private. There will be no pallbearers.

In spite of his age -- he was in his eighty seventh year -- General Bacon enjoyed good health and went about a good deal, mingling with men and keeping in touch with current events. He had for many years been active in public affairs in the District, and that fact gave him an extended acquaintance, which he maintained to a considerable extent up to the time of his death.

General Bacon was born here, his father having come to this city when it became the seat of government to engage in business as a grocer. General Bacon and his brother succeeded their father in the business, and their store at the southeast corner of Pennsylvania avenue and 7th street was for many years one of the prominent places of business in the city.

In Public Capacity
General Bacon's ability to serve his fellow citizens in a public capacity was early recognized, and his tact and good judgment retained for him a high place in the public esteem. He was made brigadier general of the District militia and was in command of the local soldiery at the breaking out of the civil war. At that trying time in the history of the city General Bacon was in the confidence of the military authorities of the general government, and was consulted by them in regard to plans for the protection of the city. His relations with Stanton, the great war secretary, were of a confidential character, and he was able to render service of great value.

General Bacon was called upon to assist in the administration of the police department of the District, and he was a member of the police board for ten years. He was also a member of the fire board and of the school board, and in other capacities rendered conspicuous service. At the same time he continued his interest in his business and remained in active connection with it until a few years ago, when he retired. He was a man who had the respect and esteem of his neighbors and enjoyed a wide popularity. Two daughters survive him.

One Home for Sixty Years
General Bacon occupied premises 336 Indiana avenue, it is stated, for about sixty years past. His friends say that for years past it has been his habit to leave his residence about 9 o'clock each week-day morning, proceed to a barber shop on 6th street and thence to the American House to see if everything there was in satisfactory condition.

The deceased was a familiar figure about the city hall, where he was greatly respected. His home being just across the street, it was convenient for him to attend the important and interesting legal proceedings in progress in the halls of justice. Since the trial of Howard Schneider for murder, it is stated, General Bacon did not miss a case of any note called for hearing in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia. The employees about the building knew him well, and when he appeared in a court room that was crowded several men in uniform would immediately exert themselves to provide a good seat for him.

Correct in His Predictions
It has been a topic of city hall conversation for years that General Bacon rarely, if ever, made a mistake regarding the outcome of a trial. It is agreed that no human being can with certainty anticipate the findings of juries, but General Bacon came nearer doing so, it is said, than has any other individual known locally. The attorneys interested in cases on trial always sought General Bacon, when the evidence had closed, to secure his views regarding the result. On one or two occasions when juries failed to decide as General Bacon thought they should have done he did not fail to express himself concerning them vigorously and unmistakably.
The deceased was particularly interested in the Funk and Snell murder trials of recent date. He was a particular friend of one of the prosecutors who held office when Mr. Henry E. Davis was United States attorney, and at the close of the proceeding each day during that period would have some comment to make, such as "You were a little angry at that witness today," Or "That was a first-class argument of yours to the jury."

Judge Cole's Comment
"I knew General Bacon intimately for about twenty years, and I loved him," remarked Justice Cole of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia to a Star reporter today. "I saw him nearly every day, and he was one of the finest men I ever met. I was always glad to see him in court. He paid close attention to every word spoken, and could generally reach a proper conclusion. For his age he was a remarkably vigorous and active man."

"Just one year ago, I remember," continued Justice Cole, "I met General Bacon in the corridor of the city hall. I remarked that he was looking very well, and could not be very old. I then inquired his age, saying he surely would not object to telling me."

"No," replied General Bacon, "I do not object to telling you. I am not old. I am just twenty. Seriously, though I have thirteen years more to be with you before I reach the century mark. I am now eighty seven."

Zevely, Douglass, Columbia Historical Society, April 14, 1902
No. 336 of these two houses was built by the late General Peter Bacon more than sixty years ago, and it was his home from the time it was completed until his death on the eighth of April, 1900. Mrs. Bacon, a daughter of Dr. Edward Clark, was born at the Navy Yard in this city, and died in the old home May 10, 1897, aged nearly seventy-nine years. The younger daughter continued to live there for a while after her father's death when its history as the home of the Bacon family ended. General Bacon was a Washingtonian by birth and was nearly eighty-seven years of age when he died. His father came to this city from England when the seat of government was established here and started a grocery business on the southeast corner of Seventh Street and Pennsylvania Avenue N.W., where he purchased, the upper part being his home.

The Evening Star, February 23, 1881
Gen. Peter F. Bacon Denies and Explains
In relation to the published statements to the effect that Gen. Peter F. Bacon advocated before the military committee meeting last Monday night, that the ex-confederate officers who were willing to march in the inaugural procession be permitted to wear the gray of the confederate service, Gen. Bacon, in conversation with a Star reporter this morning, states that it is incorrect. He says Gen. Crittenden's motion was that the committee decline to act under ex-confederate officers, when Col. Brelsford moved an amendment that only union officers be appointed division commanders. In the discussion that followed on this subject he (Gen. Bacon) inquired of the chairman if it was true that Gen. Sherman had made the appointments of the gentlemen named in the discussion, to which the chair replied "No." Gen. Bacon then moved that Gen. Crittenden's motion, as amended by Col. Brelsford, be laid on the table, stating that it was entirely uncalled for, and that he did this with the view of preserving harmony and to prevent the introduction of politics into the management of this inauguration. Some further discussion followed, and Col. Brelsford's resolution was adopted. The motion that the marshals be requested to wear on the 4th of March the uniform which they wore during the war was offered by Gen. McMillan, and not by Gen. Bacon.

The Evening Star, January 24, 1879
Gen. Peter F. Bacon who has been quite ill of rheumatism has recovered and is attending to business today.

The Evening Star, November 13, 1876
Gen. Peter F. Bacon has been selected to fill the vacancy in the Board of Police Commissioners occasioned by the resignation of Dr. C.H. Nichols. This appointment will give general satisfaction. The general is well known to our citizens as an active business man, of unquestioned integrity, and has experience in public affairs. He was formerly a police commissioner, and is at present a member of the Board of Fire Commissioners.

Funeral of Samuel Bacon
The funeral of Samuel Bacon took place this morning from his late residence, 1318 Rhode Island avenue. There was a large attendance of friends and relatives of the deceased and the presence of many prominent citizens testified to the regard and esteem in which he was held. Upon the casket, which was placed in the front parlor, rested a sheaf of wheat, emblematic of the life which had reached the fruition of the harvest. Services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Addison and Rev. Mr. Berry, and at their close the remains were borne to the hearse by the younger relatives of the deceased, as follows: S.H. Bacon, Dr. Ainsworth, A.T. Bacon, Samuel Bacon, George Howard, John A. Baker, Howard Bacon and H.H. Bacon. The interment was at the Congressional Cemetery.

Mrs. Baden had been in failing health for some time. She was seventy-six years of age. The immediate cause of her death was heart failure. She was the half sister of Mrs. E.D.E.N. Southworth, the Georgetown novelist, and was also well known in local literary circles in her younger days. She was the author of several works of fiction that were in popular demand at that time.

Mrs. Baden and her husband were on intimate terms with President Lincoln and his family during the Lincoln administration.

She is survived by three married daughters -- Mrs. A. Maurice Low now in Los Angeles, Cal.; Mrs. Guy Carleton of Asheville, N.C., and Mrs. Marvin A. Custis of this city.

She married Thomas Edward Baden. Children:
- Anna/Annie W. Baden, born c1864, Washington, D.C.
- Nellie F. Baden, born c1869, Washington, D.C.
- Fannie H. Baden, born c1872, Washington, D.C.

Frances and family were shown in the 1860 census (Jun 5 1860), living with her parents in Washington, D.C.:
- Thomas E. Baden, age 33, born in Maryland; claim agent; $3000 real estate.
- Frances Baden, age 25, born in D.C.
- Francis Baden, age 3, born in D.C.
- Charlotte H. Baden, age 6 months, born in D.C.

Frances and family were shown in the 1870 census (Jul 26 1870), Washington, D.C.:
- Baden, Edward, age 40, born in Washington D.C.; clerk Treasury; $300 personal property.
- Baden, Frank, age 10, born in Washington D.C.; attended school.
- Baden, Lottie, age 8, born in Washington D.C.; keeping house.
- Baden, Annie, age 6, born in Washington D.C.
- Baden, Susan, age 3, born in Washington D.C.
- Baden, Nellie, age 1, born in Washington D.C.

Frances and family were shown in the 1880 census (Jun 4-5 1880), Georgetown, Washington, D.C.:
- Baden, Thomas E., age 55, born in Maryland; parents born in Maryland; "at home".
- Baden, Francis H., wife, age 44, born in D.C.; father born in Massachusetts; mother born in Maryland; keeping house.

Frank W. Baden Thrown from a Train and Killed

Frank W. Baden, of this place, a telegraph operator employed by the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, was thrown from the platform of a train yesterday morning, and instantly killed, near the Bayard street crossing, in Baltimore. He was on his way from his home here to report for duty at the Lee street tower, in Baltimore, where he was stationed. As the train neared the tower he stepped on the vestibule to get off when the train slackened. At the Bayard street crossing there is a very sharp curve, and at that point he was thrown head first on the tracks, and his neck was broken. Baden was a native of this District and had been in the employ of the company for a good while. He was 28 years old, and was a young man of excellent habits. His book gave his home and address as Prospect cottage, Georgetown, D.C. where his parents reside. His body was brought here last night. He was the operator in the tower when the collision occurred at the "Y" in this city, and was a nephew of Mrs. E.D.E.N. Southworth, the novelist.

The Late Frank Baden

"The air is full of farewells to the dying, And mournings of the dead."

Every second of passing time carries a passing soul to eternity. Yet, when an only son, a young man--pure, tender, noble, generous, forgetful of self, devoted to others, and whose whole life has been full of labor and self-denial--is suddenly snatched away, in an instant, "in the twinkling of an eye," while in full health and activity in his path of duty, his swift "taking off" seems to call for more than the passing sigh given to the "inevitable," especially when his tragic death is the culmination of a tragic, though dutious life. Frank Baden, while still a boy, bravely took upon his own young shoulders the cares and burdens of existence, more befitting strong manhood. He became the staff and helper of his parents and young sisters. About this time, too, came the first great catastrophe in his youth. His one boy friend, his inseparable companion, his "Jonathan," his "Pythias," was drowned before his eyes, without a possibility of rescue, being snatched beneath an under current while the two were out bathing, and whirled out of sight and reach. This calamity darkened the days of his youth for years, until the light of Christian faith and the affection of a good and lovely maiden, brightened his future with the hope of happiness. Vain hope for this world! For only a few weeks ago, and when their marriage day was near, she was snatched from him by a terrible accident--a cruel death by fire--the second great catastrophe of his life. In writing to a friend of this sever affliction he added patiently, and it now seems prophetically: "And now I wait for the rising of the curtain upon the next act" (Catastrophe) "of my strange life. * * * It may be myself for my duties are full of danger." And last Sunday

The 17th instant, he was thrown from the platform of a rushing train of cars and instantly killed. So the curtain has risen, but on the scenes of another world for him, and—let us hope—one the vision of his beloved. They were not long separated. Of them also it might be truly said: "They were lovely in life, and in death they are not divided."

Louise A. Bagger Dead

A Well-Known Washingtonian Expires Suddenly at Ocean Grove

Found Dead in His Bed This Morning--

Sad Ending of a Journey for Recreation

Mr. Louis A. Bagger, the well-known patent attorney of this city, was found dead in his bed this morning at Ocean Grove. The announcement of the sad news was made to his partner, Mr. August Paterson, in a dispatch received this morning from Miss Ray, a niece of the deceased, who accompanied him to Ocean Grove. At the time that Mr. Peterson got the dispatch he had just opened and was reading a letter which had come in the morning mail, and which had been written by Mr. Bagger yesterday afternoon at the Astor House in New York city. Mr. Bagger had gone to New York on business, and the letter to his partner was largely on the matter which had called him to the city, and was cheerful in tone, and closed with affectionate remembrances to Mr. Peterson, as well as those in the office.

The shock to Mr. Peterson of this sudden news was very great. He had been associated with Mr. Bagger in business for a number of years, and, in addition, they were warm personal friends. Mr. Bagger's death was quite unexpected, although he had been in bad health for some time, and especially since the death of his wife, which occurred about a year ago. During the past year he had gone to various resorts and sanitariums in the hope of recovering his health, but had received little benefit. He was troubled with hemorrhages, which were probably the cause of his death. Mr. Bagger left this city last Saturday for Ocean Grove. He was accompanied by his niece, Miss Ray, and his only child, a little girl about ten years of age. He expected that a stay at that resort would be a benefit to him in his weakened condition. According to the dispatch received from Miss Ray, the remains will reach this city this evening.

The deceased was well known in this city, where he has resided for the past thirty years. He was born in Copenhagen, Denmark, in the year 1844, and when about twenty years of age he came to this country, landing in New York. He remained in that city for about a year, where he was engaged as a newspaper writer, and then removed to this city, and shortly afterward accepted the position of city editor, and subsequently that of managing editor of the Patriot, a daily newspaper, in which the late W.W. Corcoran was largely interested. Mr. Bagger became strongly attached to Mr. Corcoran, and the friendship was broken only by the death of the great philanthropist.

It was owing to his strong personal regard for Mr. Corcoran that he became involved in a controversy with Gov. Alex. R. Shepherd, whom he challenged to fight a duel. When the publication of the Patriot ceased, Mr. Bagger went into the patent business, being associated with Mr. Peterson, and built up a large and successful practice. Mr. Bagger was one of the oldest practicing attorneys before the patent office. He graduated from the Columbian Law School, and was admitted to the District bar. About ten years ago he was appointed vice consul in this city by the Danish government, and a similar honor was conferred on him by the government of Sweden and Norway. A few years ago he received from the King of Denmark in recognition of his services to that government, the decoration of Knight of Dannebrog, one of the oldest Danish orders. The award of this decoration is regarded as a high distinction.

During his busy professional career Mr. Bagger did not neglect literary pursuits. He wrote a large number of articles which have been printed in various magazines. He enjoyed a wide acquaintance with public men, and was a man of pleasing address, with the faculty of making friends. He was fond of shooting, and had a large collection of guns. He joined the National Guard, and was appointed inspector of rifle practice for the third battalion, a position which he held at the time of his death. He took a deep interest in the National Guard, and was also a member of the Masonic fraternity.

The condition of Columbus Bailey, an employee in Mueller’s candy factory who was struck on the head with a brick by a colored boy a few days ago is growing serious. Dr. Hartigan, who attends him, states that on Thursday night he exhibited symptoms of lock jaw, but last night the jaws were sufficiently relaxed to allow the patient to swallow milk. Dr. Hartigan entertains but slight hopes of his recovery.

Young Girl Ends Life
Miss Ethel Bailey Found Dead in Bathtub
Telephone Operator in Apartment House
Had Inhaled Illuminating Gas -- No Reason Assigned
Miss Ethel May Harrison Bailey, eighteen years old, who was employed as telephone operator at the Congressional apartment house, East Capitol and 1st streets, , and lived with her widowed mother at 247 14th street southeast, ended her life in the bathroom at her home yesterday by inhaling illuminating gas.

Mrs. Bailey is employed in the Treasury Department. She found the body of her daughter in the tub when she returned home about 5 o'clock in the afternoon.  The mother could not believe her daughter had committed suicide, however, and said she thought her death was the result of an accident.

Coroner Nevitt and the police were told that Miss Bailey was subject to fainting spells, and the mother suggested that she had accidentally fallen into the tub when she fainted.

When Mrs. Bailey reached home she detected the odor of gas.  The bathroom door was fastened and the mother was unable to open it.  Marcus Dade, a letter carrier, broke open the door at the request of Mrs. Bailey.  He lifted the body from the tub and carried it to another room.
A physician from the Casualty Hospital responded to a call and found life was extinct. Mrs. Bailey, who was hysterical, refused to believe her daughter was dead and asked that Dr. L.W. Glazebrook, her family physician, be summoned. Miss Bailey had been dead some time, however.

Was Apparently Happy

No reason for the young lady to have taken her life was suggested. She was apparently happy when she left the apartment house about 1 o'clock to go home, having made an engagement for last night with her fiancé. The latter is a musician.

The police say that Mrs. Bailey told them she had scolded her daughter Tuesday night for having remained out later than usual, but that was over and it was not a serious enough affair to cause her to consider the question of self-destruction. It was said by neighbors that Miss Bailey chatted with them when she returned home yesterday afternoon and seemed happy.

Coroner Nevitt's conclusion was that she had left the gas turned on for the purpose of ending her life. The body was fully dressed, only the shoes having been removed, and the head had not been beneath the water. An undertaker prepared the body for burial.

The Washington Post, May 20, 1910

Her Death Accident

Mother of Miss Ethel Bailey Disagrees With Coroner Fainted While in Bathtub Uncle and Fiancé Corroborate Parent's Declaration That Young Woman Did Not Commit Suicide -- Story of Quarrel Denied -- Funeral From Family Residence Tomorrow Afternoon

Notwithstanding Coroner Nevitt's verdict of suicide in the case of Miss Ethel May Harrison Bailey, who was found dead in the bathroom at her residence, 247 Fourteenth street southeast, Wednesday afternoon, her mother, Mrs. Helen S. Bailey; her uncle, J.A. Baxter, and the young man she was soon to marry, John Rockett, all declare death was accidental.

The young woman was found sitting in a bathtub partly filled with water. Gas was flowing from the single jet in the room. The doors and windows were closed. She was fully dressed, with the exception of her hat and shoes.

Underwent an Operation

Mrs. Bailey, her mother, said last night: "She did not commit suicide. Six weeks ago she was operated on for tonsillitis. Since that time she had been subject to fainting spells, caused by a weak heart. She came home Wednesday when no one was in the house, and I am positive that in turning on the water in the tub and before undressing she was seized with a fainting spell, and in falling threw up her hand, turning the gas on. It suffocated her before she recovered.

"Reports that I had reproved her for staying out late are untrue. I was never harsh to her, and she had never said an unkind word to me in her life. Only the day before her death she was planning for my birthday."

J.A. Baxter, the dead girl's uncle, is indignant at the stories that the mother quarreled with her the night before for being away from the house late at night. "It's a lie," he declared. "I took her to the moving-pictures shows the night they said she was out late. The young man she was to marry was waiting for us at the house when we returned. Her death was certainly the result of an accident."

Fiancé Mourns Girl

John Rockett, her fiancé, who with members of the family mourned at the young girl's coffin in the parlor of the little home last night, said there was nothing to cause her to commit suicide.

Funeral services will be held at the residence tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. The Rev. Donald McLeod will conduct the services. Burial will be in Congressional Cemetery.

Bailey, Francis H.
d. 27 May 1894 67 yrs.
Bailey. Departed this life Sunday morning, May 27, 1894, at 1:40, Francis H., beloved husband of Mary C. Bailey, in the 68th year of his age. But, dearest father, art thou gone Forever from our sight,
Shall we no more thy face behold,
So cheerful and so bright?

And your voice forever hushed,
That once we loved to hear.
Ah, no; we think we hear it now,
Still sounding in our ear.

By His Daughter
Funeral will take place Tuesday, May 29, at 8:30 a.m., from his late residence, 31 N street southeast, thence to St. Peter's Church, where mass will be said at 9 a.m.

Dead

News reached this city this morning of the death of Dr. Gamaliel Bailey, editor and proprietor of the National Era, the anti-slavery newspaper published here. Dr. B. was its founder, some twelve years since, and subsequently resided in our midst. A native of Virginia, he was a gentleman whose high-toned personal character and amenity of manners endeared him to all of our parties in politics and positions in life, with whom he was thrown frequently in contact, notwithstanding the repugnance of most of them (here) to the political views the support of which was the business of his life. His mind, which was highly cultivated shed light upon every subject to which it was directed. Thus, while few here approved his politics, he was recognized by all as being in all other matters a very valuable member of society: truthful, charitable, intelligent, liberal, enterprising and public-spirited. To his personal friends and his immediate family his death though not unexpected, will prove a sad bereavement, indeed. He left them not long since, in the vain hope that a trip across the Atlantic might benefit his gradually failing health.

The Arago on which he embarked, sailed on the 25th of May, and he died on the 5th of June. His age was about 52. He was accompanied by his eldest son, Marcellus. He leaves a widow with six children—three boys and three girls.

The family at 10 o'clock had not received any further intelligence than the dispatch published in the morning papers.

Death of Dr. Bailey

Mr. Raymond (of the New York Times) who was a passenger on board the Arago, gives the following particulars of the death of Dr. Bailey.

He came on board an invalid, and was hoping that relief from toil and change of scene would restore the strength and vigor which the incessant and strenuous labors of his profession had greatly impaired.
After Tuesday, the sea became remarkably smooth, and so continued to the end of the voyage. But it brought him no relief—his strength failed with failing appetite; and on Thursday, from staying too long upon deck, he too cold, which kept him to his room next day; otherwise, he seemed about as usual through that day and Saturday, and on Sunday morning seemed even better—saying that he had slept unusually well, and felt strengthened and refreshed. He took some slight nourishment, and attempted to get up from his berth without assistance. The effort was too much for him, however, and his son, who had left the room at his request, but stood at the door, saw him fall as he attempted to stand. He at once went in, raised him and laid him upon the couch. Seeing that he was greatly distressed in breathing, he went immediately for Dr. Smith, the surgeon of the ship. I met him on deck, and hearing of his father’s condition, went at once to his room. I found him wholly unconscious, breathing with difficulty, but perfectly quiet, and seemingly asleep. Drs. Beadle and Dubois were present and had endeavored to give him a stimulant; but he was unable to swallow, and it was evident he was dying. He continued in this state for about half an hour, his breathing became slower and slower until finally it ceased altogether, and that was all! Not a movement of a muscle—not a spasm or a tremor of any kind—betrayed the moment when his spirit took its departure. An infant, we aried with play on a summer’s eve, could not have fallen asleep more gently. His remains were placed on ice and taken to Havre, from which they will be returned to New York by the Vanderbilt, which leaves on the 18th inst.

Funeral of George W. Bailey
Brief funeral services were held yesterday afternoon over the remains of George W. Bailey, who died suddenly in New York city Wednesday evening. The services took place at the undertaking establishment of J. William Lee, 332 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, at 2 o'clock. Rev. John Compton Ball, pastor of the Metropolitan Baptist Church, officiated. Later the interment took place in Congressional cemetery.

A short funeral service was held Thursday evening in New York at the residence of Mr. Charles A. Benedict, at 150 West 13th street. Rev. Dr. Wilson conducted the services, assisted by the officers of Gramercy Lodge, A.F. and A.M., and Beltland Chapter, R.A.M., respectively. Later in the evening the two daughters of the deceased, Mrs. Annie M. Hobbs and Mrs. Mary E. Donahue, accompanied the remains to this city.

Mr. Bailey was born in this city and resided here until about seventeen years ago, when he removed to New York city.

The Evening Star, February 27, 1904
Had Been in Government Service Thirty-Seven Years
John A. Bailey, a machinist in the Navy Yard, died at his home on 11th street south east yesterday. The deceased was fifty-eight years old and had been in the government service thirty-seven years. He was born on 11th street and lived there all his life. For more than thirty years he was engaged to the boat business at the foot of 11th street southeast, giving to it all the time he could spare from his other duties and was known by most of the gunners and anglers throughout the city. Five grown children survive him. His grandfather was with the American forces when the Anacostia bridge was burned during the War of 1812. The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock and the body will be placed in a vault at Congressional cemetery.

Too fair for earth, her spirit fled
To Heaven, celestial bliss;
She was too sweet, too fair by far,
For such a world as this.

She has gone where joy eternal reigns
Around her Maker's throne;
Where death nor sorrow can invade,
The world's eternal home.

Thus quickly faded that fair flower,
To us but briefly given;
That flower that bloomed so sweet on earth
Now sweeter bloom sin Heaven.

Go, little loved one, go;
A mother's heart can tell,
And none but her can fully know
How sad to say farewell.
The friends of the family are invited to attend the funeral, from the parents' residence, No. 492 H street southwest, on Sunday, at 2 o'clock p.m.

Another Old Citizen Gone

The death of Wm. Bailey, which occurred yesterday in East Washington, adds another to the long list of aged men in this city who have recently passed away. The deceased, familiarly known as "Major Bailey" was born in Petersburg, Va., May 16, 1798, served as a boy under commodore Barney in the War of 1812, at the close of the war was employed in the navy yard, and has been there almost continuously ever since. The major was one of the prominent figures of East Washington, highly esteemed by those who knew him. His funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon from his late residence, and will be attended by Harmony Lodge, No. 9, I.O.O.F., and Eagle Tent, No. 2, of Rechabites of which deceased was long a member.

The Evening Star, July 29, 1861

The California Regiment, of which Col. E.D. Baker, U.S. Senator from Oregon is the commander, reached here on the evening before last. It numbers between fourteen and fifteen hundred men, and we regret to hear is in a very bad state of discipline, indeed. Without proper discipline its presence on a battlefield would be worse than useless, except to the enemy.

There can be little doubt that such a thing as proper subordination in the regiment is a thing almost unknown.

Col. Baker is a candidate for a brigadier generalship. While we entertain the kindest feelings for that gentleman, it is our plain duty thus to call the attention of the President to the alleged condition of his regiment, which, if it be true, embraces positive proof that he may not be safely entrusted with a higher grade of military responsibility. The insubordination of the men of course grows out of the failure of his officers to control them, and to set them proper examples, and their failure to control their men embraces at least prima facie evidence that their colonel fails to control them.

Our army lost the battle of Bull Run mainly through its lack of discipline. It is our duty to leave no effort untried to profit our cause by the disasters of that field. Hence, alone, this publication concerning the state of Col. Baker's California regiment.

The Death of Colonel Baker

Headquarters, Army of the Potomac
Washington, Oct. 22, 1861

General Orders, No. 31

The Major General Commanding with sincere sorrow announces to the Army of the Potomac, the death of Colonel Edward D. Baker, who fell gloriously in battle, on the evening of Monday, the 21st October, 1861, near Leesburg, Virginia.

The gallant dead has many titles to honor. At the time of his death he was a member of the United States Senate for Oregon, and it is no injustice to any survivor to say that one of the most eloquent voices in that illustrious body has been silenced by his fall. As a patriot, zealous for the honor and interests of his adopted country, he has been distinguished in two wars, and has now sealed with his blood his devotion to the national flag. Cut off in the fullness of his powers as a statesman, and in the course of a brilliant career as a soldier, while the country mourns his loss, his brothers in arms will envy while they lament his fate. He died as a soldier would wish to die, amid the shock of battle, by voice and example animating his men to brave deeds.

The remains of the deceased will be interred in this city with the honors due to his rank, and the funeral arrangements will be ordered by Brigadier General Silas Casey.

As an appropriate mark of respect to the memory of the deceased, the usual badge of military mourning will be worn for the period of thirty days by the officers of the Brigade lately under his command.

By command of Major General McClellan

The Late Colonel Baker

The remains of the late gallant Col. E.B. Baker have not yet reached Washington. They are to be taken to the residence of Major J.W. Webb, at the corner of Fourteenth and H streets--No. 363. We learn incidentally that his body was pierced with six balls, either of which would probably have been fatal; thus showing that his person on the field was a shining mark indeed.
On leaving his quarters at his friend, Major Webb's for the field of his death, he remarked to that gentleman that he expected to be in action in less than forty-eight hours, and felt that he should lose his life; closing the conversation with a request that Major W. should send for his body if his presentment proved true.

Sketch of the Late Col. Baker

Col. E.D. Baker, who fell at the head of his command while charging upon the enemy, near Leesburg, was an old Philadelphian and of Quaker origin. His ancestors were English Friends, Colonel Baker himself was born in England, but was brought to Philadelphia when an infant, where he and a younger brother were left orphans soon after their arrival. This calamity left them no resource but to work their way through the world with their own hands. For a while young Baker worked as a hand loom weaver in a small manufacturing establishment near Thirteenth and South streets, where the loom upon which he labored is still standing. It is likely, now to become an object of interest. Before he reached manhood he paid some attention to the study of the law, and left Philadelphia for the Great West. His purse being light, he and the younger brother crossed the Alleghenies and went through Ohio and Indiana, all the way on foot, until they reached the Wabash river, which they descended in a canoe, and at last found themselves upon the broad prairies of Illinois. In this State Colonel Baker took up the study of the law in a regular way, and soon made for himself a name, even at the bar of Springfield, where he met--sometimes as colleagues and sometimes as adversaries--both the deceased Douglas and President Lincoln.

Colonel Baker was a representative in Congress from Illinois during the years 1846 and 1847, and was subsequently Senator for the new State of Oregon. His military career shows that this is not his first campaign, for we find that in May, 1846, he was colonel of the fourth regiment of twelve months' Illinois volunteers in the Mexican war, and commanded the brigade of Gen. Shields after his fall. He was well distinguished in the battle of Cerro Gordo. He received his discharge in May 1847. In a military capacity he was not again known until the present troubles commenced, when at the monster meeting in Union square he ascended the principal platform and boldly announced that if he could get only a few followers he would as boldly go forth and battle for the Union. How the words of the white-haired Senator told upon the loyal citizens of the North time has already proven. He organized the California regiment and led it to the field. When offered a brigadier, and even a major generalship, he refused both, preferring to be at the head of the regiment he had organized, and, although acting in this battle as a genera, he was simply the colonel of the First California regiment which started from New York city.

The Battle In Leesburg

We learn through a source on which we are enabled to place entire reliance some particulars coming from the other side of the Potomac in relation to the recent battle near Leesburg. It appears that when the intention of throwing the Federal troops across the Potomac first became apparent, the Confederate force in the neighborhood of Leesburg was so small that it was almost decided not to offer any resistance. Some reinforcements were, however, brought up from back of Leesburg, and with the force thus gathered not altogether exceeding three thousand, it was resolved to make a stand. Both parties, it was admitted at Leesburg, fought desperately. The Confederates feared that they would be surrounded by the large force which they anticipated General Banks would throw across the Ferry above, the battle was fought and the most desperate efforts were directed to defeat General Baker before the expected reinforcements come to his relief. The Federal troops, though overmatched in numbers, stood out against the attack manfully and bravely. The result was that both parties suffered severely in killed and wounded.

The party from whom our information comes saw over one hundred of the Confederate dead whilst their wounded was so numerous that all the farm houses in the neighborhood were occupied as temporary hospitals. The number of Federal soldiers captured our informant did not know. He saw one party of one hundred and ten taken off, but understood that two other squads had previously been sent away.

The expectation, which at first prevailed, that the National troops would be able to advance in overwhelming numbers to Leesburg, occasioned the utmost excitement. The Unionists, of whom there are a large number in the vicinity, were prepared to receive and welcome the army, whilst many of prominent made Secessionists made preparations to leave. The repulse of the National troops of course caused a corresponding depression with one class, and the most extraordinary exultation with the other.

After the battle the Confederate rapidly hurried up reinforcements, and at the time to which information extends it was estimated that they had from ten to fifteen thousand men at Leesburg and Waterford.--Balt. American

The Body of Col. Baker
The evening after the funeral of the lamented Co. Baker, the corpse was removed from the vault in the Congressional Cemetery, where it was deposited, to the embalming rooms of Dr. Holmes, to be prepared for transmission to its final resting place in California. The committee of Californians who have charge of the body, have taken great care that all the arrangements for the removal of the body should be made in the most appropriate manner. The undertaker's work, by Buchly, is in his best style. The temporary coffin in which the body of Col. B. was brought from Poolesville, has been replaced by a handsome metallic case, imitation of rosewood, mounted with silver; a large plate of glass covering the face, through which the features of the deceased may be seen by his friends, below which, over the breast, is a silver plate with the inscription: "Col. E.D. Baker, killed in battle near Ball's Bluff, Virginia, Oct. 21, 1861." The process of embalming was made very difficult by the shattered condition of the body, upon inspection of which eight wounds were apparent. One large wound in the left temple; a small ball wound above the right ear; one in the back of the neck; one between the collar bone and shoulder blade, passing down into the body; one through the chest; one passing across the thighs; one dividing all the interior fleshy portion of the left arm; and one in the breast, near the left armpit. Notwithstanding these difficulties, Dr. Holmes succeeded in thoroughly embalming the body. The torn and blood-stained uniform in which he was killed was removed, and this morning, clad in a new uniform, he lay in the coffin not a ghastly and pale corpse, but as life-like as we have seen him in all the glow of health, and if lying upon a couch, he would be easily mistaken for a sleeping soldier. Today, by invitation of the committee, the President and other distinguished friends of the gallant dead will visit the rooms of Dr. Holmes, at Buchly's establishment, Pennsylvania avenue near Ninth street, and see the face of their late friend for the last time; after which the case will be sealed for transmission to New York, thence to California.

Statue of General Baker

On Saturday last a beautiful statuette of the late General E.D. Baker, Senator from Oregon, who was killed at the battle of Ball's Bluff, in the early part of the war, was received here from Rome, by Colonel Stephens, of California, for whom it was made by the well-known Washington, Dr. Horatio Stone, who is now in the Eternal City. It is now on exhibition at Messrs. Galt & Bro.'s jewelry store. Gen. Baker is represented with a roll of manuscript in his right hand, in the act of delivering a speech, and the likeness is pronounced by all who knew the deceased, to be most striking. The work is mounted on a pedestal, the upper portion of which revolves with the statue. It bears representations of justice, war, etc., and below are the following lines from the last speech of the deceased in the Senate delivered August, 1861. "There will be some graves reeking with blood, watered by the tears of affection. There will be some privation. There will be some loss of luxury. The will be somewhat more need of labor to procure the necessaries of life. When that is said, all is said. If we have the country, the whole country, the Union, the Constitution, Free Government, with all these will return all the blessings of well ordered civilization. The path of the country will be a career of greatness and glory, such as our Fathers in the olden time foresaw in the dim visions of years yet to come; and such as would have been ours today had it not been for the treason for which the Senator (Breckinridge) too often seeks to apologize."

An Old Soldier's Suicide
He Opens a Vein in His Arm and Bleeds to Death
About 7 o'clock this morning an elderly white man, named John Baker, an old soldier, who has been about this city the past winter trying for an increase of pension, was found dead in bed at the Bayard House, corner 10th and E streets. The colored boy-servant who found him reported the facts, and upon further examination it was found that he had bled to death from a wound inflicted in his arm, and two penknives were found on the floor near his bed. Baker was an Englishman by birth, and served in the Union army during the war, and afterwards obtained a private soldier's pension, which he has since been drawing and living in the soldiers' homes at Dayton, Ohio, and at Hampton, Va. He came to this city last fall for the purpose of obtaining an increase of pension, but meeting with no success, he afterwards tried to get a transfer to the Soldiers' Home in the District, but in consequence of having violated some rules connected with the institutions where he had been previously staying, he also failed in this object. In the meantime he has obtained lodging for a considerable portion of the time in the night lodging house, but latterly has not been seen there much. He also had a life interest in a deceased brother's estate in England and received a remittance half yearly of $75, making $150 annually from his agent in England, which together with his pension here supported him comfortably, he having no family. The coroner viewed the remains and decided that an inquest was unnecessary as there was no question as to how he came to his death.

The Evening Star, March 28, 1881
The Funeral of John Baker, the old soldier who committed suicide last Wednesday night at the Bayard house, corner of 10th and E street, took place Saturday last from the undertaking establishment of Mr. Anthony Buckley, Pennsylvania avenue, and was attended by the friends of the deceased and members of the Grand Army of the Republic. The remains were laid in a walnut coffin, and Rev. C.C. Meador, of the 5th Baptist church of South Washington, held appropriate services, after which the body was interred in the Congressional Cemetery, where Mr. Buckley purchased a burial site. Deceased left not one cent of money, having expended all his pension money in the payment of obligations, and Mr. B. has to trust to the honor of surviving relations, if any are living for reimbursement. Mr. Baker was an Englishman by birth, and bore evidences of having been genteelly raised and educated. He was engaged at the time of his death in making a model of the U.S. Capitol as a matter of pastime.

Zeverly, Douglas, Columbia Historical Society, April 14, 1902

On the northeast corner of Third Street and Indiana Avenue there was a carpenter shop built by Almon Baldwin about 1846. He had associated with him his three sons, William, Edward, and Clay, all of whom, as well as the father, are now dead. This building was of wood construction, and in these days would be considered a small affair, but it was well equipped with steam power and machine tools, and the firm did a very extensive business in contracts for buildings, as well as general carpenter work. Shortly after the war the firm had a more extensive establishment in the way of larger and more modern buildings on D Street between First and Second.

Drank Sulfuric Acid
Baby's Fatal Draught of Poison Yesterday Afternoon
Harry Baldwin, 19th months old drank a small quantity of sulfuric acid about 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of his parents, No. 1240 C street northeast, and died about 2 o'clock this morning from the effects of the resultant injuries. The father of the child, Mr. Harry H. Baldwin, is a machinist at the navy yard. Yesterday he bought a small quantity of sulphuric acid to use in some electrical work. The vial containing the acid was placed on a table in the kitchen, and the baby picked it up and proceeded to investigate its contents while his parents were not looking.

Mrs. Baldwin's attention was attracted to her baby by its cries, and discovering its mouth to be blistered and its dress scorched physicians were hastily summoned. Subsequently the baby was taken to the Emergency Hospital, its condition being there regarded as serious. The doctors did what they could for the little patient and advised that he be kept in the institution under treatment, but the parents declined to allow him to remain.

On their way home they stopped at the office of Dr. Richard Kingsman, their family physician, and had him prescribe for the child. He discovered the little one to be then in a dying condition. After receiving treatment at the doctor's office the patient was taken home. This morning about 2 o'clock the doctor was summoned to the house, there having been a change for the worse in the child's condition, and the death occurred about the time of the physician's arrival.

The Evening Star, March 2, 1888

Death of William H. Baldwin

Mr. William H. Baldwin died this morning at his residence, in LeDroit Park, after a long illness. The immediate cause of death was dropsy of the heart. Mr. Baldwin was a builder, and as a member of the firm of Baldwin Bros. he erected a large number of the prominent buildings in this city. In recent years he constructed the Hooe building, on F street, now occupied by the Geological Survey, and the Adams' building, on the opposite side of the street. He was a member of Trinity (P.E.) church. He leaves a wife and a son, Mr. Ralph Baldwin. His wife was a sister of the late Mr. Z.D. Gilman, the well-known druggist. |

Balestier, W. T.

Death of a Stranger

Mr. W.T. Balestier, of New Orleans, arrived in this city by the Southern boat, at six o’clock on Saturday morning, and was conveyed in a weak and dying condition to the Kirkwood House. The Mesrs. Kirkwood, with their accustomed kindness of heart and indifference to trouble or expense, where the calls of humanity are concerned, were unremitting and devoted in their attention to the dying stranger. Dr. Berry and Dr. Miller were immediately sent for, the former of whom remained at the bedside of Mr. Balestier until his death, which took place at one o’clock this afternoon. The Masonic fraternity of this city, of which the deceased was a member, have taken the body in charge, and are now making suitable arrangements for the funeral.

July 7, 1846:
Mrs. C.B. Ball, mother-in-law of Mrs. Fanny Ball died about 1 o'clock this morning after 12 or 14 months sickness and will be buried tomorrow afternoon at half past 4 o'clock.

July 8, 1846:
Ma and I attended the funeral of Mrs. Ball at half past 4 o'clock this afternoon, and I served as one of the pall bearers. There was a very respectable and large body of attendants and about a dozen carriages. The corpse was laid in the public vault to remain there awhile and then to be buried. As she is now in the Congressional burying ground, I presume that her remains will finally rest there. Her aged father and feeble husband were both of them at the funeral.

Results in Death

Young Man Fatally Hurt By Railway Train

Expires Soon After Reaching Emergency Hospital in This City--

His Name Not Ascertained

An unknown young man, apparently about twenty-five or thirty years old, was struck by the Hagerstown train near Germantown, Montgomery county, Maryland, this morning and fatally injured. He was brought to this city and taken to the Emergency Hospital, where he died a few minutes after his arrival. Death resulted from a severe fracture at the base of the brain. There was nothing found on the man to show his identity. Only a slip of paper taken from his pocket was written: "Dear Percy."

The clothing of the dead man indicates that he was probably making his way through the country afoot and had fallen asleep while seated on the end of the railroad ties. He was seen by the engineer when the train was some distance away and the man at the throttle blew his whistle several times in his effort to attract the attention of the man who was in danger. When he finally realized that the man was not easily aroused he reversed his engine and applied the brakes. The young man straightened up just in time to be struck by the step of the engine. So great was the force of the blow that he was thrown a distance from the track.

The train was stopped and the members of the crew took charge of the injured man. He was unconscious, and was placed on the train and a stop was made at Rockville, where a physician was called to attend him. The doctor accompanied the wounded man to this city, and the Emergency Hospital ambulance was summoned. A quick run was made to the depot, and the victim was given treatment on the way to the hospital in the ambulance.

Dr. Stuart stated when he saw the wounded man that recovery was impossible, and death occurred before an operation could be performed. The body of the victim was removed to the morgue and the coroner was notified. It is likely that a certificate of accidental death will be given.
An effort is being made to have the body identified. A number of residents of the county near where the accident occurred saw the man, but none of them knew him.

Dead Man Identified

Son of Mr. John T. Ball, Who Resides in East Washington

The identity of the young man whose tragic death, resulting from an accident near Germantown, Md., as announced elsewhere in The Star, has been established. It proves to be Percy Ball, the son of John T. Ball, who resides at 203 9th street southeast. The identification was brought about by finding a comb bearing his name in a pocket of his clothing. When informed of the death, Mr. Ball, the young man's father, went at once to the morgue to view the remains.

Mr. Ball stated to a Star reporter that his son had sustained an injury to his head several years ago, and had to undergo an operation, since which he had not been entirely free from mental trouble. He left home ten days ago without notifying his friends of his intentions, and later they heard he was in Pittsburg, but he had not communicated directly with his parents. He was nineteen years of age.

The Evening Star, June 26, 1902, p. 16

Death Was Accidental

Coroner Nevitt So Certifies in Case of Percy Ball

Capt. Boardman notified the Maryland authorities yesterday afternoon of the death in this city of Percy Ball, the young man who was struck by a Baltimore and Ohio train near Germantown yesterday morning. As the affair was purely an accident the Maryland authorities will probably take no action.

Coroner Nevitt gave a certificate of accidental death and Undertaker Cain removed the body last night from the morgue to the home of the parents of the deceased, No. 203 9th street southeast. Arrangements have been made for the funeral to take place at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The interment will be at Congressional cemetery.

Death of Robert Ball

An Old and Much Respected Resident of Washington

Robert Ball, a resident of the District since 1834, one of the oldest members of the Masonic fraternity here crier of the District Supreme Court since 1882, and one of the best known and most highly respected citizens of the District, died at his residence, 233 G street at 11:20 last evening, after an illness of several weeks.

Mr. Ball was born in Alexandria county, Va., April 30, 1827, coming to this city seven years later. He was educated at the Rev. Charles Nourse's School, afterward Rittenhouse Academy, and returning to Virginia in 1848 farmed there until 1853, when he became a letter carrier here. Upon the introduction of the free delivery system in 1862 he was made superintendent, being detailed when postal cars were introduced as chief of the first car run between this city and New York. He resigned his position in the post office in October 1865, and entered the feed business with the late Wm. M. Galt. A year later he entered the boot and shoe business, conducting at 430 7th street one of the finest stores in the city. He discontinued the business in 1877, and five years later was appointed crier of the District Supreme Court, which position he held at the time of his death. From 1867 to 1869 he was a member of the city council.

Mr. Hall became a member of the Masonic fraternity May 10, 1858, when he entered Dawson Lodge, No. 16, as an apprentice, becoming a fellow craft June 28, 1858, and master Mason, July 30 of the same year. Ten years later he received the capitular degrees in Washington Royal Arch Chapter, the council degrees in Lafayette Council, No. 1, when it was first established here, and the orders of knighthood in Columbia Commandery, No. 2, in 1870. He was past master of his lodge, past high priest of his chapter, past commander of his commandery, past grand high priest of the Grand Chapter and past president of the convention of appointed high priests. He was president of the Masonic choir and one of the founders of the Masonic Mutual Relief Association. He was president of the Masonic Veteran Association of the District, besides holding other high offices within the gift of Masonry, he having been treasurer, captain general and eminent commander of Columbia Commandery and crowned honorable inspector general, thirty-third degree, by the Supreme Council, southern jurisdiction, Scottish Rite, October 24, 1895. He had been
Mr. Ball was a member of the Veteran Volunteer Firemen's Association and treasurer of the Oldest Inhabitants at the time of his death and many years prior thereto.

Mr. Ball was a man of the highest integrity, and enjoyed the greatest popularity, particularly among the legal fraternity. He is said to have possessed some valuable property. His death resulted from heart disease and he passed away surrounded by his son, Dr. Charles A. Ball, and three daughters, Mrs. Mary Hyatt and Clara and Florence Ball. Mr. Ball's wife, who was Miss Elizabeth McElwees, died in 1881, they having been married in 1852. Mr. Ball was a direct descendant of William Ball, a brother of Joseph Ball, the father of Mary Washington.

Accidentally Drowned
Acting Coroner Todd, on Saturday afternoon, held an inquest on the body of the drowned man found near 7th street wharf, as mentioned in Saturday's Star, and the jury returned a verdict that the deceased (name unknown) came to his death by accidental drowning. After the verdict of the jury had been returned the body was recognized as that of Mr. Richard Ballenger, a huckster of this city, who resided on L street, between 4 1/2 and 6th streets. He left the city on the morning of the 16th instant on the mail boat for Glymont, and is supposed to have fallen off the boat just before she landed on her up trip. The body was taken in charge by Liberty Lodge, No. 6, K. of P., of which he was a member, and was interred yesterday at the Congressional Cemetery.

Assistant Engineer of Police Boat Vigilant Passes Away

Mr. J.L. Ballinger, assistant engineer of the harbor police boat Vigilant, died of consumption at his home, 209 14th street northeast, Monday night, after a long illness. Mr. Ballinger was but 26 years of age. He contracted the disease of which he died about three years ago, and spent several months at the Fort Staunton, New Mexico, sanitarium. Becoming better, he returned home, but the disease soon again made itself manifest.

Mr. Ballinger was able to attend to his duties until about three weeks ago, when he had to take to his bed.

The deceased was a member of Washington Harbor of Masters and Pilots, and the harbor has taken charge of the funeral arrangements.

The body of Mr. Ballenger was today brought to the Mariners' Temple, No. 1250 Water street, where the funeral services will take place tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. The pallbearers will be members of the Association of Masters and Pilots and the Patriotic Order Sons of America.

The interment will be in Congressional Cemetery.

Balmaine. At the same residence, in an adjoining room, about two hours after Mrs. Balmaine's death, her daughter, Susan W. Balmaine, in the 21st year of her age, breathed her last. Her high sense of filial duty, had enchained her to the bedside of her suffering parent -- no persuasion, no argument, could induce her to intermit her attentions, night or day. Vainly was it urged that her beloved sister Maria had, within a few months, fallen a victim to the same devoted affections. The lovely Susan embraced a similar fate, conscious that it awaited her. From blooming health, she was in the course of a few weeks so reduced, as to be incapable of rendering the slightest assistance to her revered mother, and she then, though reluctantly, consented to a short journey to the Springs of Milan, in the faint hope of improving her strength. Apprised of the extreme danger of her mother, she was, with great difficulty brought back in the arms of her brother, to the scene of death, and receiving the benedictions of her expiring mother, the pure spirits of both left their mortal tenements, and ascended to the regions of immortality.

James C. Bangs Dead
One of the Oldest Odd Fellows in the District

James C. Bangs died yesterday afternoon at his residence, 1855 9th street northwest. He had been ill for several days, and death was the result of complications arising from the grip. Funeral services will be held at the residence Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and the interment will be in the Congressional Cemetery.

Mr. Bangs was in his 78th year, having been born December 23, 1823. He was a native of Alexandria, Va., but came to this city when a youth, and here in 1845 he married Miss Mary Gormley. His wife died in 1897. Two years previously they celebrated the golden anniversary of their wedding. Mr. Bangs was one of the oldest Odd Fellows in this jurisdiction. The funeral services will be under the auspices of Excelsior Lodge, of which the deceased was a member.

He is survived by seven children -- James E. and Miss Laura Bangs, and Mrs. G.L., Burnes of this city; Mrs. Susie V. Carson and W.T. Bangs of Denver, Col.; David C. Bangs of Cleveland, Ohio, and Mrs. James H. Bremermann of Kansas City, Mo., the first three of whom were with their father at the time of his death. There are also two brothers, Frank C. Bangs, the actor, and John Bangs of Mauch Chunk, Pa., and a sister, Mrs. Johnson of Philadelphia, who survive him.

Funeral of Prominent Odd Fellow

The funeral of James Cannon Bangs took place yesterday afternoon from his late residence, 1855 9th street. Rev. Dr. Duffey of Mount Vernon Place Church officiated at the house, and the services at the Congressional cemetery were conducted by Excelsior Lodge, No. 17, of Odd Fellows.

Mr. Bangs was perhaps the oldest Odd Fellow in the District, having been identified with the organization for over fifty years. He is survived by seven children -- Mr. J.E. Bangs, Miss Laura Bangs, Mrs. Gertrude L. Burnes of this city and Mr. David C. Bangs of Cleveland, Ohio; Mrs. L.A. Bremermann of Kansas City, Mo., and Mrs. Edward Carson of Denver, Col.

Mr. Bangs will be greatly missed, not only by his children, but by a circle of warm and appreciative friends. He was of a kindly disposition and all who came in contact with him learned to respect and love him. The floral tributes of thoughtful friends were many and beautiful, testifying to the high esteem in which he was held.

James E. Bangs Dead
Native of Washington and Prominent in Social and Official Life

James E. Bangs died last night at his residence, No. 1855 9th street northwest, this city. With the exception of a few years comparatively, when he resided in the far west, he had been always a resident of the city of Washington. Mr. Bangs was gifted with brilliant mental endowments and the public schools marked him as one of their brightest students, he having in 1867, by competitive examination, taken the scholarship in the Columbian University, which was then considered the first honor in educational awards. He graduated with the highest honors from this institution, receiving the degree of master of arts and bachelor of laws, but instead of practicing the profession of the law he accepted in 1872 the position of head of a division in the northern boundary commission, which surveyed the boundaries of the United States and the British possessions from the Lake of the Woods to the Rocky mountains. From May 1877 to October 1879, he was a special examiner in the pension office at Washington; from 1879 to 1881 he filled the responsible position of disbursing officer of the United States geological survey; from 1881 to 1883 he was chief of the educational division of the tenth census.
Leaving Washington for Portland, Ore., he served from 1883 to 1889 in the division of accounts of the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company and as editorial writer on the Portland Oregonian. Leaving Portland in 1889 he went to Denver, Col., where up to 1895 he was engaged upon the editorial staffs of several newspapers there, and from 1895 to 1899 he was a clerk in the quartermaster's department of the United States army at Denver. About a year and a half ago he returned to Washington on account of failing health and accepted an appointment in the adjutant general's office of the War Department, which position he held up to the time of his death.

In his younger days in this city Mr. Bangs was popular in literary and social circles, and was an entertainer of a high order. His father, James C. Bangs, died very recently, and his mother, Mary Bangs, passed away suddenly about four years ago. Three brothers--Mr. David C. Bangs of Cleveland, Ohio; Mr. Wm. T. Bangs and Mr. Gale C.W. Bangs of Denver, Col.--four sisters--Mrs. Edward Carson of Denver, Col.; Mrs. J.H. Bremmerman of Kansas City, Mo., and Mrs. Gertrude Butts and Miss Laura Bangs of this city--as well as his wife, Mrs. Evelyn A. Bangs, and one daughter, Mrs. Minerva M. Pike of Philadelphia, Pa., survive him.

The funeral will take place Thursday at 4:30 p.m. from his late residence, 1855 9th street northwest. The pallbearers, selected by himself, will be Mr. E.B. Hay, Mr. Harry Harkness, Mr. Ralph Jefferson, Mr. George Thomas and Messrs. Riggles and McGill of the adjutant general's office. The services will be conducted by the Rev. Page Milburn and the interment will be at the Congressional cemetery.

Funeral of James E. Bangs

Funeral services over the body of the late James E. Bangs were conducted at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at No. 1855 9th street by Rev. Page Milburn, who depicted the attractive characteristics of the dead man in touching terms. There were many beautiful floral tributes, including a crown sent by the former associates of Mr. Bangs in the adjutant general's office. The pallbearers were Messrs. Edwin B. Hay, Ralph Jefferson, Harry Harkness, George Thomas, Mr. Riggles and Mr. McGill. Interment was made in Congressional cemetery.

Illness of Mr. Bangs

Mr. James E. Bangs, now of the adjutant general's office, War Department, is seriously ill of heart disease at his home, 1855 9th street northwest. Mr. Bangs is a well-known Washingtonian and is popular in the newspaper fraternity, having been for about twelve years on the staff of the Oregonian, Portland, Ore., and for many years on the Republican and Rocky Mountain News of Denver, Col.

In the joyful anticipation of Heaven; on Monday, the 13th instant, at five minutes past two o'clock P.M., the Rev. NINIAN BANNATYNE, junior pastor of F street Presbyterian church, in the 34th year of his age, and fourth of his ministry. He was a good man, an eloquent preacher, a faithful pastor, an affectionate relative and friend. He has departed in the morning of his usefulness, and will be long cherished in the affections of all who knew him.

His funeral will take place this day, at half-past four o'clock P.M. The services will be conducted in the church, and the interment will take place in the yard at the south end of it. The members of the congregation, the friends of the family, and his brethren in the ministry are respectfully invited to attend.

The National Intelligencer, December 12, 1845

At Easton, (Pa.) on the 3d instant, by the Rev. Dr. Gray, the Rev. Ninian Bannatyne, co-pastor elect of the F street Presbyterian Church of this city to Amelia A., daughter of the late Rev. David Bishop of the former place.

From Frank E. Edgington, History of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church (1961):

1. The Rev. Ninian Bannatyne came to the F Street Church as co-pastor to Dr. James Laurie on May 13, 1845. "He was a native of the Isle of Bute, Scotland, and a licentiate of the Presbytery of New York. Having been unanimously elected, he was ordained and installed by the Presbytery of Baltimore May 24, 1845. His tenure was very short. He died of tuberculosis August 13, 1849, in his thirty-fifth year, and was buried in the F Street Churchyard. Later his body was removed to the Congressional Cemetery. Dr. Laurie, as well as the congregation, were greatly saddened by this bereavement." (page 14)

2. Dr. Peter Parker returned to Washington in 1857 after a long term of service as a medical missionary to China. In 1862 the Youth’s Missionary Society of the New York Avenue Church accepted his challenge to support the mission program in China. "Early in the year the Youth’s Missionary Society decided to educate two little Chinese lads who were promptly named James Laurie and Ninian Bannatyne." (page 137)

From the Rev. David X. Junkin’s eulogy on James Laurie in The Presbyterian, May 7, 1853:

"Several ministers of the gospel were associated with Dr. Laurie, in the pastoral office, during his last and feeble years, and it is just to say that, in that somewhat delicate and difficult relation, he bore himself in a manner at once paternal and considerate; so as to perpetuate a state of affection and intercourse with his colleagues much more happy and sweet to remember, than is apt to exist in similar circumstances. The lovely Bannatyne preceded him to the tomb, mourned by him as a son by a father. He almost literally fell with his harness on."

From the research of Elaine Foster, Sept. 2003:

This "father-son" relationship between James Laurie and Ninian Bannatyne may have had roots in a common religious tradition in Scotland. James Laurie had been trained in the Associate, or Secession, church of Scotland, which had split off from the main stream Covenanters over the Lay Patronage Act in 1746. Lay patronage allowed patrons or wealthy landholders to control the appointment of ministers in defiance of congregational approval, which is the heart of representative Presbyterian government. Such a system allowed a few large property owners to appoint the pastor of a church. In 1733 Ebenezer Erskine led a group out of the Scottish Kirk in protest: "What difference does a piece of land make between man and man in the affairs of Christ’s kingdom?" Erskine questioned. "By this act we show respect to the man with the gold ring and gay clothing, beyond the man with vile raiment and poor attire." This group of Seceders, as they were known, organized themselves as The Associated Synod of the Secession Church.

In 1747, these Seceders divided again over a clause in the oath tendered to city officials (burghers). Out of this schism came the Burghers and the Anti-Burghers. James Laurie was trained in the Anti-Burgher tradition. Since there were no wealthy Burghers on the American frontier, there was no reason to maintain this distinction in the Associate Reformed Church that called James Laurie to Washington in 1803. In Scotland, however, the problem continued.

Sir James George Frazer, in Creation and Evolution in Primitive Cosmologies (London, 1935), p. 139, describes what was called the Great Disruption of 1843 when, after years of conflict over the appointment of ministers and state interference in church affairs, some 470 ministers (out of about 1200) and almost 40% of communicants withdrew from the Kirk to form the Free Church of Scotland. The dissident clergy trooped out of the General Assembly Hall in Edinburgh with the Assembly’s Moderator at their head. Second in the line of that "audacious exodus" was Sir James Frazer's paternal great-uncle, Ninian Bannatyne who, as private chaplain to the Marquis of Bute, then the Queen's representative at the Assembly, took precedence over all... the other clergy. This was a courageous act of conscience, for Ninian Bannatyne had served as pastor of the parish of Cumnock, in Ayrshire County, since February of 1830. In resigning, he gave up his emoluments as minister of the established Church as well as his chaplaincy to the Marquis of Bute, the Lord High Commissioner to the General Assembly. Frazer recalls that in later years he "paid a visit to the good old man at his manse in Old Cumnock, where he lived alone, for he never married. I remember him vividly as a courteous gentleman of the ancient school with ruddy countenance, finely cut features, clean shaven, and a most gracious and benign manner." But there has to be some connection to the Niniam Bannatyne whose remains lie close to James Laurie in the Congressional Cemetery. For how many Seceders could there have been named Ninian Bannatyne in that decade from 1843-1853?

The National Intelligencer, Friday, February 26, 1841

Death of Judge Barbour

The whole city was shocked, yesterday morning, by the information of the sudden demise of the Hon Philip P. Barbour, of Virginia, one of the Associate Justices of the Supreme Court. He was in usual health and even more than usually cheerful at the time of retiring to bed at 10 o'clock on Wednesday night, and the next morning was found in his bed a lifeless corpse!

Judge Barbour entered Congress, in the House of Representatives, in the year 1814, and soon signalized himself by considerable ability in debate. He remained in Congress for a number of years, during a part of which time he filled the honorable office of Speaker of the House. Since retiring from Congress, his life had been devoted with great assiduity to the judicial duties which he had been called to perform.

The National Intelligencer, February 27, 1841

IN SENATE

As soon as the Journal was read --

Mr. Roane rose and communicated to the Chari the following letter received by him from the Chief Justice of the United States:

Washington, Feb. 26, 1841

Sir: As one of the Senators of of the State of Virginia, of which our lamented brother, Judge Barbour, was so distinguished a citizen, I enclose you a copy of the funeral ceremonies which have been determined upon. I am, sir, with great respect, your obedient servant.

R.B. Taney

Mr. Roane rose and said: Mr. President, I ask a moment of the precious time of the Senate; I will not abuse it; for already had the mournful intelligence now officially announced to us reached every member of this body, and already had the heart of every individual in this community been touched by that pure and exalted feeling which is ever awakened when the patriot hears that his country has suddenly lost, and lost forever, one of its benefactors.

Mr. President, had I the talent and the material (which I have not) to offer a just tribute to the memory of the distinguished Judge whose funeral we are now invited to attend, I should deem it inappropriate to do so on the present occasion. That task I leave in other and able hands; but knowing, as I well do, the exemplary virtues of the deceased in all the social and domestic relations of life; knowing, as I well do, the exalted estimation in which his virtues, talents, and patriotism were held in his native State, which I have the honor, in part, to represent, and knowing, as does every member of this body, his long, faithful, and valuable public services within the walls of this building, I feel myself authorized to ask the Senate to adopt the resolution I now offer:
Resolved unanimously, That, in testimony of their respect for the memory of the Hon. Philip P. Barbour, late Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, the Senate will adjourn this day, at 2 o'clock, for the purpose of attending the funeral of the deceased.

The following is the order of the funeral ceremonies as announced from the Chair:

The Judges of the Supreme Court, with its Officers, and the Judges of the Courts of the District, with the members of the Bar, will assemble at 2 o'clock today at Mrs. Turner's, Pennsylvania Avenue, and thence attend the remains of the deceased to the room of the Supreme Court, where the usual services will be performed by the Chaplains of Congress; and where the President (Van Buren), the Heads of Departments, the Senators and Representatives in Congress, the members of the Foreign Legations, and citizens and strangers are requested to attend; after which, the procession will move in the above order to the Steamboat wharf, where the remains of the deceased will be embarked with proper attendants, in order to be conveyed to his country seat in Orange county, Virginia, for interment.

Death of a Well-Known Citizen

Mr. James W. Barker, an old and respected resident of South Washington, died yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at his late residence, 702 D street southwest, of dropsy of the heart. Mr. Barker had been for many years a prominent citizen. The hardware business which he established on the corner of 7th and D streets southwest in 1863 had been successfully carried on by him up to the time of his death. He was a member of B.B. French lodge, F.A.A.M.; Columbia commandery, No. 2, Washington Chapter, No. 2, Mystic Shrine. He was also a prominent Odd Fellow, being a member of Eastern lodge for the past twenty-five years. Mr. Barker leaves a wife and four children, who have the sympathy of a large circle of friends.

Barnard, Sarah Wilkins
b. 5 Mar 1801 - d. 2 Mar 1829
R30/39

Barnard. In this city on Monday the 2d inst., Mrs. Sarah W. Barnard consort of the Hon. Daniel D. Barnard, Member of Congress from New York and daughter of the late Henry Gilbert and Ann Livingston, Esq. of New York.

The National Intelligencer, Friday, March 6, 1829
A Tribute to Departed Worth
The National Intelligencer of Monday last, contained a notice of the death of Mrs. Sarah W. Barnard, the wife of Hon. D.D. Barnard, one of the Representatives of the State of New York. Her funeral obsequies were performed on the following day, at the Congress Burying Yard; and the last sad offices of respect to her memory were paid by several members of the Senate and House of Representatives, accompanied by numerous other sympathizing friends.

The uncommon worth of this lamented lady demands of those who knew her something more than a passing notice. The circumstances of her decease are calculated to awaken unusual interest and sympathy. She possessed a large portion of the best endowments of our nature. She united no ordinary share of personal attractions, with those amiable manners which give a grace to social intercourse. Her intellectual powers were naturally strong and active, and had been improved by the best advantages of early education, and, in riper years, by intercourse with congenial and cultivated minds. An acute sensibility and ardent feelings were associated, in her character, with sound judgment, practical sense, and affectionate regard to the feelings of others. Her moral and religious principles were settled on the basis of deliberate conviction, and had been so long cherished and strengthened by practice, as to form an essential part of her character.

Thus endowed with every thing that could excite the interest and win the regard of those around her, she was remarkably happy in the relations of domestic life. She discharged all the duties of an affectionate wife, and a fond and judicious parent. She had reason to look forward upon the events of life as to a scene of flattering good fortune, which she was eminently calculated herself to promote and to adorn. But it pleased the all-wise Disposer of Events to remove her prematurely from a world in which so large a portion of blessings had been allotted to her, and where she herself seemed formed to be the source of so much happiness to others. Scarcely entered on life, in the possession of the abundant means of usefulness and enjoyment, she has been suddenly called away. At the commencement of the late session of Congress, she accompanied the now desolate partner of her affections to the Seat of Government. Although not prepared, in consequence of recent domestic afflictions, to partake in the gaieties of the season, there was nothing to give a warning of her approaching melancholy fate. Little was it then foreseen, by those who had the good fortune to make the journey to Washington in her company, that they would be called, on the last day of the session to follow her to her long home.

A few weeks only have elapsed, since alarming symptoms of disease disclosed themselves. Her own conviction was soon settled, that the event would be fatal; and her only solicitude was, by an exhibition of fortitude rarely equalled, to conceal from him, whose happiness was dearer to her than her own, the approach of that calamity which was soon to overtake her. Her last days and hours, and even moments, were filled up with acts of kindness and love. She departed in the full possession of her reason, resting calmly on the faith and hope which she had early embraced and cherished, and which now sustained her in the hour of trial.

Leaps From The New Bridge
William H. Barnes Commits Suicide By Drowning
Jumps Into Anacostia River Before Daylight This Morning -- Suffered From Insomnia

Members of the crew of the police boat and a number of boatmen residing in the southeast section of the city were dragging the Anacostia river near the navy yard bridge early this morning for the body of William H. Barnes, who was reported to have jumped overboard shortly before 2:30 o'clock this morning.

Barnes, who was sixty-six years of age, lived at 509 E street northeast, and had been employed by the Adams Express Company for more than thirty-five years. Easter Sunday morning the body of his brother, Charles Albert Barnes, was found in his room in the E street house, death having occurred from inhaling illuminating gas. Since then William H. Barnes had worried so much that he was unable to sleep. Due to insomnia, it is believed, his mind became unbalanced and he jumped overboard while in that condition.

George Langley, employed on the new bridge, saw the man when he started across the bridge. He also noticed him when he stopped on the draw and partly disrobed. Langley shouted to Barnes, but the only response was the sound of the body splashing in the water. Before he could reach the draw the body had disappeared beneath the surface. The police of the fifth and harbor precincts were notified and members of the crew of the police boat were at work before daylight.

Leaves Clothing on Bridge
Several articles of wearing apparel, a black slouch hat and a cane were found on the draw of the bridge. The water at that point is more than fifteen feet deep at high tide. Written in a note book in one of the pockets of the coat were the name and address of Barnes, the only other articles in the book being an undertaker's receipt for the funeral expenses of his brother and a newspaper clipping giving an account of his brother's death and funeral. It was by the finding of the book and contents that Detective Smith of the fifth precinct was able to bring about the identification of the body. He went to the E street address and learned from Mrs. Barnes the supposed causes of the suicide.

From Eastern Sunday until her husband left home this morning, his wife said, he had suffered from insomnia. Last night there was a gathering of friends at the house and it was after 10 o'clock when Mr. and Mrs. Barnes retired. The husband complained that he was unable to sleep and walked about the house, returning to his bed before midnight. Mrs. Barnes thought it was between 3 and 4 o'clock this morning when he left the room and went to the lower floor.

Not Alarmed by Absence
Persons in the house heard the door close when Barnes departed, but paid no attention to it, thinking it was made by one of the sons going to his place of employment. Mr. Barnes' failure to return home in time for breakfast made his wife and other members of the family feel that something was wrong, but it was not until Detective Smith called that they even suspected he had gone away for the purpose of taking his life.

During the many years Barnes was in the employ of the express company he had charge of one of the wagons, but two years ago he met with an accident, sustaining an injury to his leg. Since then he had been employed as messenger on one of the money wagons.

The Evening Star, June 20, 1908, p. 10
Barnes' Body Recovered
River Yields Corpse of Suicide Who Brooded Over Brother's Death

The body of William H. Barnes, sixty-nine years of age, who committed suicide at an early hour Monday morning by jumping overboard from the Anacostia bridge, was recovered about 8 o'clock this morning about 300 yards south of the Benning bridge, more than a mile up stream from where he jumped overboard. The police had dragged about the vicinity of the Anacostia bridge and all the way down stream to the arsenal, but had not gone far in the direction of Benning.

William Reynolds, who hires boats and sells bait to fishermen in Georgetown, has found many bodies of victims of the river during the past few years. This morning he was seining for bait when he discovered the badly decomposed body of Barnes. He notified the police. The police boat removed the body to the morgue. Coroner Nevitt viewed the remains later in the day and gave the necessary certificate of death.

It is certain that Barnes committed suicide because of grief over the sudden death of his brother, Charles A. Barnes, who was asphyxiated May 30 in his room at the home of his brother, 509 E street northeast.

Interments in the Historic Congressional Cemetery
Between the time of his brother's death and last Monday morning, it is stated, William H. Barnes suffered from insomnia and had eaten but little. He had been employed by Adams Express Company for about thirty-five years.

The funeral will take place from his home, 509 E street northeast, at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon.

Sudden Death of a Dentist

Dr. William S. Barnes, who for over a quarter of a century has been a practicing dentist on Capitol Hill and for some years a resident of 6th street east, between A and B streets south, died last night about 11:30 o'clock. His death, though rather sudden, he having been in apparent good health only a few hours before, was from natural causes. Dr. Barnes was a native of Virginia. He was in the sixtieth year of his age, and though rather eccentric was a genial man and had many friends in this community. He leaves a widow and several grown children.

Barney, Mary Eleanor  b. 1830 - d. 28 Sep 1860  30 yrs.  R33/82

Barney. The funeral services of the late Mrs. Mary E. Barney will take place at the residence of her cousin, J.W. DeKrafft, No. 431 Eleventh st., tomorrow morning, 2d inst. at 10 o'clock. Her friends and those of the family are respectfully invited to attend.

The Evening Star, December 11, 1860

Orphan's Court--Judge Purcell

In this court today was heard the petition of J.W. DeKrafft, asking that some person be appointed guardian of the children of the late Mary E. Barney, and that the husband (S. Chase Barney) be excluded from exercising any control of the children or their property, which application is founded on a divorce obtained by Mrs. Barney in the State of Iowa. The counsel for respondent take the ground that the divorce was fraudulently obtained, and therefore moved that the application be dismissed.

The Evening Star, September 9, 1861

The Children of Chase Barney

The case of DeKrafft against Barney, in relation to the guardianship of the children of the latter, was brought before the Orphans' Court on Saturday. The four children were present, and the decree of the French court surrendering them to the jurisdiction of this court was read. There was a large attendance of the friends and relatives of the parties. The court was addressed by Mr. Davidge in behalf of Mr. Barney, and Messrs. Fendall and Bradley for Mr. DeKrafft; after which the case was adjourned to Tuesday next.

The Barney Case

Yesterday, Mr. S.C. Barney, accompanied by his counsel, went to the Orphans' Court for the purpose of giving bonds as guardian to his children, the Circuit Court having reversed the decision of the Orphans' Court, but the court having adjourned they returned. A short time afterwards, Mr. Barney with officers Wise, Hughes, and Summers, went to the school of Miss Ross, 4 1/2 street, at which the children were, and took them, to the residence of his sister, Mrs. Rogers. The children at the time were under the guardianship of Dr. H. Lindsay, in whose house Miss Ross is a governess.

Submitted by Claire Nora de Krafft, March 2005

Mary Eleanor de Krafft Barney was the daughter of Edward de Krafft (the 5th child of the original relative who arrived in America from Dresden, Germany, Baron John Charles Philip von Krafft, who later adopted the surname of "de" as requested by his French wife Cornelia de la Metre). Mary was a child from Edward's 2nd marriage in 1819 to Eleanor Dewees; his 1st wife was Maria Evans (1814) and she died in 1815 at the birth of a baby girl who died 3 mos. later.

Mary Eleanor de Krafft married Samuel Chase Barney in 1847. He was a Lt. in the Navy but apparently took his duties lightly & was dismissed in 1863. He went abroad in 1855 with his family and Mary Eleanor returned alone in 1860 and had obtained a legal separation in the French courts. She went to Jasper County, Iowa where she filed a suit for divorce. Much of what you wrote to me is correct. However, Samuel Chase Barney entered an appeal and the higher court made Barney the guardian of his children instead of Dr. Lindsley who had been appointed before but John W. de Krafft (her cousin) was left as administrator of the estate. In 1880, Samuel Chase Barney was living in the household of his son, Samuel Chase de Krafft, in Maryland.

Sarah Ann Parks married Mary's older son (Samuel Chase Barney de Krafft) in 1878 in Pittsburgh, Penna. Samuel had changed his name in 1868 from Barney to de Krafft in a special Act of Congress. He was enrolled in 1898 in the Maryland Infantry as Asst. Surgeon holding the rank of captain. In 1899, he accepted the rank of Captain and Asst. Surgeon in the 28 Regt. US Vol. Inf. Phil. Insur. He was promoted to Major in the Philippines in 1901, until he was relieved of active duty in 1908. Apparently, he never returned to the U.S. Sarah died in Jan. 1911. He applied for Letters of Administration and due to his absence from Washington he asked that Aylett Holtzman act for him. The petition was granted Aug. 28, 1912. His 2nd marriage was to Feliza Martinez on March 4, 1916 in Tagaloan Misamis, Philippine Islands. In 1922 he applied for and received a pension. At his death in Oct. 1925 (Philippine Islands), his 2nd wife applied for a pension which she received until her death in 1929.

Mary Eleanor de Krafft was the 3rd generation of de Kraffts. I recently did a Google search and found a person with my father's name, spelled exactly the same: Charles de Krafft. It turns out that he is the 7th generation, as my brother, and they have great great grandfather's who were brothers, and the grandsons of Baron von Krafft (de Krafft)! He and his uncle (6th generation, age 77) are interested in meeting us in Phila. in June. Most of the Southern de Kraffts live within Amelia Cty., Va. My brother is the patriarch of the entire de Krafft clan (No. & So.) since he is 80 yrs. old. Our present history dates 1776-1972, and my niece is working on updating the last 30+ years (a tough job).

The de Krafft family lived within the Wash. & Georgetown, DC areas but eventually split, with some members moving closeby to Virginia & others moving further North to Pennsylvania. Edward de Krafft moved to the mid-West and various descendent are located now in Arizona, Calif., Alaska. The original de Krafft name itself has stayed within the No. and So. branches of the family. We only have a few living male members in Penna. & NJ now. One is the grandson of my uncle Harvey & this Harvey is adopted (like myself). At present, I'm also researching my own roots, but I'm very interested in the fascinating history of the de Krafft family that adopted me!! My brother has been to the cemetery & has seen von Krafft's grave....he said it was near the Lee house. I will go to the website & try to locate these graves.

Oliver D. Barrett Dead

One of Oldest Attorneys In District of Columbia For Twenty Years Was Partner of General Benj. F. Butler -- His Career

O.D. Barrett died this morning at Providence Hospital, where he had gone to have a surgical operation performed. He had been sick and in bed for the past three weeks. Death resulted from dropsy. The deceased was one of the oldest members of the bar in this city, having practiced law here for over forty years. For twenty years he was the law partner of General Benjamin F. Butler, having offices in Washington, New York and Boston. Since the death of General Butler he had been senior member of the firm of Barrett & Niles of the local bar. He was a member of the Bar Association of the District of Columbia, and had tried many famous cases in this jurisdiction. He was leading counsel in the celebrated case of Samuel Strong vs. the District of Columbia and had had entire control of the estate of General Benjamin F. Butler in Washington since his death.

In 1859 he conceived the idea of buying all the land at the Great Falls, so as to control the water power, and it is only within the last two years that it has been sold to the railroad syndicate in Washington, commanding a large price, by the heirs of General Butler.

Success in Criminal Practice

Years ago Mr. Barrett was known as one of the most successful of criminal lawyers, having defended as high as twenty murderers in this jurisdiction and never permitting a man to be hung. Of late years he had devoted his entire practice to corporation interests.

Oliver D. Barrett was born in New York and taught school for many years in that state. He moved to Illinois and became an intimate friend of President Lincoln, who gave him an appointment as a young man in the patent office. He was a graduate of the University of Vermont, was a Mason of high standing and also belonged to the Psi Delta fraternity.

Interments in the Historic Congressional Cemetery Last Updated: 02/11/15
For the past two years Judge Barrett had been ill. The operation referred to was performed last Saturday by Dr. John W. Bayne of Capitol Hill. It brought temporary relief to the patient, but heart failure ensued, and he died at 6:30 o'clock this morning. He was seventy-five years of age. His wife, Sallie Barrett, who is now in Paris, France, and one brother, R.A. Barrett of Topeka, Kansas, survive him. His wife has been communicated with and as soon as she is heard from announcement of the funeral arrangements will be made.

Barron. On Monday the 23rd inst. (Dec. 23) at Mr. Buller Cocke's in this city, Captain Robert Barron, an old and respectable inhabitant of Norfolk, in Virginia. He had long labored under a painful and debilitating complaint which nothing could cure. He met his fate with a manly fortitude, and resigned his last breath with the pious resignation of a Christian. A few days would have completed the 5th month of his 64th year.

Captain Barron was remarkable for a correctness, probity and integrity of conduct, and was at the time of his death the senior master of a vessel belonging to Norfolk. He had long occupied a place under the collector of that port and was universally beloved by those who knew him.

IN SENATE

Mr. Johnson of Louisiana, rose and addressed the Senate as follows:

Mr. President: Louisiana has to mourn the loss of another of her distinguished sons. It is with unfeigned sorrow I announce to the Senate the death of my late friend and colleague, the Hon. Alexander Barrow, who died at Baltimore yesterday morning at 5 o’clock, after a short and violent attack of illness, which would not yield to the best medical skill. All the relief that medical science and skill could accomplish was applied in vain. He left this city on the 24th instant, on a short visit to Baltimore, apparently in perfect health, and I only heard of his illness the day before his death. Indeed, so sudden and unexpected was the shock produced by the announcement of the sad event yesterday, that I cannot yet hardly realize the fact, and do not feel sufficiently composed to do justice to the memory of the deceased in the few remarks I propose to make. The deep anxiety felt here not only by the members of both Houses of Congress, but by all classes of the community, when his dangerous situation became known through the Telegraph, is now dispelled by the melancholy gloom spread over the whole city. It is indeed but too true that Alexander Barrow, the pure patriot and enlightened statesman, is no more.

Three years have not passed away since Mr. Barrow announced in appropriate and eloquent terms the death of his late distinguished colleague; and since then it has devolved on me to present the ordinary resolutions as a mark of respect to the memory of two of my colleagues of the House of Congress, and a similar resolution will now be offered on this melancholy occasion. In less than three years two Senators and two Representatives in Congress from the same State have been gathered to their fathers. The death of my late colleague was the most unexpected; for he was not only in the vigor of life, but he possessed a strong constitution.

The ways of Providence are indeed inscrutable. It may with truth be said that “whilst in life we are in death.”

Of Mr. Barrow’s early history I know but little. He was a native of Tennessee, and was, I am told, about forty five years of age. His family and connections are of the highest respectability, and have been long distinguished for their talents and patriotism. After having completed his education, Mr. Barrow studied law, and was admitted to the bar in Tennessee; immediately after which, I believe, he removed to Louisiana, where he pursued his profession for some time with success; and, had he remained at the bar would have attained the highest distinction. Being independent in his circumstances and fond of agricultural pursuits, after a few years’ practice he retired from the bar and became a successful planter, and has since devoted his attention mainly to the cultivation of the earth.

Mr. Barrow served, however, repeatedly in the Legislature of Louisiana with reputation, and was regarded as a distinguished member; and he received from the people of the State many other proofs of their highest respect and confidence. His election to the Senate of the United States, under circumstances the most flattering, is the best evidence of the high estimation in which he was held by the people of his adopted State, by whom his character and services will ever be held in grateful remembrance. The news of his death will produce throughout the State, as it has produced here, the deepest emotions of sorrow.

Mr. Barrow was distinguished for his bland and courteous manners, for his frank and manly deportment, and for his many generous and noble traits of character. No man, in fact, had more sincere and devoted friends whilst living, and no one has died more lamented. He performed his duties here with zeal and ability, and, at the same time, in the most frank and conciliatory spirit; and I am sure that it is no exaggeration to say that, in his intercourse with his brother Senators, his deportment on all occasions was such as to command the respect and confidence of every member of this body. He has now closed his earthly career, but he has gone, I hope, to a better and happier world.
Although he expired far from his home, and from the cherished partner of his bosom, it must be a source of some consolation to her, and to her orphan children, to learn that he was surrounded at that awful moment by devoted friends, from whom he received every attention which friendship could bestow, and that he died as he had lived, without fear and without reproach, relying upon the mercy of his Redeemer. And what shall be said of their bereavement? There is a silence which is more expressive than language. We forbear, in humble submission to the will of Heaven—in grateful recollection that “He who strikes has power to heal.”

The character of the deceased was indeed, sir, of the highest order. As a Senator, a citizen, and a gentleman—indeed, in all the relations of public and private life, he was esteemed and beloved. As a patriot, a firm and uncompromising friend of his country and of her constitution, he had no superior. Brave, ardent, and chivalrous in his temperament, and devoted to the principles of civil and religious liberty, had he lived in the days of the early struggles for English freedom, he would have bled by the side of Hampden in the field, or died with Sidney on the scaffold. Yet sir—

“His life was gentle
And the elements so mixed in him,
That nature might stand up
And say to all the world, “THIS WAS A MAN.”

Additional eulogies by Mr. Benton, Mr. Breese, Mr. Hannegan and resolutions by Mr. Mangum.

Death of the Hon. Alexander Barrow

A message having been received from the Senate announcing the death of the Hon. Alexander Barrow, Senator from the State of Louisiana—

Mr. Morse, of Louisiana, rose and addressed the House as follows:

Mr. Speaker: The melancholy communication which has just been read, and a request from my colleagues in this House, has devolved upon me the painful duty of arresting the ordinary business of your body for the purpose of announcing the solemn intelligence that Alexander Barrow, late one of the Senators from the State of Louisiana, is now no more.

Within the past year Death has reaped a golden harvest, and numbers among his victims some of the brightest ornaments of our Commonwealth.

To many of these it has been permitted to give the latest pulsation of their hearts and the last life drop of their blood in defense of their country—to realize the noblest sentiment that can animate the human heart, “How sweet it is to die for our country.” But that death is still more noble when heralded by the shouts of victory, so dearly purchased by their own valor.

Among the many noble sons whose untimely death our common mother now deplores, none, not one, combined in a more enviable form those rare qualities of head and heart which make men love them than did my departed friend.

A native of the State of Tennessee, born within a few miles of the city of Nashville, the first elements of that chivalric character, that noble bearing, that manly form and vigorous constitution, were in part received from early education and discipline at the Military Academy at West Point.

He pursued his legal studies in Tennessee, and there laid the foundation of a thorough acquaintance with English jurisprudence. He removed soon afterwards to the State of Louisiana, and made himself well acquainted with the principles of the civil law, in which he promised to become one of the most distinguished jurisconsults, had not the partiality of his friends and his own inclinations marked out for him another career.

His fine talents, generous impulses, and integrity of character soon won for him the esteem and admiration of an enlightened constituency, who selected him as their representative in the Legislature of his adopted State, and continued their confidence in him by re-electing him as often as was agreeable to his wishes.

The occasional development of talents which, on ordinary subjects, he seemed unwilling or adverse to exhibit, the suavity of his manners in his intercourse with his brother members, and the confidence in the purity of his motives, served still more to increase the admiration of his friends, and extorted homage from his opponents.
In 1840, then not forty years of age, he was elected to a full term in the Senate of the United States, which elevated position he filled in a manner highly honorable to himself and eminently useful to his country.

There was a blunt honesty of purpose and a frank boldness in his manner which, though it might sometimes offend, always commended itself to our respect from the consciousness of its integrity.

He was taken suddenly ill on Friday evening, while on a visit to Baltimore. His disease resisted all the skill and attention which the solicitude of his friends had summoned from Baltimore and Philadelphia, and on Tuesday morning about five o’clock, in the full possession of all his faculties, with a perfect consciousness of his approaching end, with a firmness which marked his whole life, surrounded by numerous friends from both houses of Congress, perished all but the immortal spirit of Alexander Barrow.

Although his disease was so violent in its course that many of his friends scarcely knew of his illness until after its fatal termination, I had the melancholy satisfaction of being with him a few hours before he died. His last moments were occupied with the tenderest and heart-rending allusions to his wife, children, and country.

When these melancholy tidings shall reach his now happy home, who can penetrate, in imagination, that veil of woe that must enshroud his wife and only daughter, but will offer up to the Disposer of all things one prayer that he will “temper the wind to the shorn lamb.”

Two sons, the younger of whom was with him, and the other a student of Harvard College, with his wife and his daughter in Louisiana, constitute all his immediate family. A recommendation to his friends to watch over their education, and be as a father to them, one bitter pang that he could not for the last time press her to his bosom who had been to him the most devoted wife, were the last of earthly matters that occupied his thoughts. May his children be only worthy of their sire! His friends ask no more.

When I pressed his cold hand for the last time, he returned that grasp with a strength which even disease seemed scarcely to have weakened, and, in a voice of more than usual firmness, said, “I shall never see Louisiana more.” No, brave spirit, you will not again revisit the scenes of so many bright and happy years, but your numerous friends need not the presence of that many form, nor the marble nor the canvass, to recall the many kind and delightful associations that will forever be entwined with the name of Alexander Barrow.

Was this dispensation of Providence visited upon us to remind us how frail the tenure of our lives is, the death of our friend forms an impressive lesson.

Among the youngest members of the Senate, blessed with competence, extensive and influential family connections, health and a constitution not impaired or even approached by disease, there was no member of either House who had a more reasonable expectation in looking forward to a long and brilliant career; and, when the summons shall come to all of us, may the consciousness of a well-spent life enable us to meet it like a “Preux Chevalier, sans peur et sans reproache.”

The death of Alexander Barrow is the fourth that has occurred, within the brief space of four years, in the small delegation from Louisiana; and true it is “death loves a shining mark” Porter, Bossier, Dawson, Barrow! What four names living can outweigh yours dead? The earth that holds you dead bears not alive four nobler spirits; and, while the mighty Mississippi rolls her tribute to the sea, your memories will live in the hearts of your countrymen.

Followed by resolutions.

Mrs. Barry's Bequests
Conditions Imposed on Daughters in Will Filed for Probate
As long as the three daughters of Mrs. Henrietta V. Barry remain unmarried they are to share the income from two pieces of property in East Washington, according to the terms of the mother's will, dated May 13, 1887, and filed for probate. At the death of the last unmarried daughter, or should all marry, they are to divide the property among them. The remaining estate is left to her five children in equal shares. The sons, Richard Vermillion and Frank J. Barry are named as executors.

Mr. Barry was largely interested in business, both foreign and domestic, and he was very zealous as an advocate of the interests of the eastern section of the city, in opposition to the claims of the western section. He was one of the incorporators of the Washington Canal Company, an enterprise planned by him in association with Thomas Law, and from which great expectations were formed. In connection with the business of this Company, the furnishing of office for it, etc., he erected a large double brick building near the eastern basin of the canal, in which for many years a very considerable business was transacted part of which structure, now called Castle Thuner, is still standing, and which, on account of its situation, and from its manifest claim to past respectability, excites the surprise of nearly every one who has occasion to visit that now benighted spot. Mr. Barry was also one of the projectors of the Long Bridge across the Potomac, and was one of the incorporators of the company which built and owned it.
The immediate neighborhood of Mr. Barry's city residence was a very busy one in his day, made so largely by his example and energy. In that day the foot of New Jersey Avenue was one of the termini of the authorized line of hackney carriages in the city. It was the site of a sugar refinery largely owned by Thomas Law, and also of a brewery, then the only one here, of which the proprietor was Mr. Clement T. Coote. Much of the lumber and wood consumed in the city was brought there and sold; also most of the product of the Potomac River fisheries. The public tobacco inspection warehouse was likewise in this part of the city, being on Third Street above N--the site of what is now called the McCormick public school--and very many well-to-do people resided there. The locality still presents unmistakable evidences of past prosperity.

The National Intelligencer, July 6, 1842
The Late Thomas Barry, of the U.S. Navy
The brilliant exploits of those chivalrous and gallant spirits who have, in five successive wars, borne the "star-spangled banner" in triumph over every ocean and in every sea, however humble their station, have been the theme of many a song, and also have brightened the page of our naval history. We know of no one whose services and gallant bearing through all the wars in which the navy has taken part deserves more praise, or whose life would add more luster to the history of the navy than the late Thomas Barry. This officer entered the navy as a gunner in 1794, when the art of war was with us on the ocean in its infancy, at a time when men of practical experience were much required. He served on board the Constellation with Commodore Decatur, while that ship was attached to the squadron under the command of Commodore Rogers, and chased the Belvidere at the commencement of the late war. He was also the gunner of the frigate United States, under the command of Commodore Decatur, when the Macedonian was captured. His services were required during the war in fitting out most of the frigates and preparing their batteries for service. To his exertions, in putting the batteries and gunner stores in order during the late war, we may attribute much of the success of the navy.

Since the war, a period of twenty-nine years, Mr. Barry had been actively and usefully employed in the ordnance department of the navy. He has had the sole charge of the pyrotechnic department—a department requiring in the individual conducting it skill, perseverance, talents, and industry. That he has performed his duties to the satisfaction of the Government the following document will prove:

"Navy Department, February 19, 1841
* *Sir: In consideration of your long and faithful services as a gunner, you are hereby appointed an acting master in the navy of the United States, and you will remain attached to the navy yard, Washington, in the performance of such duties as the commandant of the yard may think proper to assign to you until further orders from this Department.

"I am, respectfully, your obedient servant,
"J.K. Paulding,
"Mr. Thomas Barry,
"Acting Gunner, Washington."

What higher reward or greater honor can be bestowed on an officer than promotion for long and faithful services. Mr. Barry received the highest reward under the Government attainable.

The late accident which deprived this faithful veteran of his life, and the country of his valuable services, is to be lamented; but it was lost in the service of his country, in a laudable endeavor to perfect a missile which would render his country invincible. No reward was asked, none expected, had the experiment proved all it professed. In the services of France, Russia, or England, the death of Mr. B. would have been considered a public calamity, and his name recorded on immortable marble. His private virtues were many; charitable to a fault; and the sailor's propensity (generosity) was a predominant trait of his character. His heart was open to the distressed sailor, and his hand ever offered to the destitute.

*This acting appointment was conferred by the President

Barry, William J. d. 22 Apr 1853 26 yrs. R33/167

Barry. On Friday morning, 22d instant, William J. Barry son of the late Francis Barry, Sr., in the 27th year of his age. To a disposition of uncommon cheerfulness the deceased united a kindness of heart and manner which gained for him the esteem of a large number of friends, and his loss will be severely felt in that circle in which he was so great a favorite. He bore his protracted illness with singular calmness, and, consoled by the ministrations of religion, his end was peace. His funeral will take place at his late residence, tomorrow (Sunday) evening, at 3 o'clock.

Dr. Kate D. Barstow

Funeral of Pioneer Woman Physician Will Be Held Today

Funeral services for Dr. Kate D. Barstow, 87, one of the first women to practice medicine in this city, will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the undertaking establishment of Zurhorst, 301 East Capitol street. Burial will be in Congressional cemetery. Dr. Barstow died Monday at her home, 223 Thirteenth street southwest.

Dr. Barstow had been a resident of the District for 60 years, most of which was spent in the practice of her profession. She was a graduate of the Homeopathic Medical school, and a member of the Washington Medical society of that school of medicine.

Dr. Barstow leaves five children -- Miss Sarah M. Barstow, Mrs. Emma J. Harrison, Dr. Edward C. Barstow, William Henry Barstow and Frank D. Barstow.

W.H. Barstow Dead

Had Been in Real Estate Business Here Thirty Years

William Henry Barstow, for many years identified with the real estate and other business interests of this city, died at his home, 19 Quincy place northeast, yesterday. Mr. Barstow was born seventy-three year ago at Hanover, Mass. He came to Washington in 1869, and for the last thirty years had been engaged in the real estate business. For many years he was connected with the Metropolitan Presbyterian Church, on Capitol Hill, and was the last surviving member of the board of elders on which he first served.

Mr. Barstow was a member of various Masonic bodies, including Albert Pike Consistory of the Scottish Rite of which he was a life member; Eureka Chapter R.A.M, No. 4, and Columbia Commandery K.T., No. 2.

The funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock from the residence, under the auspices of Osiris Lodge, No. 26, F.A.A.M., of which he was a past master, and life member. The interment will be private.

Mr. Barstow is survived by a widow and five children.

The Evening Star, December 19, 1895
Capt. Isaac Bassett's Death
The Venerable Senate Employee Passes Peacefully Away
His Services at the Capitol--Arrangements for the Funeral--An Interesting Career Closed
Capt. Isaac Bassett died at 4:10 o'clock yesterday afternoon, surrounded by members of his family. There were present his wife, who has passed her seventy-fourth year of age, his sons, Isaac A. and George T., his brother and his sister. The death of Capt. Bassett was expected for several weeks, and there were many times when it did not seem possible for him to live more than a few hours, but his wonderful vitality frequently surprised his attending physician, and time and again he rallied, when it seemed that his life was ebbing away. It was known for a long time that his disease could not be other than fatal, and the autopsy verified the belief that he suffered from a cancer of the pancreas and a large pyloric orifice of the stomach.

His Last Moments
Capt. Bassett was conscious almost to the last moment of his life, although he had not been able to converse with his friends for some days, and during the twenty-four hours preceding his death the lower part of his body had been practically lifeless. But he could recognize his friends about his bedside, and clung to their hands affectionately as his end approached. Many Senators called at his home 18 Second street northeast, and Dr. Sunderland, his pastor, was there daily.

As long as the captain lived his mind dwelled on the old familiar scenes of the Senate, and he would inquire of the doings there so long as he had the power of speech.

His Long and Faithful Service
For the first time in sixty-four years the reassembling of the present Congress found Capt. Bassett absent from the Senate Chamber. The second page of that body and appointed at the instance of Daniel Webster, Bassett became an object of interest as the years passed by. He was always faithful to his duties and was promoted to be assistant doorkeeper of the Senate, which position he has held for over a generation. His father was from Connecticut, and removed to this city about a hundred years ago; his grandfather, Isaac Bassett, having been a soldier in the Revolutionary War. During the war he organized a company for the defense of the capital with Senator Gorman, who had served under him as a page, as lieutenant, and it was by this service he gained the title of captain. He had been an eye witness to numberless interesting scenes in Congress, and as a confidential employee was never known to betray his trust. The full story of Capt. Bassett's interesting life was lately published in The Star.

Funeral Arrangements Incomplete
Up to 2:30 o'clock today the Senate had taken no action in relation to the funeral of the late Capt. Bassett. It was thought by many that in consideration of the long service of the late assistant doorkeeper of the United States Senate, a "senatorial funeral" might be given him. But it is very doubtful if this will be done. It is likely, however, that an appropriation will be made covering the expenses of the funeral, and that a committee of Senators will be appointed to attend the ceremony.

The Senate Takes Notice
In executive session this afternoon the death of Capt. Bassett was referred to and the question of what the Senate should do in relation thereto was briefly discussed. No action was taken, but a resolution will probably be introduced in open session tomorrow by Mr. Sherman suggesting a proper course for the Senate. This resolution will commend the faithful services of Capt. Bassett.

The Evening Star, December 10, 1895
Webster's Protege
Capt. Bassett Appointed Through the Statesman's Influence
Sixty-Four Years of Public Service
The White-Haired Assistant Doorkeeper Now on His Death Bed
An Interesting Career

There has been no more picturesque personality about the United States Capitol than Captain Isaac Bassett, the assistant doorkeeper of the Senate, whose death is momentarily expected. Sixty-four years of service under the government has had no influence to cause him to feel that he any claim for a continuation of his official place except the claim that would arise because of duties well and conscientiously performed. He has proved faithful in his humble capacity, which carried with its duties often commensurate with a much higher place. He has always been as kindhearted as a child, his life as simple as a child's, his every action prompted by motives of honor. From his earliest days he has occupied a place of trust and he has regarded a violation of confidence as the most grievous sin man could commit.

Sketch of His Life

Captain Bassett was born in this city in 1819, his father having come to Washington from Connecticut to take a position at the Capitol, being employed about the Senate as a doorkeeper when young Isaac, a bright and docile boy of twelve years, was appointed a page at the instance of Daniel Webster. Isaac would frequently go over to the Capitol with his father and busy himself about any work he could do. He would help make fires, and an orderly instinct caused him to improve the appearance of the Senators' desk when they came to the Capitol at noon. He was always alert and ready to run an errand, and before long he became a pet—a Senate mascot. A lovable little fellow, he won the heart of Daniel Webster, among others, and Webster took occasion to see that the boy would not be lost in the Senate by having him appointed a page, he being the second page to serve that body.

Young Isaac was the recipient of many favors at the hands of Daniel Webster. The latter would frequently call him to his side, take him upon his knee and talk to him kindly. The little page had no cause to fear the austere statesman in those days, but the time was to come when their relations became more formal. Captain Bassett never forgot the day when this change came about. Mr. Webster wanted a carriage and he sent Isaac to find one. The boy walked around the Capitol, but the ever-present hackmen were for once out of sight. He went to the Senate and going familiarly up to the statesman whom so many held in awe said:

"There are no carriages, Senator. They've all gone."

There was no carriage! Perhaps Mr. Webster thought the boy had verged on that line where "familiarity breeds contempt," and that he had been indifferent to his command. He turned on the page, annoyed at the delay he suffered in not being able to leave the Capitol when he wished, and, with the severity for which he was so well known on greater occasions, said:

"Get me a carriage; get one if you have to go to Georgetown!:

From that moment Isaac no longer approached Webster as a child might approach its father. He always went to him formally, as a soldier might go to a martinet, and no overtures on the part of Webster could draw the child to him as of old. The rebuke nearly frightened the life out of young Isaac, and he found a carriage. There were no street cars in those days, no telephone to quickly communicate with a livery stable, but if a carriage were wanted, it was necessary to find it somewhere—anywhere. Capt. Bassett never forgot how he ran on that occasion, here, there, everywhere, wondering whether there was a conspiracy among the hackmen to keep out of his way, nervously looking back to see if Webster, whose austerity was riveted on his memory, was giving him chase. Finally he got the coveted vehicle and Webster was appeased.

Strange stories have been told about the effect of this rebuke on young Bassett. A favorite story is that the boy's hair turned white while Webster looked at him, but the explanation of this fiction is that the Bassett family were given to gray hair early in life, and the captain's began to turn white when he was quite a young man.

A Familiar Figure

No Senator has been pointed out to so many visitors to the Capitol as has Capt. Bassett. For a generation he has been one of the sights of the building as little to be overlooked as would be the marble room adjoining the Senate, or the echo stones in the old House of Representatives. It was before the war that he was made assistant doorkeeper of the Senate. At the assembling of the Senate he could always be seen at the left hand of the Vice President. He stood reverentially as the chaplain asked a divine blessing on the proceedings of Congress. Tall, always attired with scrupulous neatness, for many years wearing a black broadcloth Prince Albert coat, his long white beard and hoary locks allowed to grow to his shoulders and brushed to a marvelous degree of precision, his serene countenance and ever watchful eye, are features of his appearance remembered by every one who has seen Capt. Isaac Bassett, assistant doorkeeper of the Senate. It was his...
proud claim that he never missed a single session, day or night, of the Senate since 1831, until two years ago, when he broke down during the night sessions when the repeal of the Sherman law was being considered. But he still could claim, until the meeting of the present Congress that he had never missed the opening of Congress for sixty-four years. It bore upon him heavily when he realized that he could not be in the Senate when the Fifty-fourth Congress was called to order, and from noon of that day his attendants noted that he grew worse. All during the summer and fall Capt. Bassett hoped to be able to be at the Capitol on December 3, and as that day approached and he did not gain strength, he still hoped he would be able to be taken over to his accustomed place, even if he were to remain but a short time.

Capt. Bassett has not enjoyed a sinecure all his life. During late years he has been relieved from much of the active work that fell to him formerly, A.H. Stewart, his assistant on the floor assuming many of his duties. But for years he was to the Senate what an executive officer is to a man-of-war. Everything was in his keeping, and if any Senator had a complaint to make, he made it to the captain. The Senate has always been a fastidious body, and Capt. Bassett knew the Spanish proverb, "There is no such thing as a trifle." He was everywhere familiar with every detail of the Senate, so far as it related to the material comfort of that body, and never merited reproach for an oversight. All the pages looked upon him as a father and he ruled them by love rather than through discipline.

His Home Life
Capt. Bassett's home life has been a happy one. For many years he has lived on 2d street just north of East Capitol. The house was built many years ago, and has a comfortable side yard, while the captain's love of whatever has age led him to preserve above his door the old number, marked in gilt letters, which designated his home before the present numbering was adopted. He looked upon the "No. 18" as a usurper of "No. 387." His wife is living and he has two sons, Isaac Bassett, jr., and Geo. Bassett, and a daughter, while there is an Isaac Bassett the third, who was a page in the Senate until he developed into manhood, when he sought other employment. In 1888 Capt. and Mrs. Bassett celebrated their golden wedding, and on that occasion they received a number of presents from members of the United States Senate, as well as a handsome written testimonial signed by Henry B. Anthony, and accompanied by a portrait of himself in oil.

Capt. Bassett is one of two men employed in the service of the Senate who are appropriated by name. Besides his salary of $2,694 per annum, he is given $500 by direct appropriation.

Faithful to His Trust
Many are the stories that are told of Capt. Bassett, nearly all of them being instances of the great fidelity to duty. During the war Capt. Bassett went into the Senate to find several soldiers busy defacing the desk formerly occupied by Jefferson Davis. They were hacking the woodwork with their bayonets. Bassett promptly went to them and in his quiet way remarked:

"That desk was used by Mr. Davis, but it's the property of the United States, and I am here to protect it. Please don't touch it again."

The captain's argument was heeded, and the desk remains in the Senate now, being used by Senator Cockrell of Missouri.

Capt. Bassett was a lover of relics. Every desk in the Senate had a history known to him. These desks are nearly all of great age, though they are kept in such thorough repair that they have the appearance of being new. He could tell who had used each desk, and his mind was filled with personal incidents connected with the Senate property. It was such things that appealed to him. He knew little about the political business of the Senate, and while he thought little of the great political significance of a speech, he would remember the speech and its peculiar effect on the Senate and the occupants of the galleries. He had no politics, except that he was an intense Union man, and to him the country was one, and political divisions seemed insignificant. All Senators were simply "Senators" to him, and that title called the forth his most intense interest and respect. It was enough for him to know that a Senator wanted something. He was sure to have it if the captain could supply it. Republicans and democrats were alike to him. They were all kind to him, and he knew they were all "Senators."

It Wasn't Cocked
An instance occurred about a quarter of a century ago which showed how cool Capt. Bassett could be under trying circumstances. It was in connection with that famous exciting scene which took place in the Senate lobby when Senator Willard Saulsbury was to be quieted, and the inoffensive Bassett was chosen to approach him in order to pacify him. The former didn't quite understand what Capt. Bassett was going to do, and drawing a pistol, he placed its muzzle to the captain's chest, saying, in an excited tone of voice:
"If you touch me, I'll kill you."

Capt. Bassett didn't wince, and the pistol was not fired. When he talked of the incident, which brought him many congratulations for his coolness, he said:

"But I looked at the pistol, and saw it wasn't cocked."

When there was a high state of excitement prevalent during the Tilden electoral incident, it was the duty of Capt. Bassett to carry papers from one house of Congress to the other. An innocent participant in the proceeding, yet Capt. Bassett was the victim of a good deal of hard feeling, and he received anonymous letters threatening his life. However absurd this inclination to wreak vengeance on the inoffensive official may appear, he was, in a measure, a target for cranks, but he maintained his outward calm aspect for which he was always known.

His Reminiscences
A favorite theme of Capt. Bassett has been his declared determination to write a book of reminiscences, and it is known that he has a couple of trunks filled with material with which to construct his work. He is supposed to have considerable manuscript in shape to be published, but being very reticent about all his actions there is no one who has a very definite idea of what his material consists. It is supposed to be made up mostly of incidents relating to personal matters which have occurred in the Senate within his memory and of which he has been an eye witness. As he cared little for political questions, and took no interest in them, it is not likely that any papers he has left contain more than sketches of personal incidents.

Many stories are related of the simplicity of the life of Capt. Bassett. He was entirely free from anything that could in the most remote way be termed a dissipation. He was a total abstainer from tobacco. He hardly knew the taste of wine, but he did indulge in pinches of snuff, a habit, he acquired in the old days in the Senate, and he always had charge of the senatorial snuff boxes, which remain in the Senate chamber to this day, though they have become obsolete. The captain has been presented with a number of handsome snuff boxes, and he has exchanged pinches of snuff with many of the most famous men in the history of this country.

In The Same Company
Senator Gorman has always had an especially kind place in his heart for Capt. Bassett, whose acquaintance he made when, as a page, he revered the captain and regarded him as one of the greatest men in the country. Mr. Gorman knew Capt. Bassett quite well in his early days. During the war, when the venerable assistant doorkeeper was elected captain of a military company in the District of Columbia, young Gorman was chosen a lieutenant in the same command. The company was drilled by Capt. Bassett, and it became proficient as one of the means for defending the Capitol. It was never called out in active service, however. It was by this service that Mr. Bassett became "Capt." Bassett, as he has since been known.

Two Golden Weddings

Two of Them Occur on the Same Evening
Next Thursday evening the fiftieth anniversary of the marriages of two old citizens of Washington, Capt. Isaac Bassett and James M. Wright, esq., will occur.

Capt. Bassett was born in this city August 4, 1819. His father came here in the early days of this city from Connecticut and his mother from Ireland. He attended the preparatory department of Columbian college. Before he was twelve years old he was appointed page in the Senate through the influence of Daniel Webster. He has remained in the service of the Senate ever since, and is now assistant sergeant-at-arms. He has been in service 58 years, and is the oldest employee of the government.

Two Golden Weddings

Full of Honors and Years--Testimonials of Friends
The fiftieth anniversary of the marriage of Capt. Isaac Basset to Miss Adeline Hurdle was celebrated last night by the two particularly interested parties and by a number of other persons who were only incidentally interested. The home of the happy couple, at No 18 2d street northeast, was crowded yesterday evening from 7 to 11 o'clock, and the 69 year old official and his wife, just three years younger, received the congratulations of a host of visitors, many of whom have known the assistant doorkeeper for the greater portion of the 57 years which he has spent in the service of the Senate. Two sons, Mr. G.T. Bassett, of the pension office, and Mr. Isaac A. Bassett, of the post office, were present, and so was Mr. Grafton D. Henson, who was one of Capt. Bassett's supporters on the occasion of his marriage.
Among the numerous presents received were a silver tray from several Senators, accompanied by a note from Senator Evarts; a gold card receiver, from the Senate pages; a gold urn, from Mr. and Mrs. G.W. Winner, of New York; and a music box, from Mr. G.T. Bassett. Gold coins were sent by several persons, but a bouquet, from Mrs. Cleveland to Mrs. Bassett, had the place of honor, and was apparently the most high-valued gift received.

Historical Profile: Isaac Bassett

Isaac Bassett (R32/188) had a 64 year career in the U.S. Senate beginning in 1831 with his appointment as a page at age 12. His papers and artifacts have recently been donated to the Senate and are the basis for an exhibit in the Capitol on display until September.

Simeon Bassett (R77/D-4), Isaac's father, was a stone mason who worked on the Capitol reconstruction following the fire of 1814. Later he was Senate doorkeeper. When Daniel Webster determined that the one page then working in the Senate needed assistance, he sought Isaac's appointment. Instead of attending school with his contemporaries, Isaac waited on the likes of Webster and Henry Clay filling sand shakers and cutting quill pens. He was a Senate employee the rest of his life.

As an adult, Bassett was assistant Doorkeeper for the Senate. He performed many of the ceremonial and caretaking chores--assigning senators' seats, carrying the electoral ballot boxes to the House chamber after each presidential election, and turning back the clock to delay the conclusion of a Senate session. He also supervised the pages. One of his charges, Arthur P. Gorman, later returned as a senator from Maryland and Democratic floor leader.

Bassett received gifts at landmarks in his career. Senators subscribed for two: a portrait commissioned in 1876 and a silver Tiffany snuff box commemorating the 50th anniversary of his service in 1881. These and other gifts from his fellow employees are included in the exhibit.

By the end of his career, Bassett embodied the tradition and institutional memory of the Senate. When asked of his longevity, he said, "The only reason that I can give is that I tried to mind my own business and let other people alone."

Although proud of his service to the Senate, Bassett regretted his lack of formal education. In his unpublished memoirs, he wrote, "My experience is that if I had my time to go over again I never would enter the Senate as a page, messenger, or an officer."

Generations of Bassett's are at Congressional, but descendants have now spread to all parts of the country.

Bassett. On the 24th inst., Mrs. Mary A. Bassett, in the 73d year of her age, in hope of a blissful immortality beyond the grave

Dearest mother, thou has left us,
We thy loss do deeply feel;
But 'tis God who hath bereft us,
He can all our sorrows heal.
Yet again we hope to meet thee
When the day of life has fled,
And in heaven with joy to greet thee,
Where no farewell tear is shed.

An Ex-Mussulman's Monument

The estate of Ovanes Bassmagian, who died at Providence hospital, in October 1878, was the subject of a final order by Justice MacArther in the Probate court yesterday. Rev. Dr. J.L. French, who attended him in his last moments, when he became a convert to Christianity, and administered on his estate, had filed a petition in which he sets forth that after waiting over a year and no heirs having appeared, he wishes to be relieved from the trust. He proposes to expend $800 of the $2,841 left by the deceased on a monument to his memory in the Congressional cemetery, and give the balance to be a hospital for consumptives, according to the last wish of Bassmagian. The court authorized $700 to be paid for a monument, and the rest disposed of as the deceased had desired. The latter was an importer of rare oils and silks from Turkey, of which country he was a native, and died while on his way South for his health.

An A Decision in Favor of Turkish Heirs

Yesterday, in the Probate Court, Judge Cox made an order in the case of the estate of Ovonnis Bassmajian, ordering distribution of the estate to the Turkish heirs on the 10th of December, if no cause be shown to the contrary, and directing publication to that effect. The deceased was a Turk, who came here in 1878 and died at Providence hospital in November of that year. He had renounced the faith of the Mussulman and was baptized as a Christian by Rev. John L. French, who was his constant attendant for some time before his death. He directed that Mr. French take charge of his property, and after paying his funeral expenses and erecting a monument over his grave, devote the balance of the proceeds of the sale of his effects to the establishment of a hospital for consumptives. After his death, Mr. French was appointed administrator. The news of his death reached his relatives abroad, and they, by S.B. Chittenden, jr., of New York, filed a petition for distribution. Mr. French filed yesterday a petition for leave to dispose of the fund, now about $20,000, as the deceased directed, mentioning that the deceased had expressly desired that his relatives in Turkey should not inherit his money, as they had been the cause of his leaving home. Judge Cox held that the requirements necessary to make this direction a legal will, the presence of three witnesses and its immediate reduction to writing, not having been complied with, the heirs at-law were entitled to distribution.

Bates. On the 27th instant, about half past six o'clock p.m., of scarlet fever, resulting in congestion of the brain, H. Clay Bates, aged 14 years. No boy of his age gave more promise of future usefulness. He was remarkably intelligent, correct in his deportment at home and abroad, and bright in his studies and was deservedly loved dearly by all his now sorrowing relatives and friends.

Must fall the earliest prey;
Though by no hand untimely snatch'd
The leaves must drop away;
And yet it were a grief
To watch it withering leaf by leaf,
Then see it pluck'd today;
Since earthly eye but ill can brave
To trace the change to foul from fair.

His funeral will take place from the residence of his parents, southwest corner Pennsylvania ave. and 9th st. east tomorrow (Thursday) afternoon, at half past one o'clock, proceeding thence to the E street Baptist Church, and thence to the Congressional burying ground. The friends of the family are invited to attend.

Death of Dr. J.E. Bates
Resident of District for Years, but Native of Virginia
Dr. John Edward Bates died at the George Washington University Hospital at an early hour this morning, at the age of eighty-four years. It has been arranged to hold the funeral from his late residence, the Braddock, at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, interment to be in Congressional cemetery. Deceased was one of the oldest residents of the District of Columbia, having resided here about sixty-five years. He was a native of Fairfax county, Va., but came to Washington when he was a lad, and later in life conducted a pharmacy.

Dr. John Edward Bates Dead
Dean of Pharmaceutical Profession in Washington Arrangements for Funeral to Take Place From Family Residence This Afternoon

Arrangements have been made to hold the funeral of Dr. John Edward Bates from his late residence, 1929 18th street northwest, at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The services will be conducted by Rev. William H. Chapman, for years pastor of the Fourth Street Methodist Episcopal Church, where Dr. Bates was a communicant. Interment will be in the Congressional cemetery, as was announced in The Star yesterday afternoon.

By the death of Dr. Bates Washington has lost a man who was for many years prominent in business affairs and who was during most of that time the dean of the pharmaceutical profession in the city. He had been in failing health, and about two weeks ago his condition became so critical that he was removed to the George Washington University Hospital, where an operation was performed in the hope of prolonging his life. Dr. Bates failed to rally, however, and death occurred at 1:30 o'clock yesterday morning.

Native of Virginia
Dr. Bates was born in Fairfax county, Va., October 14, 1823. He came to Washington when a boy of sixteen and resided here continuously since then. After studying pharmacy under Dr. Kidwell of Georgetown, with whom he was associated for two years. Dr. Bates removed to the southeast section of the city, at that time the heart of Washington, and entered the drug business on his own account. The store which he established was for years one of the leading pharmacies of the city.

When the development began of what is now the northwest business section Dr. Bates established a branch drug store at the corner of 13th and F streets and conducted both business places for several years, but the branch store soon grew to such proportions as to demand his attention. For twenty-five years it was the leading pharmacy of Washington, and Dr. Bates became the dean of the pharmaceutical profession of the capital. He retired from the F street store in 1876, removing to the corner of 18th and K streets northwest and twelve years ago he retired altogether from active business.

His long residence here and the confidential nature of his profession brought him into contact with many of the public men of the early days of Washington. Richard Wallach and Col. James G. Berret, two of the city's earliest mayors, were among his best friends. Dr. Bates was one of the oldest members of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows and of the Masonic order of Washington, but for many years had not taken an active interest in their affairs.

Dr. Bates married, January 6, 1852, Miss Charlotte Williams of Lockport, N.Y., and in 1902 the couple celebrated their golden wedding anniversary, when hundreds of their friends testified to the esteem in which they were held. Mrs. Bates' death occurred two years ago. Seven children were born of the union, of whom four survive -- Charles H. Bates, attorney for the Southern Pacific railroad; John W. Bates and Misses Louise and Martha V. Bates, all of this city.

Bates. On Sunday morning, at half past 2 o'clock, Julia wife of Mr. John E. Bates. Her friends and acquaintances are respectfully invited to attend her funeral this (Monday) afternoon at 3 o'clock from the Ebenezer Methodist Episcopal Church near the Navy Yard.

The National Intelligencer, October 16, 1850
"In the midst of life we are in death!"--Never was this solemn truth more deeply realized than in the death of Mrs. Julia H. Bates, consort of John E. Bates, who departed this life on Sunday, the 6th instant, after a brief illness of a few hours; a young lady of fervent piety, a consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church; mild and amiable in her manners; kind-hearted and affectionate in her disposition; to the poor and distressed an untiring friend. For these many good qualities she was eminently esteemed in life, in death universally regretted by a numerous circle of friends and acquaintances.
Upon her immediate family connections, and in a more special degree her bereaved mother and devoted husband, will this blow fall with accumulated weight. May the balm of consolation be theirs!

All that friendship and medical skill could do to preserve her young and valuable life, alas! proved vain, and in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, she has been thus suddenly snatched from the hearts of those by whom she was most dearly cherished and her gentle spirit has winged its flight to scenes of happiness beyond the grave. Death Came Swiftly
Prominent Resident of South Washington Passes Away
William H. Baum Stricken While Attending to Regular Business at His Office

The sudden death of Mr. William H. Baum, a prominent and highly respected citizen of Washington, at his office, 205 7th street southwest, Tuesday evening last at 6:15 o'clock, was a great shock to his family and friends. Mr. Baum left his nearby residence, at 612 B street southwest, at 6 o'clock in excellent spirits and apparently in his usual health. Reaching his office he attempted to open his safe, when he was stricken, and calling for assistance, bowed his head over his desk and expired. He had suffered for some time with an affection of the heart, and the immediate cause of death was heart failure.

Mr. Baum was born in Baltimore fifty-eight years ago, but had been almost a life long resident of the District. He had been identified with the coal business in this city for thirty-eight years, having entered upon that occupation at 10th and C streets southwest in August, 1868. After a successful business career, he was at the time of his death the vice president of the J. Maury Dove Coal Company.

During the civil war he was connected with the quartermaster's department.

At the time of the opening of the high schools of Washington Mr. Baum became one of the board of trustees and was afterward for several years the president of the board. Mr. Baum had been a descendant of an old Dutch family, but his people have lived in the District of Columbia for many generations. His great-great-grandfather, Mr. Kokendoffer, was a very old man at his death and was buried in Oak Hill cemetery in 1825 having been for many years prior to that date the manager of the main stage line between Washington and Baltimore. The Baum family have been residents of Georgetown since revolutionary days.

Mr. Baum was a thirty-second degree Mason, a Knight Templar of Columbia Commandery, was connected with Almas Temple of the Mystic Shrine and the Scottish Rite, and had also been past master of Centennial Lodge, No. 14. He had lived in his late home for about thirty years.

The funeral will be held at the family residence, 712 B street southwest, tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock, and Rev. Richard P. Williams of Trinity Protestant Episcopal Church will officiate. Masonic services will also be conducted at the residence.

The pallbearers will not be decided upon until tomorrow, but will be two representatives each from the Mystic Shrine, Columbia Commandery, Knights Templar; the Scottish Rite, Eureka Chapter, No. 4, R.A.M. and Washington Centennial Lodge, No. 14, F.A.A.M. Interment with Masonic honors will be in Congressional cemetery.

Mr. Baum's wife, who was formerly Miss Lizzie Henning of this city; his two sons, Walter and William Baum, who are in business in Washington; his mother, who is well and alert at eighty-two years of age; his brother, Mr. G.L.W. Baum, and his sister, Mrs. Mary A. Davis, survive him.

The Evening Star, Saturday, May 26, 1906

Committed to the Grave

Masonic Services Over Remains of William H. Baum

Many of the relatives, friends and business associates of the late William H. Baum, who died suddenly Tuesday evening last, gathered at the late home of the deceased, 612 B street southwest, yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock to pay their last tribute of respect to the deceased by attending the funeral services. Rev. Richard P. Williams of Trinity Protestant Episcopal Church conducted the funeral services at the house and committed the body to the grave in Congressional cemetery.

At the grave the Masonic funeral services were also held, Past Master Evander French of Washington Centennial Lodge, No. 14, F.A.A.M., of which Mr. Baum was a past master, conducting the Masonic ceremonial for the lodge. Delegations from Washington Centennial Lodge, from Columbia Commandery, Knights Templar, and from Eureka Chapter, No. 4, R.A.M., attended the funeral services in a body, and accompanied the funeral cortege to the grave.

The pallbearers were Mr. J.H. Small, jr. and Dr. E.C.C. Winter, from Washington Centennial Lodge; Messrs. G.Y. Atlee and Joseph R. Fague, from Eureka Chapter, and Messrs. E.C. Elmore and G.Z. Collson from Columbia Commandery, K.T.
William H. Baum, vice-president of the J. Maury Dove Company, was born in Baltimore during the temporary absence of his family from this city. He was educated in the public schools of this city, and during the war held several governmental positions. At the close of the war he engaged in the grocery business, which he conducted for about three years. In August, 1868, he entered into the coal business, his office and yard being located at Tenth and C streets, southwest. In 1874 he bought out the business of William Guinmand, at 205 Seventh street, southwest, and on account of its more favorable location transferred his main office to that place, where he has continued in business ever since. Mr. Baum is one of the most highly respected citizens in the District of Columbia, and for many years was one of the school trustees, representing the fourth division, and part of this time was president of the school board. He is a man of fine personality and generous impulses, and has been identified with the business interests of Washington and with every movement tending to benefit the national capital. He is a man of the most irreproachable integrity, and his name is synonymous with the best principles of sound business probity. Prior to connecting himself with the Dove Co., Mr. Baum had been a warm personal friend of each of the gentlemen on the board of directors, and in the enlargement of the business he has brought an experience of 34 years which is replete with a thorough knowledge of the local conditions of the coal trade. There is probably no coal dealer in the city who is better acquainted with the coal dealers of the District than Mr. Baum and he will eventually have the entire charge of the wholesale department of the company.

Other Victim in Poultry Yard

Lightening belts took the lives of three Washingtonians yesterday during the severe storm in the late afternoon.

The victims were Lorene Shepherd of 24 Seaton place, FJ. Huasmann of 321 K street northeast and Henry M. Bowman, civilian employee of the Soldiers' Home, resident at that institution.

Killed in Chicken Yard

Bowman was killed while in the poultry yard in the Soldiers' Home grounds. The body was taken to the morgue of the Soldiers' Home infirmary.

Bowman had been employed at the Soldiers' Home only since last January 1. It is believed he has relatives in Washington and efforts were being made today to locate Henry F. Bowman of this city, believed to be a son or nephew of the deceased.

Coroner Nevitt issued certificates of accidental death.

Sudden Death

Mrs. Louisa Baurman, fifty years old, was found dead in the kitchen at her home, 317 N street southwest, this morning about 7 o’clock. She was seated on a chair in front of the gas stove and the gas was turned on. Her death was due to heart disease, however, and not to the effects of the gas. Mrs. Bowman had suffered several attacks of heart failure recently. She went to the kitchen this morning to prepare breakfast and was attacked about the time she turned on the gas. An unused match was found on the table upon which the stove rested. Coroner Nevitt investigated the case and gave a certificate of death from heart disease.

<td>James Baxter, interred in Range 87, Site 281, came to Washington in 1828 with his young family. James was a veteran of the War of 1812, serving with the Maryland Militia as a Private in Capt. Stewart's Company, 51st Regiment. The inscription on the stone states that he was born in 1796, I believe that to be incorrect. In his latter life, James could not remember his birth date; however, I have an apprentice indenture documented, dated 1798 which says that he was 11 years old, this would make his birth date 1787. In addition, in his application for a pension dated April 25, 1871, he states that he is 84 years old which would put his birth year at 1787.</td>

'Tis hard to break the tender cords
When love has bound the heart;
'Tis hard, so hard to speak the words,
Must we forever part.

Dearest loved one, we have laid thee
In the peaceful grave's embrace.
But thy memory will be cherished
Till we see thy heavenly face.

By Her Mother

Her busy hands are folded,
Her loving face on earth is gone,
Her trials are all ended,
Her heavenly crown is won.

By Her Husband

Funeral will take place Sunday, the 8th, at 3 p.m., from her late residence, H.G. Kenner, Anacostia, D.C.

A Drowned Man's Watch

"Just received postal card from P.W. Phillips, coroner, Hampton, Va., Body of young man found on beach had metal watch with R.S. Donaldson, 209 13th street southwest on back." Such was the telegram received today by Inspector Swindells of the detective corps from Superintendent Murray of the New York police force.

An inquiry today by a Star reporter at the number given revealed the fact that Mr. Raymond S. Donaldson lived there and was alive and well, or was this morning, though he was not at home when the reporter called. His sister told a reporter that he once owned a watch on which his name was inscribed, but she though he had traded it or sold it a long time ago. His wife and child are on a visit to Norfolk, where they have relatives, one of whom might possibly have a watch bearing his name.

Drowned in Hampton Roads

The body of the young man was washed ashore at Hampton, Va., this Wednesday as published in yesterday's Star is undoubtedly the remains of J.E. Bayliss who has been missing from home, No. 191 Chappel street, Norfolk, Va., for more than a month. The watch found on him which bore the name of R.S. Donaldson of this city was given to Mr. Bayliss by Mr. Donaldson who is his brother-in-law. Mr. Bayliss' father, who is in business here will go to Hampton this afternoon to identify and take charge of the body.

The Funeral of James E. Bayliss

The body of James E. Bayliss, the young man who was drowned in Hampton Roads some days ago, as heretofore published in The Star, was brought here from Hampton yesterday and was taken to J.W. Lee's undertaking establishment, on Pennsylvania avenue, from whence the funeral took place at 1 o'clock today. The deceased was a twenty-one years old and was a son of John E. Bayliss, a commission merchant on Louisiana avenue. The young man had been missing from home since April 3, and his body had been buried at Hampton two weeks before it was known who he was. The funeral services today were conducted by Rev. Father Walter and the interment was in the Congressional Cemetery.

The Evening Star, October 28, 1873
The Funeral of Mrs. Harriet Bayne, widow of the late John Bayne, took place from her late residence, No. 406 Virginia avenue southeast, yesterday evening, and was largely attended. The remains were placed in an elegant coffin, covered with black cloth, with heavy silver mountings. The funeral services were conducted by the pastor of the Second Baptist church, corner 4th street and Virginia avenue southeast; after which the remains were conveyed to the Congressional cemetery and interred in the family lot. She was loved by all who knew her, and her demise will be deeply regretted, especially by the poor of that vicinity, who on application to her for relief were never sent away empty-handed.

Another of Our Old Citizens Gone
Mr. John Bayne, one of the oldest resident of Washington, died at his home on Virginia Avenue, between 4th and 5th streets southeast, last evening, after a long and painful illness. When a boy, Mr. Bayne worked at spar making at the navy yard, in this city, and subsequently served an apprenticeship as a ship-carpenter in Baltimore. He served in the War of 1812, and was one of the "Defenders of Baltimore." He was a member of the city councils of Washington for a number of years, and was regarded as a gentleman of unimpeachable integrity. He was a devoted Union man, and it is stated received the first bond issued by the government during the war. He was a Mason of good standing, and a member of Naval Lodge, No. 4. His funeral will take place at 3 o'clock on Sunday next, at the Second Baptist church, of which he was a member. His death will be deeply regretted, not only by his family, but by a large circle of warm personal friends.

The Evening Star, September 23, 1872
The funeral of John Bayne, who died on Tuesday last, took place yesterday afternoon from the Second Baptist church, corner of Virginia avenue and 4th street east. The remains were escorted to the Congressional Cemetery by Naval Lodge of Masons, preceded by a section of the marine band.

Victim of Auto Accident Dead
Eli Beach, sixty-seven years old, who was knocked down by an automobile near his home, 2319 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, ten days ago, died at Casualty Hospital yesterday afternoon. John Lanham, a chauffeur for Brig. Gen. George P. Scriven, who is alleged to have run down Mr. Beach, has not been arrested, but the car was found at Olean, N.Y., where it was left at a garage. Coroner Nevitt arranged to hold an inquest over Beach's body at the morgue today.

Gen. Scriven's Stolen Car Is In Olean, N.Y.
Chauffeur John Lanham, Charged With Theft, Still at Large -- Accident Victim Dying
While detectives were scouring the nearby counties of Maryland and Virginia yesterday searching for the automobile of Brig. Gen. George P. Scriven, U.S.A., that was taken from his garage at Chevy Chase, Md., nine days ago, word was received at police headquarters that the car had been found in a garage at Olean, N.Y.

The car was left at the garage Saturday by two young men, the police were told, and it was not until the Olean police received a descriptive circular yesterday that they knew of the identity of the vehicle.

John Lanham, a chauffeur, who is charged with having stolen his employer's car, has not been arrested, Eli Beach, 2819 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, who, it is charged, was knocked down by the alleged stolen car the night Lanham disappeared, is critically ill at Casualty Hospital.

Physicians at the hospital told the police that the patient probably will not live until tomorrow. Beach, who is sixty-seven years old, was knocked down by his car on Pennsylvania avenue not far from his home and was not picked up until about two hours after the accident happened.

The Evening Star, June 22, 1914, p. 18
Struck By Automobile, Injured Man Is Ignored
Eli Beach Suffers Broken Leg Cuts and Bruises, But Lies in Road Three Hours
Eli Beach, sixty-seven years old, is in a serious condition at Casualty Hospital as a result of an automobile accident at Pennsylvania, and Branch avenues southeast Saturday night. One leg is fractured, and the patient is also suffering from numerous cuts and bruises. It is stated by the police that Beach, whose home is at 2319 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, not far from where he was knocked down, was injured by an automobile that had been taken from the private garage of Brig. Gen. George P. Scriven at Chevy Chase, Md.

The accident happened about 9:30 o'clock, the police were told, and I was no until three hours afterward that the wounded man was picked up and taken to the hospital.

Ignored by Automobilists
"I called to a number of automobilists who passed me as I lay on the road" the injured man told Detective Grant yesterday, "but I suppose they thought I was a drunken man and would not stop."

Finally an acquaintance of Beach came along in a buggy and responded to his appeal. Beach was then hurried to the hospital. A chauffeur visited the Anacostia police station late Saturday night and inquired if any serious automobile accident had happened, and said he would like to be of assistance.

It is alleged by the police that the caller is the individual who took Gen. Scriven's car from his garage. Two women were in the car when the chauffeur visited the police station, it is stated, but when he paid a second visit he was alone. Today the police are making a search in Maryland for the missing car.

The Evening Star, July 4, 1914, p. 8
Jury Unable To Decide
Chauffeur Responsible for Eli Beach's Death Not Identified
An inquest was held by Coroner Nevitt yesterday afternoon in the case of Eli Beach, sixty-seven years old, who was knocked down and injured by an automobile near his home in Twining City two weeks ago, and who subsequently died. It was in evidence that Beach was strolling along the road and that he was struck by a big touring car. After lying on the road for more than two hours he was picked up and taken home.

Witnesses stated that John Lanham, operating a car belonging to Brig. Gen. George P. Scriven, was stopped on the road more than two hours after the accident happened, and questioned by the police, but that he stated he did not know whose car had injured Beach.

It was also stated that Lanham was accompanied by two women and a male companion; that he disappeared from the city the next morning and that Gen. Scriven's car was later found in Olean, N.Y.

The jury could not determine whose automobile struck Beach.

George Beale entered the United States' Navy as Purser, about the commencement of the late war with Great Britain, and shortly afterwards joined the late gallant Com. McDonough, on Lake Champlain, where he remained until the close of it. He participated in several severe skirmishes with the enemy, and bore a conspicuous part in the glorious action of the 11th of September, (upon which occasion he volunteered his services,) which elicited the thanks of Congress, a gold medal, etc. voted by that body to the distinguished Commander, and those engaged with him. To lofty patriotism, and an indomitable spirit that nothing could subdue, he united a chivalrous sense of honor, which he cherished ardently through life. He was a true son of the "Old Dominion." His warm friendships and generous nature will make his loss lamented by many friends; but to his bereaved and afflicted widow and children, his loss will be irreparable.

Mr. Beale was born in Washington, and received his education in the schools of this city. When he was twenty-one years old he married Miss Elizabeth Brown Wheeler a daughter of Col. John Wheeler, the historian. As a young man he spent a great part of his time at the country estate of the family at Indian Springs, Md.

In 1845 he and his brother, the late Gen. Edward F. Beale, went with the Fremont expedition to the unexplored southwest portion of the country, and remained away five years. Since his return he had lived in Washington.

Leaves Two Children
He had two children, John W. Beale and Mrs. Lawrence Heap, wife of Pay Inspector Lawrence Heap, U.S.N., who was Miss Violet B. Beale. Both live in Washington. His wife also survives.

Mr. Beale was an uncle of Mme. George Bakhmeteff, wife of the Russian ambassador, who was formerly Miss Mary Beale; Truxtun Beale of this city and New York, and Mrs. John R. McLean, who was Miss Emily Beale.

The section of Washington was known as Bloomingdale was inherited by George Nancrede Beale from his mother at her death, and was largely built up by him. Until his retirement from active business he was interested in real estate operations.

Beale, James Forbes
d. 4 Apr 1843
12 yrs.

Beale. Died on Tuesday night, the 4th inst., after a short but painful illness, James Forbes, eldest son of Mr. Robert Beale, in the thirteenth year of his age. In the death of this beautiful boy, beloved by all who knew him for his mild, gentle, and affectionate disposition, his agonized parents have received a blow which time alone can heal. None but a fond parent can have the least conception of the intense agony of such a privation; and to attempt consolation under such a state of feeling and misery would be utterly vain and unavailing. The dear image of the lost one will rise, and the wound will rankle till time has, in some degree, mellowed or obliterated the memory of the past. The fairest and sweetest flowers are of the shortest duration; and there is something often in the developments of a child destined to an early grave that would seem to indicate that God had determined to remove him, in his state of innocence and purity, from this world of sin, corruption, and misery. The parent will, however, mourn:

"And yet why mourn? That deep repose
Shall never more be broke by pain,
Those lips no more in sighs unclose,
Those eyes shall never weep again:
For think not that the blushing flower
Shall wither in the church-yard sod;
"Twas made to gild an angel's bower Within the paradise of God."

The funeral will take place this day at 12 o'clock and the friends and acquaintances of the family are invited to attend.

Drowned in a Bath Tub

The residence of Mr. Benjamin Beall, No. 486 Louisiana avenue, was the scene of a distressing occurrence yesterday morning. About 8 o'clock his son, William J. Beall, as has been his custom, repaired to the bathroom, and locked the door. Some two hours later he was missed and after a search the door of this room was forced open, when he was found dead in the tub. The bath tub was almost filled with water, and he was found with his face downward at the foot of the tub. He was taken out and medical aid summoned, but too late, as life was extinct. It is thought he was seized with an epileptic fit, which he was subject to, and fell in the water and was drowned. The coroner was summoned, but held no inquest. Mr. Beall was employed in his father's store on Pennsylvania avenue and was 24 years of age.

Bean, James A.
Birth/Death: d. 11 Sep 1886 35 yrs.
Range/Site: R47/41
Bean. September 11, 1866 at 2 a.m., James A. Bean, aged 35 years. The funeral will take place from his late residence, No. 925 9th street northwest, Monday at 3 p.m.

The deceased was born and raised in East Washington, and for a time was the clerk of the Eastern market and subsequently was for some years a constable. He had for a few years past roomed at Mrs. Elder's, who has for several months occupied house No. 925 9th street. Mr. Bean had been in ill health for some time and on Friday last while near death, Mrs. Elder procured the license and a minister was sent for to marry them. This the reverend gentleman on seeing that Mr. Bean was barely conscious refused to do. Bean died at an early hour Saturday morning and the funeral was arranged to take place this afternoon from the house. Yesterday morning some of the relatives--brothers and sisters--of the deceased called to see Mrs. Elder, and she agreed that they could have the body, and they left, stating that they had arranged with Mr. J.M. Mitchell, the undertaker. It appears that Mrs. Elder subsequently changed her mind, for the relatives received word that they could not have the body. Then they called on Lieut. Arnold, at fifth precinct, and stated to him the facts and asked his advice. Mr. Padgett, the assistant attorney of the District, being present gave the opinion that unless Mrs. Elder was the lawful wedded wife of the deceased she could not hold the body. Officer Hollingerberger was then directed to investigate the case, and he went to Mrs. Elder and advised her that the law was on the side of the brothers and sisters. Mrs. Elder said she would not give up the body and the officer telephoned to Sergeant Diggins, who responded, and meeting there the relatives the matter was talked over and finally Mrs. Elder said if they would allow her to attend the funeral as the chief mourner and ride in the first hack, they might take the body. Mr. Mitchell, the undertaker, thereupon moved the body to his ware-rooms, 729 11th street southeast, and arrangements were made for the interment this afternoon.

Ernest Beck's Body

Remains of Missing Baker Found in the River

The body of Ernest Beck, the baker, who disappeared from his home at No. 1201 New Jersey avenue southeast two months ago, was recovered yesterday afternoon. Clarence Rowland, a boy living near Giesboro Point, found the body in the Anacostia river near the shore between the asylum wharf and Giesboro. The tide was unusually low at the time and the body was exposed to view on the flats. It had probably been there for several days, as the effects of the sun on the body were plainly visible.

The body was in an advanced state of decomposition. Knights of Labor cards and other papers found in the pockets of the clothing showed that there could be no doubt of the identification. Because of the late hour at which the body was found it was permitted to remain there until this morning, when it was removed to the morgue by Undertaker J.W. Lee.

Beck, who was sixty-five years old, was last seen alive late Saturday night, January 15, when he left the house of a friend on 4 1/2 street. He had worked at Berger's bakery on L street southwest, and received his weekly salary that afternoon. The money he turned over to his wife, reserving only about 40 cents for incidentals. After supper he called on friends, as had been his custom for years and late that night he started from his friends house to return home. When his disappearance was reported, a story was circulated to the effect that there had been a struggle on the bridge crossing the canal, and, it is said, a splash followed. This, it was believed was occasioned by the throwing overboard of the baker.
Mrs. Beck, widow of the dead man, insisted that her husband had fallen or had been thrown in the canal, and at her request the water was dragged several times by Harbormaster Sutton's crew.

This morning Coroner Carr viewed the body at the morgue and decided to hold an inquest at 6 o'clock this evening. Deputy Coroner Glazebrook was directed to make an autopsy in order to determine if any violence had been inflicted before the body reached the water.

The Ernest Beck Mystery

Wife of the Missing Man Offers Reward for Information

Members of the Family Believe He Was Drowned in the James Creek Canal

Mrs. Beck, wife of Ernest Beck, the baker who lately disappeared from his home, No. 1201 New Jersey avenue southeast has offered a reward of $25 for information leading to his whereabouts, dead or alive. As heretofore stated in The Star, Mr. Beck is sixty-five years old, and is a baker by trade. He has been married forty-one years, and has lived in the house at New Jersey avenue and M street all this time. When he left home ten days ago, his wife says, he wore a suit of clothes made of mixed goods, and a fedora hat. The members of his family assert as their belief that his body is in the James Creek canal.

The missing man worked in Berger's bakery on L street southwest between 4 1/2 and 6th streets. He returned home a week ago last Saturday, and handed to his wife the weekly allowance for the house. After supper he dressed and said he was going to call on Mr. Crimling, a fellow baker, who lives on 4 1/2 street. This had been his custom every Saturday night for years. When ready to leave the house he took from his pocket $3 and said he would leave it at home, for fear something might happen. He had just 35 cents left, and he went away from home in unusually good spirits. He called on his baker friend, and remained until about 8:30 o'clock. He then called on Mr. Miller, another friend, who lives on 4 1/2 street.

The Start Homeward

It was about 11:30 o'clock when he left Mr. Miller's and started for home. He had just six squares to go from Mr. Miller's to his own home. It is known that he started in the direction of his home, for Mr. Miller went to the door and waited until he reached the corner of M street.

Which way he turned when he reached that corner is not known. It is believed to be possible that he turned west and went in the direction of the river instead of going east towards his home. Although the wife and children now believe he is dead, some of them remain at the window most of the time hoping every pedestrian will prove to be the missing husband and father.

Mrs. Beck says that her husband's home life was a happy one, and there was no reason why he should have gone away. The idea of suicide she is certain never entered his head, for he was always afraid of death. It was only a few weeks ago that he suffered with the toothache and was badly frightened.

Sober and Industrious Man

Mr. Beck, members of his family say, was a sober and industrious man, but Saturday nights it had been his custom to drink a few glasses of beer. Several Saturday nights colored boys, who congregate near the M street bridge, had pursued him and given him some trouble, and this, his wife says, was why he left his money at home the night he disappeared.

Since his disappearance Mrs. Beck has heard a great many rumors concerning her husband, but investigation of them convinces her that no one in South Washington has seen him since he left the corner of 4 1/2 and M streets shortly before midnight ten days ago.

As heretofore stated in The Star, the James Creek canal has been dragged twice by the members of the crew of the police boat, since Mr. Beck's disappearance, and a request is to be made that it be dragged again, as soon as the weather will permit.

d. 28 Jun 1903 18 yrs. R71/253

Beck. On Sunday, June 28, 1903, after a lingering illness, Hilton M., eldest beloved son of John and Allen A. Beck (nee King), aged 18 years.

Our darling is sleeping so free from all pain,
Oh, wake him not, sweet spirit, to suffer again;
He slumbers so soundly, oh, let him sleep on;
His sickness all ended and his troubles all gone.
Oh, think how he suffered and moaned with pain
Through the long night hours we soothed him in vain,

The Evening Star, November 20, 1854
Sudden Death
We regret to hear that Jos. W. Beck, Esq., one of our old and most valuable citizens, died suddenly last night, at his residence on Capitol Hill, of an asthmatic affection, which has been very prevalent during a few weeks past.  Mr. Beck has been for years a justice of the peace in the county of Washington, and at the time of his death occupied the position of police magistrate of the Fifth district.  The suddenness of his death raised doubts in the minds of his friends this morning as to the truth of the report. He was attending to business last evening, we are told, and was attacked soon after his business hours and died in a very short time after.

Beck, Rezin | d. 6 Jul 1860 | Beck Vault |

Beck. At his residence in this city on the 5th inst., Mr. Rezin Beck in the 63rd year of his age. A member of the Methodist Episcopal Church for 50 years, his life adorned his profession. He was in the highest sense of the term a Christian and in all the relations of his life, he sustained a high character for kindness, honesty and integrity. The friends of the family are respectfully invited to attend his funeral from the Wesley Chapel at 3 1/2 o'clock p.m. Sunday, 8th instant.

_The Evening Star, July 7, 1860_

Death of an Estimable Citizen

Mr. Rezin Beck one of our oldest and most respectable citizens died at his residence in this city, yesterday morning. His funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon and will be attended by the Order of Odd Fellows with which fraternity he had long been connected.

_The Evening Star, July 9, 1860_

The Funeral of Mr. Rezin Beck took place yesterday afternoon and was largely attended. The Odd Fellows, accompanied by Withers’ band, were represented by the Grand Encampment, Columbia Encampment No. 1, and Central Lodge No. 1. From the late residence of the deceased the corpse was conveyed to Wesley Chapel, where the religious services were conducted by the Rev. Messrs. Edwards and Macauley, the latter preaching a suitable sermon. The cortege then proceeded to the Congressional Cemetery where, after the “last sad rites” of the Odd Fellows, conducted by Chaplain R.W. Middleton, the body was deposited in the family vault. The deceased was an old and highly respected citizen of Washington, and his services as an instructor of the young have directed the feet of many in the path that led to honor and wealth. His scholars will retain him in grateful remembrance.

Miss Anne Beers Is Laid to Rest

School Officials and Many Former Colleagues Attend Her Funeral

With ranking public school officials and former colleagues attending, funeral services for Miss Anne Beers, 70 years old, retired public school principal, who died Sunday at her residence, 1332 Massachusetts avenue, were held this morning at St. Matthew's Catholic Church. Interment was in Congressional Cemetery.

Miss Beers, a native of Washington, was educated in the public schools here, later attending Columbia University in New York City. Appointed a teacher in the elementary grades soon after her graduation from the Washington Normal School, she advanced to the rank of supervising principal of the old fourth division, holding this position 15 years. She retired some years ago.

Miss Beers, an ardent worker in the interests of local school teachers, played a major part in the organization of the Teacher's Aid and Annuity Association and the promotion of the present teachers' retirement law.

She was a charter member of the Woman's City Club and was active in the work of the District Educational Association and the National Educational Association.

She is survived by one brother, William Beers, and two sisters, Miss Cornelia Beers and Mrs. Margaret Beers Somarindyck.

Six nephews acted as pallbearers: Clayton Beall, Ralph Beall, Harry Beers, Ivan Beers, Charles Knoch and George Somarindyck.

The National Intelligencer, March 14, 1839

"In the midst of life we are in death."

Died, on the 10th instant at St. Joseph's Academy near Emmettsburg, Maryland, Miss Cornelia Elizabeth Beers, second daughter of Isaac and Milly Ann Beers, of the city of Washington, aged fifteen years and two months.

In recording the death of this amiable young lady, do we find the above words truly realized. A few days ago, the young, amiable, and interesting Cornelia gladdened the hearts of her youthful companions; consoled and edified her beloved teachers by her mild and docile manners, and her delighted, happy parents promised themselves many blissful days in her sweet society; but, alas! the scene is changed; these hopes are fled; the fond anticipations of a tender mother, of a devoted father are fled; never are they to be realized. Death, the ruthless destroyer, came and seized lovely prize; youth and talents fled before him; like the tender blossom nipped in the bud, was she called from among us. She has ceased to live on earth; her mild and gentle spirit... has sought a more congenial clime, where such flowers never fade. Cornelia rests in the bosom of her God, we trust. Such is our hope.
A while to earth such souls are given,
Our pathway to illumine;
To point us out the road to heaven,
And endless bliss beyond the tomb.

The Washington Post,
George Allen Bell
Oil Executive

George Allen Bell, 95, retired general manager in Hong Kong for Exxon Eastern, died of pneumonia July 18 at Inova Fairfax Hospital. The former Washington and Arlington resident moved to the Aarondale assisted living facility in Springfield six months ago.

Mr. Bell was a native of Reading, Pa., and a graduate of Dartmouth College. He worked for four decades for Standard Oil of New York and its subsidiaries. Most of that time, he was in China. He also worked in India during World War II and in Washington for the War Production Board.

He retired in 1960 as general manager of Socony Vacuum, which was formed by Standard Oil of New York and New Jersey. It is now Exxon Eastern.

Mr. Bell was a member of the Old China Hands, Congressional Country Club, Fairfax Hunt Club and the Arts Club of Washington. He was secretary of his class for the Dartmouth Alumni Association.

His wife of 67 years, Paula Brown Bell, died last year. Survivors include three children, Alisson Bell Holman of Weems, Va., George Allen Bell Jr. of Arlington and David Bryson Bell of Burke; eight grandchildren; and seven great-grandchildren.

Bartender Becomes Suddenly Ill and Is Taken to Hospital

James J. Bellew, thirty-nine years old, who was employed as bartender in a saloon at 14th street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, died at the Emergency Hospital this morning. He was taken sick last night while at work in the saloon. When he fell to the floor it was thought he had merely slipped and fallen, but it was soon found that he was unconscious, and he was removed to the hospital.

Bellew was married and lived at the Kingman, 423 Massachusetts avenue. He leaves a wife, but no children.
Coroner Nevitt viewed the body at the morgue today and gave a certificate of death from natural causes.

Funeral of J.J. Bellew

Hotel Man Laid to Rest With Rites of Eagles

Funeral services were held Monday at St. Patrick’s Church over the remains of James J. Bellew, who died suddenly last Friday.

Mr. Bellew had been identified with the hotel business in Washington for the last ten years. He was the son of James Bellew, one of the pioneer undertakers of this city, and is survived by a widow and two sisters, Mrs.
P.D. Miller and Mrs. T.D. Kirkley, who dwell in Washington, and his mother, three sisters and a brother, residents of Connecticut.

The burial services of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, of which Mr. Bellew was a member, were read at the grave by Grand Worthy President R.L. Montague, assisted by E.S. Schmid and Ward Savage. The pallbearers were James Byrne, W.E. Evans, William Rotenbury, Edward Coughlin, Leo Triplett and F.H.
Fullington. Among the floral tributes was a six-foot cross, sent by the employees of the Astor Hotel, where he was employed at the time of his death.

Our mother is sleeping so free from all pain,
O wake her not, sweet spirit, to suffer again.
She slumbers so soundly, O let her sleep on;
Her sickness is ended, her troubles are gone.

O think how she suffered and moaned with pain;
In the long night hours we soothed her,
Till God in His mercy sent down from above
An angle to whisper a message of love.
May she rest in peace.

Benham, Major Henry Hill
Died New York City. Died suddenly at his home.

Brevet Major-Gen. Henry W. Benham, formerly of the Corps of Engineers, United States Army, died yesterday at his later residence, No. 104 East Thirty-sixth street. His death was due to a complication of disorders, although up to within a week past he had been able to go about. He was surrounded in his last moments by Mrs. Benham and their two daughters, but his son, Lieut. Benham, is at present on duty in Washington Territory.

Gen. Benham was born in Connecticut. He entered the military Academy at West Point, July 1, 1833 and was graduated July 1, 1837. He was immediately promoted to the rank of Brevet Second Lieutenant in the Corps of Engineers. In that rank he served as assistant engineer in the work of improvement on the Savannah River during the years 1837 and 1838. On July 7, 1838, he was promoted to the grade of First Lieutenant in the Engineer Corps, and from 1839 till 1844 he served as superintending engineer of the repairs of Fort Marion and of the sea wall at St. Augustine, Fla. In 1844 and 1845 he was engaged on the repairs of the defenses of Annapolis Harbor, and in 1845 returned to the work on the sea wall at St. Augustine, where he remained till 1846. During a part of 1845, however, he was engaged on repairs at Fort Mifflin, Penn., and at Fort McHenry, Maryland, and during parts of 1846 and 1847 he worked on the repairs of Forts Madison and Washington, Maryland. In 1847 and 1848 he fought in the war with Mexico. He was engaged in the battle of Buena Vista, Feb. 22 and 23, 1847, and on Feb. 23 was brevetted Captain for gallant and meritorious services in that battle. In 1848 and 1849 he was engaged as assistant engineer in the repairs of the defenses in the harbor of this city, and on May 24, 1848 he was promoted to the rank of Captain in the Engineer Corps. From 1849 to 1852 he acted as superintending engineer of the construction of the sea wall for the protection of Great Brewster Island, Boston Harbor. In 1852 he superintended the building of the buffalo light house, and in part of the same year and part of 1853 superintended the construction of the navy-yard of Washington.

In 1853 Capt. Benham was assistant in charge of the United States Coast Survey office at Washington, and was in Europe on duty connected therewith from March 29 to Nov. 1. He was promoted to the rank of Major in the Ninth Infantry, March 3, 1855, but declined. In 1856 and 1857 he was superintending engineer of the building of Forts Winthrop and Independence, Boston Harbor. In 1858 he superintended the survey of the site for a fort at Clark’s Point, New Bedford and the repairs of Fort Adams, Newport, R.I., in 1857 and 1858. He had charge of the building of the fort at Sandy Hook, N.J., from 1858 to 1861, and of the Potomac Aqueduct in 1860. He was a member of the special board of engineers for modifying the Sandy Hook fort in 1860, and was engineer of the Quarantine Commissioners of this port in 1859 and 1860. He served in the war of the rebellion from 1861 to 1866. He was on the staff of Brig. Gen. T.A. Morris as Engineer of the Department of the Ohio, and was present at Laurel Hill, July 6 to 11, 1861. He was brevetted Colonel for gallant conduct at the battle of Gerrick’s Ford, Virginia, July 13, 1861, and was in command of the engaged troops on that day. On Aug. 6, 1861, he became a Major in the Corps of Engineers, and on Aug. 13 was made a Brigadier General in the volunteers. He commanded his brigade at New Creek, Aug. 16, 1861 and was engaged in the action at Camifex Ferry, Sept. 10, and the pursuit of the rebel forces from Cotton Hill to Raleigh County, Va., Nov. 12 to 16.

In 1862 he was successively engaged as superintending engineer of the fortifications in Boston Harbor and as commander of the Northern District of the Department of the South, being present at Tybee Island, Georgia, during the bombardment and capture of Fort Pulaski, and at the attack on Secessionville, James Island, S.C. He was superintendent of the construction of the fortifications of Portsmouth Harbor from Sept. 8, 1862 to Feb. 28, 1863, and was in command of the engineer brigade of the Army of the Potomac from April 29 to May 5, 1863, engaged in superintending the throwing of pontoon bridges across the Rappahannock for the passage and retreat of the army at Chancellorsville. During this time he was made Lieutenant Colonel of the Corps of Engineers. He was engaged in building pontons at Franklin’s Crossing in the face of the enemy June 5, 1863, on the Potomac at Edward’s Ferry June 21, was in command of the ponton depot at Washington from July 1863 to May 1864, and was in command of the engineer brigade from June 1864 to June 15, 1865; being engaged in superintending the laying of a ponton bridge 2,200 feet long across the James River at Fort Powhatan, June 15, 1864. He constructed and commanded the defenses at City Point, Va., in October, 1864, and on March 13, 1865, was brevetted Brigadier-General for gallant services in the campaign terminating with the surrender of Lee. On the same day he was promoted to the rank of Major-General of the United States Army. He was mustered out of the volunteer service on Jan. 15, 1866.

On March 7, 1867, he was made a Colonel in the Corps of Engineers, and was engaged on works at Plymouth, Salem, Marblehead, Gloucester, and Boston. From Oct. 15, 1869, till July 30, 1877, he was engaged on work on Long Island Head. Subsequent to 1877 he was for some years in charge of Fort Montgomery, this harbor, and also the defenses of the harbor, except at the eastern entrance and on Staten Island. In October 1877, he became a member of the board for the examination of engineers for promotion. His retirement took place June 30, 1882.

The Late Gen. Benham

Arrival of His Remains--Distinguished Soldiers And Citizens Meet Them--Interment At Congressional Cemetery

The remains of the late Gen. Benham, who died in New York city on the 1st instant, aged 71 years were brought here this morning, arriving at the Baltimore and Potomac depot at 6:05 o'clock accompanied by Capt. Egbert and Lieut. Benham, son of the deceased. The funeral services took place in New York a few days after his death and Rev. E. Everett Hale, in the course of his remarks, paid an eloquent tribute to his memory. The remains were in a heavy oak case, on which was the flag of the engineer corps, and also one of the flags used by the engineer brigade of the Army of the Potomac, which Gen. Benham commanded during the war, as also some floral ornaments. The remains were received by Mr. E.M. Boteler, the undertaker and rested in the baggage room till 9 1/2 o'clock. At that hour Generals Newton, Meigs, Wright, McComb, Colonel Wilson and Admiral Rogers, who acted as pall-bearers. Gen. Robinson, Col. Casey, Col. Hains, Capt. Adams, Capt. Hoxie, Capt. Greene, Maj. G.A. Armes assembled with several citizens, who knew Gen. Benham when he had charge of the Washington aqueduct, and when he commanded the engineer camp near the Navy Yard during the war. Rev. J.W. Clark, of St. James' Episcopal church, was present, and about 10 o'clock the cortege was formed and the remains were taken to the Congressional cemetery, where the interment was made, Rev. Mr. Clark officiating.

Killed by a Fall from a Street Car
Mr. Allen R. Benner, a clerk in the Ordnance Bureau, who was severely injured by a fall from a street car at the corner of 7th street and Pennsylvania avenue about two weeks since, as stated in the STAR at the time, died yesterday afternoon at his residence on 14th street. He leaves a wife and three children.

Didn't Die of the Injuries
Dr. J.F. Hartigan, under instructions of Coroner Patterson, made a post mortem examination yesterday in the case of Allen R. Benner, deceased, late a clerk in the Ordnance Bureau, who was injured a few weeks ago by a fall from a street car, at the corner of 7th street and Pennsylvania avenue, and ascertained that his death was caused by acute inflammation of the lungs and not by injuries received by the fall, as was supposed.

Benner, Anna C.
Benner. On the morning of September 27th, 1878, Anna C. Benner, widow of the late Henry C. Benner, aged 64 years. Relatives and friends of the family are respectfully invited to attend her funeral on Monday, the 30th instant, at 10:30 a.m., from the residence of her son-in-law, 1417 Eighth street northwest.

Benner, F. Spencer
Benner. On Wednesday, September 29, Spencer, eldest son of the late Alain R. and E.H. Benner, aged 16 years. Funeral from his residence, No. 1402 H street, at 3 o'clock today. The friends of the family are respectfully invited to attend.

The Evening Star, September 27, 1875
Serious Accident
A young man by the name of Spencer Benner, an employee of the Navy Yard, had a fit on the front platform of car No. 46, of the Washington and Georgetown line, at 2:45 o'clock this afternoon, near the corner of 11th street and Pennsylvania avenue, and fell off, the wheel passing over his right arm and mangling it in a dreadful manner. He was carried to Bishop's drug store where Dr. Hartigan rendered the necessary medical aid.

Benner, Henry C.
Benner. Suddenly on the 25th inst., Henry C. Benner, aged 53 years.

Benner. On the 17th instant after a short Illness, Harry T. son of Harry C. and Ann Benner, aged 18 years. The friends of the family are respectfully invited to attend his funeral tomorrow (Sunday) the 19th instant at 3 o'clock p.m. from the residence of his parents, 2d street east and Pennsylvania ave.

Benner, Louis C.
Benner. On the evening of April 22, 1878, Louis C. Benner, in the 29th year of his age. Friends of the family are respectfully invited to attend the funeral at 4 o'clock p.m. on Thursday, 25th instant, from the residence of his brother-in-law, 1418 Eighth street n.w.

The Evening Star, April 23, 1878
Killed by a Railroad Train
The express train which left the Baltimore and Ohio depot at half-past seven o'clock last evening was near Ivy City ten minutes afterwards, where the cow catcher struck a white man walking on the track, and so badly injured him about the head that he died about 9:25 o'clock last evening, after he had been brought to this city. The deceased appeared to be about 26 years of age, light complexioned, with reddish moustache, the other portions of the face being cleanly shaved; was 5 feet 10 inches in height, and wore a black slouch hat, dark coat, white linen collar, black silk scarf, heavy white yarn socks, and a pair of army shoes. There were no marks on the body, and no papers were found which would serve to identify him. He was evidently a laboring man, carrying home a supper for his family. He had a white willow covered basket, which contained a shin bone ready cracked, a small package of green tea, some suet, one ginger cake wrapped in brown paper, and three pickles enclosed in a piece of white paper, on which was written in lead pencil "Mrs. Bennett." The body was today identified as that of Lewis C. Brenner, a plate printer by trade, born and raised on Capitol Hill, and who being out of work has for some time been living in Bladensburg with his brother-in-law, to whose place he was on his way at the time. The coroner viewed the body this morning, and is holding an inquest this afternoon. Some persons claim that as the blood found near the body of the man had coagulated he must have been killed before the 7:30 train struck him.

_Inquest Over the Body of Louis C. Benner._

Yesterday afternoon Dr. Patterson, the coroner, held an inquest at the seventh precinct station on the body of Louis C. Benner, who was killed on the track of the B&O R.R., near Ivy City, on the night previous. The testimony of Mortimer Taylor, conductor; Curtis Elliott, engineer; W.J. Crockett, dispatcher; S.E. LaBarrer, the fireman, and P.J. Coliflower, a passenger, was taken, and the jury rendered a verdict that deceased came to his death by reason of injuries of the head received near Ivy Station, by the 7:30 p.m. outgoing train, drawn by engine No. 412 of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, and from the evidence adduced, they see no reason to censure the employees of said company.

Funeral of Fred. C. Bennett
Prominent Young Resident of Anacostia Passes Away
Frederick C. Bennett, a prominent young resident of Anacostia, died at the home of his uncle, Bernard W. Burdine, on Jefferson street, last Friday morning. About a year ago he contracted a severe lung trouble, and during the last few months his decline was very rapid.
Funeral services were held at Emmanuel Church, in Anacostia, at 10:30 o'clock this morning. Interment was in Congressional cemetery.
Mr. Bennett was born in England and came to this country when about nine years of age. He attended the Van Buren School in Anacostia, afterward entering the Eastern High School. In both institutions making a highly creditable record. He was apprenticed to the drug business with F.P. Weller on 8th street southeast and continued there for five years, meanwhile pursuing his studies at the National College of Pharmacy, where he finished his course in June, 1906, but did not receive his diploma until the following February on account of being under the age limit. At the time of his death he was employed at a pharmacy in Anacostia.
Mr. Bennett was highly esteemed for his sterling qualities. As an evidence of the appreciation of his worth Mr. Weller had printed in the Hibernian St. Patrick's day souvenir for 1902 a full-age encomium of Mr. Bennett. |

Bennett, William H.  d. 8/30/1874  24 yrs.  R91/62
Bennett. Died at his late residence, No. 495 H street southwest, Sunday, at 12 o'clock, William H. Bennett, in the 25th year of his age. Death is at all times a solemn dispensation, and stands connected with the most fearful realities of human experience; but when it comes so suddenly to one in the prime of a vigorous life and surrounded by all the conditions of temporal happiness, as in the case of the departed, its visitation is rendered peculiarly distressing and painful, and should teach us the uncertainty of life and the necessity of being constantly prepared.

The deceased, in the various relations of life, manifested in an eminent degree those gentle and amiable qualities which never fail to excite and retain the earnest regard of the good and virtuous. As a husband he was loving and devoted; as a father, patient and affectionate; as a friend, faithful and obliging, and he added the fairer graces of a fervent Christian--faith and a meek unobtrusive piety. He bore his terrible sufferings with uncomplaining fortitude, and fell asleep in the blessed hope of a glorious immortality; thus, his relatives and friends though mourning his loss, have the consoling assurance that he has passed from the trying vicissitudes of time to a state of unchanging felicity in the eternal world. May He who doth not afflict willingly the children of men, sanctify this sad bereavement to the eternal good of those affected thereby, and when life's dull vanities are over bring them to join him in the fair fields of endless beatitude. His funeral will take place at 3 o'clock p.m. Tuesday, September 1st, from the Fifth Baptist Church, Virginia avenue southwest. The friends of the family are invited to attend.

Benning, Col. William
National Intelligencer, December 14, 1831

Benning. On Tuesday morning suddenly, William Benning, Esq., aged 60 years. His funeral will take place this morning at 11 o'clock from his late residence on 7th street near the General Post Office to which his friends are invited.

William Benning

There was no "Who's Who" in Washington in its early years, so we are compelled to depend upon other sources of information with reference to some of its people and their activities. Such information is often scattered and fragmentary, even with references to some outstanding and conspicuous citizens.

Such is the case with William Benning. He was neither a lawyer, orator nor statesman; just a plain business man of large means and interests, building substantially not alone for self, but for the welfare of the city of his adoption.

Considering his large real estate, building and agricultural interests within the District of Columbia, it is strange indeed that so little is known of him; sufficient is on record however to identify him as the builder and owner of the Benning-McGuire house as well as of other buildings and enterprises.

George Simmons in the Evening Star of nearly forty years ago, writes as follows of William Benning: "Captain Benning was a man of great energy. His great force of character is indelibly impressed on this community. The Captain was a plain, matter-of-fact Englishman, who by economy and shrewdness accumulated a respectable fortune, a large one perhaps for his time. In paying off his workmen he always gave them coin, which practice may have given occurrence to the stories told about his great wealth of treasure."

He was a large landowner, but at the time of his purchase $5.00 an acre was regarded as a big price for land in this community.

The Captain was public spirited; he not only built a toll bridge across the Anacostia River, which proved a profitable investment, but he was also instrumental in developing industries in this place. He opened the public roads, to which he gave a uniform width of thirty feet. He died in 1831, and his wife survived him.

Of the "Old Benning Mansion," Mr. Simmons writes: "On the high hill to the left, in the southwest angle formed by the Sheriff and Lincoln roads, stands the historic old Benning mansion. This quaint old house which contained fourteen rooms, was built by Captain William Benning, after whom the town was named, about the year 1790. It was added to about 1830, after which the place was purchased and occupied by Mr. Levi Sheriff, a prosperous merchant of Bladensburg.

"The Benning estate contained 500 acres. Standing on the porch of the old house one cannot but commend the wisdom of Captain Benning in selecting this site for his residence, for a more charming landscape than the one presented to view is not often witnessed. You are 170 feet above the mean leve of the Anacostia. On a 170 feet above the mean level of the Anacostia. On a clear day, far-reaching views extending for miles are presented from this point. It is now a part of the Deanwood subdivision."

In the years since the establishment of the Benning house on the hills of the Anacostia, many enterprises and physical improvements have been connected with the name. Among these are the town of Benning, Benning's Bridge, Hotel Benning, Benning's Station, Benning Road, Benning Race Track, Benning High School, etc.; and in the future advance and progress of the community, doubtless many other improvements will help perpetuate the name of this worthy pioneer of the city's earliest years.

Mrs. Anne Royal was acquainted with the Bennings, and in her "Black Book" of 1828 has this kindly reference to them: "Mr. Benning is a Virginian, married to a Yankee lady, which brought him and I
William Benning was a native of Amelia County, Va., where he was born in 1771. His parents were Isaac and Lucy Benning, to whom ten children were born, six sons and four daughters.

The Bennings were agricultural people and of some means, as William, the eldest son, left home for the proposed new capital city soon after attaining his majority, and purchased a homestead of 330 acres on the Eastern Branch of the Potomac, 3 1/2 miles from the capitol building, the cornerstone of which was then about to be laid.

In 1797 the Maryland Legislature granted a charter to build a bridge over the Anacostia. The Anacostia Company was organized and a wooden toll bridge was constructed in 1805, then known as the "Upper Bridge," as another bridge at the foot of Kentucky Avenue, known as the "Lower Bridge," had been constructed the year before.

William Benning was a stockholder in the Anacostia Company and soon became the sole stockholder and owner of the "Upper Bridge," which for the past 125 years has been known as "Benning's Bridge," and which must have been a source of much revenue to William Benning and his widow who survived him nineteen years.

In 1839 the old bridge was almost destroyed by a freshet, but was repaired the following year by Mrs. Benning, who, on March 5th, 1840, published an interesting appeal or proclamation to the public in reference to the repaired bridge. On March 3rd, 1891, the second session of the 51st Congress authorized a new bridge to be built to replace the wooden Benning Bridge. It was to be 500 feet long with a roadway of 24 feet, and two footways 5 feet in width, to be made of iron and stone, to cost $60,000 and to be free. This is what is known as an iron trestle bridge, and numbered in the records of the Engineer of Bridges, District of Columbia, it was constructed in 1892.

Benning Road

William Benning was a good business man, wise, judicious and safe in his investments; and in his larger enterprises displaying not only good judgment for his personal advantage, but a keen vision for the future, which was to prove of permanent public value to the entire District and its people.

As early as 1828 William Benning petitioned the Levy Court to establish Benning Road. The Levy Court makes the following decision:

"April 5, 1828.
That the road leading from each side of the Anacostia Bridge may be made a public road.

"Referred to Messrs. Loughborough, Peter, and Threlkeld.

"Mr. Benning, the proprietor of the Bridge proposes to make the roads, 30 feet in width, at his own expense, and to deliver them over to the County in good order.

"Proposal adopted by the Committee of the Levy Court.

"Signed,

"Nathan Loughborough,
"Thomas Peter."

"Lands condemned without compensation, as no one appeared following advertisements of August 2, 1828."

The proposed road was to extend from the Bladensburg road to the District line beyond Benning's to "White Oak."

Mr. Benning may have been somewhat tardy so the extension of an important thoroughfare waits upon him:

Act of November 29, 1829, making appropriation for certain streets: "That no part of the sum hereby appropriated for East Capitol street shall be paid or advanced until the proprietors of the Upper Bridge now erecting over Anacostia Creek shall have commenced and opened a road 30 feet in width, from the said bridge to the termination of the street herein directed to be opened.” Approved November 29, 1829.

In addition to his Eastern Branch farm and the Benning's Bridge property, Mr. Benning was a large investor in real estate in Washington, owning improved real estate on E street, two or more houses on 7th street, one on Pennsylvania avenue, one on L street, etc. In 1827 he purchased at a tax sale, fifteen city lots at very low prices, that must have proven very remunerative.

The record of his transactions to 1830 shows unusual judgment and fortunate investments. This was also indicated by his banking connections.

On January 26, 1829, William Benning was elected a Director in the Bank of Washington.

Early in June, 1830, Mr. And Mrs. Benning sustained a great bereavement in the loss of their only child, their daughter Nancy. This sorrow with reflections upon his own physical condition at that time (as expressed in his will) doubtless impelled Mr. Benning to make his will, which is dated June 12, 1830. It is in his own handwriting, bold and clear, a well-written model document, showing care and a desire to protect and make provision for his wife, his aged parents, brothers and sisters and their heirs.

His days were not prolonged after making his will, for his death occurred the following year, as noted in the National Intelligencer of December 14, 1831: "On Tuesday morning (Dec. 13, 1831), suddenly, William Benning, Esq., aged 60 years. His funeral will take place this morning (Wednesday, 14th) from his late residence on 7th street, near the General Post Office, to which his friends are invited."

His relatives were in Kentucky and Missouri. Numbered among his "friends" were the leading citizens of Washington.

The funeral was from his 7th street home just above E street, and interment in Congressional Cemetery. William Benning's will was probated May 8, 1832. He makes provision for his wife as follows:

"I give and bequeath unto my beloved wife, Ann Benning, during her natural life, and in lieu of her dower, the rents, profits and full enjoyment of two brick houses, situated on 7th street and E street, in the City of Washington, and now occupied the one by Samuel Ingham, and the other by Wesley Stevenson, and being a part of my real property in said city, together with all my household furniture and plate, and I also give and bequeath unto her, one half of all the money, bank stock and personal property of which I may die possessed."

All the rest of his estate, real, personal and mixed, is left to his parents, brothers and sisters.

Mr. Benning's personnel estate was in excess of $10,000. The first and largest item was for "The Bridge" and all the property belonging to the same, $5,560.

Among the agricultural items was that of nine cows at $10.00 each, $90.00.

The inventory, of several large pages, comprised many items of household, agricultural and other articles.

Peter Lenox of the City of Washington and Thomas Peter of Georgetown, D.C., were named as Executors of the will. The widow, Ann W. Benning, survived him nineteen years: "On Sunday morning the 34d instant. (February 1850) Mrs. Ann W. Benning, age 72 years, relict of the late William Benning, Esq. The friends of the deceased and the family are respectfully invited to attend her funeral on Tuesday morning at eleven o'clock, from the residence of Charles S. Fowler, Esq., Union Row, F street northwest." -- National Intelligencer, Feb. 4, 1850.

Mrs. Benning carried deposits in three local banks; the Bank of the Metropolis, The Patrotic Bank and the Bank of Washington.

She died intestate. Her personal estate was appraised by Charles S. Fowler and Arthur W. Fletcher and amounted to $5,671.49. Moses Poor was Administrator.

Charles S. Fowler was the predecessor of Webb & Beveridge, China and Silverware, under Odd Fellows Hall on 7th street, and Moses Poor, Auctioneer, both long time neighbors and friends of the Bennings on 7th street.
When Secretary Ingham resigned in June 1831, he very soon thereafter gave up his residence at the Benning house on E street.

As Mr. Benning's death occurred a few months thereafter, it appears there was no tenant in this house the balance of the year. However, it was soon to have a notable and more permanent tenant as the following advertisement in the Intelligencer of May 6th, 1831, indicated.

"For Rent
"The three-story brick house, with nine rooms, lately occupied by Richard S. Coxe, Esq. on C street, east of the City Hall, and near to the same."

The Benning houses on E street and 7th street, from which Mrs. Benning had been a beneficiary through rentals for nineteen years, were to be sold after her death, and the proceeds distributed among the brothers and sisters of Mr. Benning. The year following the death of William Benning in 1831, a nephew, Anthony D. Benning, one of the heirs, and a clerk in the Post Office Department, began acquiring the interests of the other heirs, who were in Missouri and Kentucky, in the estate of William Benning.

In 1832 he had purchased the farm of 330 acres at Benning's, and 15 town lots that Mr. Benning had bought at a tax sale in 1827. By 1834 he had acquired other portions of the estate, including a two-thirds interest in the Benning house on E street, northwest. This much of the estate it is certain was retained by Anthony D. Benning as an investment during the long occupancy of Richard S. Coxe, as the record shows. September 4th, 1850, James C. McGuire purchased from Anthony D. Benning his two-thirds interest in Lot 18, Square 457, on the south side of E street between 6th and 7th streets, northwest.

Her Condition Serious
Hotel Housekeeper Badly Burned While Cleaning Gloves
The condition of Mrs. Catherine Benson, 55 years of age, housekeeper at the Arizona Hotel, who was taken to the Emergency Hospital yesterday afternoon suffering from burns caused by the explosion of gasoline, is today reported to be critical.

The explosion occurred while Mrs. Benson was cleaning gloves with gasoline. The fumes reached a lighted gas jet and the fluid she had in a small vessel ignited. The woman's clothes were soon ablaze.

Her cries for assistance brought one of the hotel's guests to her aid, and he succeeded in extinguishing the flames with a blanket, but not before the woman had been severely burned about her body, face and hands.

Funeral of Mrs. Benson
Services to Be Held Tomorrow for Gasoline Explosion Victim
Funeral services for Mrs. Kate E. Benson, who died Monday evening from the effects of a gasoline explosion at her home the preceding day, will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at the chapel at Lee's undertaking establishment, 332 Pennsylvania avenue northwest. They will be conducted by Rev. Dr. Donald C. MacLeod, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church. The remains will be placed in the receiving vault at Congressional cemetery awaiting interment later at Arlington. Mrs. Benson is survived by her husband, George S. Benson, and one daughter, Georgia Anna.

Mr. Benson is known for his work in this city along patriotic lines. It was he that placed in every public school in the city a framed portrait of Abraham Lincoln, "From Log Cabin to White House."

The Body of Prof. Benton Found

Yesterday, the Star published an account of the finding of the decomposing remains of a white man on the Virginia side of the river by a colored boy. Beside the body was a silver mounted cane on which was engraved the words "Prof. B.H.B., March 30, 1873." The body was about 100 years from the Falls Church road. It proved to be the remains of Prof. Benjamin Hyde Benton, a teacher of mathematics, who, as reported in The Star about two weeks ago, disappeared from his home, No. 520 11th street southeast, on the 21st inst. Fears were expressed by his family that he might have committed suicide, as he had several times stated that his dead body would be found sometime on the Virginia shore. The day before he left home a bottle of laudanum was taken from him, and that night he refused to eat his supper, stating that he had eaten all he ever would. He was suffering from some mental aberration. An inquest will be held by the Alexandria authorities.

Adolph Berger Dead

In the Pension Office for Number of Years

Adolph Berger, for many years a member of the board of review in the pension office, died at Garfield Hospital yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Mr. Berger was sixty-nine years old. He was born in Breslau, Germany and came to this country just before the civil war. He enlisted in a Louisiana regiment and became first lieutenant. He married Miss Emma C. Carlson and after the war they went to Duquoin, Ill. He came to Washington twenty-three years ago to accept a position in the pension office.

Mr. Berger is survived by a married daughter, Mrs. Flora A. Columbus of 651 Maryland avenue northeast.

Mrs. Theo Vonder Luhe, a cousin of Mrs. Columbus, reached here from Brooklyn last night.

Owing to the serious illness of Mrs. Columbus the funeral will be held from Lee's undertaking establishment, 332 Pennsylvania avenue, tomorrow at 2 o'clock, and the interment will be made in Congressional Cemetery besides the remains of his wife who died eighteen years ago. The funeral services will be in charge of Rawlins Post, No. 1, G.A.R., of which Mr. Berger was a member. He was also a member of the Union Soldiers' Alliance, the Loyal Legion and the Union Veterans' Union.

Mr. Berger was noted as a German, French and Latin scholar.

D.L. Berkeley Dead At Home In This City
In Point of Service Was Oldest Letter Carrier in the District
Funeral services for David Lampkin Berkeley, a native of the District of Columbia and the oldest letter carrier in Washington, in point of service, who died of arterial cirrhosis at his home, 1337 15th street northwest, yesterday afternoon, will be held at his late residence at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning. Rev. J. Howard Wells, pastor of Mount Vernon Place M.C. Church South, officiating. The interment will be at Congressional cemetery.

Native of Washington
Mr. Berkeley was born in this city August 19, 1844, and was sixty-six years of age. He attended the public schools of Washington and when a young man was married in this city. He was appointed a letter carrier in the District in April 12, 1871. For many years he had a responsible position in his line of work, which brought him in contact with many people high in business and official life. His long and highly satisfactory service in the city post office earned many honors that came to him in later years.

He was an active and earnest member of Mount Vernon Place M.E. Church and a life member of Naval Lodge, No. 4, F.A.A.M. That lodge will have charge of the obsequies. He was also a charter member of the Masonic Relief Association of the District of Columbia, which was in later years merged into the Masonic Mutual Life Company.

Lifelong Resident Here
Mr. Berkeley spent all of his life in Washington and was probably one of the best known postmen in the city. For a number of years he was a familiar figure to the merchants and businessmen of Pennsylvania avenue west of 9th street to 13th street.

Mr. Berkeley spent all of his life in Washington and was probably one of the best known postmen in the city. For a number of years he was a familiar figure to the merchants and businessmen of Pennsylvania avenue west of 9th street to 13th street.

Mr. Bekeley was taken seriously ill last November, but had been in failing health for the past year. However, since last summer he had made a number of attempts to resume his work at the city post office, but was compelled to return home through weakness.

His widow, Frances A. Berkeley, two daughters and three sons survive him. The pallbearers at his funeral Tuesday will be Masons and will be selected from among his late associates in the post office.

Died in Washington, D.C., while on duty at U.S.M.C. Headquarters.
A policeman is detailed at the hospital to see that Bernardo does not leave the institution should he regain consciousness.

A statement made by a physician at the hospital last night that Bernardo displayed symptoms of poison other than gas suggested to the police the possibility of murder and suicide or a suicide pact.

Cause of Death in Doubt
Not until the coroner's autopsy has been performed this afternoon will the authorities know definitely the cause of the bride's death. When the autopsy is performed, the coroner stated, a careful examination will be made to ascertain if there are any marks on the body, and to determine if death resulted from gas poisoning or other causes.

This afternoon the coroner swore a jury over the body of Mrs. Bernardo and will hold an inquest later, should developments warrant it.

Married Last Friday
Friday the Italian bricklayer and Miss Martha Keys, the latter a daughter of Robert Keys, a resident of the vicinity of Manassas, Prince William county, Va. Were married at Manassas, according to a statement of John May of 11 P street northeast, who married a cousin of Bernardo's bride, and who introduced Bernardo to Miss Keys. No marriage certificate was found in the room, but a wedding ring was found on the young woman's finger when her body was taken to the morgue last night. The husband wore a diamond ring.

The odor of escaping gas was not detected in the Cunningham house last night until after Mr. Cunningham went to the Bernardos' room with his wife and opened the door. Mrs. Cunningham displayed uneasiness about the recently married couple, because she had seen nothing of either of them during the day and had been told that a boarder in the house had heard the bride crying about 2 o'clock in the morning.

Gas Jets Found Open
Mrs. Cunningham explained that the door opening into the hallway was fastened from the inside and the key was in the lock, but her husband was able to open the door leading to the adjoining room. The gas jet on the wall bracket and two jets on the chandelier were found open.

The police were called and an examination of the room made. Coroner Nevitt also examined the premises and viewed the body of the woman.

The body of the bride was resting on the bed. Mr. Cunningham thought Bernardo was dead until he heard a groan coming from near the side of the bed on the floor. He had Bernardo carried from the room.

A small bottle containing aromatic spirits of ammonia was found in the room, but nothing was found to indicate Bernardo had taken any poison.

The police made a careful examination of the room to determine, if possible, if Bernardo and his wife had had a struggle. An overturned table in the room was the only thing that suggested a struggle of any kind, and the police are of the opinion that Bernardo, overcome by gas, got out of bed and tried to assist himself, and in doing so overturned the table.

Pawn Ticket Is Found
A pawn ticket for a gold watch was found among Bernardo's effects. It showed that he borrowed $20 on the watch about a week ago. He had another gold watch, and a woman's gold watch was also found in the room.
A note found among the effects in the room showed that a young man near Manassas probably had been in love with the young woman while she was living at her father's home.

John May was the only person found by the police who was able to throw much light on the affair. Monday night Bernardo and his wife visited the May home and spent the evening there. May's wife having been at her mother's home in Virginia. Bernardo did not seem very happy Monday night, May stated, and he thought Mrs. Bernardo did not display the happiness a bride should have displayed.

When the couple started to leave May's house Monday night, May stated, he remarked that he would see his friend at work the next day. Bernardo said he would see him if he did not die before morning, and the wife suggested that her husband should not talk that way. The police think the remark attributed to Bernardo indicated that he had given some thought to the question of death.

Jerry Bernardo Dead

Believed Now That Mystery of Double Tragedy May Never Be Solved

Efforts made by Casualty Hospital surgeons to save the life of Jerry Bernardo, who was found overcome by gas in his room at 410 K street northwest Tuesday night near the corpse of his young bride proved futile. Death claimed the patient last evening about 6:30 o'clock. It is thought the use of the pulmoter prolonged life, but Bernardo was in so serious a condition that physicians were unable to restore consciousness.

Bernardo's death, it is believed, will make it impossible for the police to solve the mystery of the tragedy. It is barely possible they think, that Bernardo wrote a letter to some friend telling of what he intended to do.

The body of Bernardo was taken last night to the undertaking establishment of the D.J. Bready Company, 1607 8th street northwest, from where the body of his wife was taken yesterday afternoon. Arrangements for the funeral of Bernardo have not been completed. Funeral services for Mrs. Bernardo were held this morning at Bristow, Va.

Death of Prof. R.C. Bernays

Musical circles in this city were shocked by the announcement that Mr. Robert C. Bernays, the violinist and leader of the orchestra at Albaugh's Opera House, died suddenly and unexpectedly at his residence Saturday night. His death was caused by congestion of the bowels. After the theater Thanksgiving night Mr Bernays complained of feeling unwell, but his illness was not thought to be serious. Friday morning Dr. E.F. King was summoned and found him suffering from an acute attack of indigestion.

Mr. Bernays was about 32 years of age and married a sister of Prof. John Philip Sousa, the director fo the Marine Band. He leaves a widow and one child (a daughter a year old). The funeral will take place from his late residence, No. 1114 M street, tomorrow morning.

Mr. Bernays came to this city from St. Louis twelve years ago. He was a well-know musician and had led the orchestram at Albaugh's ever since that theater was opened. He had long been identified with musical affairs, and was the first conductor of the Georgetown Amateur Orcestra. He was a character member of the Choral Society and the Wagner Society. His father was a well-known journalist in St. Louis, who had won his spars in Europe and who acquired a high reputation as a keen and vigorous writer after he came to this country.

Mary Elisabeth (Elsie) Sousa (Sister)

Elise, the eight child and the youngest girl, was born in Washington on December 18, 1865. Her first husband Robert Camp Bernays, a Washington conductor and Director of the Bernays School of Music. After Bernays died in 1891, she married James McKesson Bower, an officer in the U.S. Navy. She lived her later years in Grand Rapids, Michigan, and died there on March 16, 1904. She is buried in the Orangeville Cemetery in Orangeville, Illinois. Elise was the hub of the Sousa family ties, and the family seemed to drift apart after her death.

Mr. Berret Dying
The End of the Venerable Ex-Mayor Momentarily Expected
Slowly and Steadily Sinking
Sketch of the Career Now Coming to a Close
Beloved By All

Ex-Mayor James G. Berret, beyond every hope of recovery, is slowly sinking into death at his residence, No. 1535 I street northwest. For the past twenty-two hours he has been wholly unconscious and only feeble indications of pulse and respiration have shown that life was not extinct. His physician, Dr. W.W. Johnson, expressed surprise this morning to find his venerable patient still alive, having believed that he could not survive the night. Signs of the stopping of the blood's circulation were apparent in Mr. Berret's hands this afternoon, and those in attendance upon him were awaiting the inevitable end.

Mr. Berret was taken sick about two weeks ago with a derangement of the digestive system. The malady did not appear to be serious, but it was realized that his advanced age might lead to such a condition despite the most careful treatment. Finally it was seen that his entire system was gradually weakening and Saturday last it was evident that his state was dangerous. His nephew, Mr. James Berret, was summoned, and arrived Monday night. Paralysis of the tongue and the right side had then set in, but the sufferer managed to express by his eyes that he recognized his relative. There was slight improvement Tuesday night and Wednesday all hope was given up Thursday, when it was apparent he was weakening gradually. He became unconscious yesterday as stated.

His Personality

Personally Mr. Berret is one of the most attractive of men. Those who differed with him on political or civic questions loved him for his amiable and genial disposition and his kindly spirit. Tall and erect of form, muscular and active even when age had crept upon him, handsome and distinguished in appearance, he was a marked figure in every assemblage. His popularity has been confined to no class and no creed. The cultured and refined, the humble and lowly esteemed him with real affection.

From early youth Mr. Berret was a man of affairs. Born in what was then Baltimore county, Md., February 12, 1815, the extent of his education was two years attendance at a country school. His father was a farmer, and the boy became his valued aid and helper. At the age of sixteen years his father's death threw him on his own resources, and the care of the farm devolved upon him. He met the responsibility as he did those that followed with masterly ability. Ere he was twenty years old he had the reputation of being one of the best farmers in his section of Maryland, as well as one of its able citizens, because, while tilling the soil, he had studied hard. As he once said, I made my daily life my daily education always.

Young Berret took an active part in county affairs, leading all movements that had its material improvement in view, and when, in 1836, the portion of Baltimore county in which he lived was made into Carroll county he was elected without solicitation member of the state legislature. The notification of his nomination... reached him while he was at work in the field and he received his certificate of election signed by the governor when he was turning his plow horses at the end of a furrow. He served two terms in the legislature, taking prominent part in its deliberations and debates, and declined a re-election.

_Came to Washington in 1839_

Mr. Berret came to Washington in 1839, having received an appointment in the United States treasurer's office.

He showed the same ability to master responsibilities in this new field that he had exhibited hitherto, and obtained rapid reputation for superior executive capacity. He remained in the treasury until 1848, when Governor Marcy, then Secretary of War, tendered him the chief clerkship of the pension office. He held this position for only a year resigning, in spite of strong requests to the contrary, and when he retired he was presented with a silver pitcher by his fellow officials and employees as a mark of their appreciation of him as an officer, a friend and a courteous gentleman. This was the first testimonial ever presented to a government official in such a way, and the pitcher has always been one of Mr. Berret's most cherished possessions.

In 1850 he embarked in business for himself in the prosecution of claims before the several departments, and was very successful. Three years later he was appointed postmaster of Washington, a position he filled with credit for five years.

_The Know Nothing Troubles_

The know nothing agitation of the later fifties, which convulsed the country, culminated, as far as

Washington city was concerned, on June 1, 1857, when an election for mayor was in progress. A heated discussion had arisen over the question as to whether naturalized citizens should have the right to vote, the know nothings to a considerable extent being opposed to their exercise of such suffrage. Mr. Berret was one of the most pronounced opponents of this view, and in the difficulties that ensued was one of Mayor

Magruder's chief advisors.

Trouble was anticipated for several days, and before the election in question the press and conservative citizens did all in their power to calm the excitement. Arrangements had been secretly made, however, for the importation of notorious toughs from Baltimore, known as plug ugels and a band of them reached here on an early train, others following later. At the voting precinct in the fourth ward an attack was made on a naturalized voter, at 9:30 a.m. and an effort made to drive all such voters from the polls. In the fight that followed Richard Owens, commissioner of the ward, was badly shot in the arm and wounded in the head;

Justice Goddard, Justice Donn, F.A. Klopfer and George D. Spencer were bruised by stones, and Chief of Police Baggott and Officers Degges and Berckhead were more or less severely wounded and driven away.

The result was that naturalized voters were demoralized and retired from the polls. An hour later the plug ugles appeared in the second ward and fired pistols.

_The Marines Called Out_

Mayor Magruder called on the Secretary of the Navy for assistance, and 110 marines, under Major Tyler and Captain Maddox, were placed at the mayor's disposal. When it became known that the marines had been ordered out a number of young men secured a six-pounder brass swivel gun and hauled it to the Northern

Liberty market house, situated on 7th street where Mount Vernon Square is now located. A very large crowd had gathered, and when the mayor ordered the polling place opened the know nothings declared voting should not take place. The mayor endeavored to calm the crowd, but his words only inflamed it more. Then an order was given to capture the swivel gun, and a body of marines, under Major Tyler, advanced to do so.

The men in charge of the cannon abandoned it and retired, but the crowd hurled volleys of stones and fired several shots at the marines. The latter were then ordered to fire, and did so. The crowd thereafter took flight in all directions.

There were killed in the riot Archibald Dalrymple, a brakeman on the Washington branch of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad; D.H. Alston, a constable, who was formerly a member of the grocery firm of Rawlings &

Co.; Ramy Neal, a colored waiter; a colored man named Redding of Georgetown, a youth sixteen years old named Christian Lindig and an infant. A large number of persons were wounded, some very badly.

The plug ugles made their way back to Baltimore as hastily as possible. In order to insure further safety of citizens a strong body of flying artillery from Fort McHenry was ordered to Washington and got here the evening of election day.

_Elected Mayor of Washington_

The active part Mr. Berret had taken in supporting the side of free suffrage to all legal voters led to his being chosen to be the candidate of the anti-know nothing party in 1858, and he was elected, receiving 3,688 to 3,117 cast for his opponent, Richard Wallach, ex-marshal of the District of Columbia, who was the union candidate. The campaign was a lively one, and not devoid of bitterness, but both candidates did all in their power to prevent this.

In 1860 the contest was waged over again, Messrs. Berret and Wallach being opponents, while William B. Magruder ran as an independent candidate. He received 147 votes; Mr. Berret, 3,434, and Mr. Wallach, 3,410. The latter gave notice that he would contest the election of Mr. Berret on the ground of fraud, but never did so. By a peculiar turn of events Mr. Wallach did become mayor. In 1861, when the civil war broke out, Congress enacted a law requiring all officers of the government, national, state and municipal, to take the oath of allegiance to the United States. Mr. Berret by reason of his position as mayor was president of the board of police commissioners of Washington and Georgetown. When the oath was tendered to the members of the board Mr. Berret declined to take it. He said that while he was a state's right man, he was also a strong Union man, and further declared that there was no necessity for his taking the oath when he had already subscribed to it when inaugurated as mayor.

Arrested and Made Prisoner of War
This position was not satisfactory to the government and accordingly on August 24, 1861. Mayor Berret was arrested by a provost marshal's guard and taken to Fort Lafayette, N.Y. His residence in this city was searched, but no evidence of his complicity or sympathy with the rebellion was discovered.

During the brief period of his imprisonment Washington's municipal affairs became complicated. Both branches of the city council were convened in special session to perform the duties of mayor, but it being necessary that there should be a mayor to execute the corporation's laws, the two boards on August 28, 1861, elected Richard Wallach to serve as mayor until the regular mayor's return. James M. Carlisle, then corporation attorney, resigned his place on account of this action, and Joseph H. Bradley succeeded him. Early in September Mayor Berret was released from prison. On the 14th of September he resigned the mayoralty and two days later returned to Washington. His resignation did not reach here until September 23, and then the question arose as to whether the city had a mayor. Mr. Bradley, as corporation attorney, decided that Mr. Wallach was mayor according to law, as Mr. Berret had resigned, and hence had no claim to the office. Notwithstanding this opinion, the city council, in order to make assurance doubly sure, on October 17, 1861, elected Mr. Wallach mayor to fill out Mayhor Berret's unexpired term.

Accepted Inevitable
It was generally understood then and is now known to be a fact that Mayor Berret was released from arrest after he had agreed to resign his office and take the oath, it being regarded as absolutely essential to have a man at the head of city affairs in the nation's capital during that critical period about whose absolute loyalty no doubt had been or could be entertained. With his characteristic philosophy Mr. Berret accepted the alternative, and after returning to Washington showed much zeal in movements for the betterment of local institutions where sick and wounded soldiers were cared for, and in other ways illustrated that his proclivities were largely for the Union. He became a close friend of President Lincoln and was tendered by him the commissionership of emancipation for the District of Columbia, but declined the offer. He was also on terms of intimacy with President Grant, and in 1873 was nominated by the latter to be a member of the board of police commissioners of the District and was unanimously confirmed by the Senate.

When the movement to change the form of government of the District was begun and gained strength and importance Mr. Berret was one of its most vigorous opponents and joined with the late Messrs. Geo. W. Riggs, W.W. Corcoran and other influential and wealthy men in protests against the reform. He also was identified with the same parties in an attempt to secure an injunction to prevent the board of public works to carry out the scheme of city improvement, which, directed by Alexander R. Shepherd, resulted in Washington becoming the most beautiful of cities that it is today. Mr. Berret lived to regret this action on his part; and in his later years there was no citizen more thankful that the attempts referred to were fruitless.

Significant Testimony
He gave significant testimony to this upon the occasion of the memorable banquet to Governor Shepherd, tendered him by the citizens of Washington at the Arlington Hotel November 21, 1895. Mr. Berret was the presiding officer of the evening and in his opening address spoke in part as follows:

As one of the oldest inhabitants of Washington and having had associations for many years with its public affairs, I recall vividly the history of the times in which our honored guest was an active participant. He came into power first as the chief of the board of public works under the administration of that highly honorable citizen, Governor Henry D. Cook. The plan that our guest inaugurated, if carried out to its logical end, will render this capital what the nation has the right to expect of it, the rival of any capital city of the old world.
When I remind you gentlemen that these things were accomplished under circumstances most extraordinary, and which would have had the effect of causing a man of ordinary courage to have quailed in the presence of obstacles, which, I regret to say, in the end could not be wholly overcome, notwithstanding the prestige of that extraordinary soldier who at the time was at the head of this government as its President, and who I know considered it a high privilege to stand by and sustain the efforts of our guest in his administration of the affairs of the city. Yet such was the potency of opposition led by men of high character and distinguished eminence of this community that the prestige of the President's great name failed to give him that support to which his services entitled him, and the result was a voluntary exile on the part of him who contributed so to make Washington what it now is.

Time Brings Rewards

Gentlemen, time brings its rewards as well as its punishments. Seven years after our honored guest left this city to find employment in a neighboring state he returned to Washington unheralded, but not unknown. A meeting of the citizens was called in one of the public halls to meet him. I went there and I found a representative class of gentlemen such as I have never witnessed in my long life at any public meeting. The object of their gathering was to testify to their appreciation of the valuable services which had been rendered to this community by Alexander R. Shepherd. The result of this meeting was an ovation coupled with a tender of freedom of this city to our honored guest, and such an ovation has never in my judgment been accorded to any other man in private life in this country.

Now, I did not agree with the change in our form of government, but I have lived long enough to see its wisdom, but Congress only went half far enough. The next move they should make should be in the direction of building up this beautiful capital and making it what its illustrious designers intended it to be. One thing to be done should be to relieve it of all personal taxation, the effect of which should be to bring upon us a population desirable from every point of view. After this is accomplished I would go one step further. As I grow older I feel that I grow a little more progressive in my ideas and in this spirit I would relieve the people of this city and of this District of all taxation. (Laughter.) I should do it for the great reason that such action would vindicate a great principle for which our fathers of the revolution fought, and that is no taxation without representation. I now call on my friend, the ex-governor of the District of Columbia.

An Active Citizen

While Mr. Berret had led a life of comparative retirement from political and business affairs since the war he was active in all enterprise of local importance, and in almost every celebration he was a member of the committee having the arrangements in charge. He was prominent in the preparations for President Buchanan's inauguration, and, being mayor of the city when President Lincoln was first inducted into office, took active part in the preliminaries for that event. He was chairman of the committee of fifty citizens selected by the democratic national committee to take charge of the inauguration of President Cleveland in 1885 and again in 1893 was chairman of the general committee.

Up to the time of his severe illness Mr. Berret took a keen interest in affairs, national and local, political and social. Nearly every night he would come over from his I street residence to the Arlington Hotel, and, seated in the midst of a congenial coterie would discuss the present and exchange reminiscences of the past. Col. Berret's cabinet meeting, as some one once termed the group, was entirely democratic and all were welcome to enter and share the conversation.

Death of Ex-Mayor Berret

Funeral Services Wednesday at St. Matthew's Church

The Commissioners of the District Adopt Resolutions of Regret and Respect

Ex-Mayor James G. Berret died at his residence, No. 1535 I street, northwest, at 7:30 o'clock yesterday morning. He had been unconscious for forty-eight hours previously, and the passing from life to death was scarcely perceptible to the devoted watchers at his bedside. The venerable gentleman had made a gallant struggle against the inevitable, and that he held out so long after all hope of his recovery had faded was surprising. When the end came there were present his two nieces, Mrs. James George and Miss Lillie Berret, George and Miss Eleanor W. Berret, and his grandnephew, Mr. James Berret George. Two nephews, the only other living relatives, Messrs. Joseph W. Berret and James G. Berret, jr., arrived from their homes in Carroll county, Maryland, today.

Numbers of persons who had known and loved Mr. Berret called at the residence yesterday and today to offer their condolences and services, and many of his near friends were given the opportunity to take a farewell look at his familiar features. The body was laid out upon a bier in the room in which death came, the large middle chamber of the suite on the second floor. The hands were folded naturally over his bosom and the face was remarkably lifelike. But for the pallor of death, he looked as though he might be resting in peaceful sleep.

The funeral will take place Wednesday morning. Low mass will be celebrated at St. Matthew's Church at 11 o'clock by Rev. Father Bart. The music will be limited to the organ, at which Miss Jennie Glennan will preside. Interment, which will be private, will be made in the Congressional cemetery. It is the wish of the family that flowers be omitted. The pallbearers will be announced tomorrow and will comprise leading citizens of Washington and Maryland.

District Commissioners Act
The following order was issued today by the District Commissioners upon receipt of the news of the death of Mr. Berret:

"That the Commissioners learn with sorrow of the decease of the Honorable James G. Berret, one of the most esteemed and distinguished citizens of the District of Columbia and formerly mayor of the city of Washington, who expired in this city at 11 o'clock on the morning of the 14th instant.

"That, as a mark of respect to his memory, the flags on the District buildings be placed at half-mast until after Wednesday next, the day of the funeral."

Special Mark of Respect
Mr. John Joy Edson, chairman of the committee which had in charge the recent inaugural ceremonies, has issued a notice concerning Colonel Berret's death to each member of the committee, as follows:

"Learning of the death of Mr. James G. Berret, a member of this committee, which occurred at his residence yesterday morning, I have deemed it proper, as a special mark of the respect in which he was held by members of the inaugural committee, to request you to be present at his funeral Wednesday morning, April 17, at 11 o'clock at St. Matthew's Church, on Rhode Island avenue between 17th street and Connecticut avenue."

Expression From District Officials
Speaking of the decease of Col. Berret, Mr. Henry B.F. Macfarland, president of the board of District Commissioners, said:

"Col. Berret's death will leave a large place in the life of the District of Columbia vacant. He was not only public-spirited, and always ready to serve the District, but he was wise and intelligent in his service, and his memory held the precedents and traditions of half a century of civic effort. As chairman of the centennial committee I saw a great deal of Col. Berret, who took, he told me, more interest in that than in any other celebration, and learned to appreciate as never before all his fine qualities. It was delightful to see how fresh and keen his interest in the centennial celebration and his pleasure in its success were. It brought out all his strong feeling of devotion to the District's welfare. Personally he was one of the most attractive men in the District, and drew out affection as well as admiration."

Commissioner Ross also spoke of Col. Berret's death, referring to him as one of the grandest and noblest men he had ever known. He was a man, said Mr. Ross, of the highest and purest character, and one who was held in the highest esteem by every one who knew him.

Ex-Mayor Berret's Funeral
The remains of the late James G. Berret, former mayor of Washington, will be buried tomorrow privately in the family lot at Congressional cemetery by the side of Mrs. Berret, who died two years ago. Requiem mass will be celebrated by Rev. Charles M. Bart at St. Matthew's Church, Rhode Island avenue near Connecticut avenue at 11 o'clock. The pallbearers will be ex-Senator Arthur P. Gorman, John Lee Carroll, former governor of Maryland; General. John Mooer, Rear Admiral Franklin, Judge Hillyer, Alexander Porter Morse, Alexander P. Gordan-Cumming and John R. McLean.

The Evening Star, Wednesday, April 17, 1901
Mr. Berret's Funeral
Large Gathering Attest the Esteem Felt For Him
Large Attendance at St. Matthew's Church, Where the Services Were Conducted.

The deep and sincere affection in which the late James G. Berret was held by the community in which he was for so long such a prominent figure was attested in a most emphatic degree this morning by the large attendance which was present at the funeral services over his remains, held in St. Matthew's Church. It would be difficult to choose an assemblage in Washington more thoroughly representative of its residents, and each person in it came to pay, not a perfunctory mark of respect, but a sorrowful last tribute to the man who was so dear to them all in life. The gathering comprised all classes. Business and professional men, those in humble vocations, persons of leisure and social leaders, were there, the young as well as the old, and few vacant pews were left when the ceremonies began.

District Commissioner Macfarland represented the local government, and nearly every member of the inaugural committee, including Chairman Edson, Vice Chairman Roessle and Secretary Dingman, were in attendance. The venerable Mrs. Magruder, widow of former Mayor Magruder; ex-Mayor Matthew G. Emery, John W. Thompson, John F. Coyle, Judge Johnston, James W. Orme, S.H. Kauffmann, A.A. Wilson, Dr. Daniel B. Clarke, John W. Boteler, James L. Norris, E. Southard Parker, S.W. Woodward, Michael I. Weller, Louis D. Wine, E. Francis Riggs, W. Cranch McIntyre, Charles W. Pettit, G.G.C. Simms, Charles W. Cunningham, J.V.N. Huyek, Louis Kettler, J. Fred Kelley, John F. Cook, Marcellus West and Perry Carson were among the others present.

Brief services were conducted at the Berret residence, No. 1535 I street, at 10:30 o'clock, by Rev. Father Joseph Bart, which were attended by the family and the pallbearers. The casket, which was a massive one, of cast iron covered with mahogany and heavily silver mounted, and nearly seven feet long, was removed to the church, twelve body bearers being required to carry it.

Low requiem mass was celebrated by Father Bart, Miss Jennie Glennan playing solemn strains on the organ during its progress. Within the sanctuary, clad in white vestments, were Rev. Fathers Mackin, Stafford, Lee, Sterling, Foley and Clampt.

Father Bart's Tribute
At the conclusion of the mass Father Bart changed his vestments, and, approaching the casket, said that in accordance with the expressed wishes of the deceased there would be no funeral oration. "The city of Washington," he continued, "mourns the death of its foremost citizen, and this assemblage testifies how his loss is mourned, and is a fitting tribute and testimony of his upright and noble character. He was loved by all. His life was long and honorable, and he needs no exaggerated panegyric of his public and private virtues. He was the soul of honor. He exemplified in himself truth and justice and virtue and duty, and was a noble Christian gentleman. He has left to his family the precious heritage of the knowledge that his character was as honorable as it was noble." In conclusion Father Bart asked that all should join their prayers with those of the church in their dead friend's behalf that eternal peace and rest be granted him.

At the end of the services the body was removed to Congressional cemetery for interment, accompanied by the family and the pallbearers, who were ex-Senator Arthur P. Gorman, ex-Gov. John Lee Carroll of Maryland, Alexander Porter Morse, Mr. Gordon Cumming, Gen. Moore, Rear Admiral Franklin, Judge Hillyer and Mr. Hinckley.

Presentation to Col. Berret

Col. Berret, in some exceedingly appropriate and handsomely conceived remarks, took leave of the clerks, alluding to the pleasant character of their intercourse, and concluded by expressing his hearty wishes for their future prosperity.

Mr. Lambert Tree, in behalf of the employees of the office, then handed to Col. Berret a letter, signed by all the clerks, presenting him with a handsome service of plate of some $1,000 value; each piece of which bore the following inscription:

"Presented to Col. James G. Berret by the clerks and others connected with the City Post Office, as a token of their respect for his worth as a public officer, and of the affection for him as a man.

Washington city, D.C., March 17, 1858."

It was an appropriate testimonial to an officer who has won the regard and respect of the community by his efficient performance of his official duties and the many improvements he has instituted for the convenience of the citizens and those having business at the city post office.

At 12 o'clock today, Dr. Jones was formally installed as postmaster, and his well-known energy gives assurance that the public will continue to be as well accommodated as under Col. Berret’s administration, which is all that need be asked.

Col. James G. Berret has been appointed chief clerk in the Pension Office, vice Dr. George W. Crump deceased.

A little over two months after the beginning of the presidency of Franklin Pierce -- namely, on the 27th of May, 1853 -- Mr. Bradley was removed as a Whig, and Colonel James G. Berret, a Democrat, succeeded him.

Mr. Berret was born February 12, 1815, in Baltimore County, Maryland. He had the advantage of only two years' education in the county schools. His father was a farmer, and the boy's services being needed on the farm, he soon became a valuable assistant. At sixteen, his father dying, he was thrown on his own resources; but he had pluck and manliness in him, and after lots of hard work and study, before he reached the age of twenty, he had become one of the best farmers in the county. He took an active interest also in public business, and when that part of the county in which he lived was created Carroll County, he was elected, though only twenty-one years of age, a member of the State legislature. In this capacity he served two terms, and then declined a re-election. He came to Washington City in 1839, having received an appointment as clerk in the officer of the Treasurer of the United States, and remained in that position until 1848, when he accepted the position of chief clerk of the Pension Bureau. This post he resigned in the following year, and went into business as a prosecutor of government claims, in which he was very successful. Three years afterwards he was made postmaster. In the Know-nothing election troubles in Washington in 1857, he was the chief adviser of the mayor, Dr. Wm. B. Magruder. In 1858 he was elected mayor of Washington, and in 1860 was a candidate for reelection against Richard Wallach, when he was again triumphant. In 1861, while still mayor, he refused to take the oath of allegiance to the United States, and was consequently arrested on the 24th of August, 1861, as a Southern sympathizer or supporter, by order of the Secretary of War, and taken a prisoner to Fort Lafayette, N.Y. In September, 1861, on resigning the mayorality, he was released, and a few days later he returned to Washington, to find that during his confinement his late competitor before the people, Mr. Wallach, had been elected by the City councils to fill the office. Colonel Berret, as he was now generally called, bore these troubles and humiliations philosophically, and remained a citizen of Washington, and was supposed to be loyal to the government. He afterwards became a personal friend of both Lincoln and Grant, the latter appointing him commissioner of police in 1873.

Colonel Berret was a man of strong convictions, and of very high character. He was always an active citizen, and a lovable and popular man; and when he died, on the 14th of April, 1901, he was sincerely mourned by the whole population of the great city he had helped to build up and beautify. In person, Colonel Berret was tall and graceful. In his younger days he was quite handsome, and even in his extreme old age he was a very noticeable, dignified, and attractive gentleman. In religion he was a Roman Catholic.

As postmaster, Colonel Berret made no innovations. He retained most of the men who had been in office under his predecessors, and as a consequence, the business of the post-office was attended to promptly and efficiently. Mr. Lambert Tree again became the chief clerk of the office, or assistant postmaster -- a position which he continued to fill under many of Colonel Berret's successors, and nearly up to the day of his death. The post-office was continued in the old location on Seventh Street during the greater part of Colonel Berret's incumbency. In 1857, however, it was transferred to the first floor rooms in the F Street front of the extension of the Post-Office Department building, which part of the structure had then been completed. When that removal was effected the old Seventh Street buildings were torn down, and the extension was finished shortly afterwards on that side also. The emoluments of the postmaster remained about the same, though the business of the office had greatly increased. In the last year of Colonel Berret's administration the gross receipts were about $83,000.

It was during Colonel Berret's term that the old system of optional prepayment of postage was discontinued, and compulsory prepayment established. This was required by the act of Congress of March 3, 1855. The registration of letters, also, was begun under this same law.

Failure of Bodily Strength Noted in Past Few Days

Mrs. Berret, wife of Col. James G. Berret, who has been an invalid for the last three years, is now seriously ill. Her ailment is a failing of bodily strength without any special disease. She has been blind for a long time, but until very lately has been able to sit up and converse cheerfully. The present change occurred during the last few days, and her advanced age makes her recovery rather doubtful.

Mrs. Berret was born in Annapolis on November 28, 1820, and was the only child of John W. Bordley, a prominent lawyer of that time. In 1840 she was married to Col. Berret and came to this city, where they have since resided, although Col. Berret maintains a legal residence in Carroll County, Md.

In youth, as well as in middle life, Mrs. Berret was endowed with every charm of person and of mind, and during the years her husband was major and postmaster of this city she was one of its most popular and best beloved hostesses. She was strongly attached to old St. Matthew’s Church, corner of 15th and H streets, of which she was a most devoted member, and her connection with the parish, which until lately was active in every detail of general interest, has covered a period of fifty years.

Charles E. Berry Dies

Founded Jewelry Firm Of Berry & Whitmore

Native of Virginia Active in Organization Life of Capital

Charles E. Berry, one-time president of Berry & Whitmore jeweler and prominent Washington clubman, died at his home last night after a long illness at the age of 72. He made his home at the Falkstone Courts Apartments, Fourteenth and Fairmont streets N.W.

Born in Virginia, Mr. Berry came to Washington as a child and lived here until his death. He began his career with Galt & Bros., later going into business for himself.

He founded the firm of Berry & Whitmore, which long remained one of the city's leading retail jewelry houses. The firm was located at Eleventh and F streets N.W. The company discontinued business about 10 years ago.

Mr. Berry was a charter member of Temple-NoYES Lodge, No. 32 of Masons. He was also a member at various times of the following organizations: Rotary Club, Blue Ridge Rod and Gun Club, Board of Trade, Racquet Club, Jewelers' Club (Philadelphia), Machinery Club (New York), Wellwood Club, Columbia Golf and Country Club and the Anglers' Club of Maryland.

Mr. Berry married Edna Parmenter of Vermont. They had five children, all of whom survive him. They are Henry Berry, Charleston, W. Va.; George and Charles Berry of Washington, Mrs. Hudson Grunewald, Silver Spring, Md. and Mrs. Edward Murphy of Pittsburg, Pa. Mrs. Berry also is living.

Funeral arrangements are not yet completed.

Charles E. Berry, Sr., Funeral Services Scheduled Today

Jewelry Company Founder Had Been Ill For Long Time

Charles E. Berry, sr. 72, founder and president of the now extinct jewelry firm of Berry & Whitmore, was to be buried today in Congressional Cemetery after services at the S.H. Hines funeral home, 2901 Fourteenth street N.W., at 2:30 p.m.

Mr. Berry died Thursday night at his home, the Falkstone Court Apartments, Fourteenth and Fairmont streets N.W., after a long illness. He had been confined to his bed for almost a year.

He was born in Washington March 13, 1867, and, when not traveling spent his entire life here. Mr. Berry was active in many clubs and organizations both here and in New York City.
Mr. Berry entered the firm of Galt & Bros., jewelers, when he was 17 years old and learned the jewelry business while associated with that firm. Shortly afterwards he entered business for himself and went into the partnership of Berry & Whitmore.

The firm, which was located at Eleventh and F streets N.W., was one of the city's leading retail jewelry stores for many years and a landmark in the business district until 197, when it went out of business.

A 32d-degree Mason, Mr. Berry was a charter member of Temple-Noyes Lodge, No. 32. He was also a member at various times of the following organizations: Rotary Club, Blue Ridge Rod and Gun Club, Board of Trade, Racquet Club, Jewelers' Club (Philadelphia), Machinery Club (New York), Wellwood Club, Columbia Golf and Country Club and the Anglers' Club of Maryland.

Mr. Berry married Edna Parmenteer of Vermont who survives. Also surviving are five children. Two sons are in business in Washington now. They are George, manager of the Mayfair Laundry, and Charles, manager of Washington Linen Service. Another son Henry P., is an engineer with the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. at Charleston, W. Va.

His two daughters are Mrs. Hudson Grunewald, Silver Spring, Md., and Mrs. Edward Murphy of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Mrs. Fannie Devlin Berry
Aged Lady Dies on Capitol Hill -- Tragic Story Recalled
Mrs. Fannie Devlin Berry died, after two weeks illness of heart trouble at her residence, corner of 6th and A streets southeast, yesterday morning, and her remains were taken to Zurhorst's undertaking establishment, where the funeral services will be held. Her death recalls the tragic murder by her two brothers, John and James Devlin, of her husband, Thomas Berry, about fifty years ago at the Devlin family residence, No. 215 Pennsylvania avenue southeast. On account of Berry having a wife living at the time of his marriage with their sister there was ill feeling between him and the brothers, and one day when he visited the house a fight ensued, during which Berry was stabbed to death by the brothers, who were tried and convicted of manslaughter, the elder one, John, being sent to the insane asylum, and the other, James, to the District penitentiary. Both were subsequently pardoned and have long since died.

Her father was Lieut. John Devlin of the United States Marine Corps and her mother a daughter of Sergeant Major Pulizzi of the Marine Corps, and the family owned valuable property in this city, particularly on Capitol Hill, all of which came into possession of deceased as the last survivor. Since her husband's death she had led a very secluded life and busied herself only with the care and rental of her property, the revenues from which she looked after with a care bordering on eccentricity, and never appeared on the street except with a fat satchel on her rent-collecting tours. It is thought her holdings in real estate, cash and valuables are very extensive. She never associated with neighbors or acquaintances, but kept her financial business not only well in hand, but in her own hands. Her only fad as far as known, was the gathering of antique jewelry, pictures and silverware. During her last illness she recognized the approach of death and requested to be buried in the same grave with her husband and child in the Congressional cemetery. She was about eighty years old, and if she has made no will her next of kin are her cousins, George King, Mrs. Mary King McManus and Ambrose Sevier Lynch of New York, Venerando Pulizzi and the children of Martin P. King, deceased, of this city.

Death of Mrs. Berry
Dressmaker Succumbs to Burns Incurred October 26 Last
Mrs. Mary Berry, a dressmaker, who resided at No. 10 11th street northeast, and who has been a patient at Providence Hospital since October 26 last, when she was burned by the explosion of gasoline at her home, died Saturday night.
A lady occupying a room in Mrs. Berry's home was cleaning a garment with gasoline, and asked Mrs. Berry to pour out for her a little more of the fluid, the quantity she had obtained being exhausted. Mrs. Berry did so, not knowing that close by, but out of sight, was a gas jet in the range in full burning. The explosion threw the burning stuff over her. Her granddaughter, Miss Ada Berry, was slightly burned in trying to save her grandmother, but no one else was injured.

Mrs. Berry was taken to Providence Hospital, and in time it became necessary to transplant skin in the burned places. Her son, James H. Berry, an electrician on the Olympia, now at Colon, came home to offer his person in the effort to save his mother's life, and returned to his post several weeks ago.

Mrs. Berry grew weaker slowly, and Saturday evening, the 26th, she died as stated. The funeral will be held tomorrow from Grace Baptist Church, of which she was one of the first members. One son, F.J. Berry, resides in Georgia, and a daughter, Mrs. Jesse Mullen, lives in New York city.

Mrs. Berry was a lovable woman, with a host of friends, and the news of her death will come to them as a shock, though it had been feared from the first. During her absence in the hospital, her niece, Mrs. Leutze, has taken care of her business and kept the house, but her death will break up a happy home.

We mentioned in our last the illness of the two Senators from Connecticut. The first thing we heard yesterday was that one of them, the Hon. Thaddeus Betts, was no more. The other Senator, Hon. Perry Smith, who has been ill, has sufficiently recovered to be able to attend, in part at least, to his duties in the Senate, and yesterday announced in that body the decease of his colleague.

When the annunciation of the death of Mr. Betts was made by a message from the Senate to the House of Representatives, Mr. Osborne, one of the Representatives from Connecticut, rose and delivered a brief but very appropriate eulogy on the character of his departed friend.

No business, of course, was done in either House yesterday, nor will there, we presume be any done today, in consequence of the Funeral of Mr. Betts, which is to take place from the Capitol at half past 12 o'clock.

The Funeral of the Hon. Thaddeus Betts, late a Senator of the United States from the State of Connecticut, took place yesterday from the Capitol, under the direction of a Committee of Arrangements consisting of Senators Davis, Crittenden, Henderson, Linn, and Pierce. The Pall bearers were Senators Clay, of Kentucky, Clayton, Dixon, Lumpkin, Preston, and Roane.

The Senator and Representatives from Connecticut attended as Mourners, followed by the two Houses, attended by their officers, and by the President of the United States (Van Buren), Heads of Departments, etc.—the Chaplains to Congress officiating on the occasion.

<td>Chancellor Bibb, who recently died in Georgetown at the advanced age of eighty-five, was an extraordinary man. He bore a wonderful likeness in person to Chief Justice Marshall, and was a man of the same class and the same physical conformation. To the last he wore long black silk stockings, knee buckles, and white cravat and ruffles, and long queue. But, what is more remarkable, he never lost his passion for his violin, and would take it now and then to his study for amusement. His habits of life presented a model of moderation.</td>

About noon today E.R. Bigelow, a drug clerk, formerly employed at Walsh's drugstore, 4th and L streets southeast, was discovered at his residence, 118 D street northwest suffering from the effects of an overdose of morphine. When discovered the man was unconscious, and after being treated by Dr. Harmon was removed in that state to the Emergency Hospital. Bigelow, who is about thirty years of age and has a wife and three children, who are said to be residing temporarily in the country, near Hyattsville, is stated to have been in a hospital for a few weeks, and it is supposed that he took the morphine to quiet his nerves.

Fatal Accident, Navy Yard

Yesterday about 11 o'clock, a sad accident occurred in the machinist's department, whereby a workman named Edward Biggs lost his life. He was engaged in oiling the gearing of the machinery, standing on a ladder, and a portion of his clothing catching on the shaft, he was drawn rapidly around it several times, each time some portion of his body striking a beam. The machinery was stopped as soon as possible, when it was found that he had been horribly mangled, both legs broken, as also one arm, beside having his body bruised and his head fractured in several places. He was immediately taken to the dispensary of the yard where Assistant Surgeon O'Bannon amputated the right leg above the knee, and he was removed to his residence on 11th street east, where he died about 12 o'clock last night, retaining his senses until within an hour of his death. The deceased was about 38 years of age, and was a plasterer by trade. He had been at work in the machine shop but about 3 weeks. He leaves a family of a wife and four children, who were entirely dependent upon him for support.

Fall On Stairs Is Fatal
Miss Billing, Long in Government Service, Succumbs
Miss Margaret M. Billing, seventy years old, who was employed as a clerk to the lighthouse board, Department of Commerce and Labor, died last night as a result of injuries received by falling on the back stairway at the residence of Dr. Harry A. Ong, 1768 Columbia road.

The accident occurred about 8 o'clock. Coroner Nevitt was summoned and found her unconscious. Death occurred in about twenty minutes.

Miss Billing, who had been in the government service more than forty years, was a native of this city. She resided with her sister, Mrs. Amelia Potter, at 230 Rhode Island avenue northwest. Mrs. Potter is a patient in a local hospital and meanwhile Miss Billing was visiting Mrs. Ong, Dr. Ong's mother.

The Billing family has lived in Washington for many years. Miss Billing's father, W.W. Billing, being an employee of the Treasury Department in the early days. He was always a prominent worker in the Methodist Church, and with Enoch White, grandfather of Washington Topham of this city, was a founder of the Methodist church on 9th street just north of E street. This congregation later built the Rhode Island Avenue Methodist Protestant Church, at 1st and Rhode Island avenue northwest.

Funeral arrangements will not be completed until a niece of Miss Billing returns to the city this evening. It is probable, however, that the funeral will take place Monday from the Rhode Island Avenue Methodist Protestant Church of which Miss Billing long had been a member.

Death of a Nurse
On Saturday last, Miss Rose M. Billing, daughter of Mrs. R.K. Billing, died at the Naval School Hospital at Annapolis, of typhus fever, and yesterday the remains were brought to this city for interment. Miss Billing had devoted her entire energies since the breaking out of the rebellion in ministering to the wants of the sick and wounded soldiers; and when the hospital was established at the Patent Office she was engaged as one of the nurses, and was serving as such at the time of her death at Annapolis, to which place she was transferred on the discontinuance of the Patent Office Hospital.

Masonic Funeral
The remains of the late W.W. Billing were followed to the grave in Congress Burial ground yesterday afternoon by a numerous procession of the ancient brotherhood, preceded by the German band playing a solemn dirge. A great number of citizens also attended the funeral services in the Protestant Methodist Church.

Billing -- Grand Master, 1835-37
Colonel Billing, as he was universally known, was born in the District of Columbia in August 1801, and received an excellent education in the local private schools. His parents were English and came to this country just a short while before his birth.

He was an unusually resourceful man, and while engaged in a good private business was a Common Councilman in 1833, and at one time Collector of Taxes of the District. He afterwards accepted a clerkship in the Paymaster-General’s office, War Department, which position he held at the time of his death. He resided most of his life at the corner of Fourteenth and L Streets, N.W., in a home destroyed by fire in the early forties.

He was one of the original members of the congregation of the Tabernacle Church, Twelfth near H Street, N.W., now the Rhode Island Avenue Methodist Protestant Church.

He is described as a man of most kindly disposition, was hospitable and generous, and at the same time thrifty and acquired considerable property. He was public-spirited and very popular with all with whom he came in contact. In the language of his daughter Miss Margaret M. Billing, he was a Christian gentleman. For years he was Colonel of the District Militia, which represented the only military organization in the District at that time.

Bro. Billing came into office when the anti-Masonic movement was at its height, and throughout the three years of his incumbency was called upon to meet more unusual and trying conditions than perhaps have ever fallen on the lot of a Grand Master in this jurisdiction.

He was a fair example, however, of the truism that the times make the man, and, rising superior to the most disheartening obstacles, maintained the integrity of the Grand Lodge, and by the force of his executive ability brought some degree of order out of the chaos into which the Fraternity had fallen.

At the very beginning of his term of office the trouble the Fraternity had been for some years having to retain their hold upon the building at the corner of John Marshall Place and Indiana Avenue culminated, and only through the efforts of Grand Master Billing were the various lodges interested enabled to maintain a quasi ownership therein for a few more years. By the arrangement then entered into the leasehold remained in Bro.
Billing's name for a number of years, as is fully set out in the chapter on Meeting Places, and is only mentioned in this connection as an evidence of the high place the then Grand Master held in the estimation of his brethren.

Bro. Billing was initiated in New Jerusalem Lodge, No. 9, October 16, 1826; passed November 20, 1826; raised November 28, 1826; was Secretary, 1827-28; Junior Warden, 1829; Senior Warden, 1830-31; Master, 1832-35, 37-38, and Treasurer, 1839-43.

He served as Grand Secretary for the year 1833, and Grand Master for the three terms indicated above.

Although during this period Masonry was under a cloud, public demonstrations, after the custom of the time, were, indeed, more frequent than at the present, and perhaps the most notable of these at which Bro. Billing officiated as Grand Master was the laying of the cornerstone of Jackson City, across the river, January 11, 1836, which event was made the occasion of considerable pomp and ceremony, and was participated in by M.W. Andrew Jackson, P.G.M., of the State of Tennessee and President of the United States, who actively assisted Grand Master Billing in the work.

The Evening Star, September 5, 1898
Aged Resident Dead
Edward Binnix Succumbs to a Stroke of Paralysis
Edward Binnix, long a resident of this city and widely known, died suddenly Saturday evening at his residence, 940 G street southwest, from the effects of a stroke of paralysis received the previous Sunday.

During his long residence in Washington Mr. Binnix has been widely known as a plastering contractor, having superintended the plastering of the Capitol more than forty years ago, and later, being in charge of the same work at the State, War and Navy Department building, the United States pension office and the new Congressional Library.

Probably no resident of South Washington had a more extended acquaintance in that section or more friends to mourn his sudden taking off. He leaves a widow and six children, four sons and two daughters. The deceased was one of the first to offer his services to his country when the call was made by President Lincoln for volunteers, and while stationed at Long bridge guarding the entrance to the city he contracted rheumatism, which ultimately developed into paralysis, which ended his life.

Samuel Binnix Dead
Samuel Binnix, or "John Star," as he was known in Washington for many years, died yesterday morning at 56 West Saratoga street, Baltimore, of a hemorrhage of the lungs, with which he was first attacked Friday morning. He was sixty-seven years old. The body will be brought to this city and funeral services will be held at Lee's undertaking establishment Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The interment will be at Congressional cemetery.

Mr. Binnix was unmarried, and his brother, Thomas Binnix, a resident of this city, survives him.

The Evening Star, October 20, 1897

Engineer Bird's Suicide

Is Driven by Domestic Troubles to End His Own Life

William George Bird's dead body was discovered last night suspended by the neck from the top of a side gate on the premises where he had his home. He had during the day told some of his friends that he expected to make a trip to the Klondike gold fields; to others he had said he contemplated suicide. These and similar declarations he had often made theretofore, and those of his relatives and neighbors to whom they were repeated yesterday paid them no heed.

But he kept his word, so far as the taking of his own life was concerned. When the body was found, life had evidently been extinct several hours.

The Cause Assigned

Domestic unhappiness is the cause assigned for the act by the unfortunate man in the following letter, which was found on him:

"I at present know exactly what I am doing. Everything in this house must be turned over to Mr. Boyd, to be sold for the benefit of my children. May my most bitter curse rest on their mother and her lover, Jim Jackson. I intended to kill him and her, but I don't want that sin on my soul. God will forgive me for what I will do, for I have been driven to it by a bad woman, and may a dying man's curse cling to her through life. Give this to the jury, and I hope they will see that my wife and her lover will never benefit by what I leave. I am perfectly sober and in the house by myself while I am writing this. Good-bye all.

William George Bird"

When Sergeant Daley and Policeman Vermillion had made an investigation of the premises and found the letter, they had the body sent to the morgue. Bird lived with his wife and several children at No. 704 G street southwest.

Many years ago Bird resided in Alexandria, where he studied medicine, but before finishing his medical education he took to engineering, and had worked at this trade ever since. About twenty years ago he took a second wife, and whatever the relations which may have existed between the two during the early days of their married life, they certainly have not bee of the happiest during recent months. The green-eyed monster took complete possession of the old man and he blamed James Jackson for all his trouble. Jackson had been employed on the steamer Seufferle as engineer during the past summer, and Mrs. Bird was frequently a passenger on the steamer during trips to Buerna Vista. Occasionally the husband accompanied her, and on these occasions he never failed to show his contempt for the engineer.

The alleged intimacy between Jackson and Mrs. Bird caused more trouble of mind than the woman's husband had ever before experienced, it is alleged, and her trip on the steamer only added to it. So much was he disturbed that he was unable to give proper attention to his work, and the result was that about two months ago he lost his situation as engineer at a place on the river front.

Indulged in Strong Drink

Recently he has been a patron of several drinking places in South Washington, and his jealous feeling, stimulated with bad liquor, is said, put him in a frame of mind calculated to cause the commission of almost any crime. Thoughts of murder and suicide took possession of him, and his threats that he intended to end his life were frequent, while the letter written just before he put the noose about his own neck showed that he had contemplated a double murder first. Early yesterday evening he called on his neighbor, Mr. Hurdle, and requested the loan of a revolver. But Mr. Hurdle refused the loan, and Bird returned to his humble home, talked of Klondike and other places, and kissed his children an affectionate farewell. To his eldest daughter, Mrs. Brown, he made the request that she return to the house last night, as there might be something there for her to see.

It is stated that Bird had had some trouble with his wife yesterday morning, and she left the house. He thereupon packed her clothes in a bundle and left them where she could get them. It was not until late last night or this morning that she became aware of her husband's suicide.
Jackson's Denial

"Jim" Jackson, mentioned in the letter, is a young man of good address, who, as already stated, has been engineer on the Buena Vista boat during the past summer. He was seen by a Star reporter this morning, and while he admitted that friendly relations existed between Mrs. Bird and himself, he denied that there had been anything of an improper nature about them. They had been acquainted for a long time, but were friends only. On one occasion, he said, he happened to be at the house when the husband came home. The latter showed his hostile feelings without any reservation. Since then, he says, Mrs. Bird has been on the boat a number of times and her husband had also enjoyed trips to Buena Vista. Bird, he says, had been drinking for a couple of months, and a number of times he had forced his wife to leave the house, and each time he bundled up her wearing apparel and threw the bundle after her.

Friends of Mrs. Bird say that there was no foundation for the husband's jealousy.

Coroner Carr viewed the body and gave a certificate of death, concluding that an inquest was unnecessary.

_Mrs. Emily Birmingham Dies of Asphyxiation_
Mrs. Emily Birmingham, eighty years old, 19 H street was found dead in her room yesterday afternoon, having been accidentally asphyxiated by illuminating gas. She had been dead several hours when the police entered her room.
Policemen Wheeler and Newton of the sixth precinct forced an entrance to the room, other occupants of the premises having become alarmed because they had not seen her since Wednesday night and because the odor of gas had been detected.
Coroner Nevitt found that a defective rubber tube caused the gas to escape. He gave a certificate of accidental death, and H.L. Birmingham, son of the deceased, of 123 C street southwest, has made funeral arrangements.
At various times the past several years Coroner Nevitt has called attention to the necessity of inspecting gas fixtures, especially in hotels and rooming houses, not so much on account of defecting rubber tubes, but because of defective fixtures.
Many deaths from gas would have been prevented, the coroner stated, had there been an inspection of gas fixtures in public houses. He has arranged to bring the question before the proper authorities in the near future, and it also is probable that civic bodies will discuss the question. |

* Died at a Police Station House

A well-known paper hanger, named Charles Bishop, died of congestion of the brain, superinduced by an over-indulgence in intoxicating liquors, at the Central guard-house last night at about 11 o'clock. He came to the station yesterday afternoon, complaining of feeling unwell, and asked that he might be allowed to lie down there, which request was granted, and he went to the lodgers' room. About 8 o'clock it was found that he was ill, and Officer McCathran, the station-keeper, sent for Dr. McBlair, who promptly responded, and by using stimulants caused him to rally. In about an hour a relapse took place and he continued to sink until about 11 p.m., when death ensued. Before his death he appeared perfectly conscious, and spoke kindly to the officers, telling them that he was going to heaven, as he never did any harm. The deceased was a native of this city, and in early life was conspicuous in our volunteer military affairs being one of the best drill officers in this section of the country. He was orderly sergeant of Company A, National Guards. His brother took charge of his remains.

Funerals

The funeral of Charles W. Black took place yesterday from his residence on N street south between 4-1/2 and 6th streets and was attended by Columbia Lodge No. 10, I.O.O.F. and a large number of employees at the U.S. Coast Survey Office in which office deceased was formerly employed. Rev. J.N. Davis officiated at the house and the funeral services of the order were read at the grave by Chaplain C.C. Collison. The remains were placed in a vault at the Congressional Cemetery.

The National Intelligencer, March 29, 1852

Capt. B. has been a resident not only in our community, but in Philadelphia, Savannah, New York, and Connecticut, and extensively known as a commander of steamboats on several important lines. A paroxysm of grief, caused by the loss of an only son within a year past, brought on the illness that has terminated a life of much active usefulness and of the kindliest nature. He died as he lived, a good man, at the last moment pronouncing his blessings on his wife and daughters, and his hopeful supplication to Divine Grace to receive his departing spirit.

His funeral will take place, without further notice, from the National hotel, at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

See the on-line "Biographical Directory of the U.S. Congress"

The Pennsylvania Muster Rolls record Henry Black as a private, York County Militia; corporal Cumberland County Militia; and captain, Bedford County Militia. He was a Member of Congress from Somerset, Pa. This patriot passed away November 28, 1841, but evidently was reinterred in Congressional Cemetery June, 1842. There is no Revolutionary marker.

The National Intelligencer, Tuesday, April 4, 1848

Mr. Sims rose and said: Mr. Speaker, it is with no ordinary emotions that I now rise to announce to the House that Death, whose presence has so oft and so recently called us to mourn during the progress of this session of Congress, has again demanded a victim of our number. James Augustus Black, a Representative from the State of South Carolina, is no more. He expired in this city on yesterday night, at twenty-five minutes after eleven o'clock, amidst the delegation of his State, with his family around him without a murmur, and without a groan.

In a most extraordinary degree, through a protracted illness of seventeen days, he preserved his composure of mind, his consciousness, and constancy of purpose. At no moment did he complain. Though conscious, day by day and hour by hour, that death pursued him, and, at the final struggle, that dissolution was inevitable, he quailed not and murmured not; and at the hour that I have indicated he breathed out his soul as composedly as the infant sinks into the softest slumber. Such were the last scenes in the life of my friend and colleague.

Mr. Speaker: Under any circumstances death is a solemn occurrence; but there are concomitants that render its approach less afflicting, because more expected and appropriate than in other circumstances. When the soldier dies on the battle-field he falls beneath the law of the occasion and propriety. When old age sinks to rest human destiny has been appropriately fulfilled, and man finds his end at the proper period. It is natural and appropriate, and fills us with a pleasing melancholy rather than with poignant grief, because, like the falling of the autumnal leaf, the creature perishes beneath the decree of his Creator in the proper season. But when, in the midst of life unexpectedly, in the midst of years and acts of usefulness, one is cut down; when there is no premonitory event or circumstances to announce the destroyer's approach; when he comes upon us thus unexpectedly, the visitation is always felt with more peculiar force and regret.

Such was the fall of my friend. But a few days ago he was among us, in life and health, in the constant and assiduous performance of his duties here as a Representative. One day, thus engaged with his accustomed usefulness and ability; the next, his friends find him stricken down by the violence of disease, which, from the first, announced with a certainty which all the untiring efforts of his skilful professional attendants could not avert, that the victim was marked, and that not a ray of hope could cheer a friend or inquirer who sought to know the progress and ultimate result of his disease. His friends, his immediate family at a distance, though stricken down so unexpectedly, there were two circumstances of benevolence in the providence of God; the one, to which I have already referred, of preserving his intellect unclouded to the last, and the other of protracting his sweet resignation and patience, and his existence, until, from the distant South, his wife and child and affectionate brother were enabled to minister the last consolations of affection and tenderness around his dying bed.

There are many incidents in the life of my friend that at the proper time it would be pleasant and proper to dwell upon. I come not now to gather from the acts of usefulness with which his life, from earliest manhood, to its close, was filled, to bind up flowers with which to deck his grave. Now is not the time to adorn his open grave, waiting for the reception of his lifeless form, and naught but the tears of affection and the weeping regrets of friends are the becoming garniture of its desolation.

I stop not, therefore, to announce that in early manhood, at the age of eighteen, impelled by that patriotism which animated him to the last, he stepped forward in 1812 to join the army of his country. He entered the service as a lieutenant, and at the close of the war, resigning the commission of captain, which at that time he held, he retired to private life. After that, he was constantly engaged in useful employments until, some few years since, he was called from the sphere of usefulness in other walks of life to take a seat upon this floor as a Representative from the Pinckney district in South Carolina. How he performed his duties here; how he has illustrated in the most eminent manner the true character of a representative; how he has shown respect to the opinions of his constituents, and discharged his duty by keeping them constantly informed by communications of the progress and state of public business here; how he has ever responded to the impulses of patriotism, which had grown into fixed principles of action in him, throughout his whole public career here, all who now hear me will hear cheerful testimony. He loved the people; not with a demagogue's love, but with a soul-stirring, divine impulse, springing from that fundamental maxim of his creed, that all men are brothers, and all men are equal, and that the people are capable of self-government. These were the fixed principles of his life; and his whole public career was but a practical embodiment and illustration of these principles.

My friend was not regularly educated; but with a strong natural intellect, with a power of reflection and observation seldom equaled, passing a busy and eventful life he had supplied, in all the essential elements, the want of education in the amount of information that he had amassed, and those treasures from personal observation that he had collected.

One or two more remarks and I have done. There are those who believe that the success of a public man in popular elections is no evidence either of virtue in the constituent, or of influence or aptitude for the appointment in the representative. This is a great mistake. One who, without other circumstances than mere merit, can fasten and retain the public confidence, has a charm of excellence about him, an undefinable fascination of character and qualifications, which, although acquaintances, individually may not discover it, yet constitutes a kind of divine and political electricity which, without explanation, works its mighty power in this universe of election and popular right, and under the appointment of God, and by the common sense of the people, carried ..... system of the Government. My friend possessed this power. No man living ever had more of ... one saw why. Other men were superior to him in attainments, superior to him in accomplishments, superior to him in wealth, seemingly superior to him in every advantage that would have a tendency to bind man to man, and bestow political or social influence; yet not a man breathed in this Congress, or elsewhere within the whole circle of his acquaintances, who had the power in a greater degree than the deceased to bind as with hooks of steel to him, but all who knew him or called him friend. Among his immediate constituency his position was peculiar and ... The great Senator of New York, without wealth, of position, to bind him to his people; nothing but his principle of devotion to truth and to popular right that attached them to him.

Blagden. Died, in this City, on Sunday night last Mrs. Anne Blagden, relict of the late George Blagden. Seldom has death borne from our midst a more lovely and estimable prize. As a wife and mother she was all that could be desired in one sustaining those interesting relations. Her native sweetness of disposition, and uniform kindness and benevolence of soul, peculiarly endeared her to all who were favored with her acquaintance. Her unobtrusive, yet firm, enlightened, and decided piety, however, was her highest praise. Of her it may be said, with as much certainty as of any other individual, that she was truly a follower of the meek and benevolent Savior. The principles of his religion governed her in life, and its consolations supported her in death, making her transit from this world to a better, peaceful and happy. "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord." Her funeral will take place from her late residence at 10 o'clock this morning.

The National Intelligencer, June 5, 1826
An afflicting dispensation has deprived the community of Washington of one of its oldest and most respectable inhabitants. A fatal accident has robbed his family and friends of the life and example of that estimable and useful citizen, George Blagden. About 6 o'clock on Saturday evening (3rd), he was standing beneath a bank of earth some six feet high, at the south West corner of the Capitol, inspecting a part of the old foundation which the digging had uncovered, when the bank caved in as he was going from it, and fell upon him, he falling on his face before it. His head was not covered, and he was soon dug out, and carried home, apparently not severely hurt, sensible, and directing himself how he should be placed. After arriving at his house, half a mile from the scene of the disaster, he was able to sit up in his bed and assist those about him in changing his clothing, but, in one short hour he was a corpse!

Thus has terminated the life of one of the best of citizens, parents, and friends. He was a native of Attercliffe, Yorkshire, in England, but was one of the first settlers in Washington, having been here from the laying of its foundation stone. At the time of his death, and for many years previous, he was Superintendent of the masons employed on the Capitol, an Alderman of the City, and a Director of the Bank of Washington. In every relation he ever held to society, and particularly in his religious connection (as the founder of Rev. Mr. Post's church) he was esteemed and respected. The whole city mourns his sudden death.

Will of George Blagden of City of Washington, D.C. (dtd. Mar. 2, 1815, probated June 10, 1826)
To wife Anne Blagden, all money, lots, houses, stock and property either here or in England with only one exception of $100 for my worthy man and friend George who shall also be free in one year; wife may wish assistance in settlement from friends Elias B. Caldwell and John McGowan.
Wits.: John Kennedy; William McGowan.

I.T. Frary, "They Built the Capitol," Garrett & Massie, Richmond, 1940, pp. 161-162

One of the few men who saw long service on the Capitol, and kept out of politics and the jealousies that involved so many, was George Blagden. Like Hoban, he worked on friendly terms with all the warring factions of architects and commissioners from 1794, shortly after his arrival in this country, until 1826. On June 3rd of that year he, as did Lentahl, met his death by accident when a bank of earth at the south angle of the Capitol caved in upon him.

Blagden held the position of superintendent of stonework and quarrying. He was a skilled mechanic, with an old world training, and possessed the confidence of all the officials with whom he was associated, his advice being sought on many occasions. During his long stay in Washington he managed to accumulate a comfortable fortune.

The Evening Star, Sunday, May 27, 1917
Rambler Writes of Life and Work of George Blagden

A man cannot dip into the early records of Washington without frequently coming upon the name of George Blagden, and the Rambler means to tell some of the facts relating to this man which have come to his notice. The record will be far from complete, but without doubt many of the links in the record which the Rambler has not found will be supplied in time. Last winter in writing of some of the old Barry homes on southeast New Jersey avenue, near the Eastern branch, the Rambler said:

If you will stop at the crossing of K street and New Jersey avenue south you will see a whitewashed high board fence on the east, and within are a number of sheds, stables and a low brick building. Through a gateway in that fence wagons with detachable iron bodies come and go with a jar and rattle familiar to the people of the city. They are the garbage wagons and that is their home. In 1844 some of the lots in the square between New Jersey avenue, 3d street and K and L streets southeast were owned by Thomas Law's heirs, Richard Barry, S.B. Beach, William M. Ellis, J.C. Fitzpatrick and Thomas Blagden, who at that time lived in the square bounded by New Jersey avenue, 2d, I and K streets southeast, the square on which now stand the sheds and low brick building, surrounded by the whitewashed high board fence.

The earliest directory of Washington was that published by Judah Delano in 1822 and which was printed by William Duncan, who had a printing shop on 12th street between E and F streets northwest, though Delano himself also conducted a printing shop on the south side of F street, the second door west of 6th street northwest. In that directory is this: "George Blagden, chief stone cutter at the Capitol; dwelling, east side of New Jersey avenue, between I and K streets south." Thus it appears that the home of Thomas Blagden on New Jersey avenue had been the home of his father, George Blagden.

In addition to being "chief stone cutter at the Capitol," George Blagden was a man conspicuous in many lines of business in Washington and prominent in the charities of his time. At the time of publication of Delano's directory George Blagden was one of the directors of the Bank of Washington, which then had its office on the east side of New Jersey avenue between B and C streets south, the site no covered by the House office building. Blagden's fellow directors at that time were George Calvert, Francis Tolson, John C. Herbert, Robert D. Sewall, Thomas Tingeey, Samuel N. Smallwood, Samuel Miller, Frederick May, John Davidson, Andrew Way, jr., and Edward Cutbush. Samuel H. Smith was the president and William A. Bradley the cashier.

George Blagden's operations in real estate in Washington extend from 1794 to 1828, the year of his death, and all the deeds to which he was a party have passed under the Rambler's eye. He was a member of the first board of school trustees in Washington. In December, 1804, the subscribers to the fund "for schools for pay pupils and the children of the poor" named as trustees Thomas Munroe, Gabriel Duvall, Thomas Tingeey, Robert Brent, Samuel H. Smith, and William Cranch. In the following July the city councils named these as trustees: Thomas Jefferson, John Tayloe, Nicholas King, John Dempsie, Joseph Bromley, vice James Barry, declined; George Blagden and William Brent,. This was a distinguished list of names, embracing the most prominent men of early Washington, including the President of the United States, and serves to fix in the Rambler's mind the standing of George Blagden at that time.

George Blagden was also one of the promoters and big stockholders in the Great Bridge Company, which built the first Long bridge, in 1808. The list of directors consisted of Daniel Carroll of Duddington, who was also the president; "George Blagden, Frederick May, Robert Young and William Harper. That bit of information is to be found in Bryan's History of Washington, and he had it from the manuscript minute book of the bridge company, now the property of Col. Frederick May. Allen C. Clark, in his work, "Greenleaf and Law in the Federal City," makes an occasional reference to George Blagden. The files of the National Intelligencer show that on June 3, 1808, Mayor Robert Brent called a meeting of citizens at Steele's Hotel for the 21st to consider the expedience of a plan to encourage domestic manufactures. Robert Brent was the chairman and John Law the secretary. Samuel H. Smith, editor of the National Intelligencer, offered a series of resolutions, in part declaring that "It is the duty of all sections of the Union to encourage the establishment and extension of domestic manufactures; that the city of Washington for various reasons is eminently fitted for attaining manufacturing importance, and that a plan should be reported to a subsequent meeting."
George Blagden, Samuel H. Smith, Cornelius Coningham, N. Cutting, Buller Cocke and Robert Brent were appointed a committee to form an association. At an adjourned meeting this committee submitted articles of association for the Columbia Manufacturing Company. Chairman Brent appointed nine commissioners to receive subscriptions for stock. The commissioners for Washington were George Blagden, William Cranch and William Brent. The company erected a cotton mill in South Washington and elected the following directors: Robert Brent, president; Nicholas King, Michael Nourse, William Cranch, Charles Jones, Samuel H. Smith, John P. Van Ness, George Blagden, Thomas Munroe and Huddleston.

The earliest reference which the Rambler has found to George Blagden in the records of Washington is a deed dated May 2, 1794, under which George Blagden bought from David Burns lots 2 and 3 and square 406 for 100 pounds, current money of Maryland. That square is bounded by E, F, 8th and 9th streets northwest. Lot 1 is the northwest corner of 8th and E, and lots 2 and 3 adjoin on the west, facing on E street. In that deed Blagden is described as "of Prince George's county, Md." In 1798 Blagden traded one of those lots for the lot at the corner of 8th and E, then owned by Francis Deakins of Montgomery county.

Blagden is a Scotch name, and as George Blagden was the chief stone cutter of the Capitol, the Rambler's theory is that he came from Scotland to work on that building, and later on the Rambler will show how efforts were made by Thomas Jefferson, George Washington and the commissioners of the federal city -- Thomas Johnson, David Stuart and Daniel Carroll -- to obtain European stone cutters and other foreign artisans, especially Germans, Scotchmen and Frenchmen, for work on the public buildings of Washington. The first record of George Blagden's connection with the Capitol is of the date of June 26, 1795. It is in a letter in the office of public buildings and grounds addressed by the then commissioners of the city, Gustavus Scott and William Thornton, to Edmund Randolph, Secretary of State. It is a statement of the discovery of bad work in the foundation of the Capitol, and the following is the closing paragraph:

We have not doubted but that this matter will be exaggerated, therefore we have thought it proper to state the thing as it really is. The Contractors are all discharged and a better set will, we expect, be engaged in a few days and it is our determination to have a person employed to attend constantly at the walls so as to see every course of stone or brick as it is laid on. Mr. Hoban and Mr. Blagden have been three days engaged in examining the whole of the walls and they report that by taking down about one foot of the walls suggested and laying large bond stone the walls will be perfectly secure and sufficient and upon the North Wing the stone setters will begin work next week to lay the free stone.

Thomas Jefferson, in a letter to the commissioners, wrote from Philadelphia, March 8, 1793, in relation to the construction of the Capitol:

The President thinks it of prime importance to press the providing as great quantities of brick, stone, lime, plank, timber, etc., this year as possible. Do you not think it would be expedient to take measures for importing a number of German and Highlanders? This need not be to such extent as to prevent the employment of eastern laborers, which is eligible for particular reasons. If you approve of the importation of Germans and have a good channel for it you will use it of course. If you have no channel I can help you to one.

From Georgetown, on June 2, 1792, the commissioners wrote to Mr. Jefferson:

The introduction of Mechanicks from Europe being thought by the friends of this city so advisable a measure, we have again taken up that subject. To hold out additional motives for Emigration we shall endeavor to concert a plan with some of the Scots Merchants to bring over some stone-cutters and others from that country. We request you also to fall on measures to procure about 100 Germans single men and as many of them stone cutters, masons and bricklayers as can be readily had.

Mr. Jefferson, on June 3, 1792, wrote aback that he thought he could do no better with respect to the German Emigrants than to address the enclosed letter to Messieurs Van Staphorts and Hubbard of Amsterdam leaving it to yourselves to point out the number and descriptions of Persons you want and to open a correspondence with them yourselves directly on the subject.

In Chauncey Ford's "Writings of Washington" may be found a letter from President Washington, dated Philadelphia, December 18, 1792, addressed to the commissioners, and treating of the subject of foreign workmen. A portion of it follows:

Last Updated: 02/11/15
Your letter to the Secretary of State dated, if I recollect rightly, the 5th instant intimating among other things that you failed in an attempt which had been made to import workmen from Scotland, equally with that of obtaining them from Holland, fills me with real concern, for I am very apprehensive that if your next campaign in the Federal City is not pressed with vigor it will cast such a cloud over this business and will so arm the enemies of the measure as to enable them to give it (if not its death blow) a wound from which it will not easily recover. No means therefore in my opinion should be left unessay'd to facilitate the operations of next year. Everything in a manner, depends upon the celerity with which the public buildings are then carried on--Sale of Lots--private buildings--good or evil report--all, all will be regulated thereby. Nothing therefore short of the absolute want of money ought to retard the work.

The more I consider the subject the more I am convinced of the expediency of importing a number of workmen from Europe to be employed in the Federal City. * * * It is not however my wish that the idea of importing workmen should be confined solely to Germany--I think it ought to be extended to other places, particularly Scotland, from whence many good and useful mechanics may undoubtedly be had.

On the 4th of January, 1793, the commissioners of the federal city dispatched to France a Mr. Fenwick to secure workmen for the public buildings. He went with a special address to the municipality of Bordeaux. This action was probably taken because Mr. Hallette, the architect of the Capitol at that time, and with Dr. William Thornton, author of the design of the building, was a Frenchman. Stephen Hallette came to the United States from France just before the American revolution and established himself as an architect in Philadelphia. He became the architect of the Capitol in 1792, and continued in that capacity until 1794, when he was succeeded by James Hoban, who, as surveyor of the public works of the federal city, had been connected with the construction of the Capitol.

Hoban was a native of Ireland who settled in Charleston, S.C., just after the revolution and his principal work in Washington was in designing and constructing the White House. At the laying of the southeast corner stone of the Capitol on September 18, 1793, Colin Williamson is named as the master mason. His name with others is inscribed on a silver plate that was deposited in the corner stone. Williamson was the master mason in June, 1794, for at that time there seems to have been some trouble with the masons employed on the Capitol, as on that date the commissioners sent a letter to Williamson, saying:

We desire you to inform the Masons who sent in a Memorial to us respecting the work at the Capitol that while we are happy at all times to receive any information from those engaged in the Public Service and their terms of work, we can never countenance any riotous or disorderly conduct. We are well informed that there are several of those who are at work at the Capitol who have issued threats against Mr. Hoban and Dermott Roe and that the latter has been for his own safety compelled to take out warrants against them.

It is clear that George Blagden was a prominent mason in the Capital in the following years.

At the city hall there is a power of attorney, January 19, 1806, to George Blagden from Archibald Swinton. It dictates that "Archibald Swinton, mason, in Swinton, County Berwick, Scotland, brother German of deceased William Swinton, mason, of the city of Washington, appoints James Farquier, stonecutter of Philadelphia, and George Blagden, mason, of the city of Washington, attorneys to recover money due and to sell effects of the deceased."

Mr. Blagden met his death accidentally in 1826. The Rambler has searched the newspapers of that period for an account of the accident, but has not found it. On December 7, 1826, J. Edgar, commissioner of public buildings, in his report to the President on the work at the Capitol, said:

The work suffered a severe loss by the accidental death of Mr. Blagden, which happened early in the season. Possessing a high degree of science and practical knowledge of his profession, he had conducted in its most important branch the construction of the Capitol, almost from its commencement, with a precision and fidelity, which he carried late all the relations of life.

George Blagden's will was signed March 2, 1815, in the presence of John Kennedy and W. McGowan. Letters of administration were granted his widow and administratrix, Anne, June 15, 1826, her surities being Lewis H. Machen and John P. Ingle, registrar of Christ Episcopal Church, Washington parish. In his will he wrote:

I do give and bequeath to my dear wife, Anne Blagden, all and whatever it hath pleased my heavenly father to bestow upon me, consisting either of money, lots, houses, stock of any kind together with all my personal property, either here or in England, with this one exception, that my worth man and friend, George, shall be free in one year from the date of my death.
A deed is at the city hall, showing that on July 25, 1806, Blagden bought from Thomas Hurdle of the county of Washington for $150 a negro man named George, about nineteen years old. Blagden in his will made provision for the comfort of George.

The Blagden vault is in Congressional cemetery. It was bought by George Blagden, but the date of his interment is not shown. There have been placed in that vault the remains of Walter Lowery's daughters, 1834; Mrs. Eliza Ellis, 1835; William Martin's child, 1835; Timothy Winn, 1836; Thomas Blagden's child, 1840; Mrs. Caroline Taylor, 1842; children of Thomas Blagden, 1849, 1851 and 1852; child of William Gunton, 1849; Mrs. R.M. Gunton, 1853; Emily S. Blagden, 1852; Gen. John A. Rawlins, Secretary of War, September 9, 1869; Thomas Blagden, February 6, 1870; George W. Blagden, 1887; Admiral William Rodgers Taylor, 1889; Elizabeth Silliman, 1892; Mary D. Blagden, 1907, and Laura Silliman Blagden, 1903.

Some of these remains have been removed. Those of Admiral and Mrs. Taylor were taken to Newport and Elizabeth Silliman's remains were removed to Greenwood cemetery, New York. The remains of Gen. Rawlins were also removed (by Gen. Ulysses S. Grant to Arlington National Cemetery).

Funeral of Rev. Silliman Blagden
Services in tribute to the late Rev. Silliman Blagden were conducted at St. Paul's Episcopal Church yesterday afternoon. The deceased, who was sixty-one years of age and unmarried, died suddenly at the Hotel Brunswick, Boston, last Monday, his death resulting from an attack of diabetes. He was a son of the late Thomas Blagden, who lived at Argyle, on the Piney Branch road.

Mr. Thomas Blagden, brother of the deceased, accompanied the body to this city from Boston and had it conveyed to the family home. The pallbearers at the funeral services were Mr. William Stone Abert, Mr. Frank Libbey, Mr. William E. Edmonston, Mr. John Blair, Mr. Conway Robinson and Mr. Edward W. Cady. The interment was in Congressional cemetery.

Blagden, Thomas: On the 13th inst. Thomas, youngest son of Thomas and Emily H. Blagden of this city.

Blagden, Thomas: Wednesday, February 2, 1870 at Argyle in District of Columbia, Thomas Blagden in the 65th year of his age. Friends and relatives of the family are respectfully invited to attend his funeral Sunday at 3 p.m. from New York Avenue Presbyterian Church (late Dr. Gurley's). Washington papers please copy.

Death of An Old Citizen
Thomas Blagden one of the oldest and most respected citizens died at Argyle in the District this morning in the 65th year of his age. Deceased has been during his whole life one of the most prominent business men of this city. Commencing as he did early in the lumber business on what has ever since been known as Blagden's wharf at the foot of 3d street east and among other results of his prosperity is the row of magnificent residences bearing his name on Indiana avenue between 3d and 4-1/2 streets. The father of the deceased was killed by the falling of a bank at the southwest corner of the Capitol during the erection of that building on the 3d of June 1826.

Funeral of the Late Thomas Blagden
The funeral of the late Thomas Blagden took place yesterday from the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church which was crowded by the relatives and friends of the deceased. After prayer and reading appropriate passages of Scripture, Rev. Mr. Mitchell, pastor of the church and Rev. Dr. Samson spoke appropriately of the deceased. Two verses of a favorite hymn with the deceased "How firm a foundation, ye saints of the Lord" was sung, after which the cortege was formed under the direction of the undertakers Messrs. Harvey and Marr, and proceeded to the Congressional Cemetery where the remains were place in the family vault. The pallbearers were Admiral Lee, Jas. P. Tustin, Chief Justice Casey, Wm. B. Todd, Dr. May, Dr. Nichols, J. Carol Brent and T.M. Hanson. The coffin was of lead in a walnut case, covered with black broadcloth, ornamented with massive silver handles, bestudded with silver-head tacks. It was lined with quilted satin, and on the lid was a silver plate bearing a record of the name and age of the deceased.

Next to his house is a row of five houses built in 1852 by the late Thomas Blagden (No.s 310 - 318 Third street). William Baldwin, one of Almon Baldwin’s sons, already referred to, was the architect of these houses, and they were known, when originally built, as Blagden’s row. I think this name for them is still retained. Robert Toombs, of Georgia, at that time U.S. Senator, occupied one of these houses; also Chief Justice Taney, and the Minister from Peru to this country. In comparatively recent years Senator Christiancy, of Michigan, was an occupant of one of the houses.
Thomas Blagden was the son of George Blagden, who came from England and settled in this city in 1793, where the son was born in October, 1803, and he continued to have his home here until his death, February 2, 1870. Mr. Blagden's second wife is still living, also his two sons and one daughter. The widow and one of the sons have a home near the city, known as Argyle, and a portion of the original estate in that section has been improved in recent years by the construction of suburban homes. A brother of Mr. Blagden's, Rev. Geo. W. Blagden, settled in Boston early in the last century, and was at one time pastor of the Old South Church.

310-318 Indiana Avenue, NW
1852--razed 1931
Architect: William Baldwin, Washington DC

Razed in 1931 for the Municipal Building, Blagden Row was originally one of the most elegant of the many pre-Civil War row house groups in Washington. Facing the then fashionable residential area off Judiciary Square, these row houses were designed by a currently little-known local builder and architect named William Baldwin, and were commissioned as a real-estate investment by Thomas Blagden (1803-1870).

Blagden was the son of builder George Blagden, an English immigrant who settled in Washington in 1793, becoming superintendent of masons at the Capitol Building. George Blagden was killed there in 1826 when a ditch collapsed while he was inspecting construction work. Thomas Blagden operated the family flour mill on Rock Creek after his father's death, and built a substantial house on an entire square on New Jersey Avenue, SE; his country house, Argyle, was located near the present intersection of 16th and Upshur Streets, NW. Even though the row houses passed to other owners after Blagden's death, they continued to be in a desirable neighborhood until the late 1950s. Two streets were named in Blagden's honor in the late nineteenth century -- Blagden Avenue and Argyle Terrace.

When first rented, Blagden Row was occupied by a number of prominent figures, including Sen. Robert Toombs of Georgia and Chief Justice Roger Taney. Taney lived in the westernmost house, number 318 (shown in the foreground of the photo), where he died at the age of eighty-seven in October 1864. President Lincoln and his cabinet attended the funeral services there.

The five four-story row houses were united by a common cast-iron balcony at the second-floor level, and their facade was made much more interesting by the pavilion-like effect caused by the outward thrust of the central and end houses. The row was further embellished by the bracketed cornice, the unusually large windows (for the early 1850s) with molded lintels, and the beautifully channeled, smooth ashlar masonry.

Thomas Blagden Rites At Saranac, N.Y., Today
Burial Here for Member of Family Known in Washington for Many Years
Private funeral services for Thomas Blagden, pioneer Adirondack Mountain Camp operator and member of a prominent Washington family, who died Monday night at Cap Omega, his summer home, at Saranac Lake, N.Y., were to be held today at the camp, it was learned through the Associated Press. Burial is to be here.

A native of this city, Mr. Blagden would have been 85 on October 18. Part of the Blagden family estate was used to form a section of Rock Creek Park. The section lies east of Rock Creek and between what is now Park road, on the south, and Blagden avenue on the north. The Blagden family has been widely known here for many years, being prominent in social circles.

Washingtonians remember the old Blagden place in the present park area, where the Blagdens had a huge deer park surrounded by a high fence.
Mr. Blagden's survivors include five sons, Augustus S. Blagden, Ambler, Pa.; Thomas Blagden, jr.; Benjamin D.S. Blagden and Donald P. Blagden, all of New York City, and Henry Harrison Blagden, Upper Saranac, N.Y.

Blaine. In devoted remembrance of Robert Gillespie Blaine, who departed this life the 9th day of March, 1897, in the 63rd year of his age.

Robert G. Blaine to the world a patent, kindly man who went on the even tenor of his way to the end. But to those who knew him, a man of high ideals, great strength and beautiful interior life, "who moved amongst men, patient, gentle, wise," "who reverenced his conscience as his king, who spake no slander nor listened to it," and "who through all the tract of years wore the white flower of a blameless life." He is gone and his friends shall miss him long, for all who knew him are the better for it. The noisy life of the world may rush madly on, as it will, whoever passes from it, but the world is better that he lived. The world may not miss him, but his life has made it more beautiful. He was a most loving husband, a kind and indulgent father and by the sweet persuasiveness of example led his children in the way they should go. He has left them the greatest of all heritages--a name never stained with dishonor, and a memory without any vain regret. To his friends his name will ever be dear. There was no harshness in him, nothing out of harmony in his character. The sweet music of his life still lingers in our ears and, while we must needs part with him, we will always cherish his memory and associate his name with all that is elevating, pure and beautiful in man.

We offer our heartfelt sympathy to the family; heir consolation and ours is the knowledge that the stainless purity, the unswerving fidelity and the exalted rectitude of his life prepared him for the end--the sublime Christian faith and patient resignation which is the crown of all.

May he rest in peace.

Death of a Child

Physician Regarded Guilty of Inexcusable Neglect

Admits Having Deposited Body in a Garbage Can -- Believed Child Was Dead

Late yesterday afternoon the detectives succeeded in solving the mystery surrounding the case of the live white infant found in an ash can in Goat alley as published in yesterday's Star. The infant was he child of Peter and Clara Blair of 512 F street northeast, and its birth took place in the Christiani Flats at 7th and M streets northwest, where the child's mother was visiting her sister, Mrs. Ella L. Kieso. Dr. Charles E. Hagner, fifty-six years old, of 812 18th street northwest is the professional man who deposited the child in the ash can. He was arrested about 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon when he returned to look after the sick woman. He admitted he had put the baby in the can, and said he did so believing life was extinct. The child died at the Homeopathic Hospital about 9 o'clock last night. Dr. Hagner was released upon $3,000 security, Mr. Randall Webb qualifying as bondsman. Today Coroner Nevitt held an inquest in the case at the sixth police station. A verdict was rendered holding Dr. Hagner for the action of the grand jury. The verdict reads:

"That the child of Clara L. Blair came to its death March 12, 1902, at the Homeopathic Hospital, as the result of hemorrhage of the brain; that said child was born alive and lived several hours; that said hemorrhage might have been caused during the premature birth. We, the jury, believe that Dr. Charles E. Hagner, who attended at the birth of said child, was guilty of inexcusable neglect, and of neglect of such child after its birth. We are further of the opinion that Dr. Charles E. Hagner should be held for the action of the grand jury."

A number of friends of the doctor were present at the inquest, including Justice Hagner of the District Supreme Court and ex-Justice Code, Attorneys A.S. Worthington and W.G. Johnson were present as counsel.

Six representative business men served as members of the jury. Precinct Detective Evans and Sergeant Sprinkle selected them. They were William H. Chambers, liveryman at 1407 9th street northwest; Barton Ewers, furniture dealer, 1320 7th street northwest; Max M. Rich, shoe dealer, 1324 7th street northwest; William O'Donnell, retired stove merchant, 1320 New Jersey avenue northwest and William H. Spignol, grocer, 1000 7th street northwest.

Dr. Sharp's Testimony

Dr. John R. Sharp, resident physician of the Homeopathic Hospital, testified that about noon yesterday he received a newborn child at the hospital. The child was in a shoe box with its legs folded over its body. Policeman Wagner brought it to the hospital, witness said, and it was bleeding from the mouth. The child was so feeble that it was deemed best not to handle it. Witness had no hope for its recovery. Death occurred about 9 o'clock last night. He thought one leg of the child was broken about the ankle. The infant, he said, was white -- or very light. It was a baby of between seven and eight months. Witness identified the shoe box which was exhibited to the jury.

Ella Stanton, colored, 613 Goat alley, testified that she was sitting in the alley when a man came in and placed a box in a garbage can. Her sister, she said, called her attention to the man and shortly afterward she went with her mother and others and found the baby. When she saw the man he did not have the package.

"Did you see him?" she was asked.

"Yes, sir," he girl answered.

"Is he in this room?"

"Yes, sir," the witness responded; "There he is," pointing to Dr. Hagner.

Witness said she and those with her thought there was probably a pair of old shoes in the package when they went to the garbage can and found the baby. She said her mother opened he box and when she found the live baby in it she went for a policeman. Her mother opened the box to give the child air and left it in the garbage can until a young man came and took it away. Ella said she remained there until the police came.

"Did you have to fold the legs to get the child in the box?" asked a juror.

"We didn't take the child out," the witness responded.
The baby was crying when they reached the garbage can, the witness stated, and it cried all the way to the station.

Present at Child's Birth
Mrs. Ella Kieso, sister of the mother of the infant, was next examined. She told the jury she was present yesterday at the birth of the child. Witness said her mother was also there. Dr. Hagner was in attendance. The doctor was there to treat witness when her sister was taken sick, and he went to the latter's room and delivered the child. While the doctor was there, witness stated, her mother came.

"Do you know if he child was alive?" the coroner asked.

"I do not," was her response.

"Did it make a sound?"

"It did not."

Witness said she knew nothing about the disposition of the child, nor did she hear any conversation regarding it. She was in and out of the room during the time Dr. Hagner was there. While the doctor was in her room her sister, Mrs. Blair, called her to come to her. Her sister told her what was the matter with her and she called the doctor.

The witness was cross-examined at length by Mr. Gould. She thought the child was born about 11:30 o'clock. Witness did not see the baby at all. She saw the doctor when he left the house, but she did not notice that he carried a package. Dr. Hagner had never attended her sister before. Witness said there were several shoe boxes about her house, but she could not identify the one shown her as having belonged to her. Asked what became of the child, witness said she did not know. She did not take it away, nor did her mother. There were no servants employed about the house. Her sister was married in August. She had been complaining for several days. She fell on the ice about a month ago and injured her side.

Carried a Bundle
Alice Winifred, colored, 613 Goat alley, testified that between 11 and 12 o'clock yesterday she saw Dr. Hagner enter Goat alley carrying a bundle. She was returning home from the store. When the doctor left the alley he had no bundle.

"I told my sister about it," she said, "and she thought he had thrown away a pair of old shoes."

Witness explained that they went in search of the bundle and when they found it she was afraid to open it. Her mother came and said there was a baby in the box, because she heard it crying. Witness said her mother removed part of the paper and she saw the child's face. She did not pay much attention to it. It was the first time she had ever seen so small an infant and she was afraid of it. The doctor went out by way of L street, walking rapidly.

Peter Blair, father of the child, gave his address as 512 F street northwest, and said he is employed at the hydrographic office, Navy Department. He was married the 15th of August. Because of his wife's condition she had been staying at her sister's home in the Christiani flats. Witness said he did not reach the house until after 6 o'clock. When he arrived he made no inquiries concerning the disposition of the child. He said he was so worried over his wife's condition that he could not recollect just what conversations he had with those in the house.

William R. Downing, 459 Florida avenue northwest, a plumber by occupation, testified that he went to Goat alley when he heard the colored girl tell of the finding of the baby. He took the box from the garbage can and opened the package.

"Was the child alive?" the witness was asked.

"Yes, sir," he answered. "It was whining."

Witness took the child to the second precinct station, where it was seen by Dr. Roman. The child whined all the way to the station, the witness stated.

Deputy Coroner's Testimony
Deputy Coroner Glazebrook testified that the child measured seventeen inches in length and weighed exactly three pounds. The body was well formed and the extremities were normal, there being no fractures. Death was due to syncope, following a cerebral hemorrhage. The top of the head was congested. The child had unquestionably breathed. Witness said that the infant was a frail little thing, and with the best of treatment and the assistance of an incubator, it would hardly have lived. It frequently occurs, he said, that infants show no signs of life immediately after they are born.

Mrs. Sarah F. Legge, mother of Mrs. Blair, was the last witness examined. She said she was present when her daughter's child was born yesterday. She said she happened to call on her daughter a short time prior to the birth.

"The child was dead," said Mrs. Legge, "For I never heard a sound."

The doctor, she said, asked what was to be done with the body, and she asked if he could not take care of it. Nothing was said to her by the doctor as to whether the child was dead or alive. She believed Dr. Hagner took the body away. The doctor asked Mrs. Kieso for a box or piece of paper. Mrs. Legge said she was so anxious about her daughter that she did not look at the child. The doctor remarked, she said, that it was a good thing for Mrs. Blair that he happened to be in the house at the time.

She heard no conversation concerning a lot in a cemetery. So far as she knew no effort was made to resuscitate the child. The doctor, she thought, was the only one who handled the baby. Mrs. Legge said she never for a moment entertained the idea that the babe was alive.

This closed the testimony, Dr. Hagner no desiring to make a statement.

After the verdict had been rendered Dr. Hagner, accompanied by his friends and Detectives Helan and Evans, went to the city hall. Mr. Gould, the district attorney, fixed the amount of the bond at $3,000, which was given, and the accused man left the building.

Prepared For Burial
Funeral of Blair Infant to Be Held Late Today or Tomorrow
The body of the infant of Peter and Clara Blair of 512 F street northeast, as to the cause of whose death an inquest was held yesterday, was removed from the morgue this morning to the undertaking establishment of William R. Speare, where it was prepared for burial. The funeral will take place late this afternoon or tomorrow.

Mrs. Blair, the infant's mother, is still under treatment at the home of her sister, Mrs. Kieso, in the Christiani flats. Her condition has greatly improved. She has not been told of the fate of her child. The shoe box in which the child was thrown away is held at police headquarters to be used as evidence when the case is presented to the grand jury.

Friends of Dr. Hagner are fully satisfied that the latter acted in good faith in the matter and was satisfied that there was no life in the little body when he deposited it in the ash can.
Ordered, That a message be sent to the Senate to notify that body of the death of James Blair, late one of the Representatives from the State of South Carolina, and that his funeral will take place this day, at four o'clock in the afternoon, from the Hall of the House of Representatives.

The message having been read--
Mr. Preston said: I am sure the Senate will sympathize with me in those emotions of profound sorrow with which I rise to propose the customary resolution upon such an event. The sudden death of General Blair, in the vigor of life, and in the midst of its most strenuous pursuits, cannot fail to impress all minds with the most solemn feelings—which to us are enhanced by his association with us in the same pursuits, and by the fact that this is the second instance this session of such an awful and sudden dispensation of Providence. We, his colleagues of the South Carolina delegation, lament his loss not the less that he has differed with us in some points of public policy. Such differences have never extended to personal separation; for each has excused the zeal of the other, by a mutual and equal acknowledgement of zeal; and God forbid that any such difference should impede for a moment the sad current of feeling which now passes through my heart, to whatever the deceased addressed himself, he brought uncommon force of character, firmness of purpose, and vigor of intellect. His country and his constituents have to mourn the loss of these qualities at this important juncture of our affairs; and upon me devolves the melancholy duty of moving the following resolution;

Resolved, That the Senate will attend the funeral of the Hon. James Blair, late a member of the House of Representatives from the State of South Carolina, at the hour of four o'clock this evening; and, as a testimony of respect for the memory of the deceased, they will go into mourning by wearing crape round the left arm for thirty days.

The resolution was then unanimously adopted; and, on motion of Mr. Preston, the Senate adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
As soon as the sitting of today was opened—Mr. McDuffie, of South Carolina, rose, and in a feeling and proper manner announced to the House the decease of one of his colleagues, the Hon. James Blair, a Member of this House, Whereupon it was, on motion, unanimously

Resolved, That the Members of this House will attend the funeral of the late James Blair, at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Resolved, That a Committee be appointed to take order for superintending the funeral of James Blair, deceased, late a Member of this House, from the State of South Carolina.

Resolved, That the Member of this House will testify their respect to the memory of James Blair, by wearing crape on the left arm for thirty days.

Ordered, That a Message be sent to the Senate, to notify that body of the death of James Blair, late one of the Representatives from the State of South Carolina, and that his funeral will take place at 4 o'clock this afternoon, from the Hall of the House of Representatives.

And then the House Adjourned.

The Remains of the Late Col. Theodoric Bland

Beltsville, June 25th, 1838

Editor of the Star:

The removal of the remains of Colonel Monroe from New York, reminds me of another Virginian, whose remains are now in the city of New York. Colonel Theodoric Bland, a distinguished cavalry officer in the revolutionary war, died in New York whilst attending, as a Member of Congress from Virginia; and his remains were deposited in a vault in that city. His widow, in her will, appropriated money which she directed her executor to use in the removal of the remains of Colonel Bland to Cawsans, near City Point, in Virginia, and there to be deposited under a weeping willow tree, and a monument erected on that spot to the memory of Col. Bland. The executor faithless to his duty, appropriated the money to other use, and the late John Randolph, of Roanoke, to whom Cawsans was bequeathed, made no effort to comply with what most men would have held as a sacred duty. Mr. Randolph devised it to his half-brother, the late Henry St. George Tucker, who sold it.

"The mother may forget her child
Wha' smiles sae sweetly on her knee;
But I'll remember thee, Glencairn,
And all that thou hast done for me."
[Burns]

The late "J.R., of R." professed great love for his native State. "God bless her" In his will he devised the "Records of the Virginia Company" to the University of Oxford, "Old England." The remains of his mother's brother, Col. Bland, and the faithlessness of his wife's executor in not removing them to Cawasans, were not "remembered" by Mr. Randolph.

"Its not in titles nor in rank;
Its not in wealth like Lon'on bank
To purchase peace and rest."--Burns

The ability of Mr. Blandford had been appreciated by many distinguished men. In the year he was associated with Justice McKenna, former Attorney General, he gained the confidence, love and esteem of his superior.
When Mr. McKenna went on the Supreme Court bench he was anxious that Mr. Blandford should accompany him; but Attorney General Griggs also desired the services of such an able man, and induced Mr. Blandford to remain with him.

Funeral Services

Last Rites Over Remains of J. Walter Blandford

The funeral of the late J. Walter Blandford, private secretary to Attorney General Griggs, will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the Scottish Rite Cathedral, 1007 G street northwest. It was at first the intention to have the burial take place from the residence of the brother-in-law of the deceased, Mr. R.L. Middleton, 1333 30th street northwest, and was so published. When the fact was considered, however, that the services would be attended by so many of the friends and Masonic brethren of the dead man, it was decided to have them at the cathedral, which is better fitted for the purpose than a private residence.

The body will lie in state at the cathedral from 11 to 2:30, when the service will begin. They will be under the auspices of Lafayette Lodge, No. 19; Lafayette Royal Arch Chapter, No. 5, and Washington Commandery, No. 1, K.T. Rev. Louis Randall of the M.P. Church will officiate.

The interment will be in the Congressional cemetery.

In Memoriam

Blandford. In remembrance of our beloved cousin, J. Walter Blandford, who departed this life March 12, 1898. We who were privileged to know him, sit with bowed heads and hearts bathed in the deepening shadows of sorrow. His passing removes from our midst one who smoothed the rugged places of life and scattered sunshine along our pathways. By kindly ministries he enshrined himself in our hearts and affections, so that the passing of the years and their consequent forgetfulness shall not serve to dethrone him. Oh, merciless death! Oh, cruel grave! We commit him into thy embrace and keeping, knowing thou must surrender him when the trumpet sounds upon resurrection morn.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Ridgely

Bliss, Charles Alfred

Bliss. Suddenly (drowned) at Ocean City, Md. on Wednesday, August 9, 1899, Charles Alfred Bliss. Funeral private. No flowers.

The Evening Star, Thursday, August 10, 1899
Death in the Surf -- Drowning of Charles Alfred Bliss at Ocean City Body Recovered Within an Hour
Funeral Will Probably Be Tomorrow at 4 O’clock p.m.
Peril of Other Bathers

Charles Alfred Bliss, cashier of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company of this city, and son of Mr. Alfred G. Bliss, chief clerk of the bureau of internal revenue, Treasury Department, was drowned at Ocean City, Md., shortly after noon yesterday. Mr. Bliss had gone to Ocean City last Saturday to stay two weeks. He went in company with Dr. W.M. Newell, and since going on their vacation the two have been together almost constantly.

Yesterday Mr. Bliss was out with a number of bathers when he was caught in an eddy and carried out a considerable distance. The current was very strong, and those who saw his danger and heard his cries for help were unable to render assistance. While Mr. Bliss was in peril several other bathers became exhausted and called for help, among them being Misses Alice and Bessie Hunting, Miss Geeting of Baltimore and Dr. Wm. M. Newell of this city. The life-saving crew seeing the danger of Mr. Bliss made ready to go to his relief, and while doing so the other bathers got beyond their depth.

Bravery of Sidney Willson
While this preparation was being made Mr. Sidney Willson of Snow Hill, a youth of fifteen years, boldly rushed into the breakers, swam to Miss Bessie Hunting and succeeded in bringing her ashore. Young Willson's efforts and cries attracted the attention of the crowd to Miss Alice Hunting, and Rev. Francis Y. Nichols of Princeton plunged to her rescue. He caught at her as she was going down the last time, but missed her. He then dived and held her up until Mr. Charles R. Gantz of Baltimore and Mr. Strauss went to his assistance. They all three managed to get ashore with the young lady. It took some time to resuscitate Miss Alice Hunting. The Misses Hunting were rescued in front of Mount Pleasant Cottage.

In the meantime Dr. W.M. Newell had become exhausted about 100 yards below, in front of the life-saving station, near where young Bliss had gone down. Mr. Raleigh DeShields, son of Major DeShields of the Atlantic Hotel, swam to Dr. Newell, and, though merely a boy, held him up till young Sid Willson went to help him, and they both brought the doctor safely ashore, with the assistance of the life-boat, which had just been launched. Mr. Raleigh DeShields also pulled Miss Geeting out of the surf almost exhausted.

The lifeboat started to look for the body of Mr. Bliss, but as the crew were passing the first breaker Bob Purnell of Ocean City and Charles Gantz of Baltimore saw the body, and, plunging from the boat, brought it to the surface. The body had been in the water about an hour, and all efforts at resuscitation by four doctors present proved in vain. It was taken to one of the rooms of the life-saving station, where it was embalmed by Undertaker J. E. Wise of Berlin.

Young Bliss Highly Esteemed
Mr. Bliss was twenty-seven years of age, a graduate of the Washington High School and was highly esteemed in this city. He lived with his parents at 923 East Capitol street. Only a couple of days ago his parents received a letter from him, in which he said he had that day sailed over the spot where the Birney boys were drowned recently. He was a good swimmer.

Mr. A.G. Bliss, father of the drowned man, today said it appeared strange that the life-saving service at Ocean City was so long in rendering assistance. It did not appear to him that the patrol of the beach at Ocean City was satisfactory, otherwise he did not think an hour would have been consumed in the rescue of his boy.

Funeral Tomorrow
Mr. Bliss was not able to reach Ocean City until after the body of his son could be started on the journey to this city, and for that reason he did not go there last evening, as he first intended to do. The remains are expected to arrive here at 3:45 this afternoon. The funeral will probably take place at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and will be private. The interment will be made in Congressional Cemetery.

Statement of Miss Fenwick.
Miss Fenwick of 1204 K street, who was at Ocean City at the time and who has returned to Washington, said today to a Star reporter that the circumstances surrounding the drowning of young Bliss were sad, but at the same time the heroic qualities of the young man were brought out. It seems he noticed the danger of a party, which was farther from shore than he was and gave the alarm.

Two young men responded -- Sid Wilson and Roy deShields. They were both strong swimmers, and when they reached Bliss he said to them, "I am all right; go and help the others -- they need you more than I do." So his would-be rescuers went on to the assistance of the others. Sid Wilson was confident he saw young Bliss go out of the water, but afterward found he was mistaken. The fact is Bliss was not seen again until his lifeless body was brought from the ocean.

There was, of course, a good deal of excitement over the rescue of the others, as owing to the roughness of the breakers it was difficult to launch the lifeboat. It was supposed for some time that Bliss was somewhere on shore, and therefore a search party was not sent out as soon as would have been the case under other circumstances.

M.R. Blumenberg Rites Will Be Held Tomorrow
Services for Dean of Corps of House Committee Reporters to Be Held at Highlands

Funeral services for M.R. Blumenberg, dean of the corps of committee reporters of the House of Representatives, who died Wednesday, will be held tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock at the Highlands Apartments. Interment will be in Congressional cemetery.

Mr. Blumenberg was born in this city October 27, 1873. He was educated in the public schools and later studied shorthand. For a while he was located with the Interstate Commerce Commission, but left that employ to become secretary to Senator Wolcott of Colorado. About 1895 he left Mr. Wolcott and became secretary to Gen. Charles H. Grosvenor of Akron, Ohio. He served with Gen. Grosvenor during his term in the House, remaining with him twenty-two years.

He was married in 1902 here to Miss Minnie May Torbert of Iowa. During his work with Gen. Grosvenor he took up a residence also in Akron, which he maintained up to the time of his death. At the time of his death he was dean of the corps of committee reporters.

He was a member of B.B. French Lodge, No. 15, F.A.AM.; the Cosmos and Columbia Country Clubs of his city, and the Columbia Country Club of Akron. Surviving him are his wife, a brother, Moxley Blumenberg of Boston, and a sister, Mrs. Herbert McNair of Northampton, Mass. A brother, Milton W. Blumenberg, was official reporter in the United States Senate. He died about five years ago.

Horrible Tragedy Mars The Regatta
Ten Persons Drown Within Sight of Thousands, Helpless to Aid Four Survivors Swim to Shore
Launch Upsets Ten Yards From River Bank--Boy Sees His Sister Die

Ten persons drowned yesterday afternoon in the course of the regatta held on the upper Potomac near the Aqueduct Bridge.

The boathouses which line the course were crowded and the front was gay with bright costumes and enlivened with the music of the band, while a launch was overturned by the current of a mill race, and nearly all of its fourteen passengers lost their lives.

Most of the spectators of the regatta were unconscious of the catastrophe. At the very moment while four women and six men were screaming for help and fighting for life, the boathouses range and the shore echoed with shouts for the victor in one of the contests. And while the band, stationed on a schooner opposite the place of the disaster, greeted the contestants in the next race with a brisk melody a few friends and many strangers were tenderly lifting the limp bodies of the victims from the water.

There were no rescues. Four of the passengers escaped by swimming to the shore-- only thirty feet from the boat--and lifting themselves up on the bank.

The others were found close together where their ill-fated pleasure caft had capsized, and before the last victor of the regatta had swept his light craft past the judges the bodies of those untoward pleasure-seekers had been carried to desolate homes.

Personal Sketches of the Victims
Charles H. Blumer
Charles H. Blumer, thirty-three years of age, was proprietor of a drug store at North Capitol and R Streets, where he had been in business for the past six years.

He was a native of Washington and one of the young self-made business men of the city. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Blumer, natives of Washington, residing at 901 E Street southeast.

He is survived by a wife and two small children.

Mrs. Blumer was Miss Ada Holmes of Southeast Washington. She is described as a beautiful young woman now in her twenty-fourth year.

Mrs. Blumer Ill
Mrs. Blumer was notified of her husband's death late yesterday evening, but bore the shock bravely. Though in delicate health, she insisted upon closing the store and taking her two children -- one five years of age and the other two -- to the home of her parents, 821 C Street southeast.

As soon as she arrived there she swooned and has regained consciousness only at brief intervals. At a late hour last night she was in a trance. The family physician and nurses at her bedside expected a crisis at any moment.

Mr. Blumer was married June 29, 1897. The elder of his two children is five years of age.

Educated in Public Schools

Charles Henry Blumer was educated in the public schools of Washington. He afterward entered the College of Pharmacy in Georgetown, graduating in 1897. In this year he opened a pharmacy in Northeast Washington. It was a small business then, but it grew rapidly, and his death leaves a valuable stand at the corner of R and North Capitol Streets. Just what disposition will be made of the business is not yet known.

Dr Blumer was a member of several secret fraternal orders, chief among which were the Knight Templars, Royal Arcanum, and Mystic Shriners.

The funeral will be held in Christ Church Southeast, at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The funeral and interment will be attended with Masonic honors.

Funeral Arrangements For The Ten Victims*

The funeral of Dr. Blumer will be held at Christ Church, near the Navy Yard, at the same hour. The Rev. Arthur S. Jones will be present, but the services will be under the direction of Columbia Commandery, while Lafayette Chapter, Royal Arch, and Almas Temple will have representatives, as will also Harmony Lodge, No. 17, which will conduct the ceremony at the grave in Congressional Cemetery.

River Catastrophe Stops Excursion

Shriners' Trip to River View Postponed on Account of Drowning of Four Nobles

Owing to the catastrophe at the annual Potomac Regatta Saturday, which resulted in the drowning of four Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, the Christmas Charity fund excursion of Almas Temple to River View, which had been set for today has postponed.

The four Shriners who were drowned were J. Herbert Coates, William H. Smith, Charles H. Blumer and J. George Smith. All of them belonged to Columbia Commandery, Knights Templar. William H. Smith was first lieutenant in the Arab patrol and was vice chairman of the committee on donations and prizes for the excursion.

Dr. Charles A. Stewart, one of the owners of the capsized launch Recreation, who was among the saved from drowning, is also a member of the same committee.

Regatta Victims Borne to Graves*

At 3 o'clock the funerals of Will H. Smith and Dr. Charles H. Blumer were held. Both funerals are under the direction of Columbia Commandery, Knights Templar, of which both were prominent members. The attendance of Masons was large.

Shot Himself at His Desk

A Tragedy in the Sixth Auditor's Office—Capt. Bodine Shot and Instantly Killed—A Difference of Opinion as to Whether it was a Suicide

Capt. H.D. Bodine, a third-class clerk in the Sixth Auditor's office, was found today, shortly after 1 o'clock, seated in his chair before his desk, dead. The smothered report of a pistol was heard by several clerks in the lower part of the room, and looking towards Capt. Bodine they saw him seated with his head on his breast. Then he straightened himself up, but when his associates reached his side he was dead. His vest was unbuttoned and the cartridge box was lying on the table. It is supposed that the captain took the pistol out of his pocket to load it, and in putting it back in the inside pocket of his vest it was accidentally discharged. Messrs. Burbage, Edson and Brady were in the room at the time, but with the exception of these facts described they could throw no light on the matter. Some of his associates were of the opinion that he shot himself on account of depression of spirits, but Dr. Dobson, who was out to lunch with him a few minutes before, said that Captain Bodine was laughing and joking with him.

Coroner Patterson reviewed the remains, and gave a certificate of death from accidental shooting. The ball, which was a .44 calibre from a Derringer, had gone through the fifth rib above and to the right of the left nipple, and was found just under the skin in the back, and was taken out. Death must have been almost instant.

Capt. Bodine was about 47 years of age, and was from Plainfield, near Cincinnati. He served during the war and commanded the 2d Kentucky regiment. He then engaged in business and some five years ago received an appointment under the government. About a year ago he married a Miss Johnson, and at the time of his death was living with her parents at 11 Grant Place.

He is spoken of as having been a genial companion and a man of sterling qualities. The general impression seems to be that he was depressed in mind about his mother's illness and other matters, but the clerks who were in the room believe the shooting was accidental.

Coroner Patterson's Opinion

A Star reporter saw Coroner Patterson and asked: "Could it have possibly been an accident?" The coroner struck his head significantly, and added: "No; Oh, No. The muzzle of the pistol was jammed right against his breast, and the discharge burnt both his upper and undershirt."

Subsequently the reporter talked with Mr. James Talty, a brother of Mrs. Bodine, who insisted that the discharge must have been accidental. He said Bodine was one of the jolliest men he ever knew, and that he had, up to the moment of the shooting, been in the best spirits. The chief of Bodine's division shared the belief that the shot was accidental. He said Bodine took his pistol when he went to Ohio to vote and on his return he went direct to the department where he placed the weapon in a drawer of his desk.

What Bodine's Sister-in-Law Says

Bodine's sister-in-law, who was seen by a Star reporter shortly after the shooting, said that Bodine had been worrying about his mother's illness ever since last month's illness ever since last month, when he went to his home in Cincinnati to vote, and since the election he has seemed to worry a great deal more, as he was a good republican. She says he left home this morning as usual, and nothing strange was noticed in his conduct.

In Memoriam

Boggs. Mr. John W. Boggs, who died very suddenly in this city last Thursday morning, was born in the city of Richmond, Va., September 28, 1833. When but a youth he removed to Norfolk, where he learned the carpenter's trade. He married Miss Esther A. Wilson of Salisbury, Md., and at the age of 21 established himself in Washington as a stair-builder. For more than 35 years Mr. Boggs continued his business on Capitol Hill, and he became recognized as an authority in all questions pertaining to stair-building.

His second wife, who survives him, was Mrs. John R. Elvans. Shortly subsequent to his second marriage, Mr. Boggs retired from business on account of failing health. He traveled extensively, visiting different resorts, in the vain hope of recovering his health. On all his travels Mr. Boggs was accompanied by his devoted wife. He was contemplating his usual visit to Florida, where he was in the habit of spending the winters, when suddenly stricken down.

Mr. Boggs was an upright citizen, who died as he had lived, in the hope of eternal life through Christ Jesus.

Besides his widow, four sons, John W. and Julius O. of New York city, Wm. B. and Melville A. of this city, and Mrs. J. Wm. Howard of Boston, his only daughter, survive him.

Bus Kills Last Member of Class of ’78 at Old Washington High

The class of 1878 of Old Washington High School became a memory today with the death last night of its last surviving member after he was struck by a bus.

Friends said Cavour O. Bohrer, 89-year-old retired market superintendent, was on his way to church when he was struck at Fourteenth and I streets N.W. shortly after 7 p.m. He died three hours later at Casualty Hospital.

His death is the 18th traffic fatality this year as compared with the same number on this date last year.

He had left the John Dickson Home for the Aged, 5000 Fourteenth street N.W., for the Metropolitan Presbyterian Church, Fourth and B streets S.E., where he was an elder and past treasurer.

Police said he was struck by a Capital Transit bus driven by James C. Strugill, 21, of 646 F street S.W. The driver was charged with failing to yield the right of way to a pedestrian. He will appear at an inquest later this week.

Mr. Bohrer worked at the old Convention Hall New Center Market, Fifth and K streets N.W., after his graduation from Washington High School. The school is now Central. A nephew, Ernest Guy, 5401 Sixteenth street N.W., said Mr. Bohrer was superintendent before his retirement more than 20 years ago.

He had lived at the home for the aged since 1948 after the death of a brother with whom he had lived. But he still made it a point to attend church.

He seldom missed a reunion of his high school class. In 1945 tribute was paid him and the two other then surviving class members: Frank B. Noyes, president of The Evening Star Newspaper Co., and John Espey, retired hardware dealer.

Mr. Espey, 86, retired hardware dealer, died March 15 at Gallinger Hospital. He suffered a heart attack while recovering from an emergency operation.

Mr. Bohrer is survived by a 92-year-old sister, Mrs. Mary E. Guy, 2706 Forty-fourth street N.W., and two other sisters, one in Ohio and another in Pennsylvania.

The Evening Star, February 26, 1916
Succumbs to Cerebral Hemorrhage, Following Attack of Acute Indigestion
Was Long a Resident of Southeast Washington and a Prominent Mason and Churchman
George P. Bohrer, seventy-three years old, for thirty years manager of Convention Hall and one of the oldest residents of the southeast section of the city, died yesterday at his home, 326 Virginia avenue southeast. Death was caused by cerebral hemorrhage, which followed an attack of acute indigestion suffered Thursday night. Thursday Mr. Bohrer was in his usual health
Funeral services are to be held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, at the Metropolitan Presbyterian Church. Members of St. John's Lodge No. 11, F.A.A.M., will have charge of the services at the church, and will officiate at the interment, which is to be at Congressional cemetery.
Native of Georgetown
Born in Georgetown, in the old family residence on what is now Wisconsin avenue, Mr. Borher early moved with his parents to the southeast where he lived first on 7th street and later on 11th street. For the past thirty-five years he resided in the Virginia avenue home, which was one of the first residences in that part of the city.
Mr. Bohrer was a past master of St. John's Lodge, No. 11, F.A.A.M., and a member of Columbia Chapter, Royal Arch Masons. He had been connected with the Metropolitan Presbyterian Church, 5th and B streets southeast, since the congregation was organized many years ago, and for years was a member of its sessions and its senior elder.
In business he was formerly associated with Gen. Albert Ordway and afterward with the late Stilson Hutchins. He was for thirty years manager of Convention Hall and superintendent of Northern Liberty -- now Convention Hall -- market, and at various times was in charge of the District of Columbia National Guard armory, adjoining the market building. |
His ancestors came from Germany. His parents were George Alexander Bohrer, who was for many years connected with the postal service, and Katherine Otterback. Dr. Benjamin S. Bohrer, who was physician to President Jackson, was his uncle.

When his parents moved from Georgetown George P. Bohrer, then a young boy, drove the family cow all the way through the streets of the capital.

Surviving Relatives
Mr. Bohrer is survived by the following: his wife, Mrs. Eva Hancock Bohrer, and the following children: Misses Katherine E. and Mary E. Bohrer, Mrs. Oscar D. Clarke, Mrs. Elmon A. Cook, Mrs. Drucilla B. Hallam and Mrs. H.C. Hallam; grandchildren Misses Dorothy A. Cook, Drucilla B. and Katherine Phillip Hallam and Master Henry Charles Hallam jr., all of Washington; sisters, Miss Virginia Bohrer and Mrs. L.W. Maxson of Kensington, Md.; Mrs. W.T. Hutchinson and Mrs. B.W. Guy of Washington and Mrs. C.W. Clum of Cleveland, Ohio; brothers, Alexander B., Marion Willett and C.O. Bohrer of this city.

James T. Boiseau Dead.

A District Resident for Eighty-Seven Years.

James T. Boiseau, for eighty-seven years a resident of the District, died peacefully yesterday morning at his residence, 213 C street southeast. Born in Alexandria, Va., December 20, 1818, Mr. Boiseau was brought to the District to live at the age of six weeks. He was educated in the early District schools and was apprenticed to a machinist at the age of fourteen years to learn the trade at which he worked as foreman in the navy yard for many years. When politics threw him upon his own resources he took up the making of iron railings—a business which he pursued until three years ago. Both in years and membership he was the senior member of St. Peter's Church, having been under its ministrations from infancy. For twenty-nine years he was vice president of the St. Vincent de Paul conference of that church and president of the Young Catholic Friends' Society since its organization. He was a member of the Oldest Inhabitants' Association. A genial kindly gentleman of the old school, he had been identified with this city in its growth and government; had served in the old days as captain of militia and had had a seat in the common council for several years.

The funeral will occur next Tuesday at 9:30 o'clock a.m., from St. Peter's Church.

Boner. On Friday, March 6, 1903, at 9:45 p.m., at 218 I street northwest, John Henry Boner, aged 58 years, of consumption. Interment at Congressional cemetery Monday, March 9, at 2:30 p.m.

The Evening Star, March 7, 1903, p. 10
Death of J.H. Boner
Man Eminent in Literary Circles and Poet of High Repute
Mr. J.H. Boner, who died last night at his home, 218 I street northwest, in this city, was well known in literary circles here and in New York. Several years ago Brentano published a volume of his poems under the title of "Whispering Pines," which received favorable notice. Three of Mr. Boner's poems were selected by the publisher of a German anthology as representative poems in the English language.

About nineteen years ago Mr. Boner went to New York and was introduced into the literary circle in which E.C. Stedman was a shining light.

Mr. Boner was a subeditor on the Century and Standard dictionaries, and later was on the literary staff of the New York World and editor of the Literary Digest. His health failing, he returned to Washington and filled a position in the government printing office. Mr. Boner was a native of Salem, N.C., and was fifty-eight years of age. His wife survives him.

Bontz, Julia
The Evening Star, Monday, September 12, 1870
Death of a Washington Girl in Baltimore
It will be recollected that on July 26th of last year The Star published an account of a cowhiding affair which took place on the premises of a barber on Pennsylvania avenue, near 12th street. The recipient of the whipping was Alfred Supplee, a barkeeper at Oyster Bay, and the person who inflicted it Mrs. Elizabeth Bontz, who was accompanied by Mrs. Virginia Everett. Mrs Bontz and Mrs. Everett were both arrested by Lieut. Tait and taken to the Central guard-house, and fined $2 each.

Mrs. B. alleged that Al Supplee, who is a married man, had been trying for some months to lure her daughter Julia away from home, that she had left home that morning about 11 o'clock and had not been heard of since, that she had armed herself with a cowhide with the intention of putting an end to the intimacy as she could get redress in no other manner. Julia returned to her mother's house that night, but subsequently the intimacy, it is said, was renewed.

The infatuated girl left this city for Baltimore some six weeks ago, for what purpose is not known. Rumors are current that she addressed a note to Mr. Supplee from Baltimore requesting to know if he intended to leave his family and join her, and that his reply was to the effect that he had determined to be true to his wife and child.
A letter was sent to her mother in this city on Monday of last week that Julia was very ill—to come on at once; but the family were absent at a camp meeting in Virginia, and Mrs. B. did not get the letter. On Tuesday morning Julia died, when a telegraphic dispatch was sent to her mother. These papers both lay at the residence of Mrs. Bontz until Tuesday evening, when an opportunity was afforded to send them both to the camp ground by some friend of the family who was going there. As soon as the news reached the family they returned home with all possible speed, and an aunt and brother of deceased were sent to Baltimore on the Wednesday following, where they found the remains had been placed in a coffin and deposited in a vault at Greenmount Cemetery, from whence they were taken and brought to this city on Wednesday night, and taken to the residence of the father of the deceased. On Thursday last, at 10 o'clock a.m. the funeral took place, and the remains were buried in the Congressional Cemetery.

Her grave is located in the new portion of the Congressional Cemetery, and about sixty yards south of the monument to the victims of the Arsenal catastrophe. On the clay mound is the wreath which was removed from the coffin, consisting of white flowers entwined in evergreen, and tastefully knotted with broad white ribbon. At this grave, about twilight yesterday afternoon, could be seen Al Supplee, in company with others, standing around the grave, all serious but apparently unmoved except Supplee, who with handkerchief in hand, looked meditatively on the earthen mound before him. Finally the party walked off, Supplee halting at every turn or bend in the pathway and casting a lingering look at the grave, as if reluctant to leave the spot.

A Man Cowhided by a Woman

On Saturday night last about 9 o'clock, a man named Al. Supplee, employed as barkeeper at the Oyster Bay, on Pennsylvania avenue, between 12th and 13th streets, received a cowhiding at the hands of an indignant mother, who encountered him on the corner of 12th street and Pennsylvania avenue, and inquired the whereabouts of her daughter. He denied any knowledge of the daughter's movements, when the irate mother drew forth a cow-hide and applied it vigorously to the head and shoulders of Supplee, who ran through Emner's barber shop to D street, from whence he attempted to effect an entrance to Oyster Bay, through the rear. The gate was locked, however, and the mother was close on his heels, continuing the castigation, while a female companion pummelled S's head in pugilistic style. Lieut. Tait came up and arrested the two women, and took them before Justice Harper, who fined them $2 each. They paid up saying that they would gladly have paid $10 for ten minutes more of such satisfactory employment. The mother alleges that Supplee, who is a married man, had for some time back been trying to lure her daughter from home. The parents remonstrated without avail, and on Saturday, the girl disappeared about 11 o'clock in the morning, and not returning at night, her mother armed herself with a cow-hide and accompanied by a female friend, started in search of her erring daughter, and encountered Supplee as above stated. The daughter returned to her home last evening.

Booth, Charles Henry
On the evening of the 24th instant, Charles Henry, aged 3 years and 28 days, the only and beloved son of R.E. and Elizabeth Booth.

There seems a shadow presence here,
A gloom as of approaching night;
For one whose smile to us was dear,
Had bowed to death's remorseless blight.
The pride of our household band,
Fair brow'd and gay and sunny eyed,
Unclasped from ours his little hand,
And in his childish beauty died.

They said he died. It seems to me
That after hours of pain and strife,
He slept, and even peacefully,
And woke to everlasting life.
And mirth's glad shout and laughter's cheer
May ring through all the house beside;
But quite sadness reigneth here,
Since darling little Charlie died.

Booth, Elizabeth Clara
Yesterday morning in the 30th year of her age Miss Elizabeth Clara Booth, daughter of Mr. Mordecai Booth. Her friends and acquaintances are respectfully invited to attend her funeral this morning at 9 o'clock.

Borden, Alice C.
Borden. On February 10, 1891 at 8:30 a.m., Alice Christine Borden, wife of J. McKee Borden and daughter of Sydney I. and the late Henry C. Launch. Funeral from the residence, 1438 S street Thursday at 2 p.m.

The Evening Star, February 10, 1891

Death of Mrs. J. McKee Borden

Mrs. J. McKee Borden died this morning at 8:30 o'clock at her home, 1438 S street after a short illness, Mrs. Borden had many lovely traits of character which endeared her to a large circle of friends. She will be remembered as Miss Launch before her marriage to Mr. Borden about 4 years ago. The funeral will take place from the residence, 1438 S street northwest Thursday at 2 p.m.

Borden, Lieutenant J.P.
Borden.  On April 4, 1842, at Potomac River, Lt. J.P. Borden, with his boat's crew, rescued Midshipman Renshaw and three men; but poor Borden, the noble, warm-hearted, dearly loved friend of all who knew him, was not a strong swimmer and ere the boat could come up with him, he threw his arms o'er his head, and sunk to rise in life no more.

The National Intelligencer, Monday, April 11, 1842

The Disaster Down The River

The following letter to the Editors, from an officer on board the Missouri Steam Frigate, did not come to hand as early as the writer kindly intended it should, but is even now the first authentic and intelligible account of it that we or our readers have had:

U.S. Steam Frigate Missouri

Potomac River, April 4, 1842

Messrs. Editors: It is with feelings lacerated with the keenest sorrow that I will herein make an attempt to give you an account of a heart-rending scene that I have this day witnessed from the deck of this ship, involving the loss of a noble-hearted, generous, and high-minded messmate and friend, Lieut. Borden, and fifteen of this ship's crew. Yesterday (Sunday) we made Cape Henry, and took on board a pilot to run us into the Chesapeake, who gave us to understand that he could not pilot us more than half-way on our course towards Washington, as he was not acquainted with the Potomac river, but at the same time assured our captain that his father had been a branch pilot on the Potomac since the last war. In consequence of this statement the ship was safely brought to anchor last evening about ten o'clock, in twenty fathoms water just after she had entered the last named river. The pilot went on shore and returned this morning at daylight, with his father, who immediately got the ship under weigh, and ran her on her course with a press of steam that carried her through the water at the rate of ten knots an hour, until about 11 o'clock a.m., when he ran her high up, with her bows almost out of water, on an oyster bed. Every effort was made on the instant to back her off, but without success, and then commenced the work of lightening her forward. The heavy Paizhan guns were transported from the forecastle aft to the main transom, the water in the forehold started, and the provisions broke out and sent to the after part of the berth deck, the bowers and one of the waist anchors let go; the boats were hoisted out, and immediate preparations made for carrying out astern the starboard waist anchor let go; the boats were hoisted out, with a sufficiency of chain cable to heave her off. Accordingly, the anchor was weighed between the launch and lifeboat, and the chain coiled away in the bottom of the launch, under the superintendence of Lieut. Borden, Midshipman Renshaw, and the boatswain. After they had gone about two hundred yards astern of the ship, and while paying out the chain in twenty fathoms water, preparatory to letting go the anchor, the heavy chain cable began to run out with such tremendous force that it carried the gunwale of the launch under water. All hands instantly sprung for the lifeboat, but she, being lashed to the launch, was likewise carried down by the combined weight of the anchor and men; and, in a moment, about twenty-five officers and seamen were struggling, and many vainly struggling, for their lives. Happy was it for those who were carried down by the massive chain, and who did not rise again to catch one last and agonizing look at the bright heavens and the coming aid, which despair whispered could not reach them in time to save them from sinking beneath the wave which must roll o'er them until that water shall give up its dead. Immediately every boat from the ship was rushing to the rescue, but unfortunately could not reach the drowning men until many had sunk to rise no more.

Commander MacKenzie, with his boat's crew, rescued Midshipman Renshaw and three men; but poor Borden, the noble, warm-hearted, dearly loved friend of all who knew him, was not a strong swimmer and ere the boat could come up with him, he threw his arms o'er his head, and sunk to rise in life no more.

A general gloom pervades the ship, fore and aft. When it was known beyond a doubt that Borden was drowned, there was not a dry eye among his friends and associates, messmates, and brother officers assembled on the quarterdeck. However deeply we may deplore the loss of so many valuable and excellent men besides him, yet still they were as strangers to us, and it did not come so intimately home to our feelings. But, indeed, it was a dreadful scene, and one that will never be effaced from my mind's eye, as I stood on the tuffrail and saw a number of our strongest men struggling in their dying agony, bubbling the water from their lips, and throwing aloft their arms for succor ere they sunk beneath the relentless wave forever.

The news of the death of Lieut. Borden will send a pang through many hearts in Cincinnati. He was an officer hailing from among us, and of whom our city was proud as one of her representatives in the American Navy. We can only add that a most gallant and high-minded and chivalrous young officer has been lost to his country; one than whom no other could be more jealous of her reputation; one who (had not Heaven so soon ordered otherwise) must have added distinction to her naval prowess.

We are permitted to publish the following from Captain Newton to Mr. Samuel Borden of this city:

U.S. Steam Frigate Missouri
Potomac River, April 5, 1842
It is with the most painful feelings of regret that it has become my duty to acquaint you of the death of your much lamented brother, Lieut. Borden. He perished while in the faithful discharge of his duty; he was engaged in taking out one of the ship's anchors in two large boats and by some cause the boats capsized and Lieut. B. with 15 of the crew found a watery grave. The melancholy event occurred on the 4th instant.

If it can afford any consolation to the bleeding hearts of his connections and friends to say how much beloved and esteemed he was, they have it; for no one ever held a more exalted rank in the estimation of all who knew him. He was one of the most meritorious officers I ever knew. His messmates, by all of whom he was beloved, deplore deeply his untimely fate, and no one more laments it than his friend.

John Thomas Newton, Captain.

Accident

This morning as the wagon attached to the Penitentiary was on its way from market to its destination, the messenger, Mr. Jarboe, left it in charge of a boy named Charles Boss, son of Officer William Boss, on the corner of Eighth st. and Pennsylvania avenue, to do some marketing. The horse took fright and ran away, dashing against a tree box on the avenue in front of the market upsetting and entirely demolishing the wagon, which was loaded with provisions for the Penitentiary; and inflicting a number of flesh wounds upon the lad about the head, the extent of which is not yet ascertained. He was taken immediately to the residence of his father on D street, between Twelfth and Thirteenth, where he received medical attendance.

John P. Boss Dead
One of the Oldest Printers in Employ of the Government
Mr. John P. Boss of the fifth division of the government printing office, one of the oldest printers in the District of Columbia and a pioneer member of Columbia Typographical Union, No. 101, died this morning shortly after 9 o'clock at his home, 402 M street.  Mr. Boss was in his eighty-second year, having been born in Alexandria August 2, 1819.  He was in his sixty-first year as a member of his craft organization, having joined the Typographical Society in 1840.  Arrangements for the funeral have not been completed.

Mr. Boss was a most estimable gentleman, well liked by all his fellow workmen and beloved by all who knew him intimately.  At the age of fourteen he began his career as a printer, serving for a long while in the office of Gales & Seaton, then proprietors of the National Intelligencer.  He was the first person employed as a printer in the government printing office after its establishment in 1861, continuing in the service of the government from that time up to the beginning of his last illness some weeks ago.  For many years he was exclusively employed on the Nautical Almanac, and acquired a knowledge of that work possessed by few.  Mr. Boss was remarkably vigorous in his old age, having always been a man of moderate and regular habits.

The deceased had been a member of Columbia Lodge, No. 10, I.O.O.F., for over fifty years, his record for longevity of membership being unequaled in the District of Columbia, it is said.  He was also a member of Columbian Encampment, I.O.O.F., and of McKendree M.E. Church.

He is survived by a large family.

Boss, John Staucheff  d. 21 Sep 1895  R28/162
Boss.  On September 21, 1895 of membranous croup, John Staucheff Boss only child of John R. and Carrie I. Boss, aged 3 years 1 month.  Funeral private from residence of parents, No. 2 M street northeast, Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Boss, Lewis K.  d. 1 Jul 1859  R53/87
Boss.  On the 1st inst., Lewis K., son of James H. and Anna S. Boss, aged 22 months.

Boss, Margaret Rebecca  d. 14 Dec 1856  R53/87
Boss.  On the 14th instant, Margaret Rebecca, daughter of James H. and Anna S. Boss, aged 6 years 2 months 9 days.

Boss, Mary E.  d. 23 Aug 1876  R17/88
Boss.  On August 22d, 1876, at 5:30 o'clock a.m., of typhoid fever, Mary E. Boss, second daughter of William A. and Eliza A. Boss.  Her funeral will take place from the residence of her parents, No. 116 8th street northeast, on Thursday, the 24th instant, at 3 o'clock p.m.  All friends of the family are invited to attend.

Boss, Stewart H.  d. 3 Jan 1893  R18/244
Boss.  January 3, 1893 at 11:30 a.m., Stuard H. Boss, husband of Laura V. Boss, nee King, 4th son of William A. and Eliza A. Boss.  Funeral will take place at 936 26th street northwest on Thursday, 5th instant at 2:30 p.m.

Boss, William A.  d. 13 Aug 1896  R17/89
Boss.  On Thursday, August 13, 1896 at 5:25 a.m., William A. Boss, beloved husband of Eliza A. Boss in his 72d year.  Funeral from his daughter's, Mrs. Henry H. Mullineaux, residence 508 11th street southwest Saturday afternoon 3 o'clock.  Relatives and friends are invited.

The evening Star, August 14, 1896
Heat and Humidity
Washington is still a victim to the combination
No decided relief in sight
It may not be quite as warm tomorrow
The death record
Additional deaths yesterday
The hot weather caused the sudden death of William, who was so familiarly known as "Bill" Boss. Yesterday afternoon about 5 o'clock he was found sitting in a chair near a window at his residence, No. 601 7th street southwest, unconscious. His son-in-law, Mr. H.H. Mullineaux, of the bureau of engraving and printing, found him, and he called in a physician, but his condition was such that medical aid was of no avail, for he remained unconscious until death claimed him, at 5 o'clock this morning.

The deceased, who was a native of this city, was more than seventy years old. In the early days of Washington he was a police constable, and did duty in the old Capitol prison. He was also connected with several newspapers, among them The Evening Star, the National Intelligencer and the National Union. The deceased leaves five children, one of them, Foreman Boss of No. 1 engine company. His funeral will take place Saturday afternoon from his late residence. The interment will be made in Congressional cemetery.
Mr. Bossier was a native of Louisiana, of French descent, his family being among the earliest settlers of the colony. He was one of that ancient population which, in many parts of our State, still preserve the language, manners, and customs of their fathers, remarkable for their almost patriarchal simplicity, their unbending honesty, their chivalrous courage, their frank and manly spirit—a population unsurpassed by none, in all the wide expanse of this republic, for its patriotic devotion to our free institutions.

My colleague was the type of this class—unpretending in manner, courteous in deportment, alike inaccessible to the blandishments of flattery and the influences of intimidation, elevated above every mercenary consideration, gentle in his temper; but when his rights were invaded, or his honor assailed, ever ready to defend the one and vindicate the other; homo antiqua virtute ae fide; or in the language of his own Gallic ancestry, a "chevalier sans peur et sans reproche." He had served for ten years in the Senate of his native State, in a manner alike creditable to himself and useful to his constituents, and was still a member of that body for an unexpired term, when he yielded to an unsolicited and spontaneous nomination for Congress, and was elected, by a large majority, in a district which had been considered as opposed to him in politics. Transferred to the councils of the nation, a long vista of usefulness upon this more elevated theatre appeared to have opened before him. His attention to business, his excellent judgment, would have rendered him a most valuable representative. His modesty and diffidence might have prevented him from participating freely in the debates of the House; but, in the less brilliant but equally useful labors of the committee-room, he would have done the State good service.

He has been cut down before he had fairly started in his new career; but he had already acquired the respect and esteem of all who knew him. "Sic erat in fatis." But, while we bow in submission to the decree of Providence, let us profit by the admonition it conveys. Since the last session of Congress, seven members of this House and three of the Senate have been gathered to their fathers. We are, indeed, but "poor players, who fret and strut their hour upon the stage, and then are heard no more." If this feeling could be more deeply impressed upon us all, it would tend to soften the asperities of debate—to check all violent ebullitions of party spirit. When, tomorrow, we shall follow to the tomb the mortal remains of him who but so recently participated in our deliberations, would it not be well for each and every one of us, standing around his yet unclosed grave, silently to make the solemn pledge that no harsh recriminations, no personal altercations, no unseemly broils, shall hereafter desecrate the sanctity of this Hall?

Mr. S. concluded by offering the following resolutions, which were adopted unanimously:

Resolved, That the House has heard with deep emotion the announcement of the death of the Hon. Pierre E. Bossier, a member from the State of Louisiana.

Resolved, That this House tenders to the relatives of the deceased the expression of its sympathy on this afflicting event; and as a testimony of respect for the memory of the deceased, the members and officers will go into mourning, by wearing crape as the left arm for thirty days.

Resolved, That the members and officers of the House will attend the funeral of the Hon. Pierre E. Bossier, at 12 o'clock m. tomorrow.

Resolved, That a committee be appointed for superintending the funeral of the deceased.

Resolved, That when this House adjourns, it will adjourn to meet at 12 o'clock m. tomorrow.
And the house adjourned.

The National Intelligencer, April 26, 1844
Death of another member of Congress. The decease of another member of Congress, the Hon. Mr. Bossier of Louisiana announced in both houses and followed by the usual immediate adjournment, prevented any business being done in either House yesterday. Mr. Bossier had been ill for many weeks and for some time past not expected to survive his illness. His death occurred on Wednesday night and his funeral will take place today.

The funeral of the Hon. Mr. Bossier, late a Member of the House of Representatives took place yesterday from the Hall of Representatives. The funeral ceremonies were performed according to the rites of the Catholic Church in the faith of which Mr. Bossier lived and died. The sermon on the occasion was delivered by the Rev. Mr. Ryder.

Mrs. Bostwick Dead

Self-Inflicted Wounds in Throat Prove to Be Fatal

Mrs. Frances Bostwick, who attempted suicide last Friday morning in Marion Park southeast, by stabbing herself in the neck with a pair of scissors as published in The Star at the time, died yesterday afternoon at the Government Hospital for the Insane. Her death resulted from the injury inflicted by the scissors. The deceased was 58 years old and was under treatment at the asylum in 1898. When signs of a return of mental trouble were discovered last week her husband summoned his family physician and made arrangements for sending her to the asylum. She was to have been transferred to the institution Friday. Early in the morning, before daybreak, she left her home at 519 6th street southeast, in her night robe and made her way to the park, where she was found by Policeman Dent. She stabbed herself before the policeman reached her, and her explanation was that she had been told by a spirit to use the scissors.

The woman's husband, Mr. George Bostwick, is employed at the navy yard. He took charge of the remains today and the funeral will take place from the family residence.

His funeral will take place from the residence of his brother-in-law, 1719 5th street northwest on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The Evening Star, September 4, 1886
Locals
Yesterday afternoon, James Boswell, employed in shifting engine, No. 326, Baltimore and Potomac Railroad was severely scalded by the arch pipe blowing out on S. Capitol street. He was sent to Providence Hospital.

The Evening Star, September 6, 1886
Died of His Injuries
Mr. James Boswell, a fireman of the Baltimore and Potomac railroad, who, on Friday evening, was badly scalded by steam from an engine standing in the yard on Virginia avenue, near South Capitol street, died yesterday morning at Providence hospital from the effects of his injuries. The deceased was 24 years old, a native of South Washington. His funeral will take place from the residence of his brother-in-law, No. 1719 5th street northwest, tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Boswell, Jeremiah
On the morning of November 1, 1880 at half past 11 o'clock, Jeremiah Boswell, son of John W. and Sarah J Boswell, aged 20 months. The funeral will take place from his parent's residence, corner 12th street and New Jersey avenue s.e. at 2 o'clock, Wednesday November 3. Friends are respectfully invited to attend.

Boswell, John
Captain Jack Boswell, a well-known river man died in this city yesterday. He was formerly pilot of the steamer Wawaset and afterwards captain of the steamer Mary Washington.

The Evening Star, October 5, 1857
Painful Accident – Saturday, a young man named John Boswell, employed in Draper & Truman's planing and saw mill, on 12th street, near the bridge, had his hand cut through, severing the bones and flesh to the muscles on the back. He was pushing a piece of board about fourteen inches in length to the saw, and it slipped back and his hand came in contact with the saw while in motion. A physician was immediately sent for, and all that could be done for his relief was done, and he was removed to his home on Seventh street, near G. The physician is of the opinion that the hand may be saved.

Boswell, John C.
Drowned, on the 27th day of October, John C. Boswell, aged 46 years, 3 months and 12 days. Funeral Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. His friends are respectfully invited to attend his funeral.

Dear brother, God has called thee
To his heavenly home on high;
Where an angel band is waiting,
To bear thee far beyond the sky.

Thy voice is hushed, thy smile is gone
But oh! thy soul with God doth dwell;
How hard it was for us to part,
With him we love so well.

Sister and friends they all will miss thee,
And thy little nieces dear;
They all will miss thee,
Will fee the loss of you, dear John,
And cause them shed a many a tear.

But why should we thus complain
We know our dear friend is at rest;
God took him from this world of sin,
To dwell with Him, forever blest.

The Evening Star, October 28, 1864

Found Drowned

John C. Boswell, a watchman at the Alexandria Ferry, at the foot of 7th street, was missing about midnight last night, and was found drowned this morning near the Ferry wharf. An inquest was held and the jury rendered a verdict of accidental drowning.

Richard Boswell, who has for some time been in the employ of the Baltimore and Potomac railroad, was struck by a train at the intersection of Virginia avenue and E street southwest about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon and instantly killed. He was the watchman guarding the crossing at the time of the accident. There were two trains coming at the time and it is thought that in trying to avoid one train he stepped in the way of the other. His head was struck by a freight train going east and his skull was crushed. Boswell was about 50 years old and leaves a family. His remains were removed to the morgue, where they were viewed by Coroner Patterson. The accident will be investigated tomorrow.

Private Secretary to Postmaster General Howe

Announcement of the death of Robert S. Boswell, which occurred yesterday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock at his home, 148 E street northeast, was received this morning with expressions of deep regret at the city hall, where he had been employed for many years as court stenographer, and among his friends generally in the city. His death followed an illness of four months and was not unexpected. Mr. Boswell had been in failing health ever since he was stricken with illness while taking testimony in court last spring. The funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock from the late home of the deceased and the interment will be made in the Congressional cemetery.

Mr. Boswell was born in Washington fifty-five years ago. He was educated in the public schools of this city, but left school at an early age to engage in business as a clerk. He became a stenographer and was finally made a member of the corps of official Senate stenographers under Mr. Dennis Murphy. After leaving the Senate force Mr. Boswell became clerk to the District committee under the late Senator Ingalls. Subsequently Mr. Boswell was employed as private secretary to Mr. Timothy O. Howe when he was Postmaster General. A strong and lasting friendship developed between Mr. Howe and his secretary. For the past several years, as above stated, Mr. Boswell has been one of the court stenographers at the city hall.

Reported Important Trials

In the long period in which he was expert stenographer Mr. Boswell reported many of the most important murder trials in the country. Among the most notable of these was the Guiteau trial. By attorneys and court officials Mr. Boswell was regarded as a shorthand writer of exceptional ability and his services were in frequent demand when delicate and important legal work was to be recorded.

At the city hall this morning high tributes were paid to his character by prominent members of the bar. It was declared that he was a man of pure moral tone, without a stain resting upon his life.

In his youth he became a member of Christ P.E. Church on G street and taught in the Sunday school there for several years. He was devoted to his family, who are grief-stricken over his death.

Mr. Boswell married Miss Sallie A. Woodward, daughter of the late Amon Woodward of this city. His wife and one son, Mr. Herbert A. Boswell, a patent attorney of this city, and three daughters, Miss Gertrude A. Boswell, Miss Alice Boswell and Miss Gretna Boswell, survive him.

Death of 'NED' Boteler
Old Resident of East Washington Passes Away

Edward M. Boteler, who was engaged in business as an undertaker in East Washington for the past forty years, died about 4 o'clock this morning at his residence, 639 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, aged sixty-seven years.

Mr. Boteler had been a patient sufferer from sciatic rheumatism for twenty months or more. He was the son of John D. Boteler, a gunsmith, located on D street near 7th street, in the early part of last century, and was born at Vansville, Prince George county, Md. The family settled in East Washington about 1850, and the deceased learned the trade of carpenter and builder, which he followed a few years. At the outbreak of the civil war he entered the District three months' command, serving as a sergeant in Company B, 4th Battalion, Washington Light Guard, Capt. S.A.H. Marks, jr. After that service he established himself in the undertaking business as successor to Robert Clark, February 1, 1863, opposite the Marine barracks, subsequently moving to Pennsylvania avenue.

Mr. Boteler was for many years a member of the First Methodist Protestant Church, and was connected with a number of the associations of that part of the city, taking part in every effort for the improvement and advancement of the interests of the section. He was a member of Washington Naval Lodge of Masons and Farragut Post, G.A.R.

Mr. Boteler was three times married. His wife and three children -- Mrs. Ross Connell, Miss Lilly Boteler, a teacher in the public schools, and a son, Edward L. Boteler, who has been associated with him in business -- survive the deceased.

Few persons have made more friends in a community, it is claimed, than had the deceased. In fact, the popularity of "Ned" Boteler was not confined to his neighborhood, but he had a wide acquaintance throughout the city.

History of the Naval Lodge, No. 4, F.A.A.M.

Edward M. Boteler, who occupied the East during the years 1883-85, was born near Beltsville, Prince George's county, Md., March 20, 1840, and came to Washington in 1851; attended school for a number of years and then apprenticed himself to learn the trade of house carpenter, which occupation he followed until the breaking out of the Civil War when he enlisted in the three months' service April 17, 1861; after discharge resumed his trade until the Spring of 1863, at which time he purchased the undertaking business of Past Master Robert Clarke, and has been engaged in that line ever since. He was initiated in Naval Lodge Oct. 19, 1871; passed Nov. 16, 1871, and raised Dec. 21, 1871. He is also a Companion of Washington Naval R.A.M. Chapter, No. 6, having been exalted May 7, 1872, and served as High Priest in 1889 and 1893.

Boteler, Rev. John Wesley
The Evening Star, March 27, 1896
Rev. John Wesley Boteler Ill
Well-Known as a Minister and a Business Man
Rev. John Wesley Boteler, secretary of the Mutual Fire Insurance Company of the District, a well-known citizen, formerly actively engaged in the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, is critically ill at his residence, No. 227 2d street southeast, and his friends fear the worst. Mr. Boteler is one of the best-known preachers in the denomination. He entered the ministry under the old Baltimore conference of the M.E. Church in 1850, at the age of 21 years. He was the son of the late John D. Boteler, one of the old residents of Washington, and was born in this city in 1829. Two years after entering the conference he was transferred to the Iowa conference, and for several succeeding years was stationed at Dubuque and in other important cities. His health began to give way, however, and in 1858 he was at his own request, retransferred to the Baltimore conference, where he remained until 1861, when he left the latter and entered the Baltimore conference of the M.E. Church South, serving where assigned.

Soon after the outbreak of the war Mr. Boteler returned to Washington, and later became engaged in the shoe business, where he remained until elected secretary of the Mutual Fire Insurance Company, a position which he has held ever since. For many years he has held a supernumerary relation in the conference, and for several years has been very active in work at Epworth M.E. Church South, corner of 7th and A streets northeast, of which Rev. J.O. Knott is pastor. He was a member of the building committee of the new building of the latter, and one of the most liberal contributors to the enterprise.

Mr. Boteler's family consists of his wife, who was a Miss Prince of Virginia; two daughters, Mrs. Farny Maxson of Iowa, and Mrs. Gertrude Mason of Superior, Wis., and three sons, W.P., Harry L. and L. Pierce Boteler. The daughters and Mr. Harry L. Boteler, who is absent from the city, have been telegraphed for, and the latter and Mrs. Mason are expected to reach Washington today. Mr. Boteler also has two brothers, James E., a District officer, and E.M. Boteler, an undertaker of this city. Mr. Boteler has been seriously ill only since Sunday last. He was sick with the grip several weeks ago, but grew better and went to his office. Sunday, however, he was again taken ill.

Death of Rev. Mr. Boteler
The Sad News Announced at the Epworth Church Services Yesterday
Rev. John Wesley Boteler, the veteran and widely known minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, whose critical illness has been referred to from time to time in The Star for several weeks past, died last evening at his home, No. 227 2d street southeast, in his 67th year.

By a singular coincidence, the choir of Epworth M.E. Church South, of which Mr. Boteler was the beloved leader, were engaged in singing at the church one of Mr. Boteler's favorite hymns, "Forever With the Lord," at the very moment that the spirit of Mr. Boteler passed away.
The news of the death was sent to the church by a special messenger, who reached there just as Rev. Dr. Canter, who was officiating in the absence of the pastor, Rev. J.O. Knott, was about to pronounce the benediction. Dr. Canter announced the sad intelligence to the audience in feeling and appropriate language.

The news was a great shock to the members of the congregation, although it had been feared for some time that Mr. Boteler could not recover.

The funeral will take place, probably, tomorrow from Epworth Church, and the services will be in charge of Rev. J.O. Knott, though it is expected that Rev. Dr. Rumsey Smithson, presiding elder of Washington district; Rev. Dr. Canter of Mount Vernon Place Church and perhaps other ministers will participate.

As heretofore stated in a full sketch of the life of Mr. Boteler, which appeared in The Star about two weeks ago, the deceased entered the ministry in 1850. For many years, however, he has had a supernumerary relation in the conference, and has occupied the position of secretary of the Mutual Fire Insurance Company. He has, however, been quite prominent in church affairs, especially in connection with those of Epworth. Mr. Boteler leaves a widow, three sons and two daughters, all grown, and two brothers, Messrs. James E. and E.M. Boteler.

Death of a Guardsman
Lieut. Boteler of National Rifles Succumbs to Heart Disease
Lieut. Will P. Boteler of the National Rifles died Tuesday afternoon of heart trouble at his residence, 225 C street southeast. He was out as usual on Monday, the 21st instant, attending to business, and went home at his accustomed time at 5 o'clock in the afternoon to dinner. When he reached home he complained to his wife of a slight attack of indigestion. Subsequently, his condition growing alarmingly worse, his physician was called in, and diagnosed his case at once as heart trouble. Heroic efforts were immediately resorted to save his life, but without avail, death ensuing twenty-four hours afterward. Lieut. Boteler was well and favorably known in the business community of this city. He was born here, forty-one years since, and has lived a life of usefulness. He was a prominent member of Trinity Methodist Church, and was noted for his many charitable deeds, being always ready and willing to assist the poor and afflicted.

He was a lieutenant in the National Rifles and one of its most popular members. For twenty years he had been actively identified with that organization, was one of its charter members and a member of its board of directors. He had been for many years secretary of the Franklin Fire Insurance Company of this city, and enjoyed the confidence and esteem of that corporation for his well-known integrity, business qualifications and uprightness of character. His wife, formerly Miss Florence Gross, to whom he was married twelve months since, and one son, Mr. Shock Boteler, by a former marriage, survive him. His first wife was a granddaughter of Commodore W.H. Shock, U.S.N.

The untimely death of Lieut. Boteler will be sincerely mourned by a large circle of friends in this city. The National Rifles will meet this evening at the armory to take suitable action on his death. The arrangements for the funeral have not been completed.

Services Held Late This Afternoon--Tribute by His Comrades
The funeral of Lieutenant Will P. Boteler of the National Rifles of this city, whose death was announced in yesterday's Star, took place this afternoon at 3 o'clock from Epworth M.E. Church South, corner of 7th and A streets northeast.

The National Rifles held a special meeting last evening to take suitable action on the death of its deceased comrade, Lieut. Boteler. Capt. Glendle B. Young presided and almost the entire membership of the company was present. The commanding officer feelingly referred to the death of Lieut. Boteler, and eulogistic tributes were paid the deceased by Capt. James F. Oyster, Lieuts. George W. Evans, Joseph O. Manson, Willis B. Magruder and Sergt. Henry K. Simpson.

It was unanimously resolved that a special committee of three, consisting of Capt. Oyster, Lieut., Manson and Sergt. Simpson, should be appointed to draft proper resolutions of respect to the memory of Lieut. Boteler, and that the same be suitably engrossed and made a part of the records of the company and a copy furnished the family of the deceased.

It was also resolved that as a further mark of respect to the dead floral offerings be laid upon his coffin, that the flag of the armory building be placed at half-mast until after the burial and that Lieut. Boteler's picture hanging in the armory be draped in mourning for a full period of thirty days; also that the company in citizen's dress, attend the funeral in a body. Lieuts. Evans and Magruder were selected on the part of the company as pallbearers. The interment was made at Congressional cemetery.

| Bottomley, William A. | d. 23 Oct 1905 | 38 yrs. | R12/250 |
| The Evening Star, October 24, 1905 Murder and Suicide Double Tragedy Enacted in Southeast Washington Result of Jealousy Husband Finds Dead Wife and her Slayer Together William Bottomly Kills Mrs. Mary F. Scheitlin And Then Shoots Himself Another double tragedy was entered on the police annals of Washington last night as the result of the alleged unfaithfulness of a wife, following closely after a somewhat similar case in West Washington. According to the best evidence obtainable it appears that Mary Frances Scheitlin, aged 35 years, the wife of Rudolph B. Scheitlin, employed as an electrician in the navy yard, was murdered in her home, at 750 9th street southeast, by William Bottomy or Bottemby, 38 years of age, who is said to have been a frequent visitor at the Scheitlin home during the absence of the husband. After firing the fatal shots at Mrs. Scheitlin from a 38 caliber bulldog revolver the murderer turned the weapon on himself and committed suicide by shooting himself through the right temple. It was evident that death was almost instantaneous in both cases. Two shots were fired into the woman's head—one entering immediately behind the right ear and the other in the mouth. The sight which met the gaze of the husband when he entered his home late yesterday afternoon, after leaving his work in the navy yard, was a gruesome one. Lying on the floor of the parlor was his murdered wife, while stretched at her feet was the murderer and suicide, Bottomy. With the husband were several of his fellow employees of the navy yard who had come to his home with him. Detective's Investigation Detective Patrick O'Brien of headquarters, who was assigned to the case by Capt. Boardman, made an immediate investigation of the circumstances surrounding the double fatality. He learned that the murderer was what is known as a bar-room singer, and that he had been paying clandestine visits to Mrs. Scheitlin for a long time, against the protests of the husband. On the occasion of his visits he always brought liquor to the house and the two often indulged to the point of intoxication. The husband, finding that his protests against the visits of Bottomy were without avail, as he informed Detective O'Brien, he had determined to pack up his effects and leave her November 1. He added that he had... | informed her that if she preferred the fellow Bottomy, with his ribald songs and his strong drink, to a true and industrious husband, he would leave the place for all time.

When Mr. Scheitlin first entered his home about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon and saw Bottomy and his wife stretched out on the floor, he believed that they were both drunk. He saw blood about the place, but decided that it was the result of the man and woman falling or engaging in a fight. He therefore went out to look for a policeman to have them taken from his home. He found Policemen Thompson and Price, and they went with him to the house.

It was quickly discovered that a murder and suicide had been committed. Bottomy was found with his head lying across the woman's breast, and the police believe he had placed his ear against her body after shooting her to see if she had stopped breathing before he fired the shot into his own head. The revolver was found at the dead woman's feet where it had fallen from the hand of the murderer. The bodies were sent to the morgue.

Police Theory

It is the theory of the police that on the occasion of the visit of Bottomy to the Scheitlin home yesterday he had words with the woman; that as the time was drawing near for the husband to return from his place of employment, the woman urged the man to depart, as she had informed a friend that Rudolph had threatened to leave her on November 1, and she was going to be good and try to cause him to change his mind and live again happily with her. It is believed that Bottomy resented this and opposed her decision to try and live a wifely life with her lawful husband. She stuck to her determination, it is thought, and he in a drunken frenzy fired the fatal shots. When found by the policeman, he bore evidence of having been under the influence of liquor, and the remains of a pint of whisky were found in a flask in his pocket.

The wife had returned to her sober senses and realized that her husband was going to leave her, and that Bottomly could not support her, and she made the decision which is thought to have resulted in her death and that of the man who had caused her all the trouble.

Mr. Scheitlin informed Detective O'Brien that he believed the man had been calling on his wife for some time, and that he had heard things since her death which he had not heard before of their transactions. He also said his wife was a good woman except at those times when she indulged in intoxicants. She had more than once threatened to leave her husband when he chided her for her misconduct, and on several occasions had taken the pictures from the wall preparatory to carrying out her threat. She was engaged in hanging pictures on the wall and tidying up the house to make a good impression on her husband when Bottomly called and the tragedy took place.

Soldier in War With Spain

Rudolph B. Scheitlin, the husband was a Spanish war soldier, having been the first man to enlist in Company F, 1st District of Columbia Volunteers, in 1898. He served in the Cuban campaign with honor. At the close of the war he married Mary Frances Smith, daughter of Wylie Smith of Brick Church Station, near Upper Marlboro, Md. After securing employment in the navy yard he established a modest little home at 750 9th street southeast, and lived happily until Bottomly and strong drink came in, and then, it is said, happiness and content went out.

"At last," said Scheitlin, sadly, "I almost lost hope, and finally determined to leave my wife for good."

Since his wife's death the husband has learned, so he told Detective O'Brien, that Bottomy's clandestine visits have continued for about two years. On several occasions when he found the invader at his home he had requested the police to remove him.

Mrs. Scheitlin was evidently in the act of hanging a picture on the wall in the process of tidying up her home and restoring happiness, when Bottomly shot her from behind, and she tumbled, dying, to the floor.

Bottomly was not given a good reputation by the police when they were asked about him today. The husband Scheitlin, is said to be a grandson of John Hitz, the first Swiss consul in Washington.

Coroner J. Ramsey Nevitt today gave certificates of murder and suicide in the cases. Mr. Scheitlin had his wife's remains taken to Nally's undertaking establishment on 11th street southeast, and says he will give her a Christian burial. The body of Bottomly was still at the morgue at a late hour this afternoon.

Interments in the Historic Congressional Cemetery
The Hall of Representatives was yesterday witness to one of the most solemn and affecting scenes that ever occurred in any Legislative Body.

Mr. Bouldin, a distinguished Representative from the State of Virginia, having risen to speak on the Deposite Question, had uttered but a few sentences, when he was observed to falter in his speech, and, after a momentary struggle, fell, and in a few minutes expired!

The House, of course, adjourned instantaneously; and, on being informed of the melancholy occurrence, the Senate did the same.

We shall not here anticipate the notice due to the character of the deceased, nor anticipate the friend, whoever it may be, whose duty it will be to pronounce his eulogy.

It is not to be expected, after the melancholy occurrence of yesterday, that any business will be attempted today in either House of Congress, besides taking order for the Funeral.

It was a striking instance, indeed, that Mr. Bouldin should have been struck by the hand of Death at the moment of his allusion to the decease of the eminent citizen who was elected to succeed him. But died before the meeting of Congress. It is not supposed, however, that his solemn visitation could have been brought about by any mental association of the memory of the deceased with the actual position of the living Representative. This remark is hazarded because it happened to one of the Editors to have casually conversed with Mr. Bouldin on this very subject, at the time of the motion, by one of the Representatives of South Carolina, in honor of the memory of a deceased colleague. Mr. B. appeared desirous to do what was proper in honor of the memory of his colleague, but drew the obvious distinction between his case and that of Mr. Singleton, that the latter died on his way to take his seat in Congress, and after the opening of the session, whilst not only the death of Mr. Randolph had occurred several months before Congress met, but a successor to him had been elected, and was called, at the opening of the session. This appeared to the writer to be the only ground which Mr. Bouldin refrained from what he appeared to be otherwise desirous of doing. The coincidence, however, is not therefore the less (but rather the more) remarkable.

It was a distressing circumstance that the lady of Judge Bouldin was in the gallery of the House yesterday, and a beholder of the appalling scene!

Thomas Tyler Bouldin, whose sudden demise, while in the act of addressing the House of Representatives, has filled all minds and hearts with solemnity and awe, was one amongst the most distinguished sons of Virginia. At the bar, for his was the learned profession of the law, he occupied for years the foremost rank in all the courts in which he practiced; and upon the bench, to which he was elevated by the votes of the two Houses of Assembly of his native State, he very soon acquired the reputation of a profound reasoner, an able jurist, and an upright judge. After several years service in that station, the people of his district called upon him to lay down his judicial functions, and to assume those of their representative in Congress. He responded to their wishes, and was elected the successor of the late Mr. Randolph. Bringing with him to that high station a mind deeply and profoundly imbued with the truths of political science -- a heart devoted to the principles of free government, and filled with the most generous sensibilities -- a deportment amiable and exemplary -- and a disposition conciliatory and benevolent, it is not to be wondered at, that he possessed, at the same time, the confidence and affection of all who knew him. Many, very many, are afflicted by his loss, and his constituents are deprived of an able, talented, and honest representative. In his public course he was governed by no selfish policy; he looked only to the good of the country, and of the whole country. Content to move in the sphere appointed him by his constituents, he looked to no higher advancement -- if there be a higher -- and, resting on the broad basis of principle, the constitution and laws were the only lights to which he looked for the regulation of his footsteps. His death may be regarded more as a subject of sorrow to his numerous connections and friends, than on his own account. He died at his post, and in the discharge of his duty. On the argument he was about to deliver, he had deeply pondered; and, if its delivery had comported with the decree of an all-wise Providence, it would, as is firmly believed, have constituted an additional claim to public gratitude.
He lived and died an honest man, and; beyond that, there is nothing on earth worthy the aspirations of a noble and generous mind.

Bouligny. Saturday, February 20, 1864, Hon. John E. Bouligny of New Orleans, Louisiana. His funeral will take place from the residence of George Parker, corner 4 1/2 and C streets, Monday, February 23d at 3 1/2 o'clock. His friends and those of the family are respectfully invited to attend (Baltimore, New York, and New Orleans please copy).

The Evening Star, February 22, 1864

Hon. John E. Bouligny, who died at the residence of his father-in-law, Mr. Parker, corner of 4 1/2 and C streets, will be buried this afternoon, and religious services will be held at Trinity Church. Mr. Bouligny was born in New Orleans in 1824, and belonged to one of the oldest Creole families of Louisiana. He was elected to the U.S. Congress in 1859, and in the memorable struggle by which the rebels attempted to sever the Union, he nobly and gallantly defended the same by his instinctive patriotism and love of country. He remained true to the principles of the Union to his last hour. He was a nephew of the first Senator from Louisiana.

The Evening Star, June 1, 1861

Mr. J.E. Bouligny

The New Orleans Letter of the 21st says: We were called upon yesterday by Mr. J.E. Bouligny, who has just returned from Washington, bringing with him his wife and child. Mr. Bouligny asks us to state, and we comply with his request with sincere pleasure, that there is no truth whatever in the statements in the Northern papers in relation to his conduct while away from this city. So far from being at Perryville, drilling Northern volunteers, he has never been near that place; nor did he make any such statements as are attributed to him, concerning the state of public opinion in Louisiana. He authorizes us to state that he fully appreciates and recognizes the changed situation of the country, and the absolute disappearance of the issue which existed a few months since. In the momentous struggle with the North, he is on the side of the South, and of the State in which he was born. The Northern papers seemed to be highly delighted with the alleged defection for their unholy cause of an ex-Louisiana Congressman. We can tell them that when they really find such a person his name will not be Bouligny.

A Brilliant Wedding

Yesterday, at noon, the Hon. J.E. Bouligny, M.C. from Louisiana was united in marriage to Miss Mary Elizabeth Parker, the second daughter of our well-known fellow-citizen, Mr. George Parker. The ceremony took place at the residence of the bride's father, and the officiating clergyman was the Rev. Mr. Butler, the pastor of Trinity (Episcopal) Church. The guests witnessing the ceremony, though not very numerous, embraced a number of gentlemen in distinguished public positions here and their families, the President (Buchanan), Secretaries Cobb, Thompson and Foucey among them. The bridesmaids were Miss Fanny Parker (a sister of the bride), Miss Hamilton of New York, Miss Catlin of New York, Miss Alice Maury and Miss Sarah Franklin, of this city, and Miss Hammond, a daughter of Senator Hammond of South Carolina; and the groomsmen were Dr. Parker, Sheriff of New Orleans; John Maury, Esq. of this city; the Hon. Messrs. Ruffin of North Carolina, Edmonston of Virginia and Miles of South Carolina, of the House of Representatives, and another gentleman from Louisiana, whose name we have not learned. The bride is said to have been attired with most exquisite taste—in point lace over a white satin dress, with a point lace veil, and orange flowers in her hair, and rich sparkling diamonds in the ornaments she wore. Shortly after the ceremony the reception took place, which was attended by a large concourse of the fashionable friends of Mr. Parker's family and those of his new son-in-law, their equipages lining C and Four-and-a-half streets for a long distance. A sumptuous entertainment was prepared for the company, and an exquisite string band discoursed delicious music from the conservatory attached to the dwelling. At 3 p.m., the reception closed, and, subsequently the gay wedding party dined together at Mr. Parker's. We hear that the happy pair start today on a Northern wedding tour. This was perhaps the most brilliant wedding that has ever taken place in the Federal Metropolis.

Oh! our darling boy is dead;
How o't he made our bosoms glad;
No more to hear his little voice,
No more to we'll see his little face.
His little chair is vacant now,
There is none to fill his place;
He was our darling blue eyed boy
He was our darling price.
We loved him, Oh! perhaps too much,
For soon he slept and died.
Farewell now our hearts fond treasure,
Farewell till this life is o'er;
When hand in hand we will have pleasure
Of rambling on the shining shore.
His Father and Mother
The funeral will take place from his parents' residence, No. 503 Second street southwest, on Thursday, May 8th at 2 o'clock p.m. Friends and relatives are respectfully invited to attend. (Detroit daily papers please copy).

Reveille in Washington (1860-1865), Margaret Leech
p. 309 -- Russian Fleet in port

"It had been hoped that Mrs. Lincoln would give a grand ball for the Russian officers; but the only entertainment of the White House was a reception given on the even of their departure. The President had been prevented by illness from attending any of the functions in honor of the strangers. He had returned from Gettysburg in poor health. At first, he was thought to be bilious; but, by the time he was ready to submit his congressional message to the Cabinet, he was aware that he was suffering from a mild form of smallpox. His advisers did not flinch from the summons to the White House, but their meeting was a proof of patriotism, for smallpox was epidemic in Washington, and not all the cases were light. The scare spread, while the capital celebrated the holidays with eggnogs and feasting, and thronged shops and theatres and parties. People fled in terror from the streetcars at the sign of a mottled complexion. Many of the sick were carried to Kalorama Hospital, but there was no systematic program of isolation. Delirious Negoes stumbled through the streets, and died on doorsteps and in police stations. Senator Bowden of West Virginia died of smallpox, and Congress grew alarmed. Whispers that one of the House press gallery had paid a visit to the pesthouse caused such excitement in the press gallery that Speaker Colfax asked the man to leave. Physicians offered free vaccination to all who were unable or unwilling to pay for it. The smallpox hospital at the abandoned contraband camp on Twelfth Street was set on fire as a precautionary measure."

Sayles J. Bowen Dead
Once Mayor of Washington--The Funeral Tomorrow
Sayles J. Bowen died yesterday afternoon at his residence, 3055 Q street after a long illness. He was conscious up to the last, although he had lost the power of speech. His wife and Miss Bently, a step-daughter, were at the bedside of the dying man. Funeral services will be held at the residence tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Byron Sunderland will officiate, and the interment will be at Congressional cemetery.

Mr. Bowen was born in Scipio, Cayuga county, N.Y., October 7, 1813. He was educated in the common schools and taught school for several years, working on his father's farm in the summer. In 1838 he engaged in the mercantile pursuits and seven years later he removed his residence to this city, having secured a clerkship in the Treasury Department. In 1848 he resigned and engaged in the claims business. In 1861 he was appointed a police commissioner of the District, and after holding this place for a few months he resigned and became disbursing clerk of the Senate. In 1862 he was made collector of internal revenue for the District and in the following year he was appointed postmaster of this city, a position he held for five years. In 1868, he was elected mayor of the city, and upon the expiration of his term was a candidate for re-election, but was defeated by what was known at the good citizens' movement, which resulted in the choice of Mr. Matthew G. Emery. He had a great deal of influence with the colored people of the District, who gave him their support in the local political contests.

The following have been selected as pallbearers, A.A. Birney, A.M. Gangewer, Chief Engineer E.D. Roble, U.S.N.; Z. Moses, Appleton P. Clark and James E. Bell.

Upon the resignation of Lewis Clephane as postmaster, Sayles J. Bowen, who had been a resident of Washington for about eighteen years, succeeded him, the date of the appointment being March 16, 1863. He was born in the township of Scipio, Cayuga County, New York, October 7, 1813, and died in Washington City, December 16, 1896, in his eighty-fourth year. His parents were from Massachusetts, and were among the first settlers in Cayuga County. He assisted his father in the labors of the farm, received a good education in Aurora Academy, and taught school from the age of seventeen during the winter months. From 1838 until 1842 he was engaged in mercantile pursuits, after which he removed south, and in 1845, during the administration of James K. Polk, he was appointed to a clerkship in the Treasury Department. From this place he was removed in 1848 when he went into business of prosecuting claims against the government, in which he was unusually successful. From 1856 to 1860 he was in politics, supporting the Republican party, and on the election of Abraham Lincoln was taken into his confidence. In 1861 he was appointed commissioner of police for the District of Columbia – a place then of great responsibility – and in the same year was made disbursing officer of the Senate. In 1862 he became collector of internal revenue for the district, and he held this post until March 16, 1863. When, as above stated, he received the appointment of postmaster. During the war all the mails for the Army of the Potomac originated at or were distributed through the Washington office, increasing enormously its duties and responsibilities; yet during Mr. Bowen’s administration everything was done by him efficiently and faithfully, and to the satisfaction of the government and the public. He remained postmaster until July, 1868, when he resigned, to become the mayor of Washington, to which office he had been elected by popular vote.

In 1870, running again for the office of mayor, he was defeated, after which he ceased to hold any public place of prominence. In his extreme old age, he was somewhat straitened in his means, so much so that he was compelled to seek an humble situation in the department where he had first become publicly known. He was a great friend of the colored people, advocating the establishment of schools for their education, and spending $20,000 of his own money for their support. He was also the friend of the poor and unfortunate of all races, and aided them in every way possible. Mr. Bowen was a man of temperate and excellent habits, true in his friendships, and faithful to duty. In the several positions held by him he disbursed many millions of government money, yet not a dollar was misappropriated, or failed of being legally and justly accounted for. In religion he was a Unitarian. He was married July 2, 1835, to Miss Mary Barker, daughter of John A. Barker, of Venice, Cayuga County, N.Y., a lady of very estimable character, who died June 2, 1882. Two years afterward – May 27, 1884 – he was married to Mrs. Bessie Bentley, of Morristown, New Jersey. He left no children by either wife. He was rather tall and well built, of a mild and benevolent aspect, was slow in all his motions, guarded and deliberate in speech, and very strong and pertinacious in his convictions. During part of his public career he was quite unpopular, but, taken in its entirety, his life was that of an upright, conscientious man, who gained and deserved the favorable regard of his countrymen.

During the entire term of Mr. Bowen as postmaster the office remained in the Post Office Department building on the F Street side. The revenue was not nearly so great as during Mr. Clephane” incumbency, the receipts for 1868, the last year of his term, being slightly over $111,000.

Three very great changes in the postal system, bringing about the most advantageous results to the public, occurred during his term. The first was the abandonment of the old penny-post system, which had existed from colonial times, and the substitution of the free-delivery system, by act of Congress of March 3, 1863, under which uniformed letter-carriers, getting a regular salary from the government, are required to make delivery of mail matter, and to collect from established boxes throughout the city, without direct charge to the patrons of the post-office. The second change was the introduction of the money-order system, in November, 1864, under the act of Congress of May 17 of that year – a system whose business has grown throughout the country from about four million dollars of issued orders in 1865 to nearly three hundred and thirty-seven million in the present year, and which extends to nearly all the countries of the world. The third change was the introduction of what is called the return-request system, under which the sender of a letter, by a designated form of request made upon it, may have it returned to him free of charge in any prescribed time, in case of its non-delivery. These several changes, it need not be told, added very largely to the work of the office.

There is mourning on earth, but rejoicing in Heaven
To the bright band of Angels another is given;
Our Father now calls one more jewel His own.
And hath set it to shine in His radiant throne.
When her pure spirit from its clay tenement passed,
The pearly gate of Paradise open was cast,
And the welcome stole out from the home of the blest,
"Enter in, sinless soul! Enter into thy rest!"

Distressing Suicide

About 8 o'clock last evening a distressing suicide took place at Lincoln hospital, the victim being a young man named Lemuel W. Boyd, who has been in conjunction with Mr. W.H. Mason, keeping a sutlers' stand at that place form some time past. The deceased committed the deed with a single barreled Wayson pistol, the ball entering below his left nipple, causing his death in a few moments. He was about twenty years of age and has hitherto borne a high character. Yesterday he appeared in his usual spirits, but the following letter shows that he must have made up his mind to destroy himself sometime before the commission of the deed. The letter was sent by him yesterday afternoon through a soldier to Miss Emma Kelly, a young lady of the First Ward, and in compliance therewith she hastened to the spot in company with her brother Michael, but found that he had already committed the act which put an end to his life:

Lincoln Hospital, January 13th, 1864 -- Emma Dear: If you wish to see me and hear a dying man's love come and see me immediately or you will not see me at all. Get your father or some one to come with you: do not come alone, and oblige.
Your only true, Lemuel Boyd.
Farewell Emma, and may God bless you.
L.W. Boyd.

You will please look in my coat pocket and get a letter.

This letter, we hear, was sent late in the afternoon, and as the carriage containing the lady and brother was approaching the deceased was standing at the door of his establishment, and seeing them he retired into the back room, and in a few moments a report of a pistol was heard, when the bystanders rushed in and found the young man in a dying condition, with a wound as above described, which caused his death in a few moments.

The following is a copy of the letter found in his pocket:

January 13th, 1864, Lincoln General Hospital -- I, Lemuel W. Boyd, of Washington, do hereby give this building and one-half of what is in it to Mrs. Ann C. Craig; of the following articles that will be found with this. I do this to keep all persons from taking what's in the building.
Lemuel W. Boyd
January 13th, 1864

The deceased was about twenty years of age, and has heretofore resided with his mother, near Ford's Theater. He is a member of the Franklin Fire Company. The surgeons at the hospital were promptly on the spot, and did all in their power to save his life. Officer Keating this morning went out and brought in the witnesses, who made affidavit before Justice Cull, and the body is awaiting the inquest of the coroner.

The Evening Star, January 15, 1864

Inquest.

Coroner Woodard yesterday afternoon held an inquest on the body of Leonard W. Boyd who killed himself as stated in the Star yesterday and after examining the witnesses, a verdict was rendered that he came to his death from a wound by a pistol in his own hands.

Funeral

Saturday, the funeral of the late L.W. Boyd, the circumstances attending whose death have already been published in the Star, took place from his mother's residence on Tenth street and was attended by the family and friends, among whom was a delegation of the Franklin Fire Company, whose bell was tolled in respect to his memory. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. John Thrush, and his remains were interred in the Congressional Cemetery.

Boyd, Martha M., wife of the late Dr. William Boyd and mother of William J. Ledru R. and Charles A.B. Boyd. Funeral from residence of her son William J. Boyd, 323 13th street s.e. on Monday, December 5 at 2:30 p.m. Friends and relatives respectfully invited to attend.

Boyd, Mary Geneva, only daughter of Ledru R. and the late Lizzie Boyd in the 16th year of her age. Funeral will take place from the residence of her uncle, C.A.B. Boyd, 425 7th street southeast on Tuesday, January 21 at 2 o'clock p.m. Friends and relatives are invited to attend.

Corp. Samuel L. Boyd of the United States marine corps was truck by the Atlantic City special train due here last night at 7 o'clock and almost instantly killed. The accident occurred near Magruder station, on Pennsylvania railroad, not far from the Ordway rifle range, where the marines had been engaged in target practice. Boyd and several of his companions started from the rifle range to go to the station, and just before reaching the tracks the Atlantic City special came in sight. Thinking the train would stop to take them aboard, Boyd ran across the tracks to reach the platform before the train made the stop. The fast-moving express struck him and threw him more than one hundred feet from the tracks. His companions ran to his assistance. They were greatly shocked at the horrible sight presented. One leg of their companion had been almost severed and his body was badly mangled. His remains were brought here on the train that had inflicted the fatal injuries.

The body was removed to the morgue, Coroner Nevitt decided not to hold an inquest, as the accident occurred in Prince George's county, Md. The Maryland authorities were notified, but it is hardly probable that they will take any action, the body having been taken out of their jurisdiction.

Corporal Boyd was a general favorite with the men at the barracks. He was a native of California, and had served nearly one term of enlistment. His term would have exiried this fall, and he had intended then to return to the home of his parents in San Francisco.

Boyd was stationed on the flagship Olympia, and was one of Admiral Dewey's orderlies during the battle of Manila bay. Today the authorities at the marine barracks took charge of the remains and notified Boyd's relatives of the fatal accident. It is likely that the interment will be at Arlington.

Boyd, William, well-known as an earnest anti-slavery man, and before the war one of the most active workers of the underground railroad, by which slaves were secretly taken to the free states, died yesterday at his residence in South Washington, aged 64 years. Dr. Boyd, as he called himself, was a native of the north of Ireland, and was by trade a tailor. He came here over thirty five years ago, and although at that time there was scarcely a thought of freeing the slaves he boldly proclaimed his sentiments, and soon became known as such a friend to the colored race that he would take any chances to aid a slave to obtain his freedom. Holding extreme views as an atheist, and, being radical in the temperance cause as well, he associated himself, about 1856 or 1857, with Wollford Stone, Amon Duvall, Wm. Biddleman, B. Chambers, sr., W.W. Levy, W.P. Wood and W.A. Bargy (all of whom are now dead excepting Messrs. Levy and Wood), and formed a club or association, one of the objects of which was to advance the cause of the freedom of slaves. They met for a long time in Temperance hall (now Marini's), on E street, but they were not united in sentiment, some of them--Chambers, Levy and Wood--being opposed to extreme measures and rather in favor of preventing the spread of slavery than destroying it. Dr. Boyd advocated running off the slaves one by one, and determined to engage in the work himself, and when a runaway arrived he generally was secreted by Boyd till he got his wagon--one with a false bottom, in which the runaway could hide--ready, and then he would start, apparently to buy up country produce, and would make his way to the Pennsylvania line. Other members of the organization knew of this work, and when Dr. Boyd was serving a sentence for kidnapping they aided his family. The inauguration of Mr. Lincoln found Dr. Boyd imprisoned in the penitentiary, and a strong petition having been presented to the Present, he was pardoned. His friends had also, though the influence of Hon. Owen Lovejoy, secured the employment of Dr. Boyd's son as a page in the House of Representatives to enable him to support the family--a mother and daughter, besides the father and son. During the John Brown agitation the friends of Brown frequently stopped with Boyd, but they advised against Brown's scheme. When Brown was holding Harper's Ferry one of his men, who had left him there, came here and was kept close by Boyd for some days, and the latter calling Senator Sumner's attention to the fact, the Senator furnished the means for his escape.

During the war Boyd was, as might be expected, an earnest Union man, and was active in organizing the republican ward clubs, particularly the 7th ward club, and under the Bowen regime he served one term in the board of common council. Of late years he has made a business selling herb medicines and dealing in produce. Dr. Boyd, soon after the war, was pointed out to some soldiers as a negro worshiper, and he was badly beaten by them, losing one eye, and he never fully recovered. He was struck with paralysis about ten months ago, since which time he has been more or less an invalid.

One of the First Underground Railroad Exploits of Boyd was in 1848. Slaves belonging to citizens of this District and members of Congress had been mysteriously missed for sometime, and considerable uneasiness was felt and people were on the alert. Boyd had been suspected, and on this occasion, Capt. Goddard, of the auxiliary guard, was out in the county looking for the underground railway. The slaves had been missed, and quite a commotion had been raised throughout the city. Capt. Goddard and his posse got on the trail of them in Montgomery county, Md., and came up with Boyd's carriage in the night, and ordered a halt, Boyd giving no attention to the order except to cut his horses with the whip, putting them in a lively trot. Taking advantage of a steep hill, Capt. Goddard took a fence-rail from the side of the road and ran it through the spokes of the hind wheels of the vehicle and locked them. Possession was at once taken of the team and its contents, and all were brought back to the tavern corner 8th and D streets. The slaves were returned to their owners, and Boyd was sent to the penitentiary. The vehicle he used had been built for the purpose--a covered wagon, built very strong for country travel, and made bullet-proof up as high as a person's head would reach while seated. This carriage was an object of much curiosity for some time.

The Funeral of Dr. Boyd
The funeral of the late William Boyd took place at his residence on Virginia avenue at two o'clock this afternoon. The deceased was not a believer in Christianity, and, in accordance with his wishes, the services of a clergyman were dispensed with. Dr. Smith, a spiritualist and friend of the deceased, made a short address to the persons assembled, and at its close the body was removed to its last resting place.

Desperate Riot
Brutal Assault upon Negroes by Soldiers!!
Houses Quitted and Property Destroyed!!
Dr. Wm. Boyd Assailed and Terribly Injured by the Rioters!!
Between 11 and 12 o'clock today a desperate disturbance occurred in the shape of a murderous assault by a number of soldiers said to belong to one of the brigades of the 20th corps upon a number of inoffending colored people of the Seventh Ward. From the best data that can be obtained, it appears that this brigade were this morning on the east side of the canal between the bridges of Maryland and Virginia avenues, awaiting a conveyance train en route to Louisville, and that during the morning a number of the men visited the disreputable houses and tippling houses (occupied by white and colored) in Pear Tree Alley and adjacent places, where they indiscriminately attacked the inmates, driving them from their houses, breaking up their furniture, and helping themselves to liquor and edibles. The crowd numbered from 150 to 200 and they commenced to knock in the doors of houses as they proceeded in their riotous course, some twenty or more having provided themselves with axes, breaking up the furniture, etc.
In Chinch Row, situated in the square between 1st and 2d streets and Virginia avenue and D street, every door and window was broken, the terrified inmates barely getting away in time to save themselves. The rioters showed particular animosity against the colored people, and the sight of one of them was the signal for a rush at him, and when unfortunately any fell into their hands they did not escape without being robbed of what money they had, and they were besides badly beaten in almost every case. This crowd went through 2d and 3d streets, taking in their range the alleys near by, beating all colored folks they met and helping themselves to what they wished in the houses, particularly those occupied by people of color, who, at last having borne with their treatment until forbearances ceased to be a virtue, they resisted, when a fight occurred, the soldiers using revolvers as also did the colored people in self defense, for a time the reports being so quick that they sounded as if a battle was going on.

The soldiers stopped at the saloon of Ben Bowzer, colored, at the corner of Virginia avenue and 1st street, and while some of them robbed him of his watch and money and beat him, others helped themselves to his ice cream, cakes, etc. Here it was that the biggest fight took place, a number of the negroes going to the protection of Bowzer, and bricks, stones and balls flew thick and fast. Dr. Wm. Boyd, living near, went out with a revolver in hand, and commanded peace, when a soldier struck him in the face with a brick, fracturing the cheek and jaw bones in a terrible manner, and also destroying the sight of one eye. Others of the soldiers made a rush for him, and one was in the act of cleaving his head open with an ax, when a number of women stepped in and succeeded in persuading them to spare his life.

The soldiers and the colored people fought for some time in F street, first one party being victorious and then the other until the guard stationed on 4 1/2 street (Hancock's 5th regiment) made their appearance, and soon restored order.

Sergeant Hepburn, of the tenth precinct police, was on the ground promptly with officers Weeden, Walsh, and others, but they were unable, outnumbered as they were, to do anything effectual to restore peace.

A messenger was at once dispatched to Col. Ingraham, Provost Marshal, who promptly sent a guard to the scene of the disturbance, and set about arresting the rioters.

It is impossible at this time to tell how many and who have been injured besides Dr. Boyd.

It is said that one of the soldiers had his bowels ripped open and that two or three others were shot. It is also reported that 7 or 8 colored people who were attacked in their houses were very badly hurt.

Dr. C.M. McCoy was in attendance on Dr. Boyd, and expresses the opinion that it may be necessary to remove most of the bones on the injured side of the face.

The Evening Star, June 12, 1865

The Riot on Saturday

On Saturday afternoon, the force of Veteran Reserves, under the command of Captain Bush, which was dispatched to the scene of the riotous proceedings in the Seventh Ward by Col. Ingraham, Provost Marshal, at the request of Superintendent Richards, aided by a detachment of Hancock's 5th regiment and the police of the tenth precinct, in charge of Sergeant Hepburn, succeeded in restoring quiet. A strong guard was posted throughout that section of the city, and all soldiers without passes or other authority were arrested or taken to their camps. The place, when the guard arrived, was filled with loitering gangs of soldiers, some of whom gave the guards to understand that they intended to clean and burn out Pear Tree, Fighting and other noted alleys in that locality that night, but the transportation being ready for them before night, they left, and thus any renewal of the disturbance was avoided.

Capt. Bush, with the reservers, and Sergt. Hepburn, with the police, while taking measures to prevent a repetition of the disorderly scenes, made an investigation as to the origin of the affair in the morning. It is alleged that it originated from some of the prostitutes of that locality blackguarding some soldiers, who becoming enraged attacked the houses, drove out the inmates and smashed up the furniture. The disturbance would have perhaps stopped here, but for the instigation of some of the notorious "bummers," of Georgia renown, who joined the soldiers and pointed out to them the houses of the colored people as objects to be attacked, and forthwith all such were broken into and pillaged. The names of some of these parties are int he possession of the police and the officers will bring them up to answer for their rascally deeds.

During the afternoon officers Weeden, Sessford, James, Barker, and Wallingsford, aided by the military, arrested the following persons and took them to the station where yesterday Justice Roswell disposed of their cases: Mary Jane Taylor, Till Light, Cornelia Tyler, Caroline Snyder, and Julia Fleet, keepers of the
Dr. Boyd, whose injuries we noticed on Saturday, lies in a critical condition, there being but little hopes of his recovery, and yesterday, anticipating his death, he took an affecting leave of his family. There are none others very seriously injured in the row, although a number were bruised by stones etc.

Taken Suddenly Ill on Street Car

William J. Boyd, an electrotyper employed at the government printing office, east shortly after 7 o'clock this morning while on his way to work.

Mr. Boyd, who was sixty-three years of age, left his home at 323 13th street southeast shortly after 7 o'clock this morning and walked up 13th street northeast to East Capitol street, where he boarded a street car. While on the car he became suddenly ill.

At 1st and East Capitol streets several passengers lifted him from the car and placed him on the lawn of the Congressional apartment house. The Emergency Hospital ambulance and a cab were summoned.

He died before aid reached him. The body was later taken to the morgue to await an investigation.

Health Had Been Good

Mr. Boyd had not for some time complained of illness, and last night was in the best of spirits. For the greater part of the evening he was in the parlor of his home singing hymns to his daughter.

This morning, however, he complained of a pain in his chest. The members of his family did not feel the least alarm, and his death came to them as a great shock.

Mr. Boyd was born in Newport, England, in 1845. He came to Washington from England with his parents, William and Martha Boyd, when he was five years of age. About twenty-five years ago he entered the employ of the government in the government printing office, where he had remained ever since.

An Oldest Inhabitant

He was a member of the Association of the Oldest Inhabitants, having become a member during the early part of this year. He was also a member of Union Lodge, No. 22, Knights of Pythias, being past grand chancellor of the lodge. Mr. Boyd was prominent in temperance circles in this city, but was forced to give up that work several years ago because of his age. He was a member of the Fifteenth Street Christian Church.

His wife, Mrs. William J. Boyd, and four children, Mrs. Ollie C. Browne, Mrs. Elsie Crocker, George T.S. Boyd and William H.E. Boyd, survive him. The funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Funeral of William J. Boyd
Services at Family Residence at 3 o'clock This Afternoon

The funeral of William J. Boyd, who died while on his way to work Monday morning, took place at 3 o'clock this afternoon from his late residence, 323 13th street southeast, Rev. J.E. Stuart, pastor of the Fifteenth Street Christian Church, conducted the services. Mr. Boyd was an active worker in the church and had devoted considerable time to the advocacy of the temperance cause.

The pallbearers, representing the Association of the Oldest Inhabitants, of which the deceased was a member, were: William B. Marche, John F. Donohoe, John R. Mahoney, A.H. Ragan, W.P. Linton and William H. Braund. Other pallbearers represented other organizations with which Mr. Boyd was connected.

Interment was made in Congressional cemetery.

Boyle. On Tuesday, May 22, 1894, at 2 o'clock p.m. at his residence, 131 Jefferson street, Anacostia, D.C., Augustus French Boyle, aged 76 years 3 months and 2 days, after a lingering illness.

The Evening Star, May 23, 1894
A.F. Boyle Dead

Writer and Teacher of the Art of Phonography

Augustus French Boyle died yesterday afternoon, at his residence, 131 Jefferson street, Anacostia, in the seventy-seventh year of his age. He was born in Plymouth, England, on February 20, 1818, at a suburb known as Stone House, where the Royal Naval Hospital, of which his father was surgeon in charge, was located. Mr. Boyle came to America in the year 1837 after the death of his father, which occurred in that year. He taught French in various places in the western part of New York state and Canada. While thus employed the idea of constructing a phonographic alphabet became the absorbing thought of his mind. In the year 1844 he became associated with Mr. Stephen Pearl Andrews of Boston in teaching the rudiments of the phonographic art, at which time their joint publications, first an imperfect reader, then their “Class Book,” and afterward their “Phonographic Reader,” in perfected form, were issued.

In the year 1845 they established in Boston a weekly paper in the new phonetic print, called the “Anglo-Saxon.” In the year 1846 Andrews and Boyle issued “The American Phonographic Journal,” the earliest American shorthand periodical. In addition to Mr. Boyle’s work as an author he was a regular writer for many journals, including the New York Commercial and a publication known as the “Unit.”

Mr. Boyle retained his mental faculties unimpaired up to the moment of his death, though his physical frame was reduced almost to a shadow by his extreme suffering. His wife, a son and daughter survive him. The son, Mr. Acland Boyle, is pastor of Mt. Carmel Baptist Church, New York city. The daughter, Mrs. Anna Boyle Moore, is at Somerville, Mass. Until an answer to the telegrams that have been sent them, announcing the death of their father, has been received, the funeral arrangements will not be concluded.

SENATE

Obituary

A message was received from the House of Representatives announcing the death of Mr. Edward Bradley, Representative elect from Michigan; when—

Mr. Felch rose and addressed the Senate as follows:

Mr. President: The announcement just received from the House of Representatives arrests the attention of the Senate in the midst of its ordinary business, with the melancholy tidings of death. Again and again, since the commencement of the present session, similar announcements have called us to mourn, with the country, the decease of distinguished members of the present Congress, and to pay the tribute of respect to the memory of departed associates. If the melancholy expression of our feelings here cannot restore the deceased to life, nor recall to a seat in these halls the trusted agent of a confiding constituency, nor restore to the domestic circle its stay and its support, it may at least show that we cherish a high regard for the memory of the departed; that we appreciate his virtues and his abilities, and sympathize with those who, united with the deceased by closer ties, have felt even more keenly than we this sad dispensation of Providence.

Edward Bradley, whose death is thus announced, was born in the county of Ontario, in the State of New York, in April, 1808. At the age of twenty-six years he was appointed an Associate Judge of the Court of Common Pleas in his native county. Previous to this he had moved in the humbler walks of private life. Engaged chiefly in agricultural pursuits, with few advantages of early education, there was little in the influences by which he was surrounded to kindle his ambition or to stimulate to those unceasing mental efforts which alone can secure high attainments and give assurance of future eminent. But his was a mind of no ordinary energies. Availing himself of every opportunity for improvement, he gathered knowledge from every source within his reach, acquiring strength in his struggles with adversity, and accumulating in his contact with the world, the rich treasures of mental efficiency and practical information. The appreciation of his merits by his friends prompted him to still more ardent efforts, and a taste for forensic discussion induced him to become a devoted student of the law. In 1839 he removed to Michigan. Having been admitted to the bar, he devoted himself to the business of the legal profession, and soon acquired the reputation of an able lawyer and an eloquent advocate. In 1842 he was called by the suffrages of the district in which he resided to a seat in the State Senate, and ably and faithfully performed his duties in that station during his term. In 1846 he was elected a member of the House of Representatives of the thirtieth Congress. This last evidence of the high esteem min which he was held among those who knew him best was scarcely received when disease marked him for a victim. In July he left the place of his residence, intending to seek the restoration of his health by a protracted journey to the capital, and a temporary sojourn on the seacoast. The end of this journey he was destined never to reach. He arrived in the city of New York on the last day of July, and on the morning of the fifth day of August he was numbered with the dead. She who came to administer that aid and consolation which his debility required, returned with the lifeless remains of her husband to her stricken family—the widowed to the fatherless.

I am aware, Mr. President, that, in alluding in this place to the virtues of the deceased, I speak to those who have had no opportunity, by personal intercourse, to enjoy the friendship or to know his worth. He was called to the world of spirits when about to assume his position among the Representatives of this people. By his death, his constituents have been deprived of the services of an able representative, and the country of a faithful guardian of the public weal.

Himself the architect of his own fortunes, his sympathies were with the struggling, the poor, and the oppressed. Ardent in his feelings and strong in his attachments, he was nevertheless tolerant to an opponent and forgiving to an enemy. At the bar, in the legislature hall, and in the popular assembly, his good sense and strong reasoning faculties always commanded attention and respect, and by his eloquence he carried persuasion and conviction to the hearts of his audience.

If, in common with his fellow men, he had his faults, they were trivial and easily to be forgiven; while his virtues, prominent and numerous, will long be the theme of praise, and his early death the subject of heartfelt sorrow.

In token of respect to his memory, I submit the following resolutions:

Resolved, That the Senate has received with deep sensibility the message from the House of Representatives announcing the death of the Hon. Edward Bradley, a Representative from the State of Michigan.

Resolved, That the members of the Senate, from a sincere desire of showing every mark of respect to the memory of the deceased, will wear the usual badge of mourning for thirty days.

Resolved, That, as a further testimony of respect for the memory of the deceased, the Senate do now adjourn.
And then the Senate adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Immediately after the reading of the Journal—
Mr. Stewart, of Michigan, rose and said:  Mr. Speaker:  The melancholy duty has been assigned to me of announcing to the House the death of my lamented friend, the Hon. Edward Bradley, late a member elect of the present Congress from the second district of Michigan.

He was born in the town of East Bloomfield, in the county of Ontario, and State of New York, in April 1808.
At the age of twenty-six he was appointed an Associate Judge of the Court of Common Please of that county, the bar of which then numbered among its members several gentlemen of distinguished legal reputation.

The forensic displays of such men could not fail to produce upon a mind like Mr. Bradley’s a powerful influence, and it is therefore probable that his choice of the legal profession may date from this period of his life.

At the expiration of his term of office, he removed to Michigan, and in July, 1839, located at Marshall, in the county of Calhoun, and entered upon the practice of his profession.  His advancement was rapid, and he very soon ranked among the first at that bar—a position which all acquainted with its members will concede was as difficult of attainment as it was honorable to its possessor.

Mr. Bradley’s early pursuits having been exclusively agricultural, his feelings, sympathies, and consequently his interests, were naturally and strongly identified with the producing classes.  To become a general favorite, however, it was only necessary that he should be generally known, and in 1842 he was elected from his district to the State Senate.  Though chosen to fill a vacancy, and serving but one year, he acquired the reputation of a powerful debater, a sound legislator, and a faithful and able representative.  His great and varied powers of oratory were, however, best adapted to popular assemblies.  In those his depth of thought, his force and style of reasoning, combined with his inimitable sarcasm, told with prodigious effect; and hence in a political canvass as conducted in the West, he was an able and efficient champion.

At the general election in 1846 he was chosen a Representative to the present Congress; but early in the succeeding spring it became but too evident that the disease which finally terminated his existence had seized him with an unyielding grasp..  Favored with medical treatment of the most skillful character, he finally, after a severe and painful illness, partially recovered; and, having perfected his arrangements, left home, accompanied by his wife, to enter upon his duties here.  The terrible ravages of disease were distinctly marked, and the fears of his friends were consequently increased.  But, Mr. Speaker, “Hope springs eternal in the human breast;”

and, guided by its seductive illusions, Mr. Bradley felt confident that traveling, change of climate, and, more than all, the eminent medical skill he should employ in New York, where he contemplated a protracted delay for that purpose, would restore him to health and happiness.

It is written, sir, that “Man that is born of a woman hath but a short time to live, and its full of misery; he cometh up and is cut down like a flower; he fleeth as it were a shadow, and never continueth in one stay.”
This melancholy truth was strikingly exemplified in the case of my late excellent friend. He reached New York on the 30th of July, and died on the morning of the 5th of August. In his death, in the eloquent language of another, "the poor have lost a friend, the bar an ornament, the people a champion, the councils of the nation a statesman, whilst his widow and children have lost a husband and a father.

"Thus vanish mortal dreams."

Followed by resolutions.

Henry J. Bradley Dead; Resided Here 73 Years

Was Member of Association of Oldest Inhabitants--Funeral Today

Henry Jefferson Bradley, 73 years old and a life-long resident of Southwest Washington, died Monday at his residence, 605 Sixth street southwest. Mr. Bradley had been in ill health for several weeks, and underwent an operation in June. He was a member of the Association of Oldest Inhabitants of the District of Columbia. Born January 10, 1852, Mr. Bradley was the son of the late John Robert Bradley and Mrs. Martha Ellen Bradley. As a boy, he sold newspapers to Union Army soldiers in Washington during the Civil War. He succeeded his father in the fruit business in several of the well known city markets, having stands in the Center, Southeast and old Northern Liberty markets. He retired from the market business in 1884 and entered the postal service as a mail carrier in 1890, and held that position until retired in 1920.

Mr. Bradley was a member of J. Edward Ross Council, Junior Order of United American Mechanics, and the Fifth Baptist Church. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Augusta E. Bradley; a son, Harry F. Bradley; a daughter, Mrs. Myrtle B. Coxen, and a granddaughter, Miss Helen E. Coxen. Funeral services were conducted at the residence today at 2 o'clock, Rev. John E. Briggs, pastor of the Fifth Baptist Church, officiating. Interment was in Congressional Cemetery.

John R. Bradley Dead

Carbuncle Fatal to Proof Reader at Library of Congress

John R. Bradley, proof reader of the Library of Congress and for more than a quarter of a century prominent in Baptist circles of the city, died at noon today at Sibley Hospital. His death was due to a carbuncle, his illness beginning about a week ago.

No arrangements have been made for the funeral, though it probably will be held in Grace Baptist Church, where for about twenty-five years he has been superintendent of the Sunday school. He was sixty-three years old. The family residence is 1218 B street southeast.

Mr. Bradley was a graduate of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary at Louisville, Ky., and at his graduation was ordained to preach. He, however, did not accept a pastorate, preferring to remain a layman rather than a clergymen.

Woodmen of the World Honor Memory of Deceased Member

The Woodmen of the World yesterday afternoon at Congressional cemetery unveiled a monument erected in memory of Reuben Bradley, a former member of Old Glory Camp of the order and for a number of years drum major of the United States Marine Band. Representative Morris Sheppard of Texas, the sovereign banker of the order delivered the oration of the day following a brief address by Consul Commander H.I. Meader, and the reading of the poem, "Oh, Why Should the Spirit of Mortal Be Proud," by J.R.J. Swan of Elm Camp, No 8. A libation of pure water was poured upon the grave while the American flag, which draped the monument, was unfurled.

The monument is a shaft of Maine granite, surmounted by a ball, and bears the inscription "Reuben Bradley, May 12, 1861 - March 18, 1908." Near the top it bears the seal of the order. The unveiling was under the direction of Consul Commander H.I Meader, Spencer E. Brown, C.D. Howland and J.M. Heinbuch.

Bradshaw, Thrown From Car, Insisted on Going Home--Result Was Fatal--Coroner May Act

Injuries which John W. Bradshaw, employed in the Pension Office, received when he fell from a car at Ninth and B streets northwest yesterday forenoon resulted in his death at the home of his relatives shortly before 1 o'clock.

Physicians at the Emergency Hospital say they discovered no fractured members, and death was brought about by concussion of the brain, severe contusions, and the patient's removal from the institution when he was in a precarious condition.

It is likely that an inquest will be held over the body by Coroner Nevitt.

Bradshaw was sixty-three years old and lived at 203 Virginia avenue southeast. Leaving the Pension Office, where he was employed as a skilled laborer, he started for his home and boarded an Anacostia car. He was riding on the trailer. When the car, in charge of Motorman Henry Jones and Conductor A.C. Daniels, struck the curve at Ninth and B streets northwest, as the front end swirled round the aged passenger was hurled from the platform of the rear car.

Striking the asphalt on his head, he rolled over several times, and finally stopped near the curbing.

The crew on the car and several fellow-passengers went to his assistance. He was in great pain, and an ambulance was summoned from the Emergency Hospital. His relatives were informed of the accident, and when they visited the institution about three hours afterward they insisted that they be allowed to take him home. The patient and his relatives were warned of the danger, but they paid no heed. A carriage was summoned and the aged man walked to it.

John W. Bradshaw Dies From Effects of an Accident

John W. Bradshaw, sixty-three years old, who fell from a street car at 9th and B streets northwest yesterday afternoon and was seriously injured, died at his home, 203 Virginia avenue southeast, last night about midnight. He was riding on the rear end of a motor car on the Anacostia line, and was accidentally thrown off when the car struck the curve. The injured man was rendered unconscious, and was taken to the Emergency Hospital, but regained consciousness, and was taken home later in the day. A change for the worse was noticed during the early hours of the night, however, and his death occurred about the time stated.

Coroner Nevitt investigated the accident, and will hold an inquest at the morgue tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. An autopsy was performed on the body this afternoon. The victim of the accident was employed as a messenger in the pension office.

Accidental Death

Coroner's Verdict in the Case of John W. Bradshaw

An inquest was held at the morgue today over the remains of John W. Bradshaw, the pension office employee who fell from a street car on the curve at 9th and B streets northwest Monday morning and was fatally injured. Witnesses explained to the jury that the elderly man was standing on the platform and that he lost his balance and fell or was thrown from the car. He was unconscious when picked up and taken to the sidewalk. The ambulance from the Emergency Hospital responded to a call and Dr. White hurried with him to the hospital.

At the inquest this morning the doctor stated that the injured man regained consciousness about an hour after he reached the hospital. He was taken to his home, 203 G street southeast, against the advice of the hospital authorities, the doctor stated. Several persons who were passengers on the car at the time the accident happened were examined by the coroner, but they were unable to throw any light upon the affair.

A verdict of accidental death was returned after the jury had heard the testimony of the witnesses, including Deputy Coroner Glazebrook's statement. He said Mr. Bradshaw had sustained a fracture of the skull and that his death was caused by a cerebral hemorrhage.

The deceased was a native of England and was sixty-three years old. His funeral will take place from his late home tomorrow afternoon. The interment will be at Congressional cemetery.

Funeral Services For L.P. Bradshaw Tomorrow

Funeral services for Leonard P. Bradshaw, for more than thirty years connected with the District government, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock at the residence of his brother-in-law, James P. Robertson, at 223 5th street southeast.

Mr. Bradshaw entered the service of the engineer department in 1884, being connected with the sewer department.

In 1891 he was transferred to the office of the engineer of highways and served therein until his death. The only interruption of this continuous service was a period of about five months in 1898, when he served with the volunteer army during the Spanish American war.
During most of the years of his service the department availed itself of his education and ability as a lawyer in the defense of damage claims against the municipality, in which proceedings, especially in their engineering legal aspects, he was an expert of recognized skill. For some years he represented the District of Columbia in the defense of the large number of claims for property damages, due to changes of street grades in connection with the elimination of the grade crossings of the steam railroad tracks throughout the city, in which he showed marked ability.

Mr. Bradshaw was educated at Emerson Institute, and was a graduate of Columbian University and of the law school of Georgetown University, and was a member of the District bar.

The National Intelligencer, April 13, 1846
In this city, on Saturday morning, the 11th instant, Anne, the wife of Peter Brady, aged 58.

To those who knew the deceased all eulogy of her character is unnecessary; to those who knew her not it would be out of place. It is paying no more than a just and proper tribute to departed worth to say that in her the dictates of a clear and enlightened judgment were uniformly guided and controlled by a warm and benevolent heart. She was most beloved by those who knew her best. Although taken from the scene of her earthly cares and duties, she has an enduring existence in the memory and affections of her bereaved husband and sorrowing children, and in the love of her sincerely attached friends, as one whose removal has left a void which can never more be filled. She lived in the practice of Christian duties; she died with a Christian hope and resignation.

The friends of the family are requested, without other invitation, to attend the funeral, which will take place from the late residence of the deceased on Capitol Hill, at 4 o'clock this afternoon (Monday).

The National Intelligencer, November 23, 1821
Peter Brady and Miss Rainsford, both of Georgetown, were married, November 20, 1821 by the Rev. Mr. Elroy.

A Woman Burned to Death
Saturday afternoon, Mrs. Elizabeth Brady, residing on 1st street east, while intoxicated fell on a cooking stove and her dress taking fire she was burned to death before assistance could be rendered. She was alone at the time, and a carpenter, working on a house nearby noticed smoke issuing from the windows and broke open the door and found the body lying on the floor dead with the head and breast frightfully burned. The coroner was notified and held an inquest yesterday morning. The jury returned a verdict that she came to her death at the place stated by reasons of being accidentally burned while under the influence of intoxicating drink.

Thus passed away from earth one who realized that ideal of the sacred writer in his description of the virtuous woman. It is often charged that eulogies upon departed friends are written by affection at the expense of truth, but no language paid to honor the memory of this noble Christian lady will be deemed extravagant by those who knew her worth. In the relations of wife, mother, friend she was distinguished by a loving regard for the comfort of others so unselfish in its nature is to challenge at once the admiration and wonder of the circle in which she moved, and of which she formed so high an ornament. Hospitality and kindness were the law of her household and no visitor can forget the warm clasp of her hand and the kindly light that beamed from her eye as she uttered words of welcome in tones that fell upon the heart like a strain of music of the "olden time." She was ever active, bright and cheerful--the light and life of the home circle. But the busy hands are quietly folded now. Her loving heart has ceased to beat and the gentle spirit that brightened earth with its presence has gone to mingle with the sacred throng in that bright world above, where those long parted meet again. and those who meet shall part no more.

Death of M.B. Brady
He Passed Away in New York City Last Thursday
A Life Work of Great Historic Value and Peculiarly Interesting Activity

M.B. Brady, the well-known photographer, is dead. For many years he was a familiar figure about Washington, and the news of his passing away will be received with sincere sorrow by hundreds who have known him during his long and eventful career.

Mr. Brady was a native of New York, where he died Thursday, having gone there to live a few months ago. A little over a year ago he was run over one day while crossing the street at the corner of New York avenue and 14th street, and for months he lay in the hospital hovering between life and death. When finally he recovered he was only able to go about on crutches, and existence was almost a burden to him.

He began life as a photographer in New York city far back in the days when daguerreotypes were in vogue and soon became known as an excellent workman. He saw the value of his occupation as an adjunct to the historic description of contemporary times and characters. To Brady is due the accurate protraiture of scores of men of great historic prominence in the first half of the century, as well as of hundreds who have been active in the affairs of the war period and since. He made daguerreotypes of Webster, Calhoun, Clay, John Quincy Adams, Sam Houston and many other men famous in their day. Coming to Washington in the early fifties, Mr. Brady soon became a leading photographer and in a few years his name was a household word all over the United States.

The illustrated journals during the war added to his celebrity by reproducing many of his pictures of battlefields and his protraits of prominent general sin both armies. He took thousands of important and valuable negatives during the four years from 1861 to 1865, which have served to illustrate that great struggle.
as no war has previously been pictured. Many of these were of a large size and presented graphic scenes on battlefields, in camp, hospital, during the march and in and about army headquarters. Congress authorized the purchase of a large collection of these pictures, and a large photographic publishing concern in Hartford, Conn. has for twenty years been steadily engaged in making and selling copies of Brady's war pictures. The sale is largely among veterans in all parts of the United States.

Mr. Brady, as time settled upon him—he was seventy-six when he died—became desultory and uncertain in his business methods, and neglected rather than utilized his splendid accumulation of valuable work. Last July the last of the negatives in his control was sold under forced sale to a leading photographer on F street. In this collection were hundreds of life-size negatives of the famous generals, statesmen, journalists, diplomats, literary men and actresses of the century. Its historic value is incalculable, and must increase as time passes.

In person and manner Mr. Brady was a most congenial gentleman. His friends were legion, and he preferred for years to give them his time and company rather than confine himself to the demands of his calling. He did a good deal of transitory and fugitive work in recent years, much of which consisted of taking pictures of large groups of organizations visiting Washington. In this work he was assisted by his nephew, L.C. Handy, who owns a large number of Mr. Brady's negatives, and succeeds to the greater part of his business.

Death of a Respected Citizen

We regret to announce the death of John D. Brandt, which occurred at his residence in the naval magazine grounds, last night. Mr. Brandt was a native of South Carolina, but had resided here nearly all his life and for many years past has been the chief clerk of the naval ordnance bureau. He was at one time a member of the Board of School Trustees of this city. He was gifted with those traits which attract hosts of friends and acquaintances. A kinder hearted man or a firmer friend than he is rarely met.

Theophillus Bray Dead

Had Been a Resident of Washington More Than Forty Years

Theophillus Bray, eldest son of the late Rev. John Bray, died yesterday at the age of 64 years at his residence, 1222 C street southwest. The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon from the Kendall Baptist Church, 9th and B streets southwest. Interment will be private.

Mr. Bray had been a resident of the city for more than forty years. He was born in England and came to this country while a small boy. Mr. Bray was the eldest son of the late Rev. John Bray. He had been identified with the business interests of Washington for many years. He formerly was in the grocery business with his brother John. Afterwards he became a tea and coffee broker, which business he followed for a number of years.

Mr. Bray was for several years actively engaged in the Y.M.C.A. work. In later years he has spent a good deal of time in mission work in the city and vicinity, especially at Arlington, Va., and Hynesboro Park, Md.

Mr. Bray was never married. He leaves a niece, Miss A. Salome Wingate, and a nephew, James Wingate, whom he has reared since the death of their parents. He also leaves a brother and sister, Mr. John Bray of Florida, and Mrs. Edwin Yornold, 1222 C street southwest.

J.S. Breast Dies While Attending His Church
LifeLong Resident of City Was Employed at Navy Yard for Half Century
James S. Breast, lifelong resident of this city, employee at the Navy yard for half a century and a surviving member of the District of Columbia Volunteer fire department, dropped dead yesterday morning while attending services at the Metropolitan Presbyterian Church, 4th and B streets southeast. He was in his eighty-fifth year.

Mr. Breast, whose health had been excellent, even throughout his late years, left his home, 317 1st street southeast, yesterday morning in seemingly fine health.

He entered the church of which he had been one of the organizers and through his long membership had watched its membership grow into one of the largest in the city, and took his place in the old family pew.

Had Just Finished Prayer
He had just finished his prayer and was waiting for the services to begin, when he was seen by those near to suddenly lean forward toward the back of he pew in front of him. Upon approaching him it was found that present in the church stated that his death was due to heart trouble.

Mr. Breast had been a continuous resident of this city and with pleasure watched its rapid development. He stated that he had read The Evening Star ever since its first issue, in 1852. He often spoke of his pleasant associations with the early owners, A.R. Shepherd, G.W. Adams, S.H. Kauffmann and C.S. Noyes.

Wife Died Ten Years Ago
He was married to Miss Martha Washington Van Horn, also of this city, who died almost on the eve of the celebration of their golden wedding, ten years ago. Since that time he has lived with his sister-in-law, Miss Annie Van Horn, who is the principal of the Bradley School.

Mr. Breast's father, Alonzo Breast, who also was a lifelong resident of Washington, was employed in the rigging department of the navy yard, and aided in the placing of the statue of "Liberty" on the dome of the Capitol.

Civil War Volunteer
Mr. Breast served with the District volunteers during the civil war; and at the time of his death was an active member of the G.A.R. He also was a member of Franklin Lodge, Knights of Pythias, and Eastern Lodge, Independent Order of Odd Fellows.

He is survived by a son, James O. Breast, who occupies the position of chief clerk at the Lafayette Hotel, and two grandchildren. Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at his residence at 3 o'clock. Interment will be in Congressional cemetery.

Fraternal Orders Attend Services for Former Navy Yard Employee.

Funeral services for James S. Breast, veteran resident of the District, who died Sunday morning in church, were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at his residence, 317 1st street southeast. Rev. Dr. Freely Rohrer of the Metropolitan Presbyterian Church officiated. Members of Franklin Lodge, No. 2, Knights of Pythias, and Eastern Lodge, I.O.O.F., were present at the services. Interment was in Congressional Cemetery.

Mr. Breast was eighty-four years old and had been an employee at the navy yard for fifty years up to his retirement, seven years ago. He is survived by his son, James O. Breast and two grandchildren.

<td>Mr. George Breitharth, a popular member of the Washington Light Infantry, died after a short illness at his home in this city about 12:30 o'clock this afternoon. Mr Breitharth's death will be a surprise to his many friends, for he has been in excellent health lately. He was stricken with apoplexy about 3 o'clock this morning, and although medical aid was at once summoned, he sank, until shortly after noon when the end came. He was fifty-three years of age. Arrangements for his funeral have not yet been made. Mr. Breitharth was very well known in Washington, where he has been a resident for a number of years. He was formerly in the furniture business here. His wife survives him.</td>

A Child Scalded to Death

On Saturday last a fatal and very sad occurrence took place at the residence of Mr. W.H. Brelsford, on Virginia avenue, between 3d and 4 1/2 streets. By the accidental overturning of a kettle of boiling water, his little child, Mary Elizabeth, aged nineteen months, was so badly scalded that death ensued in a few hours.

Swallows Carbolic Acid
Mrs. M. Brennan Commits Suicide With Poison Patient Hurried to Hospital, Physicians Giving
No Hope of Recovery -- Death Follows

Made ill by the heat and concluding she wanted to die, Mrs. Bertha Brennan, forty-nine years of age, about 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon swallowed carbolic acid at 423 K street, where she occupied an apartment. She died at 11 o'clock last night. Mrs. Brennan was found unconscious in her room by the colored domestic employed in the house. About two minutes before asking the poison she made a remark, the meaning of which was not fully comprehended until she was found unconscious. Then Mrs. T.C. Green, her landlady, understood what was meant.

Mrs. Brennan was the wife of Michael Brennan, who is employed at the Soldiers' Home. His work keeps him there at night. Mrs. Brennan had been working at a dressmaking establishment in 9th street, but was not at her place of employment yesterday afternoon.

About 5 o'clock she returned home and spoke to Mrs. Green as she walked up the steps to go to her room.

"If I don't come down again," the dressmaker called to Mrs. Green, "send up for me."

"What for?" the landlady asked.

Mention of Illness
"Because I'm sick," was the reply.

"Anybody who will run about in the hot sun as you have today," Mrs. Green commented, "ought to be sick."

"If you think that way," Mrs. Brennan retorted, "Don't bother about me."

Mrs. Brennan went to her room, the colored girl following closely. The latter had ironed a skirt and wanted to deliver the garment to Mrs. Brennan. She reached the room shortly after Mrs. Brennan had entered and found the latter lying across the bed. She did not respond when the colored girl spoke to her, and the latter returned to the lower floor to tell Mrs. Green of what she had seen.

"I believe Mrs. Brennan has taken something," the girl announced.

"Go back and see what you can do for her," Mrs. Green directed.

Just then Mr. Brennan appeared at the door and was told there was something the matter with his wife. He proceeded at once to their apartment and was shocked at finding her in so serious a condition. He telephoned for a physician, and then sent for a policeman.

Hurried to Hospital
The patrol wagon from the second precinct made a quick run to the house; Mrs. Brennan was placed in it and no time was lost in getting her to the Homeopathic Hospital.

"She has about once chance in a thousand," was what one of the physicians at the institution told her husband.

Mr. Brennan returned home, notified relatives of his wife of what had occurred, and the latter hurried to the hospital to see her. Her condition was so serious, however, when they reached there that the physicians deemed it advisable for them to remain away from her room.

It was said at the K street house last night that the Brennans had roomed there about nine months. They did not take their meals with Mrs. Green, however, and the latter saw little of them.

The hospital authorities notified the police of the death, and the latter communicated the sad intelligence to the husband.

Coroner Nevitt will probably give a death certificate without holding an inquest.

Penny Postman Claimed By Death
D.E. Brewer Succumbs at John Dickson Home; Rites Tomorrow
Daniel E. Brewer, 84 years old, the last surviving "penny postman," who died Saturday at the John Dickson home, 5000 Fourteenth street northwest, will be buried tomorrow morning in Congressional Cemetery, following services at Wright's funeral chapel at 10:30 o'clock.
He was one of ten letter carriers appointed in 1863 by Postmaster General Montgomery Blair. The city was divided into districts with a carrier for each. The term "penny postman" was used because the Government paid no salary but allowed the carrier to collect a penny for each letter delivered.
Mr. Brewer delivered in an area which now embraces the entire southwest section and has sixteen routes. His deliveries were made with a horse and buggy. He retired from the Government service in 1920. He is survived by a nephew, Admiral Joseph M. Reeves, of the Navy general board. |

Criminal Court

The Court then took up the case of the United States v. Moses Bridwell and Martha Bridwell, in which the defendants were charged with keeping a bawdy house and a disorderly house.

Mr. Ould opened the case to the jury, and was followed by Mr. Norris for the defense, who characterized the prosecution as of a most extraordinary description and states that its foundation was a desire of financial gain on the part of those who instituted it.

Officer Wm. A. Boss being called for the prosecution, testified that he knows the defendants; witness stated that he house they lived in for the last two or three years, until within the past week; never saw any disorders there; has seen women of loose habits go there, and knows several who have claimed the house as their place of residence; has seen men go there; they keep what is called a "pop shop"—a short of cake and candy shop; the house is two stories high; has seen youths go there, two and three at a time, as late as 10 o'clock p.m.; knows two women and men of loose character who claimed this house as their home; has frequently seen loose women go in at the alley back of the house; Bridwell has four or five children, one a daughter of 14 years; he is a tailor by trade and works at Lakeman's; he is industrious, and is only seen about the house at night; witness neither directly or indirectly receives any reward for his actions against this party.

The Evening Star, July 14, 1859
Criminal Court

In this court, yesterday, Moses Bridwell and Martha Bridwell were placed on trial charged with keeping a bawdy and disorderly house. The testimony of Officer Boss had just concluded when our report closed.

Joseph Reese was next called, and testified that he knows defendants, lives nearly opposite to them, has seen one or two disorders there; once heard a grand row there, and saw parties running away from the place, and watchmen were there; this was at 11 o'clock at night; Bridwell was one of the parties who ran; women were running also, and Bridwell and the women afterwards returned to the house; has seen women of bad reputation frequent the house, at all hours of the day, and up to 10 o'clock at night; has seen men go there as late as 10 o'clock p.m.; has seen as high as six young men go in there at a time. Within the last few days there has been a general stampede among that class of people at this house, as well as others in the neighborhood.

Jeremiah Tomney testified that he knows defendants; never saw any disorders there; has seen persons of loose character go to the house, two of three at a time, during the day; has seen two or three women with their heads out of the window at sundry times; has seen men go in and out.

Mr. Sessford testified that he knows Bridwell; has seen persons of both sexes of loose reputation frequent the house several times up to 9 o'clock at night.

Officer Eckloff testified that he knows defendants; has seen persons of bad reputation frequent the house, and two women of such character who told witness that they boarded there; witness has been in the "pop shop," saw pop, cigars, etc., there.

Mr. Newman testified that he knows defendants; never say any disorders there; has passed there and seen people there; knew two girls who resided there; they were public women; they dealt with witness's store; and two girls both resided there at one time.

Officer Williamson testified, corroborating previous testimony.

Officer Fanning's testimony was corroborative of that of officer Boss.

Mr. Baker testified that he knows defendant Bridwell; never saw disorders there, but has seen persons of loose reputation go there; persons of both sexes.

The evidence for the United States closed here.

Mr. Norris, for defense, called Mr. Lakeman who testified that he had known Bridwell for the last four or five years; has worked for witness during the last four years and is a man of strict veracity; he has a wife and four children, one a young lady; witness has been at his home, he keeps green groceries, etc.; never knew any person to visit his house; never saw anything out of place there; has seen persons there, but did not know if they lived there, or what their reputations were; don't k now what the women were doing there, except that witness has seen them sewing and sweeping there.

Mr. Brown testified that he has frequently been at Bridwell's house; never saw anything amiss there; has seen four and five persons come in at a time, and buy things and go out again; has seen women of loose character come in and buy things and go out; knows that two ladies were there, but don't know in what capacity they were there; that reputation was loose.

Mr. Walter testified that he has been in Bridwell's house; has made work for him; made a wardrobe for him, and a show case; never saw anything wrong about the place.

The defense closed here and the case was given to the jury.

The jury, after remaining out some time, sent a message to the Court that they could not agree upon a verdict, and asking to be discharged; which was granted.

The Evening Star, July 16, 1859

Criminal Court.

Yesterday the jury in the case of Moses Bridwell and wife, charged with keeping a bawdy and disorderly house, returned a verdict of guilty on the first count with a recommendation to the mercy of the court.

The Evening Star, July 18, 1859

Criminal Court

By order of the Court, Laura Smith and Ann Green, severally lately convicted of keeping a bawdy and disorderly house; and Cora Stewart. Moses Bridwell and Martha Bridwell, each convicted of keeping a bawdy house were brought into court from the jail, where they have been confined since their conviction, for sentence.
At the order of the Court the prisoners all stood up.

The Court. "You have been severally convicted of a very great crime; that of keeping a house in which the morals of the young are corrupted—a house in which this species of crime is carried on to the ruin of youth, and often is the cause of leading men to commit crimes of a still greater and more awful character.

"And you, Cora Stuart, in consideration of a recommendation by the jury to mercy, the sentence of the Court is that you suffer imprisonment in the common jail of this county for a period of four months and pay a fine of $20."

"And you Moses Bridwell and Martha Bridwell, with this case the Court has found more difficulty than with any of the others to consider the punishment adequate to your offence. You have a family of four children who must be provided for, though, as it appeared from the evidence that one of them, a girl nearly grown, was permitted by you to assist you in carrying on this course of crime, which makes your case infinitely more intolerable than the others. The Court has in consideration of the necessity for having those children provided for, adopted, as far as practicable, a middle course. Therefore you, Moses Bridwell, are sentenced to pay a fine of $50, and you Martha Bridwell, are sentenced to four months imprisonment in the common jail of this county and to pay a fine of $20."

The District Attorney here prayed the prisoners in commitment until the fines in each case should be paid.

William Briggs, 72, Prominent Mason, Dies
Building Association Auditor Served Printer’s Apprenticeship on The Star
William Briggs, auditor for the National Permanent Building Association, and prominent in Masonic and other organizations, died in the Stanton Park Hospital Sunday, after an illness of several months. He was 72 years old.

A native of Washington, Mr. Briggs served a printer’s apprenticeship on The Evening Star. Subsequently he became a printer and then clerk at the Government Printing Office. Later he was secretary of the National Permanent Building Association, then auditor.

Mr. Briggs was a former president of the National Union, a fraternal insurance organization; a member of the Veteran Printers’ Association and a former member of the Typographical Union.
His Masonic affiliations included membership in Hope Lodge, No. 20, F.A.A.M.; Orient Commandery, Knights Templar, and in the Naval Chapter, Royal Arch Masons. He also belonged to the Order of the Eastern Star.

He is survived by a brother, James S. Briggs, and a sister, Mrs. Annie M. Hunter.

Funeral services will be conducted at the brother’s residence, 237 Ninth street northeast, tomorrow afternoon at 1 o’clock. Interment will be in Congressional Cemetery.

In Senate
...On motion of Mr. Varnum, it was Resolved unanimously, That the Senate will attend the funeral of the Hon. Elijah Brigham, late a member of the House of Representatives from the State of Massachusetts, tomorrow at twelve o'clock; and as a testimony of respect for the memory of the deceased, they will go into mourning, and wear a black crape, on the left arm, for thirty days. The Senate then adjourned.

House of Representatives
... Mr. Pickering rose and announced to the House, the death of the Hon. Elijah Brigham, a Member of this House from the state of Massachusetts. Mr. Pickering then moved resolutions:
To appoint a committee of arrangement for the funeral of the deceased:
That the Members of this House wear crape on the left arm, for one month, in testimony of respect for the memory of the deceased:
That the Members of the House attend the funeral tomorrow, at twelve o'clock:
That the Senate be invited to join the funeral ceremonies; and
That when the House adjourned, it should adjourn to Saturday next.
Which resolutions were severally agreed to, unanimously.
The House then adjourned.

The National Intelligencer, Saturday, February 24, 1816
Died. At his Lodgings in this City, on Thursday morning, the Hon. Elijah Brigham, a Representative in Congress, from the state of Massachusetts. His illness was but short, as he attended the House on Monday. He was considerably advanced in years; and had for many years filled various public offices, Legislative and Executive, in Massachusetts, with the respect of all parties, and the particular approbation of his political friends as a judicious, upright and faithful man. He was yesterday interred with those honors due to his public station and private merit.

Was Member of Jury Which Convicted Charles J. Guiteau of Murdering President Garfield

Henry Jackson Bright, whose death was referred to in yesterday's Star, was one of the five surviving members of the famous jury which convicted Guiteau for the assassination of President Garfield. Funeral services over his remains will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from his late home, 131 A street northeast. Rev. Dr. France of Trinity Methodist Church, assisted by Rev. Arthur S. Johns of Christ Church southeast, will officiate. Interment will be private, at Congressional cemetery. Deceased was a member of Naval Lodge, No. 4, F.A.A.M., and the funeral will be with Masonic honors. The pallbearers will be chosen from his lodge tomorrow morning.

Mr. Bright was born near Alexandria, Va., and was 77 years of age. He moved to Washington in his early youth and engaged in the shoe business, in which he prospered. About twenty years ago he gave up his business on account of failing health and deafness, and devoted his entire time to his family.
His whole life was marked by an unostentation, and he always objected to being brought before the public eye. He had always objected to being photographed, and the only picture of him in existence was taken at the time the Guiteau jury was empaneled.

He had adopted and reared four orphans and had always extended a benevolent hand when aid was required. His wife and one son, Henry T. Bright, a patent attorney, survive him.

The four surviving members of the Guiteau jury are: John P. Hamlin, clerk to Senator Morgan of Alabama; William H. Brawner of 1813 3d street northeast; George W. Gaites, a nephew of Mr. Bright and the youngest member of the jury, of 755 10th street southeast, and Ralph Wormley, colored, who was one of the owners of Wormley House, lately known as the Colonial Hotel.

The Evening Star, November 14, 1881
The Five Jurymen Chosen So Far
Who They Are

Mr. John P. Hamlin, the first juror selected is well known in connection with the Hamlin house on 6th street, near Louisiana avenue, where he is associated with his brother, Mr. Joseph H. Hamlin. Mr. F.W. Brandenburg is of German nativity, but has resided in this country for over a quarter of a century, formerly being engaged in the carpet weaving business, but of late years in the tobacco and cigar business, nearly his entire life being spent on Pennsylvania avenue, above 17th street, Mr. Henry J. Bright, the third juror accepted, resides in East Washington, and for years was engaged in the boot and shoe business, but is now retired. He is a well-known member of the East Washington M.E. church. Mr. Stewart resides on Capitol Hill, where he is engaged in the feed business, and is of Scottish descent. Mr. Thomas H. Langley was formerly a well-known dealer in our markets, but has been in the grocery business in the neighborhood of 8th and P streets, of late years. The five selected thus far are men of settled years and families, and the opinion expressed today was that, the court was fortunate in selecting these with the hope that men of equal standing will be selected to complete the panel.

Many Attend Services -- Burial in Congressional Cemetery

Funeral services for the late James Edward Bright, who died Wednesday, were held at Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church, 5th and C streets southeast, at 3 o'clock yesterday. Rev. H.S. France, pastor of the church officiated. Burial was in Congressional Cemetery.

The honorary pallbearers were Capt. H.T. Brian, James M.A. Spottswood, John Berg, Charles E. Young, John Green and Joseph Dierken. F.C. Roberts, Francis Benzier, George Seibold, Thomas J. Rowe, John A. Huston and Zachary Jenkins were the active pallbearers. A committee from St. John's Lodge, No. 11, F.A.A.M., of which Mr. Bright was a member, members of several chapels from the government printing office and numerous friends of the deceased attended the funeral.

Mr Bright was born in this city in 1846. He was educated in the public schools and learned his trade in the office of H. Polkinhorn. At the conclusion of his apprenticeship he joined Columbia Typographical Union, No. 101, with which organization he was actively identified for forty years, having been its treasurer for the last six years of his life. He was also a member of Congressional Council, No. 849, N.U., and of St. John's Lodge, F.A.A.M.

Soon after his appointment to the government printing office Mr. Bright was promoted to the position of make-up and after some time was promoted to the foremanship of that department. Because of his genial temperament and general popularity the deceased was known among his fellow-employees as "Sunny Jim".

Funeral of W.H. Bright

Services Will be Held at Home Tomorrow Afternoon

The funeral of William H. Bright, veteran employee of the government printing office, and a member of the Association of the Oldest Inhabitants of the District, who died Friday night at his home, 113 G street northwest, is to take place at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from his late residence. The interment will be private. The services will be in charge of B.B. French Lodge of Masons, No. 15, of which Mr. Bright was a member.

Mr. Bright was born in Alexandria eighty-six years ago. About a year ago he suffered a stroke of paralysis, from which he never fully recovered, and which finally caused his death.

For many years, Mr. Bright was a resident of Denver, Col. He came to this city about thirty years ago to take a position at the Capitol. From the Capitol he went to the government printing office and was employed there until taken ill.

Mr. Bright had the distinction of having introduced the first bill for woman's suffrage in a state legislature.

Our mother is sleeping so free from all pain;
Oh, wake her not, sweet Spirit, to suffer again.
We miss thee from our home, dear mother;
We will miss thee from thy place.
A shadow over our life is cast;
We will miss the sunshine of thy face,
We will miss thy kind and willing hand,
Thy food and earnest care,
Our home is dark without thee,
We will miss thee everywhere.

Thomas R. Brightwell Dead

Had Lived in the District Since the Year 1836

Thomas R. Brightwell died at his country home near Deanwood yesterday in the ninety-first year of his age. He had lived where he died since 1836. He had seen the city of Washington in its infancy, and often boasted that he had hunted birds in the marsh where the Washington Center market now stands.

Mr. Brightwell was a messenger to a committee of Congress when that body met in the old Capitol building on 1st street east. He was congenial and social, kindly disposed toward all men and very hospitable in his own home. Nothing delighted him more than to get a party of his old friends together and entertain them with reminiscences of his early life in the city of Washington. He never turned a deaf ear to appeals for aid from the poor or from friends in distress. He died possessed of a vast estate in the District of Columbia.

Death From an Overdose of Chloroform

John Bristow was found dead in bed yesterday morning at his home, 808 L street northwest. The circumstances indicate that death resulted from an overdose of chloroform. He was a victim of the chloroform fumes. When he retired to bed Sunday night, as his wife noticed the smell of the drug, he told her he would put his head under the pillow. When Mrs. Bristow awoke in the morning she found her husband dead. Bristow was a well-known card writer, having been engaged in that capacity at the Capitol and various hotels. He was arrested a few days ago on the street in a stupefied condition and had a bottle of chloroform in his possession. He said at that time that he wanted to commit suicide as his wife had forsaken him. The charge against him was profanity. Coroner Patterson investigated the case yesterday, and gave a certificate of accidental death.

The Navy Yard Scandal Case

Acquittal of Brother Britt

For some time past there has been considerable talk in the eastern section of the city as to a scandal, in which the names of Miss Mary Simons and a Mr. Morgan and Mr. G.R.P. Britt, a bookbinder at the Government Printing Office, have been associated. All the parties have been or are members of the 12th street s.e. Methodist Episcopal Church. It appears that charges were brought against Miss Simonds and Mr. Morgan by the authorities of the church which affected their characters for chastity, and they were both dropped from the rolls. Next charges were preferred by the proper official (based, it is said, on information obtained from Morgan) against Britt, charging him with immoral and improper conduct. To this charge there were two specifications, the first that he held Miss S. on his lap and took liberties with her; and second, that he, being a married man, was frequently in her company going to and from church, to the great scandal of the church. The official body, the quarterly conference, on receiving these charges appointed a committee of five to try the same. The trial took place last evening at the church (Mr. Britt being represented by counsel), and it lasted until three o’clock this morning. The evidence of Morgan was that he saw through a broken blind the action complained of in the first charge, and Miss Simonds and Mr. Britt denied it. It is understood that the report will exculpate Mr. Britt.

Britt, Georgianna H. On Monday, January 25, 1897, at 5 o’clock p.m. at her residence, 1222 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, Georgiana H., beloved wife of G.R.P. Britt. Funeral Wednesday, January 27, at 2 p.m. Friends and relatives are invited. (Baltimore papers please copy).

Brodhead. Very suddenly of congestive fever, at the Naval School, Annapolis, Maryland, on Sunday last, Midshipman Alfred W. Brodhead, aged seventeen, son of John M. Brodhead, Esq., and Mrs. Josephine Brodhead, of this city, and grandson of the late Hon. John Brodhead, of New Hampshire.

In the death of this young man his parents have lost a most affectionate son, and the naval service one of its most promising young officers. Noble in his bearing and deportment, honorable in his actions and relations, devoted to the profession which he had chosen, held in the highest regard by those associated with him at Annapolis, blessed up to a single day before his death with robust health, his parents and friends looked hopefully and fondly forward to the time when his name should stand high as an officer and man.

That Almighty Power who rules the destinies of all has ordered otherwise; and, although the hearts of his parents and friends are stricken with grief, while they bow themselves down in sorrow let them not forget that "whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth."

Locals
The funeral of Dr. John M. Brodhead, late Second Controller of the Treasury, whose death was mentioned in yesterday's Star will take place from Trinity church corner Third and C streets tomorrow afternoon at half-past 2 o'clock.

The Evening Star, February 25, 1880
The Funeral of the late Hon. John M. Brodhead, whose death has heretofore been announced in the Star as having occurred at Newmarket, N.H., his native town took place at 2 o'clock today from Trinity Church, corner 3d and C streets, to which place his remains were removed on arriving by the 12:30 train today over the Baltimore and Potomac railroad. The corpse was laid out in one of Stine's burial caskets, furnished by Mr. R.W. Barker, the undertaker, and placed in front of the chancel. A large concourse of the personal friends of the family collected long before the services were commenced. The burial services were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Addison, the rector, assisted by Rev. Dr. Forrest, associate rector; after which the remains were removed to and buried in the family lot in Congressional cemetery, beside the graves of his two sons. The pall bearers, who were named by the deceased, prior to his death, were Gen. Wm. McKee Dunn, Admiral John J. Almy, Senator R.H. Rollins, Horatio King, Dr. John B. Blake, George Kent, Thomas Smith and Dr. Daniel B. Clarke. Dr. Brodhead was junior warden of and for many years was a member of this church. The attendance was very large.

The Evening Star, March 11, 1880
Death of Hon. John M. Brodhead
At a special meeting of the vestry of Trinity parish, on the 23d of February, 1880, the following was ordered to be spread on the journal:

It is with profound sorrow, that, we, as a vestry, record the passing away of our beloved brother, John M. Brodhead, M.D., junior warden of this church, on Sabbath, February 22d, 1880, exchanging the shadows of earth for the awakening of the spirit in the Sabbath of Heaven.

We regard it is due to his memory to place this memorial of his worth on our minutes, as expressive of our high esteem for him as a faithful member of this parish for many years, and often an honored delegate to the diocesan convention, and for his rare intellectual and social qualities, and the wisdom and prudence with which he discharged his official duties.

We deplore his death as an impairment of the strength of this communion, and as the removal of a citizen of broad sympathies and generous benevolence.
We hereby tender our sincere sympathy to his bereaved wife in this time of her deep affliction, commending her to the widow's God for comfort and guidance.

Resolved. That this vestry do, in a body, attend the funeral of our deceased brother.

The Singular Will of Dr. Brodhead

On Saturday the will of the late Dr. John M. Brodhead, for many years Second Controller of the Treasury, was filed in the Probate Court, and a commission was issued to take testimony of witnesses in New Hampshire, where the will was executed. He leaves $10,000 to South Newmarket, N.H., for a public library, on condition that the name is changed to its original one of Newfield; $1,000 is bequeathed to the Methodist church of the same place, the interest on which is to be used to increase the preacher's salary. To the Rev. Thomas G. Addison, of Trinity church, in this city, is left $500 and a picture of Christ and the Woman of Samaria; and to the Washington City Orphan Asylum, $2,000. The interest of $1,000, which is left in trust to Christ Church, Navy Yard, is to be used in keeping his grave in the Congressional Cemetery in order; the shrubbery and flowers are to be dug about, weeded and dressed with compost every spring. If, as had been his experience in life, the interest proves more than sufficient for this purpose, the surplus is to be devoted to embellishing the rest of the cemetery. The executors are directed to purchase the Frank Hilton estate, near South Newmarket, N.H., and alter the house so as to make two comfortable tenements, which are to be occupied by his cousin Olive and niece Cornelius, on the following conditions: They are each to set apart a garden 60 feet square, which they are to plant with currants, strawberries, thimbleberries, raspberries and other suitable fruits. Harriet, the daughter of Olive, "is to post herself on the planting of fruits," and to allow no weeds to grow up in this plantation, "thus correcting carelessness on the part of her father." One hundred dollars is to be advanced for the purchase of plants. In case the estate cannot be secured the interest of the $3,000 set aside for it is to be distributed yearly to twelve worthy young people of South Newmarket, but is not to be shared in by any who smoke, use intoxicating liquors or drugs, or make use of any profane or obscene language. A picture of his father, the Rev. John Brodhead, is to be painted by Mr. Ulke, of this city, and placed in the state house at Concord, N.H., $1,500 to be increased to $2,000 if necessary, being left for that purpose. A number of private bequests, devoid of interest except to the legatees, are also made. In the petition for probate the property in this District is put down at $25,000 in real estate and $2,200 personally.

The Evening Star, March 29, 1880

Some Queer Conditions Attached to Requests -- His Grave to be Cultivated

The will of the late Dr. John M. Broadhead, ex-first comptroller of the Treasury, has been filed here for probate. Its provisions are strongly suggestive of an eccentricity the respected writer was scarcely suspected of when alive. As previously noted, he leaves $10,000 to South Newmarket, N.H., for a public library, on condition that the name is changed to its original one of Newfield; $1,000 is bequeathed to the Methodist church of the same place, the interest to be used to increase the preacher's salary. To the Rev. Thomas Addison of Trinity church, in this city, is left $500 and a picture of Christ and the woman of Samaria; and to the Orphan asylum on Fourteenth street, $2,000. The interest of $1,000, which is left in trust to Christ church, navy yard, is to be used in keeping his grave in the Congressional cemetery in order; the shrubbery and flowers are to be dug about, weeded and dressed with compost every spring. If as had been his experience in life, the interest proves more than sufficient for this purpose, the surplus is to be devoted to embellishing the rest of the cemetery. The executors are directed to purchase the Frank Hilton estate near South Newmarket, N.H., and alter the house so as to make two comfortable tenements, which are to be occupied by his cousin Olive and niece Cornelius, on the following conditions: They are each to set apart a garden 60 feet square, which they are to plant with currants, strawberries, thimbleberries, raspberries and other suitable fruits. Harriet, the daughter of Olive, "is to post herself on the planting of fruits," and to allow no weeds to grow up in this plantation, "thus correcting carelessness on the part of her father." One hundred dollars is to be advanced for the purchase of plants. In case the estate cannot be secured the interest of the $3,000 set aside for it is to be distributed yearly to twelve worthy young people of South Newmarket, but is not to be shared in by any who smoke, use intoxicating liquors or drugs, or make use of any profane or obscene language. A picture of his father, the Rev. John Brodhead, is to be painted by Mr. Ulke of this city and placed in the state house at Concord, N.H., $1,500 to be increased to $2,000 if necessary, being left for that purpose. A number of private bequests, devoid of interest except to the legatees, are also made. In the petition for probate the property in this District is put down at $25,000 in real estate and $2,200 personally.

<td>The Evening Star, March 18, 1891: A Conductor Run Over It Was at First Thought He Was Fatally Injured About 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon Mr. Hamilton Bronaugh, conductor of car No. 19, Washington and Georgetown railroad, was seriously if not fatally injured on 1st street between the Peace and Garfield monuments by being run over by his car. He had quite a load on the car and running to the front to get his fares attempted to get on, but missed his footing and fell. Before the car could be stopped Mr. Bronaugh had been struck by the heels of a horse on the head and the front wheel had passed over one of his legs. The sixth precinct patrol wagon was summoned and he was taken to Providence Hospital, and it was at first thought that the injuries and shock would result in his death. This morning the physicians found his condition improved and it is believed that he will survive, but it will be necessary to amputate his leg. Mr. Bronaugh is a native of the District, residing at 3328 O street, West Washington, aged about thirty-five ears and had long been in the employ of the railroad.</td>

Verdict of Jury in Case of Harry O. Brooke
Killed by Live Wire Last Evening
No Blame Attached to the Electric Company

Harry O. Brooke, twenty-five years old had hold of an electric light wire on Nichols avenue, near Philadelphia street, Congress Heights, yesterday evening when the current was turned on and received a shock which caused his death in a few minutes. Brooke was a blacksmith by trade and had also done some electrical work.

He was in the store of Samuel M. Filius when a clerk in there made a remark about an electric wire breaking and Brooke and Charles Murphy went out to investigate. When Brooke took hold of the wire to get it out of the way of the car his friend Murphy said: "For heaven’s sake don’t touch that." "It won’t hurt me," Brooke said.

Murphy repeated his warning and Brooke repeated the statement that it would not hurt him. It so happened that the break occurred just before the time for turning on the current to feed the street lamps. It was eight minutes past 6 o’clock when he picked up the wire and the current was turned on just one minute later.

At the inquest held today at the sixth precinct station, Murphy told of having begged his friend to let go of the wire. He said the insulation on the wire was broke for a short distance and that Brooke had his hand on this part of the wire.

“Do you know anything about electric wires?” he was asked. “No, sire,” was his response, “and if I had I’d been in the fix that he’s in.” Murphy told the jury that Brooke received three shocks.

Their Evidence Important
Two important witnesses in the case were James Tucker, motorman, and William Miller, conductor of the car that passed the scene of the accident about one minute before Brooke received the shock. Tucker said he had known Brooke for about four years and knew he was acquainted with electric wires as he (Brooke) had done electrical work on the road and at the hospital for the insane. Yesterday afternoon his car was moving south near Philadelphia street when he saw Brooke holding the end of a broken electric light wire. Brooke was apparently holding it out of the way of the car, but this was not necessary, as the car would not have touched the wire. When his car got near where the broken wire was, witness said: “Brooke, let go that wire.” “What did Brooke say?” the coroner inquired. “He said nothing but laughed,” was the response of the witness.

Witness said he spoke to Brooke for the latter’s own sake, as he realized there was danger. The car had gone about twenty feet when witness heard a passenger remark: “The man’s dead.”
Witness looked back and saw electric flashes coming from the body of the victim. The motorman said he stopped his car to go to Brooke’s assistance, but was advised to go to the end of the line, only a short distance away, and summon the patrol wagon.

William Miller was next examined. He told substantially the same story as the motorman, except that he said nothing to Brooke.

Story of Eye-Witnesses

Policeman V.G. King told the jury of his connection with the accident. Brooke was not dead when he reached him, but death occurred before he could be removed. Witness took him to the asylum where doctors examined him and pronounced life extinct.

S.M. Filius, a grocer, witnessed Brooke’s action and thought there was no danger, as he knew Brooke had done electrical work. Witness saw Brooke when he fell and ran toward him. He was advised not to touch the body, and he looked for a stick to use in freeing his hand from the wire. No sparks were emitted before the car reached the broken wire. Witness said he felt no shock when he knocked the wire from Brooke’s hand with a stick. He thought the man’s pulse did not cease to beat for fifteen minutes after the shock was received.

Burton White, an electrician, was also questioned. He reached the scene of the accident just before Brooke died. Witness had his rubber gloves with him and he arranged the broken wire.

He said the wire was a weather-proof one, but he made no careful examination of it. There was a slight break in the insulation about one foot from the broken end.

Deputy Coroner Glazebrook told of he burns on the right hand of Brooke’s body, and said his death was due to shock.

The jury returned a verdict of accidental death and attached no blame to the electric light company. In reaching this conclusion the jurors expressed themselves as being of the opinion that Brooke, not being an employee of the company, had no right to touch the wire.

The Evening Star, February 27, 1904, p. 16

Anacostia and Vicinity

The funeral of Harry O. Brooke, the young man whose death resulted Tuesday evening at Congress Heights from handling a live electric light wire, was held yesterday afternoon from the Emmanuel Protestant Episcopal Church in Anacostia. Rev. W.G. Davenport, the rector, officiated. The remains were interred in Congressional cemetery.

The National Intelligencer, January 28, 1857
Death of the Hon. Preston Brooks

The public sympathies were deeply and painfully stirred last evening about 7 o'clock by the news of the sudden death of the Hon. Preston S. Brooks, a Representative in Congress from the State of South Carolina. He had been unwell but 2 or 3 days and his indisposition was hardly known beyond the circle of his particular friends when information of his death broke upon the public heart with more than ordinary solemnity. We learn from one of the colleagues of the lamented deceased that his malady was a severe cold, which terminated in violent croup at a moment when his friends had reason to suppose that the crisis of his illness had passed.

The Evening Star, Wednesday, January 28, 1857
Death of Preston S. Brooks

This gentleman died at his lodgings, Browns' Hotel, in this city, yesterday evening shortly after dark. He had been sick of inflammatory sore throat for a few days. On the day before yesterday (Monday morning) he first deemed it advisable to call in resident medical advice, his affection having become serious, though up to half an hour before his decease no apprehensions of its fatal termination were entertained, we learn. The immediate cause of his death was a sudden attack of quincy or croup, incidental to the affection under which he labored. About twenty minutes before the sad event took place a powerful emetic was administered to him, which failed of any effect whatever. Drs. Kidwell, Hall and Boyle were present, as well as some of his friends.

Instantly after the sad event took place it was known over the city, and the halls of the hotel were crowded with inquiring and sorrow-stricken citizens and strangers. We never before knew such an event to give rise to such wide-spread, real grief as was manifested in this community on that occasion. No man ever in Congress has been more universally and sincerely beloved here, for no other has been endowed with a nobler nature or more lovable traits of character. The heart-felt grief manifested last night by so many men of all parties, of high intelligence, all of whom knew him well personally, affixes the stamp of falsehood to the partisan slanders concerning him with which so large a portion of the Northern press has teemed, for political effect, for a year past. If ever a death touched the heart of this community -- of all classes and parties congregated in the Federal metropolis -- it is in this case. That of Preston S. Brooks is mourned, mourned, mourned.

Congress

No business was transacted in either House of Congress yesterday beyond the reading of the journals of the preceding day and the presentation in the Senate of a few memorials and resolutions. Both Houses; soon after assembling, adjourned in respect to the memory of the Hon. Preston S. Brooks, under circumstances plainly denoting the deep impression which his sudden death has made upon his fellow-members. The solemn event will be formally announced at 12 o'clock to-day in the House of Representatives, and immediately thereafter in the Senate, when it is expected that his many personal friends will speak in appropriate eulogy of his character. The funeral will then take place from the Capitol, in the following order:

Preston Smith Brooks was removed to South Carolina February 9, 1857 attended by a delegation of over 30 South Carolinians.

Departed this life Friday, July 11, 1902, at 1309 South Carolina avenue southeast, our devoted cousin, Rachel C. Brooks, at the age of thirty-two years and four months. She died in the full triumph of faith, leaving a loving mother and a host of cousins.

Dearest cousin, thou hast left us;
We our loss do deeply feel.
But 'tis God who has bereft us;
He will all our sorrows heal.

The Evening Star, June 23, 1898
A Brutal Murder
Wm. H. Brooks Killed at His Home
His Wife Also Assaulted
She Lies Now at the Emergency Hospital
Her Condition is Serious
Robert Funk is Suspected as Having Committed the Deed
The Coroner's Inquest

A horrible tragedy was enacted at No. 914 22d street northwest about 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon, William H. Brooks, a veteran of the late war and seventy-three years old, dying soon after an ax had been used on his head, and his wife, Martha, sixty-five years old, receiving terrible injuries from blows inflicted with the same weapon. Mrs. Brooks is in the Emergency Hospital, and it is said nothing short of a miracle can save her life. The police believe that robbery was the motive which impelled the killing, and the detectives are doing their best to cause the arrest of Robert Funk, a carpenter, who is charged with the crime. Funk's wife and child live on Wood street, Philadelphia, and his father and other relatives live in Baltimore.

Daughters of the victims have reported that their mother had between $890 and $1,000 tied in a false pocket about her waist. This money, they say, is missing, as are the false pockets. Telegrams asking for the arrest of Funk have been sent to the police authorities in different cities and Inspector Mattingly is doing everything in his power to have him apprehended.

Popular

Pappy and Mammy Brooks, as the old people were familiarly known to their relatives and neighbors, had not an enemy in the world, so far as any one knows. They were extremely kind-hearted, and were highly respected by all who knew them. Yesterday afternoon as late as 5:30 o'clock Mrs. Brooks was in front of her house, watering some plants. Half an hour later she was found in a little store room in the rear, on the first floor, unconscious. Her husband was in the same little room and life left his body before he could be removed from where the terrible crime had been committed.

Dr. Morhart, from the Emergency Hospital, who came hurriedly in response to a summons, pronounced the man dead. He had Mrs. Brooks placed in the ambulance without delay, and she was soon on the operating table in the hospital.

George Larson, a friend of the Brooks family is the man who made the discovery of the crime, while one of the neighbors heard the groans of one of the victims from her house.

Attracted by Groans

Larson called at the house a few minutes after 6 o'clock. He was so well acquainted that he entered without the formality of ringing the bell or knocking on the door. He found nobody in the parlor or dining room, and thought he would wait a few minutes, but before anybody appeared he heard groans in the little room in the rear of the dwelling. Going to the door, he found it securely bolted on the outside. Pulling back the bolt, he opened the door, and was horrified at the sight of the old people in pools of blood. Without stopping to make an investigation he hastened to the street and called for assistance. A letter carrier, Mr. Johnson, who lives in the adjoining house, was the first one to respond to his call, and soon afterward a large crowd collected. The police were also sent for and Precinct Detective and Policeman Vanhorn were assigned by Lieutenant Boyle to make an investigation.

It was the belief of the police at first that the dead man had committed suicide after having inflicted injuries upon his wife. He had threatened to end his life several times, and had expressed the fear that he might possibly injure somebody else. The theory of suicide, however, was dispelled by information given by Mr. Larson.

There is a window in the room which opens upon the yard, but it was found to be nailed down, and cobwebs over the nails indicated that it had been secure for many months, and possibly years. This fact in connection with the fact that the communicating door was declared to have been bolted when Mr. Larsen reached it caused some perplexity, but the police made a thorough investigation which ended in the effort to apprehend the missing Philadelphia carpenter.

Detectives at Work
Detectives Weedon and Phillips were assigned to the case this morning by Inspector Mattingly, and it was after they reported to headquarters the result of their investigation that the message asking for Funk's arrest was sent out. Robert Funk's sister, Mrs. Kate Clark, lives at No. 963 New Hampshire avenue. At her house Mrs. Sophie Brown, daughter of the aged couple, met and became acquainted with him about a month ago. He was then working on a new school building at 24th and F streets, and, desiring a boarding house, Mrs. Brown introduced him to Mrs. Buckley, who keeps boarders at 2145 I street, just around the corner from the Brooks house. Mrs. Brown, who is separated from her husband, lived with her parents, as did her unmarried sister, Maggie Brooks. Mrs. Buckley gave her new boarders the best room in the house and for the two weeks he was there he paid his board and kept regular house. He seldom remained out, she said today, later than 10 o'clock. Funk frequently called at the Brooks house and Mrs. Brown had called at his boarding house, so Mrs. Buckley says. She would call just after supper and they would go out together for a stroll.

Suspicious Actions
Yesterday during the day Funk was in the Brooks house, having been laid off the job at the school building. In the afternoon he did a little work about the premises and assisted in the moving of a stove. Mrs. Brown left the house about 3 o'clock, which was near the time Funk went away. She went to the War Department to attend to some business. Before Mrs. Brown went away, however, she made an engagement to meet Funk near Washington Circle between 6 and 7 o'clock in the evening. This engagement, she said, was made at the suggestion of Funk, and when she reached the place he was not there. She said he had never disappointed her before. He also made an engagement with Miss Maggie, at the house of his sister, Mrs. Clark, on New Hampshire avenue, which was to occur about the same hour that the other appointment was to be kept. This engagement he made after Mrs. Brown had left the house for the War Department. Neither woman knew of the engagement the other had made. It was impossible for the man to have kept both engagements, and he did not keep either.

Funk ate supper at Mrs. Buckley's boarding house yesterday at the usual time, 5:30 o'clock, and Mrs. Buckley thinks it was a few minutes before 6 o'clock, possibly fifteen minutes, when he went out of the house. There was nothing unusual in his conduct when he left, nor did she give him another thought until he failed to return home at bedtime. She had heard of the tragedy around the coroner from her house, and thought that Funk was probably there assisting the family.

May Be a Clue
Two pieces of lead pencil picked up in the room may play an important part in the solution of the mystery. They are marked E. Faber, Penny Pencil, and have a small rubber in one end.

They look like Robert Funk's pencils, one of the young women remarked when they were found.

Subsequently the detectives called at Funk's room in Mrs. Buckley's house, and pencils of the same make were found. A thorough search of the room was made by the detectives in the hope of finding some written material which might be of assistance in locating the fugitive. The only things in the shape of letters found in the room were pieces of a destroyed letter and a note found in the pockets of one of his coats hanging in the room. These bits of paper were taken to headquarters, and an effort will be made to put them together. Mrs. Buckley said that Funk had been receiving letters from his wife. He received a letter yesterday. He had told her that he sent money home for the support of his child, but said he would not give one cent to his wife. What was in the letter received yesterday she did not know.

The Weapon Used
The ax with which the crime was committed was picked up on the floor near the woman. It has a broken handle, and upon it were blood stains, showing finger prints.

It is likely that the husband was the first one attacked, for he was wearing a new pair of slippers, and there was not a blood stain on the bottom of either of them. Had Mrs. Brooks been first assaulted it is thought she would have struggled with her would be assassin, and would in all probability have walked in the blood on the floor. In making the autopsy this morning Deputy Coroner Glazebrook found seven cuts on the old man's head. There was one blow in the back of the head, which the doctor thinks was the first inflicted. This knocked him down, and then the six other cuts, side by side, were inflicted. The blade of the ax, the doctor says, was no doubt used in all the cuts, and the skull was literally hacked to pieces.

Mrs. Brooks' Injuries
At the Emergency Hospital Dr. Horhart made a careful examination of Mrs. Brooks' wounds, as well as of the condition of her clothing. He found five depressed fractures of the skull and these he thought were made with the blunt end of the ax. He found her clothing above the waist intact, while her skirts showed that they had been tampered with during or after a struggle. Mrs. Brooks wore four skirts, and three of them had been torn about the band, both in front and back, and the false pockets mentioned were not found.

An operation was performed and portions of the patient's skull were removed. The doctors found that her skull was unusually thick, and this had possibly saved her life. This morning she was partly conscious. She wanted to get out of bed and insisted that she had not been injured. An opiate was administered.

She was resting quietly at the Emergency Hospital this afternoon at 1 o'clock. Previously she was delirious and raving, and it was with the greatest difficulty the surgeons finally succeeded in quieting her. Her chances for life is very slim, her uneasiness and raving having a very deleterious effect upon her.

Orders for Funk's Arrest
This afternoon a message was sent from police headquarters to the several stations requesting Funk's arrest on a charge of murder. He is described as being about twenty-eight years old, five feet eight inches in height and weighing about 180 pounds. He has a light complexion, light hair and a smooth face. When he left Mrs. Buckley's boarding house he wore a pair of checkered trousers and checkered coat to match. He wore a brown derby hat and a new green tie.

The police were told that a man with dark complexion had been seen to jump the fence in the rear of the house shortly after the commission of the crime.

Funk Wishes for Money
Funk, his landlady said, had frequently spoken to her about going away, and complained that he was not wealthy. If I could only get $800 or $1,000, he remarked to her, on a recent occasion, I would go to the Klondike.

The officers spent considerable time on the case this morning. Many theories were advanced by persons interested.

With the members of the family there was but one theory. Their mother had been brutally assaulted for the purpose of robbery. Just how much money their mother had they are unable to state, but they felt certain she had at least $800, and she may have had twice that amount. People in the neighborhood have always been under the impression that she had a large sum of money, and that she carried it around her waist, as already stated. These false pockets were made of bed ticking and were tied with a string. They were missing and so is the money.

Coroner's Inquest
This afternoon at 2 o'clock Coroner Carr held an inquest at the sixth precinct station. The jury was composed of ex-Policemen Hamilton and Mooney, Charles W. Downing, William H. Harrison, John Garner and Alfred S. Wilson. Precinct Detective McClue, Sergt. Keefe and Detectives Weedon and Phillips, were present. Deputy Coroner Glazebrook and Mr. Lasky, the latter of the district attorney's office, were also present. Deputy Coroner Glazebrook described the condition of the body as already stated.

He told of the seven incised wounds of the head and said they were all about the same size. Every wound penetrated the skull, and the cuts had so injured the skull that one side of his head presented the appearance of having been crushed with one weapon. He thought the man was flat on the floor when six of the wounds were received.
Do you think it possible that the man could have inflicted the injuries himself? asked the coroner.

Absolutely out of the question, was his response. He certainly could not have inflicted them.

Witness found some evidence of an old heart trouble.

The wounds, he said, were necessarily fatal.

The Evening Star, June 25, 1898
Frank Funk Held
Coroner's Jury Accuses Him of Murdering Wm. Brooks
Abstract of Testimony Taken
The Detectives Active in the Search for Funk
His Whereabouts Unknown

Yesterday afternoon at the inquest held in the case of William H. Brooks, who was so brutally murdered Thursday evening at his home on 22d street, several additional witnesses were examined and the jury returned a verdict expressing the belief that Frank Funk had committed the crime. Mrs. Sophia Brown was on the stand when The Star's report closed yesterday. She told of how she became acquainted with Funk through his sister, and said he had been a frequent visitor to the home of her parents. She was with him in Washington circle about an hour before the murder was committed, and had made an appointment to meet him again about 7 o'clock. This appointment he failed to keep.

Mrs. Brown said she had seen letters Funk had received from his wife and she had also seen letters he had written to her.

He told her that he was going to leave here this week, said witness.

Did he tell his wife where he was going?

He told her that he was going to Pittsburg, she answered, but he only told her that to bluff her off, for he didn't want her to know where he was going.

Pencils as an Exhibit
The lead pencils found in the room in which the crime was committed were produced and witness said she had seen Funk have pencils like them. She thought, however, that he had had a pencil with silver on it. Witness had seen him write letters with a pencil. Witness said she did not return home until after 7 o'clock. When Funk failed to keep his appointment with her she sent to Mrs. Buckley's for him, and learned that he had not been home since dinner.

Mrs. Ella Maria Buckley, at whose house Funk boarded, testified that he was at dinner about 5:30 o'clock Thursday. He did not seem hurried or excited. Soon after he had finished eating he went out. When he left the house he was dressed in his best clothes.

Did he return home after dark?

No, sir, she answered. He hasn't returned yet.

Was there anything unusual about this?

Yes, sir; he had never remained away all night before.

Thursday night about 10 o'clock a telegram was received for Mr. Funk. Witness received and signed for the telegram, and yesterday morning she sent it to the police.

Mrs. Brown, daughter of the deceased, she said, engaged board at her house for Mr. Funk, and she had called for him every afternoon since he came. They usually went out together. Last night was the first time she had failed o call.

While at the house Funk constantly talked about money, she said, and said if he could get eight or ten hundred dollars he would go to the Klondike. He seemed very anxious to go to the gold fields. Funk had answered an advertisement of a Bible house in Philadelphia, and Tuesday he received an answer. He answered that, and next day he received something from the Philadelphia firm. About six years ago she counted Mrs. Brooks' money and she then had about $700. Mrs. Brooks carried her money in pockets made of bed ticking. Asked if Funk knew Mrs. Brooks had money, witness said that Wednesday night Mrs. Brooks told her that Funk had advised her to rent a large house and take boarders. He told her she ought to do it before all her money was gone, but she said she could not do anything with boarders while her husband was sick. Mrs. Buckley identified a piece of lead pencil shown her as the piece she had found in Funk's room.

A Neighbor's Evidenced
Mrs. Laura E. Chamberlain, 924 22d street, testified that she saw Mrs. Brooks between 5:30 and 6 o'clock.
She went home and ate her dinner, and just about the time she finished she heard that Mr. Brooks was dying.
A short while afterwards she heard that both Mr. and Mrs. Brooks were dying, and she said she could not believe it for she had just seen Mrs. Brooks. It was just a little after 6 o'clock when she walked up the street and heard that both had been murdered.

Do you know Mr. Funk? the witness was asked.

I don't know that I do know him now, she answered. I knew him as a boy, but he was so mean and low that I never had anything to do with him.

Witness said Funk lived here when he was a boy, but he went to Philadelphia. His father lives in Baltimore.

Saw Nobody Enter or Leave
Joseph E. Johnston, letter carrier, who lives at 916 22d street, next door to the Brooks house, testified that he was in front of his house Thursday afternoon from 5:40 to 6:15 o'clock, but he saw nobody enter the house.
The front door and window were closed. Mrs. Brooks, he said, had been in the habit of sitting at the front window in the afternoon, but she was not there Thursday. Witness first heard of the affair when Mr. Larson called him. When witness finished watering his park he went in the back yard and used his hose, but did not hear any noise in the Brooks house.

Harry Burch, 916 1/2 22d street, testified that he went to the house after the affair had happened. He did not see either Mr. or Mrs. Brooks that evening prior to the murder.

Samuel F. Smith, who was among those to respond to a call for assistance, also gave evidence.

Questioned Mrs. Brooks.
Sergt. E.J. Keeffe of the third precinct, testified that he went to the Brooks house when the report of the affair reached the station. He thought it was 6:40 o'clock when he arrived at the house. Mrs. Brooks had been removed to the dining room and witness questioned her to ascertain who had assaulted her. The only response she made was Nobody did it. Witness picked up the lead pencils on the dining room floor, and he was confident they had been dragged from the little room by the removal of Mrs. Brooks. Mr. Brooks breathed several times after witness reached the house.

Sergt. Keeffe told the jury that Mrs. Brown did not give the information about Funk Thursday night that she gave yesterday. Witness said he read the telegram, and as far as he could remember, it read: Will be at No. 5 Chess street tomorrow at 8:30 a.m. He thought the telegram was signed J.B. and was from Philadelphia.

Detective Phillips testified to the investigation made yesterday. He told of his visits to several places and of the finding of a pencil in the bureau in Funk's room. This pencil is similar to those found in the Brooks house after the murder had been committed.

Evidence Withheld
Coroner Carr said there were other witnesses in the case, but in view of the investigation being made he thought it best that they should not be examined until later. This closed the case and the jury returned the verdict stated.

The detectives are still engaged in the hunt for Funk, but this morning it was stated they had not received any information concerning his whereabouts. Some criticism of the precinct police has been made because the affair was not reported to headquarters until three hours after it was known at the station. Inspector Mattingly had then gone home, and it was not until yesterday morning that he learned of the murder.

The Missing Link
Inspector Mattingly's detectives have worked hard on the Brooks murder case ever since yesterday morning when the inspector first learned that the horrible crime had been committed, and today the missing link in the chain of evidence connecting Frank Funk with the affair was obtained. This consisted of the suit of clothes worn by the murderer, and the blood-stained garments are now in Inspector Mattingly's custody. They are the garments which were so fully described by Mrs. Buckely, the I street boarding house keeper, where Funk had boarded for something like three weeks.

There was a pair of trousers of mixed goods with the coat and vest to match, the white shirt and turned-down collar, the brown derby hat, and even the green tie. Just how these garments were obtained only the police and the boarding house or hotel people who turned them in knew.

These garments, together with the shoes, were turned over to the inspector by the keeper of the house where they were left.

It is reported that Funk changed his clothes in a hotel near one of the depots about 7:30 o'clock Thursday night, a little more than an hour after the commission of the crime.

His cast-off garments, which form so important a link, were left in the room he had occupied, and they were not found until yesterday. They were kept until this morning, when the blood stains on them aroused the suspicions of the proprietor, and he sent them to headquarters.

Soon after these articles were received Detective Phillips went to Mrs. Buckley's boarding house, where he found the trousers belonging to the coat and vest that Funk had left in the hotel.

The Garments Identified

Mrs. Sophia Brown, married daughter of the woman who was murdered and robbed, was sent for and when she reached headquarters and entered Inspector Mattingly's room she was shown the garments of the man whom she had known and in whose company she had been not two hours before the murder was committed. She fully identified them as belonging to Funk. She held a long conference with the inspector before she returned home.

Detective Parham made an investigation this morning of the report that a man had been seen to jump the fence in the rear of the Brooks house Thursday, but he was unable to find the colored woman who it was reported had seen the man. An old colored man who lives there stated that he was sitting in the alley fully two hours Thursday and was there during the time the murder was committed. He saw no one come over the fence, and he is certain that no one could have left the premises in that way without attracting attention.

Detective Weedon left the city last night and went in search of the fugitive. It is thought he went to Philadelphia. Some pencil shavings in a cuspidor in the room occupied by him were taken to headquarters by Detective Phillips. It was thought possible they might be fitted on the pencils found in the Brooks home, but they had been in the water so long a time that nothing could be done with them.

Mrs. Brooks' Condition

This afternoon at the Emergency Hospital the physicians said that there was no change in the condition of Mrs. Brooks. She is still delirious and the physicians have been unable to get any information from her. The funeral of her husband took place this afternoon. The body was buried in Congressional cemetery.

It has been stated in a city paper that Mrs. Kate Clark, sister of the accused man, resides at No. 903 New Hampshire avenue. This is declared to be a mistake, Mrs. Clark's home being at No. 903 22d street.

Mrs. Funk's Story

She Left Her Husband Because of Non-Support

Special Dispatch to The Evening Star

Laurel, Md., June 27--Mrs. Emma M. Funk, wife of Frank Funk, who is accused of the murder of William H. Brooks in Washington, was seen at the Laurel shirt factory by a reporter of The Star today. She answered all questions willingly. She said her maiden name was Emma M. Whitmore; that she was married in Laurel to Frank Funk five years ago, the 30th of November, and one daughter, four years old, the 26th of last November, was the issue of their marriage. She said she left her husband, who was a carpenter, about three years ago because of non-support; that at the time of the separation her husband and herself were living with his parents on Virginia avenue southeast between 7th and 8th streets, Washington, D.C.

After the separation she went to live with her uncle, C.C. Ewin, who keeps a store at 3d and D streets southeast. She and her husband, she said, lived in many houses in the southeast part of the city. About one year ago she returned to Laurel and for the past ten months has been employed in the shirt factory, residing with her mother, Mrs. Mary V. Whitmore, here.
When asked what her age and the age of her husband was she replied:

I was twenty-six years old the 4th day of last February and my husband is about twenty-eight years old.

What do you know about this murder of which your husband is accused?

I know nothing except what I have read in the Washington Star.

Have you had any communication with your husband at any time recently?

I have not seen or heard directly from him since May 25, 1897. When he came to Laurel and asked me to live with him again I told him no.

Funk A Bigamist

Facts Gathered Concerning the Murderer of William Brooks

Lawful Wife Resides at Laurel

Police Trace the Fugitive's Movements in This City

Deserter From The Army

The escape of Frank Funk, who it is alleged killed William H. Brooks and brutally assaulted and robbed the aged man's wife, has given the police department as much work as they had just after the escape of Dorsey Foulitz, more than a year ago. Since the information concerning Funk was given to the police by the daughters of his victims, the morning after the affair happened, the officers have received considerable information concerning the man's history, but up to this morning they had learned but little concerning his whereabouts. The latest and possibly the only real clue received was that Funk had been seen in Jackson City, and that he was on his way to Camp Alger, where he expected he would be able to get in with some of the companies going south.

The information was received yesterday morning and Detective Boardman was sent across the river to ascertain, if possible, what truth there was in the report. After visiting Jackson City the detective went to Camp Alger. Just what he learned at these places is not known except to the police officials.

Funk a Deserter

The police investigation thus far made shows that Fun is a deserter from the army and is probably a bigamist. He has been arrested in this city on various charges and several members of the police force are acquainted with him. His father and stepmother also being here, and he has a sister, Mrs. Clark, living at No. 903 23d street. In 1895 he was arrested for false pretenses, but the charge was subsequently withdrawn. He was afterward arrested on a charge of assault, and this experience in court cost him $10. Soon after Detective Weedon went to Philadelphia, where it was stated the man's wife and two children lived, the police received information that there was a deserted woman at Laurel, Md., named Funk. She was visited by Detective Boardman Saturday and he was informed that the woman, who has one child, is undoubtedly the fugitive's lawful wife. Three years ago she was deserted, and she has not seen her husband since. It was her belief that he was in Philadelphia, and she was surprised to learn that he had been living in this city.

Purchases a Suit

It is likely that the murder was committed a little earlier than was at first supposed, for the fugitive reached a 7th street clothing store not later than 6:15 o'clock, possibly a few minutes earlier. The store had closed for the day, and the proprietor was standing at the door with his head clerk, waiting for the bookkeeper to come out, when Funk, whose appearance was that of a mechanic, stepped up and asked:

Can I buy a suit of clothes?

I guess so, was the proprietor's response although he did not care about returning to the store. He thought, however, that the man was a mechanic, and had probably just come from work, and he concluded he would accommodate him.

The clerk went in the store, and the customer, who seemed perfectly at ease, purchased a blue serge suit. He was not hard to please, although he did not appear to be in a hurry. When he had tried on the trousers and found that they fitted him, he was told that the coat and vest measurements were all right. This satisfied him, and, taking the money from his vest pocket, he paid for the suit, took his bundle and departed. Between the clothing store and the hotel he bought a pair of shoes and hat.
All his shopping was done in about fifteen minutes, for it was about 6:30 o'clock when he reached the hotel and registered his name as Harry A. Nicholson, Cincinnati.

I've been traveling and I'm all tired out, he remarked to the hotel man. I want to get right to bed.

Hotel Proprietor's Impressions
There were a number of excursionists from Danville in the place at the time, and the proprietor thought he was one of them.

He looked as if he might have been a countryman, the hotel man said to a Star reporter this morning.

The fact that he had several bundles in his arms also caused the belief that he was an excursionist who had been shopping.

I'll eat supper before I go upstairs, he remarked and walked in the dining room. He was not in the dining room very long, and when he came out he paid a day's board, and was shown upstairs to room 29. The was nothing more seen of the man, and it was not until the next morning that his absence was known.

Tell-Tale Slip of Paper
It is now certain that he left the hotel a few minutes after he was shown to his room. The gas was left burning and the man had not even stopped to wash his face and hands. Friday morning one of the chambermaids went to the room to make an investigation, the gas having been burning all night. Much to her surprise there was no one in the room, nor had the bed been occupied. There was a full suit of clothes there, however, and a slip of paper found on the floor contained Funk's name. This paper was a contract of some kind that Funk was at work on. When the hotel proprietor saw the name on the slip of paper corresponded with that printed in Friday's Star, he sent word to the police and turned the important evidence over to Detective Lacy.

At the hotel, as at the clothing store, the fugitive exhibited only about money enough to settle his bills. There was blood stains on the trousers and shirt, but non on the shoes. The coat and vest were also free from blood stains and the police think he may have been in his shirt sleeves when the crime was committed.

Descriptive Circular
Inspector Mattingly prepared a circular Saturday for distribution, asking departments and police officers of other jurisdictions to assist in the efforts to apprehend the fugitive. The circular reads:

Tired of Life
A Young Man Shoots a Pistol Ball Through His Head
His Parting Letter To His Father And Sister
Louis Edward Brothers, a widower 27 years old, the only son of Dr. Louis J. Brothers, of No. 906 B street southwest, committed suicide last night at his father's residence by shooting himself through the head with a Colt's large navy pistol. He returned home last night and retired early. Sometime during the night he ended his life in the manner stated, but no one in the house heard the report of the pistol. This morning his sister called at his room door for him to come to breakfast, but receiving no response, she unlocked the door, to which she carried a key, and was horrified to see the dead body of her brother lying across the bed. In his right hand he held the large pistol, and on the bed beside the body lay the flattened bullet which had passed through his brain. He evidently held the muzzle of the pistol to his right temple, for the powder from the weapon had blackened the side of his face. The bullet passed through his head and fell on the bed beside him. Members of the family could assign no cause for the act. He had been in good health, and was not in the habit of drinking. Upon searching the room a note left by the unfortunate man was found. It was written in a nervous hand, and on the outside was written: "Goodbye, father and sister." The note read as follows:

"I am tired of life in this world. I am not drunk. I loved my father and sister Lucy. I do not know whether I will make a job of it or not. I want Frank Bell, of No. 1612 9th street, to carry me out in my box. Goodbye all. In a few minutes I hope all will be over. Father and sister don't grieve after me in hell or heaven. I know not where I am going. My best regards to Mrs. Renhart and Fannie and Lillie. I forego Alcenia and the boy named after me. I hope he will not come to what I have.

To my Father and Sister."

Word was sent to the police and soon afterwards Coroner Patterson viewed the body and gave a certificate of death. Deceased was 27 years old and had been engaged in the cigar business, and at one time was in the employ of the Pennsylvania railroad.

Brough, Elizabeth M.

The Evening Star, October 5, 1909, p. 4
Mrs. Elizabeth Brough Dead
Brief Directions for Disposition of Property Body Discovered by Neighbors in Kitchen of the Flat She Occupied

Mrs. Elizabeth M. Brough, who died yesterday afternoon in her apartment at the Latterner, 210 10th street southwest, was the widow of Maj. John H. Brough. She had been employed as a clerk in the redemption division of the Treasury Department subsequent to the death of her husband, which occurred about fifteen years ago.

It was stated to the coroner that Mrs. Brough had been ill for some time. She was last seen alive about 10 o'clock yesterday morning. Her breakfast was sent to her by the occupant of another apartment in the Latterner, but she did not partake of it. About 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon, finding the room leading to her apartment locked, an occupant of another apartment gained access to her rooms from a fire escape and found her body in the kitchen of the flat. Her outer garments had been removed and her body was resting on some bedding.

Pinned to a piece of ribbon in her sleeping apartment was found a message reading: "Bury me with my plain ring. Everything in this flat is for Ruth."

Bicycle Policeman Russell of the fourth precinct went to the apartment and made an investigation. He had Dr. L.A. Johnson summoned, and the latter found that life was extinct. Relatives of the deceased went to the Lattimer later in the day and had an undertaker take charge of the body and prepare it for burial.

The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from the residence of Mrs. Brough's sister, 1110 Virginia avenue southwest. The interment will be private.

Brough, John H.
Brough. On Wednesday, January 15, 1890 at 6:30 p.m., Major J.H. Brough. The funeral will take place from his late residence, 803 G street southwest, Sunday, January 19, at 2 p.m. Relatives and friends are invited to attend. No flowers.

The Funeral of David Broughton

The funeral of the late David Broughton, who died on Sunday morning of paralysis, took place this afternoon from Wesley M.E. Chapel, and was attended by a large number of friends. Mr. Broughton was the father-in-law of Messrs. J.W. Scott and B.W. Gheen, of this city, and had lived here for many years. He was a native of Washington county, N.Y. For some years he had a farm in Virginia and a livery stable in Alexandria. He was for a time (with his son-in-law, Mr. Scott,) lessee of the American house and the proprietor of a stable on 14th and D streets. He was a consistent member of the Methodist church.

His Injuries Fatal

Mr. Edward C. Broughton, who was frightfully injured Monday afternoon by the explosion of a fuse cap, which he was holding between his teeth, died last evening at the Emergency Hospital. The injured man suffered intensely from the time of the accident, and, of course was unable to speak, as his tongue was badly mangled. The remains have been removed to the late residence of the deceased, 3143 N street northwest, where funeral services are to be held tomorrow at 2 o'clock. Mr. Broughton leaves a wife and three children. Coroner Hammett will make an investigation of the case this afternoon at Wright's undertaking establishment to decide whether or not an inquest is necessary.

The Evening Star, March 8, 1859
Death of the Postmaster General

It is with sincere regret we announce the decease of Hon. Aaron V. Brown, Postmaster General, which occurred at twenty minutes past 9 o’clock this morning, after a painful illness of some ten days’ duration, at his residence, corner of G and Nineteenth streets. Although this melancholy event has been expected for several days, its announcement has had the effect of casting a gloom over the minds of our citizens and the public functionaries residing here, to many of whom Mr. Brown was known personally and by whom he was held in highest esteem. During his illness he bore all the advantages of the best medical skill, and he has borne his sufferings with composure and calm resignation. His death was an easy transition from the present to a future stage of existence, and almost up to the moment of its occurrence he retained possession of his faculties.

The President and members of the Cabinet were informed of the sad event as soon as possible, and for the time being all public business will be suspended, except such as is essential to the welfare of the public interests. The Post Office Department was closed as soon as convenient, in respect to the memory of the deceased and will so remain until his funeral, except in cases of urgent necessity.

The deceased eminently deserves to be classed among the eminent men of the present age, for in every position he has been called to occupy during a public life of more than ordinary length, he has acquitted himself of the duties pertinent thereto with marked ability.

Mr. Brown was born on the 13th of August, 1795, and was therefore, aged sixty-three years, six months and twenty-three days. His birthplace was Brunswick county, Virginia, and his father was the Rev. Aaron Brown, a minister of the Gospel of high repute in the Methodist Episcopal denomination.

Mr. Brown was educated at the University of North Carolina and during his absence at school his father removed from Virginia to Tennessee. After he had graduated, he also went to Tennessee, and studied law in the office of Judge Trimble, at Nashville, to whom he attributed much of those habits of industry and thorough research into the merits of whatever business came into his hands which so eminently qualified him in after life for filling public stations.

He practiced law in Tennessee a number of years, and for several years was in partnership with the late ex-President James K. Polk. He was several times a member of the Tennessee Legislature, serving at different periods in both houses, and always acquitting himself with such credit as to satisfy political opponents as well as to gratify his friends. In 1839 he was elected to Congress, where he served continuously until 1845, when he was elected Governor of Tennessee. In 1847 he was defeated in another contest for Governor, as the State was politically Whig and his opponent was a very popular man.

From that period until called by President Buchanan to fill the position of Postmaster, he was not engaged in public life, having refused through delicacy of feeling, to accept any position under President Polk, by whom he was tendered various offices. The long personal friendship which had existed between them, however, remained unabated up till the time of Mr. Polk’s decease.

Since he assumed control of the Post Office Department the whole country is aware of the efficient manner in which he has administered its affairs, though his usefulness has been greatly restricted at times by the adverse action of Congress. He has added vastly to the mail facilities of the entire country, and to his efforts mainly must be attributed that vast and noble undertaking of establishing mail routes through the hitherto unknown interior, and connecting thus the eastern with the western States of the Union. The advantages to arise from this service are not yet commenced to be felt, but it may be plainly perceived that these routes will become in a few years the trail, as it were, for a line of settlements across the continent, and lead to the rapid filling up of those expansive territories which would otherwise have lain unoccupied for years.

Politically, Mr. Brown belonged to the National school. Always an unflinching Democrat, fanaticism had no charms to attract him from the path of duty, and he steadily and uncompromisingly resisted all her approaches, whether they came from North or the South. In losing him, the nation has lost another of its leading minds, and his State has suffered a misfortune. In social life, his uniform affability and sincere good-heartedness, won for him the respect and affection of all his acquaintances, and many will deeply mourn his demise. Within the sacred precincts of his own family, where he was enshrined as the object of most fervent affection, we will not intrude.

Rumors are rife as to who will succeed Mr. Brown in the Post Office Department, and we hear quite a number named in this connection. Among these are Hon. Cave Johnson and Hon. Horatio King. The former has hereto filled the position and the latter is now the First Assistant in the Department. The exigencies of the time require the services of an officer acquainted with the Department affairs.

The Evening Star, March 11, 1859
Funeral of the Late Postmaster General

Our notice of this occurrence in yesterday's Star extended no farther than the starting of the procession, on account of the lateness of the hour. The cortege afterwards moved along Pennsylvania avenue, passing the Capitol on the south side. On arriving at the Congressional Cemetery, the corpse was placed on a bier in front of the vault, and the Rev. Dr. Hall there concluded the funeral services. The lid of the coffin was again raised, when the sons and relatives of the deceased, the President and his niece, Miss Lane, members of the Cabinet and ladies of their families, and many other persons walked around the bier and took a last look at the features of the dead. The coffin was then removed into the vault and placed in a box to be ready for transportation to the family burial place in Tennessee. A number of persons went into the vault while it remained open and after the company had partially retired, a servant of the deceased followed them and took a careful survey of the premises and of the box containing the remains of his late master, saying that he wanted to see how everything was so as to report to his mistress. The vault was then closed and those comprising the procession were soon on the way to their respective homes.

We omitted to mention yesterday the attendance at the funeral services at the White House, and the participation in the procession, of the Board of Aldermen, Common Council, officers of the city government generally, and of the Courts of the District. The Mayor was not present on account of indisposition. The diplomatic corps, it seems, did not go to the grave, although they were in the line of procession as it issued from the Executive Mansion. It is surmised that their non-attendance is attributable to a question of etiquette as to what place should have been assigned them in the line. In the programme they were placed after the representatives of the legislative and judicial branches of the government, and the question is supposed to be whether they were not entitled to follow immediately after the chief Executive officers.

The Evening Star, March 10, 1859
The Funeral of Postmaster General, A.V. Brown

At an early hour this morning, the Marshal for the District of Columbia, Col. Selden, detached a large body of police to the White House, to preserve order during the arrangement made there for the funeral of Postmaster General Brown. They appeared on the ground at about 9 o'clock, but ere their arrival, a good many persons prompted by sympathy or curiosity, had assembled in the vicinity.

Between 9 and 10 o'clock, the surviving members of the Cabinet repaired to the residence of the deceased, and escorted the remains, which were borne on a bier, thence to the Executive Mansion. The doors of the latter, however, remained closed for full half an hour afterwards and during this interim we are told the President took a parting look at his late lamented friend.

A favorite female servant, at the request of her mistress, accompanied the remains to their removal.

At a few minutes after 10 o'clock, the doors of the Presidential mansion were thrown open and the public were permitted to take a parting look at the deceased. The remains were deposited on a sarcophagus in the centre of the East room, and were encased in a handsome mahogany coffin, lined with sheet lead, and tastefully ornamented with wreaths of natural flowers from the conservatory of the White House. The trimmings of the coffin were, of course, all in keeping with its style and quality. On its lid was a silver plate bearing the following brief inscription:
Aaron V. Brown, Postmaster General
Born August 15th, A.D., 1795
Died March 8th, 1859

In the lining of the coffin a glass pane was fitted through which the features of the deceased could be seen. A pall of black velvet was thrown over the coffin and fell to the floor. The colored servant of the deceased occupied a seat by the side of the bier of her late master, while it remained in its position in the hall. Those who visited the room observed remarkable decorum, and all seemed affected deeply by the imposing spectacle. Among those who availed themselves of the opportunity afforded to look at the remains, were a large number of ladies, several prominent officers of the Government and distinguished gentlemen, and a good many strangers in the city, and a host of citizens of Washington, numbering in all, of both sexes, perhaps 3,000 persons.

Marshal Selden, and his deputy, Mr. Phillips, Dr. Blake, Commissioner of Public Works, and Capt. Goddard, chief of the police force, were in the East room during the morning, preserving order and arranging so that all the visitors might have equal facility for attaining the object of their visit.

At eleven o'clock the number of visitors having increased considerably, the green-room and the President's reception room were thrown open to afford freer egress for the company, and the throng soon equalled that witnessed on other State occasions.

At half-past eleven the clerks, messengers, etc. of the Post Office Department, and Sixth Auditor's office, numbering near two hundred, headed by the three Assistant Postmasters General, proceeded, to procession, from the Department building to the Executive Department to take part in the melancholy and imposing proceedings. And shortly afterwards the Senate of the United States, led by their officers, arrived in coaches.

Filing into the room, the clerks before mentioned passed the coffin, taking a last look at their late chief, and then ranged themselves around the room outside the circle of seats et for the cabinet, senators, diplomatic corps and clergymen. Those in this procession wore crape on the left arm. The clergy were next seated in the south part of the room, near the coffin. The pall-bearers, with sashes of black, were seated next to the clergy; and next came the committee of arrangements on the opposite side of the room, wearing sashes of white.

The members of the Senate were ranged on either side of the coffin below, and the President of the United States, members of the Cabinet, Diplomatic Corps, Judges of the Supreme Court, and the relatives of the deceased (except the ladies of his own family, who were not present) were ranged in the south end of the room behind the clergy. In this portion of the hall we observed a number of ladies of the families of members of the Cabinet and judges of the Supreme Court.

The Diplomatic Corps were present in full costume.

The company having been seated, after a few moments spent in silence, the Reverend Dr. Hall, pastor of the Church of the Epiphany, then read the imposing funeral ritual of the Episcopal service, together with its accompanying impressive prayers; after which Rev. Mr. Granberry, of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, delivered an impressive discourse.

Giving first a brief notice of the sickness of the deceased, and the state of mind in which he found him during his visit to his sick chamber, he proceeded to impress on the minds of his hearers the necessity of reliance on Divine power. He recognized the blessings of this life, and the value of those honors which are attained in this country through laudable ambition. Yet, notwithstanding these high positions, the present is an instance of their continual liability to be cut off by death in the midst of all their distinctions.

He next called the attention of the distinguished men of the country, those who occupy high places in the Government, to the great weight of their example on the entire country. Their conduct, he urged, is noticed by young men who visit this city for the purpose of carrying out their desires to attain eminence in public life, and they copy after it, and thus frequently shape their future destiny. But this is not all. The acts of these men who have been elevated to control the nation are heralded by the press, and the example is not without influence in distant parts of the country.

He then alluded especially to the deceased, asserting that general testimony concerning him gave him a high character for integrity and virtue, in all the relations of life. That he was upright in his dealings, of undeviating probity and honesty, but he would to God he were able to add that he was an example of piety.
Rev. Dr. Hall then read a prayer, and announced that the ceremonies would be concluded at the grave. There were also present of the clergy of this city Reverends Messrs. Gurley, Smith, Tustin, Hill, Carothers, Kingsford, and Elliott.

Shortly after noon the line of the procession was commenced to be formed by the Marshal, Col. Wm. Selden, U.S. Marshal for the District of Columbia, and his aids Capt. I. Rynders, U.S. Marshal for the southern district of New York; Geo. W. Phillips, Esq., Deputy U.S. Marshal for the District of Columbia; Charles Tyler, Esq., of Washington city. The line, as being formed, extended from the Executive Mansion down to Fourteenth street upon Pennsylvania avenue, and the sidewalks were lined with spectators.

Minute guns were fired from the public grounds south of the President's mansion as the signal for the procession to move, which took place shortly after one p.m. in the following:

Citizens and strangers

The hearse was drawn by four superb white chargers.

So large and universal a turnout of all classes of citizens has rarely been seen here on such an occasion. Carriages by hundreds, and men, women and children by thousands thronged the streets and avenues in the neighborhood of the Executive Mansion and the Departments; and all along Pennsylvania avenue, where the procession was expected.

Noted Woman's Death
Mrs. Virginia Hamilton Browne at Rest in Congressional Cemetery

Interments in the Historic Congressional Cemetery  Last Updated: 02/11/15
All that remained of Mrs. Virginia Hamilton Browne was yesterday laid to rest in Congressional Cemetery. The Rev. Dr. Alexander Kent of the People's Church conducted the funeral service at the home of the family and at the cemetery. Mrs. Browne had a host of friends, who admired her for her many excellent traits. She never tired of doing good to all who came within her sphere.

Mrs. Browne lived in this city for three-quarters of a century, and during the civil war was noted for the hospitalities she extended to the Union soldiers, who camped in close proximity to the Browne home on Capitol Hill. A woman of rare gifts and of illustrious descent, she had the confidence and respect of many of the most honored people in this city. Mrs. Browne was the daughter of a soldier who did good service during the war of 1812, Major Archibald Wade Hamilton, who was a first cousin of the illustrious Alexander Hamilton, the friend of George Washington. Mrs. Browne is survived by her husband, one son and two unmarried daughters.

Suicide of a Young Man

_He Jumps from a Bridge and is Drowned_
_Sad Ending of a Little Home Unpleasantness_

About 9 o'clock last night a young man named Ambrose Brown, whose parents reside on 3d street east, between Maryland avenue and C street north, committed suicide by jumping from the draw of the Anacostia bridge into the stream. A colored man who was in conversation with Brown as they were walking over the bridge, states that the young man, after giving him a chew of tobacco, told him to keep the entire piece, and then asked if he (the colored man) knew Officer Anderson, in Uniontown; and receiving an affirmative answer, requested him to see Anderson and give his love to him and his children, and say "GOOD BYE" to them. He was also particular in asking where the deepest part of the river was, and receiving an answer that it was deepest at the draw where the channel was, he, when he arrived at the draw, walked along the footpath, the colored man meanwhile keeping in the wagon road. Suddenly young Brown jumped on the rail, and then leaped off into the water. The colored man immediately rushed to the side of the bridge, and when Brown's head came out of the water he shouted, "Can you help me." The colored man hallooed to him to swim toward him, but he soon sunk again. The body was dragged for, and recovered about one o'clock this afternoon and taken to the eighth precinct station house, and the coroner was telegraphed for to hold an inquest. The deceased was a gas fitter by trade and was only about 20 years of age. It appears that yesterday, while at home, some of his brothers or sisters teased him, and he slapped one. The mother then SCOLDED HIM, and some words passed between them, she saying that unless he could behave himself she wished that he would stay away. He then took his hat and left, saying that he would not return. During the afternoon he was seen several times in the eastern section of the city, and visited an acquaintance, with whom he left an envelope containing A RING which he desired should be sent today to a young lady. About 8 o'clock last evening he was in Bryan's Green House, corner of 8th and L streets, and left with Mr. Bryan A NOTE FOR HIS FATHER reading as follows:--"Good-by, father; I am going to jump overboard tonight, for I have had a falling out with mother. Give my love to mother, and accept a share for yourself." The father of young Brown is an old resident of the eastern part of the city, and has the sympathies of the entire community in his affliction; and it seems that troubles never come alone, for his oldest son is now on the way home from Texas, where, by an accident, he has been disabled from work probably for life.

Funeral of A.J. Brown
Buried With the Rites of the Grand Army of the Republic

With the impressive burial services of the Grand Army of the Republic, the remains of Andrew J. Brown, sr., were interred yesterday at the Congressional cemetery. The religious services were conducted in the cemetery chapel by Rev. W.G. Davenport, rector of Emmanuel Episcopal Church of Anacostia. The members of John A. Rawlins Post, No. 1, G.A.R., headed by Senior Vice Commander Samuel W. Snow, were in immediate charge of the burial. The pallbearers were comrades Col. Dennis O'Conner, Col. Homer Riggs, Charles Boyd, W.S. Anderson, Mr. Brunthaver and James Lawler. Commander Snow was assisted at the services at the grave by Col. A.H. Nickerson, Charles Boyd and Col. Homer Riggs, and the "last taps" were sounded by Bugler W.W. Donnelly of the United States Marine Corps.

Andrew J. Brown died of pneumonia at Trimble Farm, Md., on November 1. He was born in this city in 1828. He served during the civil war as a private in Company C, 6th Battalion, District of Columbia Volunteers, enlisting on April 11, 1861, and when discharged was a sergeant in the same company. During the greater part of the last forty years he was employed at the Congressional cemetery. He is survived by a large family of sons and daughters.
Andrew J. Brown, a veteran of the civil war, died Wednesday at the home of his son, Andrew Brown, on Bowen road, where he was visiting. He was seventy-seven years of age, and was a member of John A. Rawlins Post, Grand Army of the Republic. During the war the deceased served with Company C, 6th Battalion, District Volunteers. His funeral was held yesterday morning from the chapel in Congressional cemetery. The remains were interred in that cemetery.

Long ago a quiet, honest man worked hard in ungrateful fields. His name was Andrew Jackson Brown and his wife's name was Maria. To reach their house you followed a road from a tobacco barn through an orchard of old apple trees, walked a log over Ice Pond Branch, climbed a wooded hill called Ice Pond Hill and crossed fields where grew, in summer, tobacco and slender, very slender corn.

Andrew Jackson Brown and his patient, striving wife, had a large family. There were children, Rachel, Georgianna (R15/113), Martha, Charlotte, Tina, Andrew, Tom and Lem. There may be many boys in Washington who knew those children, but I sure that Charlie Semmes, his brother Eddie, Willie Bryan of 1362 South Carolina avenue and Bob Griffin of the internal revenue bureau knew them.

Rachel Brown married Henry Hatton of the Surrattsville neighborhood and lives in Virginia; Georgianna [R15/113] married Edward Boteller [R16/113] of Washington and lives in this city; Martha married Joe Small of Prince George's County and lives in Washington; Charlotte[R88/367] married Charlie Gill [R88/366] of Surratt's and lives on G street near 13th southeast; Tina married Lee Bell and lived at Suitland. She died about a month ago. Andrew married Miss Ida Leapley, daughter of George Leapley of Frederick County. That was about twenty-seven years ago, and they have lived at Nonesuch about fifteen years. They have three sons, Andrew Jackson, who married Ethel Perry of Twining and lives there; George William, who married Miss Anna Grimley and lives on the Marlboro pike, and Thomas, who married Miss Mary Webster and lives on 11th street southeast.

The second son of Andrew Jackson and Maria Brown was Tom Brown, who is night watchman of "The Star" building and has been with us many years. I very seldom see him and have not seen him for two or three years. That is not because Tom is not around at night. The fault is mine. The third son of Andrew Jackson and Maria Brown was Lem. He was killed by a gun explosion at Indian Head about twenty years ago.

Andrew Jackson Brown, the elder, moved from the ice pond woods to Washington and died here twenty years ago. About ten years before he passed Maria crossed with Charon to dwell, as one system had it, with Pluto, Rhadamanthos, Thanatos and all that gloomy crew. But I find it happier to think that Andrew and Maria live in light, keep watch upon their children and sometimes visit, though unseen, the little house to which leads the road through the apple orchard and the woods of ice pond hill. Young Andrew drove a coach of the old horse heraldic company for many years -- and if I knew the number of years I would set it down.

Mrs. George Hay Brown Dies While Visiting Son
Widow of Noted Landscape Gardener
Succumbs Suddenly in Arizona, To Be Buried Here
Word has been received in this city announcing the sudden death of Mrs. George Hay Brown Tuesday, while on a visit to her son, Maj. Orville Graham Brown, surgeon United States Army, at Yuma, Ariz., where he is stationed. Maj. Brown has started for Washington with his mother's body and arrangements for the funeral will be completed after his arrival here. Mrs. Brown died of acute influenza.

Mrs. Brown was the widow of George Hay Brown, landscape gardener of the District for forty years. He planned practically the entire parking system of the District, Potomac Park being his last work.

Mrs. Brown was vice president of the Aid Association for the Blind and a member of the Twentieth Century Club, the Federation of Women's Clubs, he Day Nursery, the Junior Republic, the Red Cross and the Women's Democratic League. For many years Mrs. Brown was a member of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, where Mr. Brown formerly was an elder.

Mrs. Brown was the mother of Percival M. Brown, attorney, who died in 1911, and of Miss Elizabeth V. Brown, who, prior to her death in July 1915, was for eleven years director of primary education in the public schools of Washington. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Daniel Webster Prentiss of this city, and two sons, George Hay Brown of the Post Office Department and Maj. Brown.

Interments in the Historic Congressional Cemetery
Last Updated: 02/11/15
Miss Elizabeth V. Brown, educator, author, and clubwoman, died last night at her home, 1357 Euclid street northwest. Death was due to a nervous breakdown following a fall sustained in May.

Time for funeral services have not been decided upon but probably will be held Saturday with interment at Congressional cemetery.

The death of Miss Brown came as a shock to hundreds of friends throughout the city, with whom she had been associated in educational social and religious work in a manner which made her a beloved leader in all activities.

Miss Brown was the daughter of the late George H. Brown, who was for thirty-nine years landscape gardener of the District. She received her education in the Washington schools, graduating from both high and normal schools, and later received the degree of A.B. from the George Washington University.

School Career
Soon after her graduation she was appointed method and practice teacher in the Normal school.

As director of primary instruction for more than ten years Miss Brown had charge of the work of the first four grades, during which time she brought the primary schools up to the highest standard of efficiency. She held her position during the terms of Superintendents Stuart, Chancellor, Davidson and Thurston.

Miss Brown had been very popular as a lecturer on education and its related problems, and had been heard in many of the leading cities in the south, east and middle west. Extensive travels through the various countries of Europe as well as in the United States and Canada gave Miss Brown a breadth of view which was reflected in her lectures and in her educational and social work.

Author of Children's Books
As the author of a number of books for children Miss Brown won wide recognition. Among her earlier works are "Stories of Woods and Fields," "Stories of Childhood and Nature" and "When the World Was Young." Later she was a co-author of the "Home Readers."

Miss Brown was recently unanimously elected to succeed herself as president of the College Women's Club, an organization of 400 women, representing eighty-three colleges and universities. During Miss Brown's term the club reached its banner year, undertaking under her leadership new and successful enterprises.

She was the organizer and first president of the Teachers' Branch of the Women's Department of the National Civic Federation.

Miss Brown was an active member and earnest worker in the Audubon Society, the Y.W.C.A., the League of American Pen Women, the Twentieth Century Club, he Columbian Women and the Monday Evening Club.

Early in life Miss Brown identified herself with the Presbyterian Church. She was a member of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church. For many years she was a teacher, and afterward assistant superintendent of the Sunday school of that church.

Besides her mother, a sister, Mrs. Daniel Webster Prentiss, and two brothers, Capt. Orville G. Brown, U.S.A., and George H. Brown, are living.

In The Channel Isles
Miss Elizabeth V. Brown Lectures on Her Experiences
"A Pen Woman in the Channel Islands" was the subject of an illustrated lecture by Miss Elizabeth V. Brown, director of primary instruction in the public schools of the District, at the Public Library last evening. The lecture was given under the auspices of the League of American Pen Women. Besides members of the league, many school officials and others were present.
Miss Brown was introduced by Capt. James F. Oyster, president of the board of education. On the platform sat Dr. William M. Davidson, superintendent of schools; Mrs. Susie Root Rhodes and Mrs. Edith Kingman Kern, members of the board of education.

Terrible Explosion at the Navy Yard

Two Men Killed and Two Wounded

Last Saturday afternoon a terrible explosion occurred at the Navy Yard resulting in the death of two men and seriously wounding two others, one of whom now lies in a very critical condition. The rocket house just west of the ordnance department had four men at work in it, preparing detonating powder, etc. and it is thought that the explosion resulted from ignition in a copper vessel suspended from the ceiling in which powder was pulverized with a large copper ball. This, however, is not certain, and the whole affair is involved in considerable mystery. The powder in the vessel and a quantity in an iron tank was all that exploded, although there were several boxes and a barrel of powder in the room at the time. The building is nearly destroyed, the roof barely retaining its position, and the walls cracked and weakened. The windows were blown out, and everything about the building blasted and charred as though it had been in a furnace. Francis C. Brown was burnt to a crisp, and died shortly after the explosion. He was 26 years of age, and a native of Philadelphia, but has resided in Washington for about six years. He was a plasterer by trade, and leaves and wife and one child. John P. Ferguson was very badly burnt, and died on Saturday evening. He was unmarried, 26 years of age and a native of Washington. William Martin and Nicholas Ray were badly burned, and Martin is not expected to recover. Ray, it is thought will soon be able to get out again.

George Hay Brown Directed Laying Out of Public Grounds Here

Funeral services for George Hay Brown, landscape gardener of public buildings and grounds, who died yesterday afternoon at his home, No. 1357 Euclid street northwest, will be held either Friday or Saturday at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church. Rev. Dr. Wallace Radcliffe will officiate and the interment will be in Congressional cemetery. The exact day on which the services will be held has not yet been decided on by the family.

Mr. Brown, who was nearly seventy-two years old, died after an illness of several days, caused by a cold he caught last Saturday. He is survived by a widow, who was Miss Elizabeth Sascocaski; three sons, Percival M., a Washington attorney; George H. of Boston and Orville G., assistant surgeon in the United States Army, and two daughters, Miss Elizabeth and Miss Kathryn S. Brown.

Born in Edinburgh, Scotland, Mr. Brown became his father's assistant as a landscape gardener at the age of fifteen years. Father and son emigrated to Philadelphia in 1850 to seek a broader field for their work. Six years later the son came to Washington and took charge of the government experimental gardens. He remained in Washington until the outbreak of the civil war, when he enlisted in the 7th Battalion of the District Militia, where he served three months as a first lieutenant. He then entered the Engineer Corps in a civil capacity, and served with it until the war was over.

In 1870 Mr. Brown again entered the service of the government, in the position which he held from that time until his death. He directed the laying out of the public grounds of the National Capital, including those of the White House and the Capitol.

He was a member of the Loyal Legion, a Knight Templare, a past master of Lebanon Lodge, F.A.A.M., and an elder of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church.

<td>The National Intelligencer, February 25, 1828. The painful duty devolves upon us of announcing the decease of Major General Jacob Brown, Commander in Chief of the Army of the United States. He expired at his residence in this city, yesterday, after a brief illness of three or four days, preceded by a general indisposition of longer duration. His name is too intimately interwoven with the history of his country, to make it necessary for us to accompany this annunciation with any reference to his public life or services. His individual merits are too universally appreciated to need to be blazoned by the pen of eulogy. At a future day we shall endeavor to do justice to his eminent desert as a soldier and citizen, and to hold up to his fellow-citizens, in their proper colors, the example of his illustrious deeds and his blameless and virtuous private life. The following anecdote is adduced to demonstrate the extent of his vital piety; its parallel, perhaps, cannot be found:

In the year 1793, the yellow fever first made its appearance in Philadelphia, and the novelty of the disease, with the terrible fatality which marked its early progress, threw the inhabitants of the city and the surrounding country, into the most excited state of consternation. Several market men from Mr. Brown's vicinity, who had been at the city for the purpose of vending their country commodities, had imbibed the contagion, and become its victims -- a circumstance which highly aggravated the alarm in his immediate section. In the meantime, a man from Philadelphia, who was infested with the raging malady, threw himself into an outhouse, on Mr. Brown's farm, and expired. Mr. Brown was ignorant of the fact until after the man's death, and as soon as he was apprised of it, he expressed, before his family, a determination to perform the ordinary offices of sepulture, though he should necessarily endanger his own life. Young Brown was present, and heard this determination with great solitude. He reflected, that, if his father's life should be sacrificed, the hopes and happiness of his family would perish with him -- and a simultaneous action of his mind was a comparison of his father's importance to the family with his own. The comparison was no sooner made, than his resolution was formed, and without communicating his intention to any one except a negro, whose services he put in requisition, he repaired to the building, carrying a blanket with him, in which, after smearing it with tar, he enveloped the corpse. He then put it into a box which he had hastily constructed of rough boards and making the negro dig a hole, they committed to it the box and its contents, and completed the burial. Young Brown, at this time, was but 17 years of age. -- Poulson's Adv.

The family of the late General Brown left this City yesterday, for their future residence at Brownsville, in the State of New York. This interesting family, and especially the amiable relict of our lamented friend, carry with them the warmest esteem, as well as the sympathy of the whole society of this city, where they have made sincere friends of all who have known them. It is an act of kind liberality, which deserves to be mentioned, that the proprietors of the stages and steam boats, through the whole route, of near 500 miles have, by the friendly agency of the Postmaster General, tendered to Mrs. Brown, the gratuitous conveyance of herself and family, from this City to Brownsville.

Funeral services for James B. Brown, 88, were held this morning at his home at 1415 Twenty-second street S.E., and burial was in Congressional Cemetery.

A resident of the District for 67 years, Mr. Brown was one of the few survivors who voted for President when this city had the right of franchise in the early 1870s. He was born in Fauquier County, Va., and died at his home here.

He was connected with the Washington Loan & Trust Co. for 35 years until his retirement three years ago. He was a Washington Star subscriber for more than 50 years, relatives said.

Mr. Brown is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Susan I. Keene and Mrs. Virginia Beard of this city, and two sons, Thurman Brown of Washington and Clinton Brown of Champ, Md.

The cause of the gun explosion at Indian Head, Md., which killed four men yesterday and seriously injured another, is a mystery and may never be ascertained, is the opinion of officers and men at the navy proving ground.

According to enlisted men and employees of the station the investigation which has been ordered by the ordnance bureau will not determine whether there was anything wrong with the locking apparatus of the firing pin on the five-inch gun which exploded and snuffed out the lives of Lieut. A.G. Caffee and three of his gun crew.

Great sorrow was expressed last night at the station bureau of the disasters, and it was a sad escort that conveyed the body of the dead naval officer to the tug which was to bear it to this city.

Lieut. Caffee was very popular at the reservation and wherever he was known, and was regarded by subordinates and superiors alike as being one of the best turret officers in the navy.

But One Witness
There are no witnesses to the tragedy alive except Sydney Dyson, colored, who it is believed will not be able to describe the accident, because he was standing some distance from the gun and was overcome by the fumes from the explosive powder.

A singular fact about the explosion is that the gun is practically intact except that the breech block was blown away. According to men at the post the crew had loaded the cannon on the third proof round and the breech was just being closed when the premature blast took place.

At the Navy Department it was intimated late yesterday afternoon that a bent or fouled firing pin which projected sufficiently beyond the face of the breech plug, might have cased the disaster. This might occur, it is declaimed, notwithstanding every precaution was taken to protect the firing crew from the failure of a new gun under test.
The trouble in the present case lay in the fact that the gun was discharged before it was loaded. The brass shell containing the powder and the projectile had been inserted in the piece and the breech box swung on its hinge.

It was learned last night that the ordnance bureau of the navy has been trying for a long time to find some safety device applicable to guns of this caliber, but so far without success, and if the gun captain fails to obey the rule to pass his hand over the face of the breech lock before it is closed to detect any improper projecting of the firing pin, then such an accident as occurred yesterday may happen at any time.

Effects of the Explosion

Lieut. Caffee was standing in the rear of the gun, and his men were grouped about him. When the blast came, the breech flew back, splinters flying in every direction simultaneously with the explosion. James L. Brown, the battery foreman, and J.J. Leary, ordnance man, received the full force of the charge, and the former was blown to pieces. Lieut. Caffee's body was crushed and parts of his left limbs were torn away.

The noise of the explosion shook the whole reservation, and within a few minutes scores of employees were on the scene. All the men still breathing when found were hurried to the hospital on the grounds. The officer died at 12:44 o'clock, Leary died at 1:35 o'clock and Jackson expired shortly before 1 o'clock. Neither of the men was able to explain the disaster before dying.

Dyson, the lookout man, whose duty it was to signal persons nearby and passing vessels of the discharge, was unable last night to give a description of the accident. It is said he will prove of little assistance to the investigating board.

The remains of the battery foreman, Brown, were gathered later in the afternoon, and his and the bodies of Jackson and Leary were sent to their respective homes. It is some small satisfaction to naval officials to know that the employers' liability act will come into play in this case and that the families of the victims will receive the equivalent of one year's pay.

Brown's Previous Experience

Brown was injured in a gun explosion at Indian Head about six years ago and his companion at that time was instantly killed. For several years Brown had worn a silver plate in his head.

Despite the disaster the corps employed in the proving section of the grounds are not frightened.

Last night the men took the accident philosophically. One tanned veteran man-of-wars-man who is now on duty at the station said: "Somebody's got to take the chances in testing these guns before they are placed aboard battleships."

Inspector J.H. Holden, in charge of the proving ground has been in command at Indian Head only since Tuesday last. He is greatly shocked by the sad occurrence.

Lieut. Caffee married the daughter of Medical Director Dickinson, retired, about four years ago, and with his young wife and three-year-old child lived at the Indian Head station. Mrs. Caffee was grief-stricken when told of the disaster and hurried to the hospital, remaining at her husband's side until he expired.

No Plans for Caffee Funeral

No definite arrangements for the funeral of the late Lieut. A.G. Caffee, U.S.N., had been made last night, although it is expected that the services and interment will take place Tuesday. Lieut. Caffee's parents, who are in Missouri, were communicated with yesterday by telegraph, and the final announcement of the funeral will not be made until they are heard from. Interment probably will be at Arlington.

The body was placed on the tug Choctaw at Indian Head yesterday afternoon at 4:35 o'clock, and arrived in Washington about 8 o'clock. It was immediately taken to the home of Medical Director Dwight Dickinson, U.S.N., 2206 R street.

Frightful Death of a Brakeman
Crushed to Death by a Gravel Train
About 7:30 o'clock this morning a brakesman named John W. Brown, on the gravel train running from the sewer excavation in the northeast section of the city to the dumping ground at the intersection of New York avenue and Boundary streets, while taking out the first train loaded with dirt, in going down the steep grade at Patterson's hill, missed his footing while turning down the brakes and was precipitated to the track, the whole train passing over him and killing him almost instantly. The train was stopped as soon as the engine could be reversed, but not until the whole length of it -- nine loaded cars -- had passed over him. He was drawn out from underneath the engine, which was used to push the train ahead, and expired after a gasp or two, his body and head fearfully lacerated. The police ambulance was sent for, and the dead body carried to his mother's house, No. 220 C street northeast, where an inquest was held by deputy Coroner Hartigan, Mr. V.T. Austin acting as foreman of the jury.

The Testimony
Mr. Robert H. Lamb, the engineer of the gravel train, testified that he heard some one call out and saw one of the brakesmen throw up his hands, when he immediately reversed his steam and stopped the train. Deceased was not hit by the wheels of the cars, but appeared to have been between the tracks and dragged and mangled by the rods of the brakes, which were within 8 or 9 inches of the ground. The fireman of the engine corroborated the engineer's statement. Mr. Fred W. Brown, brother of the deceased, also a brakesman on the same train, gave testimony. Also a small boy named Michael Burke, who was on the side of the train where the accident occurred, and who saw deceased in the act of turning down the brake, when his foot slipped and he fell forward, and the bar of the brake dragged him under the train.

The Verdict
The jury returned a verdict was that death was caused by being accidentally run over by a contractor's dirt train, and they recommend to the company owning the track that there be more standing room around the car brake to avert a like occurrence.

Deceased was 35 years old, and leaves a wife and four small children. He was well-known as a respectable and industrious citizen. He belonged to the Knights of Pythias and Rechabites and a member of the Endowment Association.

The Evening Star, February 12, 1907, p. 1
Kills Woman and Himself
Murder and Suicide the Acts of Leonard T. Brown
Double Tragedy Enacted
Harness Establishment on 14th Street the Scene
Former Attempt to End Life
Man Recently Inhaled Illuminating Gas,
But Recovered After Treatment at a Hospital
Leonard T. Brown, who conducted the City Harness and Supply Company establishment at 2124 14th street, ended his life last night by shooting himself in the mouth, the bullet breaking his neck and causing instant death.  Before committing suicide he fired three shots at Miss Margaret Straub, killing her so quickly that she did not move after the discharge of the weapon at her.

The double tragedy was enacted in the work room in rear of Brown's place of business, it is supposed, at a late hour last night, but it was not until about 7:25 o'clock this morning that evidences of the crime were discovered.  Then the police, the coroner and relatives of Brown and of Miss Straub were notified of what had occurred.  Mrs. Della R. Brown, wife of the harness dealer, heard the news over the telephone at her home, 1329 Columbia road.  She remarked that she had expected he would do something of the kind.  Mrs. Straub, the aged mother of the dead woman, was notified of the occurrence by Rev. Father Donohue and her family physician, at her home in the Alexis flats, 1731 T street.  Mrs. Straub was already sick and in a nervous condition, having fallen and fractured her arm a few days ago.  She had inquired regarding the whereabouts of her daughter earlier in the morning, and the sad news naturally rendered her condition worse.  She knew that Margaret had been "keeping company" with Brown, and had done her best to stop it.  Mrs. Brown also knew that her husband had been going with Margaret Straub, and his conduct had caused an estrangement in the family.

Lee H. Smith, residing at 907 6th street southwest, and Claude C. Gardner of 61 Florida avenue, who were employed as clerks in the harness store, made the ghastly find this morning when they opened the store and went to the rear room to start a fire and prepare for business.

"Come here and see what's happened," Gardner called to his companion, stepping back.

Wife and Police Notified
After discussing what was best for them to do, the boys finally decided to notify Mrs. Brown and the police.  Mrs. Brown received the message by telephone, and was startled, but soon recovered her composure and told the young men at the other end of the line that it was just about what she had expected.  She knew all about her husband's affairs, she said, and she recalled that only a few days ago he had attempted suicide, but that he had changed his mind when he realized that he was about to lose consciousness, and then called for help.  He was in the rear room at his place of business at that time, the attempt at self-destructing having been made by inhaling illuminating gas.

It was about 4 o'clock in the morning when he got up from his bed, made by spreading a blanket upon his work bench and staggered to the front door.
Neighbors heard cries of "Help" in the store and informed the police.  Brown was treated at Garfield Hospital, and he fully recovered from the effects of the gas that he had inhaled.  His wife said at the time that the affair was an accident, doing the best she could to shield him.

Going to Store at Night
"He had been in the habit of going to his store at night to look over his mail," she said, "and frequently he would fall asleep and remain there all night."

At that time, it is stated, Mrs. Brown knew of her husband's friendship for Miss Straub. It is added that since he recovered from the effects of the gas, he had spent most of his nights at the store, having placed a cot in there. It was upon the cot that the body of the woman was found this morning, the body of Brown lying upon the floor with the head resting against the cot. A large blood stain on the bed indicated that the head of Brown rested alongside that of the woman at the time he ended his life. The revolver used by Brown was found upon the floor near his right hand.

Police Take Charge
As soon as advised of the finding of the bodies, Capt. Doyle of the eighth precinct send several policemen to take charge of the premises and Inspector Boardman detailed Detective Parham to the store to assist the coroner. When Coroner Nevitt reached the room in which the double tragedy had been enacted it required only a glance for him to determine that the man had committed murder and that he had then shot and killed himself. The position in which was the body of Miss Straub convinced him that she had not moved after she had been shot, and the location of the revolver was assurance that the weapon had been used by Brown. There was nothing to suggest a suicide pact, the wounds sustained by the woman indicating that she could not possibly have inflicted them. The woman had bled internally, not much blood having flowed upon the bed, but Brown had lost almost every drop of the blood from his body, the stream extending to a small stove, in the room about four feet from the body.

On a revolving chair near the cot was a box containing several pieces of chocolate candy indicating that the couple had eaten the other candy from the box prior to the tragedy. Resting on a work bench, against which was the cot, were the wraps that Miss Straub had removed. They consisted of her blue coat, hat, gloves and pocket book, a box of candy being beneath the coat. It is thought that it was the intention of Miss Straub to have carried the box of sweets home with her when she left Brown's store. Her white waist was smeared with blood, and the crimson fluid had clotted over her eyes and mouth. Detective Parham and the police from the eighth precinct searched the place thinking Brown might have left a message of some kind, but they failed to find such.

Coroner Makes Examination
Coroner Nevitt made an examination of the bodies learning that only one bullet had been fired at the man the absence of an exterior wound making plain that the bullet had entered the mouth. His neck was broken by the piece of lead. The coroner found that the bullet had entered the left side of the ear.

Brown, who was well known to local horsemen and business men, was regarded as a "good fellow." His friends boasting that he never indulged in intoxicants or tobacco. He was fond of horses and was frequently seen on the speedway on his horse, "Brownie." It is said that he took Miss Straub out sleighing recently and that he had frequently taken her driving. The harness dealer, it is added, had not lived at his own home much during the past year but that he did call upon his wife and child at intervals. Mrs. Brown also called at his store occasionally, it is stated, but she had not been there recently. She knew all about his conduct with the young woman. Brown was popular with many of his business neighbors.

Mrs. Straub, it is declared, had directed Brown to remain away from her home. Despite the objection on the part of Mrs. Straub, Brown, it is stated, insisted upon calling at the flat. Just when or where the couple met last night the police did not ascertain.

Escort Her to Work
Miss Straub, who was twenty-six years of age, was four years younger than Brown. She was employed in the bureau of engraving and printing. The harness dealer, it is stated, sometimes drove her to the bureau and frequently met her when she had finished her day's work. With the exception of her mother, it is stated, her friends did not know of the friendship that existed between her and Brown. She had a quiet manner and was even-tempered. Her friends were greatly shocked today when they heard of what had happened. Miss Straub wore a diamond horseshoe pin, which, it is stated, had been given her by Brown, although his wife had made him a present of it. He also had a similar pin that was worth about $800, the latter being found in his pocketbook.

It is the belief of the police that Brown did not intend to kill Miss Straub last night when she went to the work room in the rear of his store with him, and that his act was the deed of a man who either became insanely jealous or who feared he would have to give up the companionship of the woman. He had removed his coat and vest, collar and tie. Coroner Nevitt thinks that the woman may have been sleeping at the time... the shots were fired, as her body did not move, nor was there any evidence of the slightest struggle having occurred.

Crowd of Curious Persons
Before the coroner reached the scene a crowd of curious persons gathered in front of the store and crowded against the door. They were so eager to obtain a look within that they forced open the door. Mrs. Brown called at the store after the bodies had been removed and inquired if it was true that her husband had shot himself. Capt. Doyle explained the positions in which the bodies were found, and told her just where the coroner had picked up the weapon. The widow said he had done only what she had anticipated. She added she would take charge of the body and have it removed to her home from the undertaking establishment as soon as it had been prepared for burial.

It is said that both parents of Miss Straub are living.

The police took charge of the premises and effects of the harness maker and the young woman and they will be turned over to the respective relatives later.

Final Chapter in Said Tragedy of Two Lives
The funeral of Miss Margaret Straub, the young woman who was shot by Leonard T. Brown, the harness dealer, just before the latter took his own life in the room in the rear of his store at 2121 14th street, took place from her mother's apartment in the Alexis apartment house, 1731 T street northwest, this morning at 10 o'clock. The parents and other relatives and friends were present at the services, and they accompanied the remains to St. Mary's cemetery, where the interment was private.

Yesterday afternoon services over the body of Brown were conducted in the chapel at the undertaking establishment of Francis Geier's Sons, 1113 7th street northwest. His body was interred at Congressional cemetery, the interment being private.

Funeral of Miss Lizzie R. Brown

Funeral services over the remains of the late Miss Lizzie R. Brown, who died suddenly on Tuesday night last, were held at her late residence, 1132 12th street northwest yesterday afternoon. They were conducted by Rev. Robert W. Moore, pastor of Foundry M.E. Church, whose personal remarks were full of tenderness and high tribute to the memory of one who, he said, had all her life been a consistent member of his church, in which she was scholar, teacher, organist (by times) of the Sunday school, member of the choir and active in all the affairs of the church. Prayer was offered by Rev. Joseph S. Smith, pastor of Grace M.E. Church, with which her sister is identified as superintendent of the primary classes of the Sunday school.

"Some Sweet Day, By and By," was sung by Miss Lizzie Whaly, soprano of Foundry Church. Rev. Henry S. Francis, presiding elder of the East Baltimore district, Baltimore, a personal friend of the family, spoke feelingly of the deceased, mentioning her many noble qualities of heart and mind.

Many testimonials of regard were received from friends, the floral offerings being of exceptional beauty and design.

For many years Miss Brown was an active member of the Choral Society, her voice being one of remarkable power and sweetness.

The pallbearers were Messrs. George C. Brooks, Edwin. Brooks, J.E. Lamb, W.E. Lamb, Fearson Gawler and Jesse Potbury, all former members of her class in Foundry Church Sunday school

Relatives and friends were present from Philadelphia and Baltimore. Miss Brown was buried in Congressional Cemetery.

"Joy" Riders Speed On After Running Man Down

Has A Fractured Skull

Autoists Say They Thought He Was Only Slightly Hurt

Motor's Wind Shield Broken

Chauffeur, in Signed Statement to Police, Declares He Lost His Presence of Mind

Milton Brown, twenty-five years old, in Casualty Hospital with a fracture of the skull; Andrew B. Carlsen, chauffeur for George W. Stewart, fish and oyster dealer, under arrest at the fifth precinct station, and the wind shield of an automobile in the room of Capt. Mulhall at the fifth precinct police station are evidences of an alleged "joy" ride in southeast Washington about 3 o'clock yesterday morning.
Physicians at the hospital said this afternoon that Brown's condition was extremely critical and that in their opinion he could not recover.

The accident happened on Pennsylvania avenue between 6th and 7th streets, and a big car, with Carlsen driving it and with Burnes De Mar, Carroll Jenkins and a seaman in the navy named Daly with him, did not stop, the occupants of the car saying they thought the victim of the accident had not been badly hurt. Carlsen is alleged to have said to Detectives Mullen and Warren:

"I would have stopped, but one of the other men told me to go ahead; that somebody would find him."

Found Unconscious in Street

It was about 3:10 o'clock when the unconscious man was found on the street. An individual who was standing near the scene of the accident saw the automobile pass there and he then noticed a form on the asphalt pavement. Shortly after the accident happened Robert E. Downing, a cabman, passed. He took the injured man, who was unidentified at that time, to Casualty Hospital.

While the detectives and policemen were conducting an investigation yesterday afternoon to ascertain the identity of the man who was operating the car at the time of the accident, Carlsen surrendered to the police of the third precinct. He gave his address as 805 I street southeast and made a statement of the affair. After being transferred to the fifth precinct station he made another statement to Precinct Detective Woods.

His signed explanation is that he was operating his machine at between fifteen and eighteen miles an hour when he saw a man run from the sidewalk. He called to him and did his best to prevent an accident, but the machine struck him, breaking the wind shield.

"I cannot say why I did not pick him up," the chauffeur stated, "only that I lost all presence of mind."

He drove the car to about Pennsylvania avenue and 9th street, and then turned and went to the stable of his employer in the rear of 805 G street southwest. There he left the broken wind shield and took the car to the Dupont garage. He said there were three others in the automobile when the accident happened; that he had met his friends at 8th and D streets Saturday night and that they later went to the Southern Athletic and Social Club, 908 Pennsylvania avenue.

Had Visited Saloons

Burnes De Mar, 803 I street southeast, and Carroll Jenkins, 835 C street southeast, also made statements to the police. De Mar says he was aroused by the sudden application of the brakes and the tooting of the horn, having been almost asleep. The car was going at a speed of about twelve miles an hour, he thought, and he did not think the man who was struck had been seriously injured. De Mar said they had visited two saloons and the rooms of the club.

Carroll Jenkins told the police he was asleep when the accident happened, and did not know of it until he was told of it, several squares away. Daly stated that he knew nothing of the accident until he read of it in a newspaper. Mr. Stuart, owner of the car, is reported to have told the police he did not know the car was out at the time the accident happened.

Brown was employed at the Bryant street pumping station, and was to have reported for duty last night. Walter E. Beall, a neighbor, identified the patient at the hospital last night. Brown has a wife and two children. It is said by the police that Brown was taken to the hospital about five minutes after the accident happened.

Criminally Careless In Operating Auto

Jury Blames Carlsen for Brown's Death, and He Is Held for Trial

"We believe that the death of Milton Brown was the result of criminal carelessness on the part of Andrew B. Carlsen in the operator of an automobile. He hold him for the action of the grand jury."

A coroner's jury so declared at the District morgue today at the inquest over the body of Milton Brown, twenty-five years of age, who died at Casualty Hospital yesterday afternoon of injuries received as a result of being struck down on Pennsylvania avenue between 6th and 7th streets, southeast by an automobile driven by Carlsen early Sunday morning.

Dr. Kilgore of the staff of Casualty Hospital was the first witness. He testified as to the nature of the wounds and of the death of Brown.
Burns DeMar of 80 3d street southeast, who was in the machine at the time of the accident, described the movements of the party from the time he entered the machine. He told of having had several drinks at restaurants and of the accident.

He said he was partly asleep just before the machine struck Brown, and was awakened by the applying of the brakes by Carlsen.

Carroll Jenkins also in the machine at the time, stated he had had several drinks with the other members of the party and was asleep when the accident occurred.

Carlsen declined to make a statement. Following the verdict he was taken to the fifth precinct police station.

Assistant United States Attorney Perry appeared at the hearing for the government. The inquest was conducted by Coroner Nevitt.

Funeral of Milton G. Brown

Services Will Be Held at the Family Home Tomorrow Afternoon

Funeral services for Milton G. Brown who was fatally injured Sunday morning about 3 o'clock by an automobile in charge of Andrew B. Carlsen while crossing near the intersection of 7th street and Pennsylvania avenue southeast, will be held at the family home, 127 15th street tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock. Mr. Brown leaves a wife and two children. The interment will be in Congressional cemetery.

Carlsen, who was held for the grand jury yesterday, was committed to jail in default of bail. The technical charge against him is manslaughter. It is said to be likely that the application for bail for him will be made shortly.

Percival M. Brown Succumbs to Illness
Member of District Bar and Director of the Chamber of Commerce
Following an illness of several months in which no hope was held out for his recover, Percival M. Brown, a member of the District bar and a director in the Chamber of Commerce, died at his residence, 1357 Euclid street at 2:30 o'clock this morning.

Mr. Brown was forty-two years of age and unmarried. His mother, Mrs. George Brown, and two sisters, Misses Elizabeth Brown, superintendent of primary instruction in the District public schools, and Catharine Brown were at his bedside when the end came.

Two brothers, George Brown of New York city, and Orville G. Brown, a surgeon in the United States Army, and at present stationed in the Philippine Islands, were notified this morning of his death. Funeral arrangements will not be completed until the arrival of the brother from New York.

Spent Life in Capital
Coming to Washington from Illinois with his parents in 1871, when he was two years of age, Mr. Brown was educated in this city, and had spent his entire life here. Following his graduation from National University, he was admitted to the bar seventeen years ago, and had been an active and successful practitioner.

He was made a director in the Chamber of Commerce at the last election of that body, and had been chairman of the school committee of the chamber since the formation of that committee. A special meeting of the board of directors of the chamber has been called for noon tomorrow to draw up resolutions of respect.

Besides belonging to the chamber, Mr. Brown was a member of the Columbia Heights Citizens' Association, and at all times, took an active interest in matters related to the civic development of the capital. He was a member of the Bar Association and a director in the Park Savings Bank.

Operations Were in Vain
Shortly after his election to the directorate of the chamber last winter he was taken ill, but it was several months before the seriousness of his condition was realized. In an effort to regain his health several operations were resorted to, but these, without exception left him in a more weakened condition. He steadily became worse, until his physicians notified members of the family a few weeks ago that they despaired of his recovery.

Yesterday it was evident that the end was near, and, while it was thought that he might linger several days, his failure to survive the night was not unexpected.

Although funeral arrangements have not been completed, it was stated this morning that interment probably will be in Congressional cemetery. Mr. Brown's father, who died more than a year ago, is buried there.
Chief Justice Clabaugh of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia this morning adjourned. Equity Court No. 1 out of respect to the memory of Mr. Brown. Similar action was taken in the other branches of the court.

The announcement of Mr. Brown's death was made to Chief Justice Clabaugh by Alexander H. Bell, president of the Bar Association, who asked that an adjournment be taken. After paying a tribute to the character of Mr. Brown and his ability as a lawyer, the chief justice directed the adjournment.

Many Pay Last Tribute to Percival M. Brown

Representatives of Bar Association, Chamber of Commerce and Loyal Legion at Funeral

Committees representing the District Bar Association, the Chamber of Commerce and the Loyal Legion attended the funeral services this afternoon for Percival M. Brown, who was an active member in all three organizations, and whose death occurred Tuesday at the home of his mother, at 1357 Euclid street northwest.

Representing the Bar Association were Alexander H. Bell, president; Conrad H. Syme, Charles W. Clagett, A. Leftwich Sinclair, Benjamin S. Minor, Ralph P. Barnard, Chapin Brown, Charles A. Douglas, Daniel W. O'Donoghue and William Meyer Lewin.

For the Chamber of Commerce the following committee attended. William F. Gude, William T. Galliher, A. Leftwich Sinclair, Chapin Brown and D.J. Callahan.

The Loyal Legion committee was composed of L.W. Estes, C.D. Baker, J.T. Marchand and J.W. Glennan.

An Excursionist Drowned

Mr. Wellington Brown, a clerk in the railway postal service, was drowned at Marshall Hall last evening while on the excursion given by the Smith Point Association on the steamer Arrow. It seems after the boat landed and the excursionists disembarked, Mr. B. returned to the cabin of the boat for the purpose of taking a nap. Here he remained seated for a time, when he walked out on the after gangway, near the wheel-house. Immediately a splash was heard by the stewardess, who gave the alarm, and all the employees of the boat came to the rescue. A lantern, safety plank and rope were immediately thrown out, and by the light of the lantern the body of the unfortunate man was plainly seen, although he was apparently helpless. One of the crew made a determined effort to reach him, but without success. The sky was dark, rain falling, and the tide making in very fast, rendering it impossible to do anything more. The event cast a gloom over the entire party. Capt. Hollingshead made prompt arrangements for a search for the body at daylight this morning. The party returned to this city at 1:30 o'clock this morning.

The Evening Star, Friday, June 29, 1877

The body of Mr. Wellington Brown, who was drowned in the river at Marshall Hall, Wednesday night by accidentally falling from the deck of the steamer Arrow into the water, was found yesterday morning about three feet from where he was seen to sink and brought to this city last evening on the Arrow. On his trip up from Mount Vernon yesterday, Capt. Hollingshead learned that the body had been recovered, and on reaching Alexandria transferred his passengers to one of the ferry boats for this city and put back to Marshall Hall for the body, which, on its arrival at the 7th street wharf was turned over to Henry Lee's Sons, undertakers, to prepare for burial.

Final Rites Tomorrow

Funeral of Thomas Browning at Family Residence

Prominent Business Man of Washington Succumbs to Pneumonia After Brief Illness

Funeral services for C. Thomas Browning, president of the local grocery firm of Browning & Middleton and a life-long resident of the District, who died at his home in the Columbia apartment house yesterday following a short illness, will take place at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Rev. Joseph Kelly, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian Church, will officiate. The interment will be in the Browning family lot at the Congressional cemetery.

Mrs. C.V. Browning, mother of the deceased, and his two sisters, Mrs. C. Frank Carr of Hyattsville, Md., and Miss Catherine Browning of this city, survive him. Mr. Browning was unmarried.

Pneumonia Cause of Death

A little over a week ago a severe cold from which the deceased was suffering developed into a malignant form of pneumonia, and he became gradually weaker until death ensued shortly after noon yesterday.

Mr. Browning was fifty-one years of age and was born in this city. His father was the senior member of the grocery firm of which the deceased finally became president; and he succeeded to his father's interest at the time of the latter's death several years ago. Mr. Browning began in the business as a salesman and worked his way up until he assumed the entire direction of the company five or six years ago.

The pallbearers, who have been chosen from among the deceased's friends and business associates, are: James A. MacEllwee, A.R. McChesney, W.H. McKnight, E.R. Parker, J.J.B. Lerch and S.R. Waters.

Death of C.T. Browning Under Investigation

Coroner Receives Information That Creates Doubt as to the Cause

To determine whether the death of C. Thomas Browning, president of the grocery firm of Browning & Middleton, who resided in the Columbia, 14th and Girard streets, and who died last Sunday, was due to the effects of illuminating as breathed with suicidal intent or to pneumonia. Coroner Nevitt and Health Officer Woodward are today making an investigation.

Pending the outcome of the inquiries Coroner Nevitt has prohibited the interment of the body. Following the funeral services yesterday afternoon, with which the coroner did not care to interfere, the body was not interred to the family plot in Congressional cemetery, but was deposited in a vault there.

It was just an hour before the time yet for the funeral yesterday afternoon when Coroner Nevitt received information which he thought called for an investigation. He was told that Mr. Browning had suffered from illuminating gas poisoning two days before he died.

Mr. Browning was found by a relative in a room in which two gas jets were open Coroner Nevitt says he was told and his condition was critical. Prompt medical treatment resulted in his resuscitation. Pneumonia developed within a few hours and Mr. Browning died two days later.

Coroner Nevitt found that the death certificate had given pneumonia and heart trouble as the cause of death. Dr. William H. Heron of 1020 9th street, who filed the certificate, inquired of the coroner if statement should be filed with the certificate giving information of the gas poisoning. Coroner Nevitt replied that he thought he should have been informed of the incident.

Directs That Body Be Placed in Vault

Not believing that he should interfere with the funeral ceremony, the coroner allowed it to proceed in the usual way, but he gave instructions to the undertaker to deposit the body in the vault at Congressional cemetery pending an investigation of the cause of death.

Coroner Nevitt today sought the aid of the health officer in making the investigation. He made an indorsement on the certificate that Mr. Browning is believed to have turned on the gas with suicidal intent.

Health Officer Woodward promised to assist in the investigation to determine the exact cause of death. Meanwhile, the certificate is held up awaiting the outcome of the inquiries.

Dr. Nevitt's indorsement on the death certificate is:

"This case was reported to me September 20, 1910, by Dr. W.H. Heron. The result of my investigation is that deceased died from inhaling of illuminating gas with suicide intent."

_The Evening Star, September 22, 1910, p. 16_

Autopsy Is Held On Mr. Browning's Body

An autopsy is in progress at Congressional cemetery this afternoon on the body of Charles Thomas Browning, late president of the grocery firm of Browning & Middleton, who died Monday, two days after he had been found suffering from illuminating gas poisoning. Coroner Nevitt decided this morning that he would have the autopsy performed in order to determine definitely the cause of death.

Deputy Coroner White was directed by the coroner to perform the autopsy. Dr. W.H. Heron, who had attended Mr. Browning during his last illness, was requested to be present. Detective Berman, who has assisted in the investigation of the death of Mr. Browning; Health Officer Woodward Coroner Nevitt, Dr. Kinyoun and Dr. Sawtelle were also in attendance.

Coroner Nevitt said today that he felt certain that no inquest would be necessary. The conditions under which Mr. Browning was found last Saturday morning, he stated, were such as to leave no doubt in his mind as to the intent of the man when he turned on the two gas jets.

No Delay in Funeral

It was not until a short while before the time set for the funeral to take place, the coroner stated, that he was advised of the death, and was told that Mr. Browning had been found unconscious as a result of having inhaled the gas. The coroner did not cause any delay in the funeral arrangements other than to have the body placed in the receiving vault at the cemetery instead of permitting its burial.

Mr. Browning executed his last will September 16, 1910, two days prior to his death. To his fiancee, Mrs. Edith M Richardson of Salt Lake City, Utah, he leaves all his silverware, gold scarf pins, a signet ring and a pearl watch charm, in addition to one-half the proceeds of his grocery business at 608 Pennsylvania avenue northwest.
The other half of the proceeds from the sale of the business is given to his sister, Caddie Browning. She is also to have the household furniture at 1405 Girard street and all other personal estate not specifically devised.

To another sister, Mrs. Maumie Browning Carr of Hyattsville, Md., is given the commissions due her brother from the estate of their father, Horatio Browning.

Mr. Browning also leaves to his fiancee all his interest in the National Trencher Company held for him by his friend Frank L. Middleton.

Executor of the Will
George H. Calvert, jr., and Nathan Musher are named as executors. The will was witnessed by J.J.B. Lerch, J. George Werner and W.H. McKnight.

In filing the customary affidavit with the will Mr. Calvert, one of the executors, tells the court he found the document in the safe at the Browning & Middleton store. The safe, he says, was opened in the presence of the mother, sister and brother-in-law of the deceased and several others. He read the will to those present and kept it in his possession until this morning.

The Evening Star, September 23, 1910, p. 10

Jury To Inquire Into C.T. Browning's Will Objections to Probate of Paper Overruled and Letters Testamentary Granted
Frederick Johnson, J.W. Beall, Charles M. Buckley, M.A. Tanzer, Levi Meredith and E.R. Armentrout assembled at Congressional cemetery this morning and were sworn as a coroner's jury over the body of Charles Thomas Browning, who died Monday at his home, 1405 Girard street, two days after he had been found unconscious from having inhaled illuminating gas. The six men named are to meet at the morgue tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock and hear testimony bearing on the death of Mr. Browning, late president of the grocery firm of Browning & Middleton.

The holding of the inquest was made necessary by the decision of the corporation counsel yesterday that the coroner, under the law, is required to hold an inquest in all such cases. Dr. W.H. Heron, who attended Mr. Browning during the last illness and who gave a certificate of death from pneumonia was present during the performance of the autopsy yesterday afternoon at Congressional cemetery, although he arrived late.

Microscopic Examination Necessary
Health Officer Woodward said today that the cause of death would have to be determined by microscopic examination of specimens taken from the body yesterday. The embalming fluid, he stated, interfered with the examination yesterday.

Dr. Kinyoun, bacteriologist of the health department, has charge of the examination of the specimens. The examination has been delayed because he was unable to get the necessary fluids to be used.

Objections to Probate of Will
Mrs. Mamie Browning Carr of Hyattsville, Md., through Attorney Jackson H Ralston, today objected to the admission to probate of the will of her brother, Charles T. Browning, asking Chief Justice Clabaugh to postpone action until her counsel had an opportunity to decide the question of filing a caveat.

Attorney George H. Calvert, jr., one of the executors impressed on the court the necessity of continuing the grocery business at 608 Pennsylvania avenue northwest pending a satisfactory sale. He insisted Mrs. Carr was not sufficiently interested in the estate to give her a standing in court to ask the appointment of a collector.

Chief Justice Clabaugh, taking this view of the matter, admitted the will to probate and granted letters testamentary to George H. Calvert, jr., and Nathan Musher. The bond of the executors was fixed at $2,000.

The court suggested that Mrs. Carr might later file a caveat, if so advised. Her brother left her in his will the commissions due him as co-trustee of the estate of their father Horatio Browning. The amount thus due the deceased is said to have been about $1,400.

Attorney Ralston declined to say on what grounds he would attack the validity of the will, declaring he has not sufficiently considered the matter.
The estate of Mr. Browning is valued at between $10,000 and $80,000, according to the petition of his executors George H. Calvert, jr., and Nathan Musher.

Decedent left no real estate, they say, but owned a large block of the capital stock of Browning & Middleton, Inc., some stock in the National Trencher Company and a one-thousand-dollar life insurance policy. He also had a small amount of cash, some household furniture and personal effects. His debts do not exceed $1,000, the executors say.

The next of kin of the dead grocer are his mother, Catharine V. Browning, Caddie Browning and Mamie Browning Carr, sisters, and three nephews Clarke T. Browning of Fort McPherson, Ga.; Horace Browning, now in the Philippines and Allen Browning of this city. All of these are full age, except Allen Browning who is nineteen years old.

"While the primary cause of death in this case was, from the evidence, illuminating gas, yet we, the jury, fail to establish the fact of self-destruction."

The foregoing is the verdict of the coroner's jury in the case of Charles Thomas Browning, president of the grocery firm of Browning & Middleton.

Mr. Browning was found in a serious condition at his home, 14th and Girard streets northwest, last Saturday and died Sunday. The case was not reported to the coroner until Wednesday, the day set for the funeral. Relatives of the deceased failed to agree with the coroner's opinion of suicide and the inquest was ordered.

"I turned both gas jets off," the witness stated, in response to the coroner's questioning. "I was so excited I can't say they were fully turned on."

Miss Browning said her brother's health was miserable and that he had spent no more than two well days since his return from Europe. "He seemed perfectly happy, however, and so far as she knew there was no reason why he should have committed suicide.

Witness said that no time was lost summoning medical aid Dr. Hooe being the first one to respond. She did not think her brother was a man who could have taken his life.

"He expected to be married in January," Miss Browning said, "and he seemed perfectly happy."

Dr. W.H. Heron the family physician of the Brownings, witness stated, reached the apartment shortly after 8 o'clock.

"Are you acquainted with the lady our brother was to marry?" asked the coroner.

"No sir," the witness stated; "none of us knew her."
Attorney Calvert explained that Mr. Browning met Mrs. Richardson, his fiancee, on his trip to Europe. He started abroad last May and returned the 8th instant.

Mrs. Richardson, witness stated is a graduate of the Paris Conservatory of Music, is a highly cultured woman and has considerable means.

Complained of Illness
Mrs. Mamie Browning Carr, another sister of the deceased, testified that she was at her home in Hyattsville when she was advised of her brother's condition. She hurried to the city, and went to the apartment of her mother, brother and sister. She saw her brother Tuesday of last week at the store on Pennsylvania avenue, and conversed with him, but he said nothing about himself. He complained at that time that he was suffering from a cold.

She said her brother brought to the house a package of letters belonging to Mrs. Richardson. The package was addressed to her at a New York hotel where she intended to stop when she returned from Europe. Mrs. Carr said she had objected to the probate of her brother's will.

Detective Berman testified that he made an investigation of the death of Mr. Browning and related the statements the several witnesses had made to him. Mrs. Carr, he stated, told him that she had been cut off in the will and she thought her brother had committed suicide.

Dr. William H. Heron testified that he treated Mr. Browning for bronchitis after his return from Europe. When witness was called to the house last Saturday morning the patient was unconscious. Dr. Hooe had treated him before witness reached the apartment. Witness said the appearance of the patient did not indicate that he had inhaled gas for any great length of time.

Dr. Heron told of the treatment given the sick man. He seemed to get better, but later in the day his fever increased, and Sunday, about 12:30 o'clock, he died. Witness said Mr. Browning had been subject to severe attacks of bronchitis. He was told that the sick man had been taking something to induce sleep, and witness thought the medicine may have been partly responsible for his unconsciousness.

Coroner Nevitt questioned witness about the certificate giving pneumonia as the cause of death. He said he had made out another certificate giving gas as the primary cause of death but he had some doubt as to the part the gas had played in the case, and he changed it. Witness said he tried to reach Health Officer Woodward or Dr. Fowler at the health office and he finally got Dr. Fowler. The latter advised him to consult the coroner. He said he wanted to ascertain if the coroner would class the case as one of suicide.

When witness reached the Browning apartment he detected a slight odor of gas, but the face of the patient did not present the appearance such as is usual in gas cases. There was every indication of pneumonia.

Witness suggested that Mr. Browning may have been delirious from fever and accidentally have turned on the gas.

Dr. Robert Hooe testified that when he reached the Browning apartment he found the patient in a condition of coma. Witness could not recall that he detected the odor of gas in the room, his attention having been directed to the patient, Mr. Browning, said witness, did not regain consciousness while he was treating him.

He remained there from 7:15 o'clock in the morning until nearly noon. Witness thought the gas must have been turned on early in the morning, as death would have ensued earlier had it been turned on all night.

Results of Autopsy
Dr. Charles S. White deputy coroner, testified to having performed the autopsy at Congressional cemetery Wednesday, three days after death, and he found the ears were pink, there was bright red blood in the kidneys and the muscles were red. These unusual conditions, he

The wife of H. Clay Browning, sr., died yesterday, aged 56 years, at the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. James E. Baines, No. 207 E street northwest. Mrs. Browning's maiden name was Ella Virginia Cawthon, and she was the daughter of the late Col. Robert Cawthon, who prior to the civil war was the editor of the Lynchburg Republican, then the most influential democratic paper of southwestern Virginia, and who during the war acted as one of the assistant postmasters general of the confederate states. Mrs. Browning's husband and eight children survive her, the eldest, H. Clay Browning, jr., being a member of the firm of Browning & Baines; the youngest, Robert Browning, an employee of the Washington Loan and Trust Company.

The Rev. C.J.S. Mayo will officiate at the funeral services. The pallbearers will be her three sons, H. Clay Browning, jr., Wm. A. Browning, Robert Browning, and her three sons-in-law, James E. Baines, Herbert R. Baines and Howard W. Walker.

Browning. At his residence, "Templeton", Forest Glen, Maryland, on Monday Sept. 23, 1901 at 2:30 p.m., Frank T., aged 49 years, beloved husband of Sue E. Browning and youngest son of the late P.W. Browning of Washington, D.C. Funeral from his late residence on Thursday, September 26 at 11 o'clock a.m. Interment Congressional Cemetery.

The Evening Star, September 24, 1901
Frank T. Browning Dead
Prominent Local Attorney Victim of Bright’s Disease
President of Forest Glen Railroad Company and Ex-Member of Maryland Legislature

Very unexpected to an unusually wide circle of friends and acquaintances was the death of Frank T. Browning, a leading member of the local bar, which occurred at 2:30 o’clock yesterday afternoon at his residence, Templeton, near Forest Glen, Md. Mr. Browning became ill about a week ago, and rapidly grew worse, the illness and death being due to Bright’s disease. Funeral services will be held at Templeton at 11 o’clock next Thursday morning, Rev. Mr. Baker of Silver Spring and Rev. Mr. Barr of Takoma Park officiating. The interment will be at Congressional cemetery about 1 o’clock the same day.

It is conceded that Mr. Browning was one of the most successful of the local practitioners. He was a man of exemplary habits and was highly regarded and respected. The deceased was the youngest son of P.W. Browning, who died in April of last year. His brothers are Henry Clay Browning, Sr., Theodore F. Browning, Livingston Browning, Arthur Browning and George Browning. The four brothers first mentioned, together with Messrs. Percival M. Brown, John W. Warner, Arthur M. Wheeler and P.R. Stansbury, will serve as pallbearers at the funeral.

Native of the District

The deceased was born in this city forty-nine years ago. He attended Rittenhouse Academy and later took the four years’ course at Columbian College. After graduating, in 1872, he pursued the study of law and began practicing in 1875. For several years he was associated with the late Enoch Totten. The career of Mr. Browning was marked by his connection with a very large number of important cases tried in the local courts. He was a member of the legislature of Maryland about the year 1885, and organized and was president of the Forest Glen Railroad Company.

Mr. Browning, six or seven years ago, moved to Forest Glen, and his home there, which bears the name “Templeton,” is one of the most beautiful places in that section of the country. The deceased married Miss Sue E. Kennedy, a daughter of George E. Kennedy. Mrs. Browning survives him. Announcement of his death will be formally made to the court tomorrow by Mr. R. Ross Perry.

An Old Citizen Dead
Horatio Browning Passes Away at Age of 72
Was Known as the Oldest Grocer in Washington
Funeral Tomorrow at 2 o'clock

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock over the remains of the late Horatio Browning at his late residence, 1117 6th street northwest, and will be conducted by Rev. Richard P. Williams, rector of Trinity Protestant Episcopal Church. The interment will be in Congressional cemetery and will be private.

The honorary pallbearers will be selected from the board of directors of the Central National Bank and the active pallbearers will be clerks from the store of Browning & Middleton, as follows: A.D. Bond, W.H. McKnight, S.T. Ellis, C.F. Fenwick, C.M. Dorsey and William Fisher.

Mr. Browning, who was known as Washington's oldest grocer, died at his home here yesterday after a long and painful illness. He had been suffering with rheumatism and since Christmas had been confined to his bed. He was seventy-two years old and is survived by his wife and four children.

Mr. Browning until the time he was taken ill was one of the most active business men in Washington. He was president of the Browning & Middleton grocery establishment and since its organization had been a director in the Central National Bank. He was vice president of the bank for fifteen years, having supervised constructing the building where it was located. It was largely through his influence the bank was established. He was also secretary and treasurer of the Venezuelan Telephone Company, formed here. He was born at Barnesville, Montgomery county, Md., and came to Washington with his parents in his early youth.

His business career began as a clerk for George and Thomas Parker, and in 1859 he engaged in business for himself.

Several years ago Mr. Browning's claim to being the oldest grocer in the city was disputed by N.W. Burchell, who had also been business here since before the war. It was decided to share the honors, and a day was set to have a dinner to celebrate the distinction. On the very day the dinner was to have been held, Mr. Burchell died.

Mr. Browning was married in the same year he started his store on Pennsylvania ave. The disease which caused his death was contracted during a fire in his store on November 8, 1902. His wife was Miss Catherine Virginia Miller, the daughter of Charles Miller, an East Washington merchant. The children are C.T. Browning, Horace Browning, Miss Caddie Browning and Mrs. C. Fran Carr of Hyattsville, Md. He was devoted to his family and benevolent to all about him, ever ready and willing to do a kindness and advise with the young men.

Mr. Browning was a member of St. John's Lodge of F.A.A.M., and of DeMolay Commandery of the Knights Templar.

Death From Smallpox
Fourth Victim of the Disease in One Family
The fourth death from smallpox during the present outbreak of the disease here occurred at the smallpox hospital yesterday afternoon, the victim being John Browning, a white man, he being the fourth member of the family to fall a victim to the disease. Arthur Browning, a brother, was the first of the family to die, the death of his two sisters quickly following. In the case of these people the disease was a very violent type, the illness of each victim being of but a few days' duration. The health department has not been able to definitely determine how or where the disease was contracted by Arthur Browning, but it is clear that the others contracted it from him.

Obituary

God has given and God has taken away. Death with all its horrors again has visited us and taken from our midst one whose place can never be refilled.

That great and inevitable harvester, Time, has again adjusted his sickle and with one sweep gathered to her fathers a most loving and devoted wife and mother. Oh, Death! thou destroyer of peace and happy hours, why didst thou not spare her whose life has been the connecting link in the chain that has bound so many together in love and affection for so many years? Cease, oh, Death! cease for a while in thy dreadful work, for surely thou hast gathered a full harvest in this one swath. After being for over fifty years the joy and solace of a loving husband at last succumbed to sickness, and on Sunday evening last the spirit of Mrs. Margaret A. Browning was borne away on angels' wings and now reposes in the bosom of her Father and God's. To her death had no terrors, and whilst her body for eight long years was racked with pain, and which she knew could be relieved only by death, yet was she willing to suffer and live for the sake of others.

What a noble example we see set before us in her life unsurpassed in kindness of heart, in self-sacrificing and in the Christian fortitude in which she bore up under her great affliction and human suffering. By unostentatious charities and sympathetic regard for all, she had endeared herself to numerous friends and by her unblemished character had a host of admirers. For ourselves and our father, with whom she had lived so many years, she had that love and devotion which made her forget self and made us and our welfare the sole objects of her thoughts day and night in her glad days of health, and in those of sickness and distress. Truly has she left us in sadness and in sorrow, and left a vacant space that can never be refilled. And whilst we feel and know that her Christian life has won for her a home of eternal rest, and her poor dear body is free from pain, yet we would not have her go, for to us she was our all, and so entwined was she around our hearts that life without her seems to be but one of despair. Oh! the fond recollections that are kindled within us when we look back at our once happy home and see her in her days of health, her face ever bright and a kind word for every one, and even at times when her heart was yearning and sad from anxiety for others, yet was her face lit up with that cheerful and sweet countenance by which she was known to all. And now that she is to be no more on earth with us, may the recollections of her dear life, and the love we have always borne for her desires, prompt us to strive and do that which was her daily prayer, that in the future we may lead the life that she has led, so that when our time has come our Father may say to us, as He must have said to our dear mother: Well done, thou good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joys of Heaven.

Aged Citizen Dead -- P.W. Browning, Long a Resident of Washington, Passes Away

Mr. P.W. Browning died yesterday at his residence, 331 Missouri avenue, after an illness of only two weeks. He caught cold which developed into grip, and subsequently erysipelas developed. Owing to his extreme age, being in his eighty-ninth year, he was unable to recuperate.

Mr. Browning spent practically his entire life in this city, and was, therefore, one of the oldest residents. He was born in Clarksburg, Md., in 1811 and came to this city when thirteen years of age. He served an apprenticeship in the tailoring business with Abner H. Young, then located at Pennsylvania avenue and 12th street, and on reaching his majority he entered business on his own account at what is now 827 Pennsylvania avenue, then a small frame building. He subsequently bought the property and erected thereon in 1840 the first four-storied brick building to be constructed on the avenue between the Capitol and the White House, and continued the business till 1861, when he purchased a farm one and one-half miles from Hyattsville, to which he retired. He enjoyed the patronage of a large number of leading men of the olden time, numbering among his friends Henry Clay, Theodore Frelinghuysen, Jefferson Davis, Alex. H. Stephens, Andrew Johnson and a host of other prominent characters of ante-bellum days.

In early life Mr. Browning married Miss Margaret Ann Wood, the daughter of a leading jeweler of that period, whose establishment was, about where Galt's is now. There were twelve children born of this union, nine of whom grew to majority and six survive him. Col. Will Johnson, the eldest of his sons, was the private secretary of President Johnson from a period before the war till his death occurred in 1866. Those living are Henry Clay and Theodore F. of Prince George's county, George P., who has been living with his father, Livingston, Arthur B. and Frank T., are well-known members of the local bar. Mr. Browning is also survived by twenty one grandchildren and thirteen great grandchildren. His first wife died in 1887, and about eight years ago he married a Mrs. Bishop of Pennsylvania, who survives him.

The funeral will take place from his late residence at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, when Rev. R.P. Williams of Trinity Episcopal Church will officiate, and the six sons of the deceased will be the pallbearers. The interment will be in the family lot at Congressional cemetery.

The funeral of Colonel William A. Browning, late the Private Secretary to the President, took place from the residence of his father, P.W. Browning, Esq., on Missouri avenue, yesterday afternoon, and was largely attended. Among other distinguished persons present we noticed President Johnson, accompanied by Colonel O'Beirne, Deputy Marshal; Judge Patterson, Mrs. Patterson and Mrs. Stover (the President's daughters,) a number of members of Congress, several representatives of the Washington bar, and a very large concourse of citizens. Rev. Mr. Rolfe of the Episcopal Church, officiated in the solemn services of the church, and spoke in feeling terms of the life and character of the deceased. The body was then placed in the hearse. Colonel Wright Rives, Colonel William G. Moore, and Majors A.K. Long and R.A. Morrow, of the President's household; Dr. Thomas Young, E. Welles, Esq., Dr. W.J. Duhamel, and Jos. H. Bradley, jr., Esq., acting as pall-bearers, and the solemn cortege was formed and wended its way to Congressional Cemetery, where the remains were interred.

The President has known the deceased since his boyhood, and obtained for him a clerkship in one of the Departments, which he subsequently resigned to accept the position of private secretary to Mr. Johnson, then Senator. Colonel Browning continued in this position during Mr. Johnson's term in the Senate, accompanied him to Nashville, Tennessee, when appointed Military Governor, and remained with him until November last, when he was appointed Secretary of Legation to Mexico, with General Logan. His health has not been good for two months. He was taken seriously ill in New York, and within the last two weeks grew rapidly worse, until about two o'clock on Friday morning, when he died from a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism, which produced paralysis.

Col. Browning was a graduate of Yale College, studied law and was admitted to the bar in the Supreme Court of the United States. He always enjoyed the implicit confidence of the President, and was much esteemed by him. By his manliness of character, geniality of disposition, and the noble qualities of his head and heart he won the regard of all who knew him.

The funeral arrangements were admirably carried out by Mr. Henry Lee, undertaker. The remains were placed in a magnificent coffin, covered with rich black cloth, and tastefully ornamented; and beautiful wreaths and bouquets of exquisite flowers were placed over the breast of the deceased.

A Guide to Civil War Washington
Browning was a private secretary to Vice President Andrew Johnson. On the morning of April 14, Booth left Browning his calling card at the Kirkwood Hotel. Booth wrote on a card: "Don't wish to disturb you: are you at home? J. Wilkes Booth." A hotel clerk placed the card in Browning's mailbox in his absence.--

Fatal End of a Brutal Fight in West Washington

John Bruebaker, a canal boatman, died early yesterday morning in his boat, which was moored at Muncaster’s wharf, West Washington, from the effects of a kick received in a fight Saturday afternoon with George Seaman. Bruebaker’s wife left the boat Saturday afternoon to go home with a friend, Mrs. Mary Epps, who complained of being ill. Mrs. Epps lodged in George Seaman’s house, 3315 Water street. When she reached Mrs Epps’ room the latter, it is stated, fell in a fainting fit and Mrs. Bruebaker called for assistance. Seaman, who occupied a room below, at once responded. While he was in the room Bruebaker, who was under the influence of liquor and had followed his wife from the boat, staggered into the room and began to abuse and beat his wife for having left the boat. Seaman remonstrated with him and then it appears, left the room and started downstairs. Bruebaker upon that shouted a defiance after him. Seaman returned at once and the two men, both of whom were powerful, engaged in a brutal fight. Mrs. Bruebaker sought in vain to separate the combatants. Seaman, it appears, inflicted a kick in Mr. Bruebaker’s abdomen, which ended the fight. Bruebaker fell to the floor. He was taken to his boat, where he died about six o’clock yesterday morning. The autopsy made yesterday showed that death resulted from rupture of the mesentery and lateral hemorrhage. Seaman was arrested yesterday.

The Inquest

The inquest was held this afternoon at one o’clock at the third police precinct. The following composed the jury: Messrs. Samuel Howard, E.M.P. Harris, James S. Hayes, William H. Haycock, John H. Darne and James P. Wallace.

Dr. D.J. Hartigan testified as to the injuries and that the death resulted from them. Dr. Sheckell corroborated his testimony.

Mary Springstill, or Mary Epps, as she is known, who resides at No. 3315 Water street, testified as to Mrs. Bruebaker accompanying her home on account of her being sick.

The Verdict

After hearing the prisoner’s statement, the jury returned a verdict that the said John Bruebaker came to his death from a shock and hemorrhage caused by a kick in the abdomen, inflicted by George Seaman. The prisoner was committed to jail.

Bruff. On October 4, 1889, Charles A. Bruff, beloved husband of Hattie M. Bruff, in the 33rd year of his age.
We miss thee from our home, dear;
We miss thee from thy place,
A shadow o'er our life is cast,
We miss the sunshine of thy face.
We miss thy kind and willing hand,
Thy fond and earnest care,
Our home is dark without thee,
We miss thee verywhere.
By His Wife
A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.
God in His wisdom has recalled
The boon his love has given;
And though the body slumbers here
The soul is safe in heaven.

The Evening Star, April 8, 1889
J. Goldsborough Bruff
A Venerable Citizen at the Point of Death
J. Goldsborough Bruff, now in the 85th year of his age, is lying at the point of death at his residence, 1009 24th street northwest, but a few squares from his birth place. Capt. Bruff was a son of Dr. Bruff, the first regularly established dentist in this section, and was born in one of the "Six Buildings" on Pennsylvania avenue, between 21st and 22d streets, October 2, 1804. Dr. Bruff, the father, before the war of 1812, invented a machine for making bullets by compressing them from cold lead, and a machine having been built and tried at the Washington Navy Yard, an agent of Great Britain offered the inventor a large sum of money to take it to Great Britain, and the offer, though tempting, was indignantly refused. Capt. Bruff, when a small boy, left Alexandria in a sailing vessel, and for some years traveled in many foreign lands. He early developed a taste for drawing and painting, and on reaching manhood he found employment in the engineer bureau as a draughtsman, where he continued for many years. While in this service he was employed on many of the defenses of the sea coast, among them the rip-raps near Fort Monroe. Mr. Bruff, when a youth, engaged the attention of General Jackson, and when the latter became President he recognized in the draughtsman at the Rip Raps the boy who, ten years before, had, by some of his sketches, attracted the general's attention, who presented him with a box of paints. He was also, in his younger days, brought into contact with many of the leading men of the day, including Gen. W.H. Harrison, who was elected President in 1840, President Adams, and a host of others. For many years he has been engaged in the office of the architect of the Treasury, and notwithstanding his advanced age he had been able to perform his work up to a few months since. Much of the ornamentation of the Treasury building is from his designs. In 1849, like many others, he left this city for California, going overland in command of a company formed in this city.

The Evening Star, April 13, 1889

Mr. Bruff's Critical Condition

J. Goldsborough Bruff was in an extremely critical condition this afternoon, and it is very doubtful whether he will live through the night.

The Evening Star, April 15, 1889

Death of J. Goldsborough Bruff

Last evening, shortly before 8 o'clock, Mr. J. Goldsborough Bruff, whose illness has been mentioned in the Star, passed away. His sickness, while prolonged, was painless and the end was not unexpected. Mr. Bruff had nearly attained the advanced age of eighty-five years, but such was the vigor of his constitution that he did not give up the active pursuit of his profession as draftsman until about four months ago. Mr. Bruff was born October 2, 1804, within a few hundred yards of the residence, 1009 24th street, where he died, his father being an owner of one of the famous six buildings on Pennsylvania avenue, between 21st and 22d streets. For the past sixty-three years Mr. Bruff has been in government employ, and there was only one interregnum, when, in 1849, with other young men, he was stricken with the gold fever and started for California to amass a fortune. He was unsuccessful, and in 1851 he returned to Washington and resumed his work in the Treasury department. He was a member of the Oldest Inhabitants association and the Washington Monument association. Mr. Bruff leaves a wife and five children. The funeral will take place at 4:30 p.m., Wednesday, and the arrangements will be under the direction of Federal Lodge of Masons, of which the deceased was a charter member. The interment will be at Congressional cemetery.

The Evening Star, April 16, 1889

Funeral of J. Goldsborough Bruff

The funeral of the late J. Goldsborough Bruff who died Sunday night will take place tomorrow afternoon at 4:30 o'clock from his residence, 1009 Twenty-fourth street. The service will be in charge of the Masonic order to which the deceased belonged. The interment will be in Congressional cemetery.

The Evening Star, April 18, 1889

Funerals. Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon over the remains of J. Goldsborough Bruff, at his late residence, 1009 24th street. Rev. Dr. Sunderland conducted the services and the members of Washington Commandery No. 1, Knights Templar, were present. A large representation from the Oldest Inhabitants' association were present. The interment was at the Congressional cemetery.

The Evening Star, July 3, 1885

The Oldest Inhabitants' Association

The Association of the Oldest Inhabitants will tomorrow, in accordance with their custom, observe the day by a public meeting at their rooms, Corcoran building, at 12 o'clock. Mr. John Marbury will be the orator of the day, and Mr. J. Goldsborough Bruff will read the Declaration of Independence. It is expected that other addresses will be made and short speeches from the members and others will be interspersed with the other exercises. A large attendance is expected on the part of the members.

The Evening Star, September 2, 1875

Our Old Citizens

... A communication from Mr. J. Goldsborough Bruff, enclosing a design for a badge for the members of the society, was read. The proposed badge is of dark blue ribbon on which is inscribed in silver "Association of the Oldest Inhabitants of the District of Columbia." A brooch clasp with steel spring pin at top secured to a shield medallion, profile bust of Washington in relief at bottom. Medallion and clasp of silver, and entire length five inches. The subject was preferred to a committee composed of the president, the marshal and secretary, for report at the next meeting.
J. Goldsborough Bruff – Witness had been frequently called as an expert as to handwriting, and is an artist and draughtsman employed in the Treasury Department. Witness was handed the letter of September 8th and 12, 1863, and asked his opinion whether they were written in a disguised or natural hand.

Mr. Hughes objected to the witness testifying as to these letters; and the objection was argued by Mr. Hughes and Mr. Wilson.

The Court, after inquiring of Mr. Bruff as to his occupation, business, etc., decided to follow the general rule, and admit no one as an expert unless he came from some business where he had acquired knowledge as an expert.

Sudden Death of Isaac C. Bryant
Found Dying on the Commons
Yesterday afternoon information was left at the 8th precinct station that the body of a man had been discovered on the commons, near the corner of 17th and A streets northeast, but before the police could arrange for its removal, a wagon was sent from the almshouse and it was taken to that institution, where it was discovered that life was not quite extinct, but the man died very soon after his arrival at the asylum. From letters found in his pocket, it was ascertained that his name was Isaac C. Bryant. He was an elderly man, who resided with his daughter in the eastern portion of the city. Some of the letters were addressed to Isaac C. Bryant, care of Joseph Platz. Mr. Platz states that Bryant came from Philadelphia, and that he was a temperate man. When found there was a large ordise on his face which may have been caused by falling. |

Will Hold an Inquest
This afternoon Coroner Hammett visited the undertaking establishment of J. Wm. Lee and reviewed the body of William Buchanan, the 16-year-old boy who was drowned in James creek canal at an early hour yesterday morning. After hearing statements concerning the circumstances in which the unfortunate boy walked into the unprotected death trap, the coroner thought there should be an investigation made, and in order to fix the responsibility where it belongs he will hold an inquest at noon tomorrow.
Investigating the Death of Young William Buchanan
Drowned in the James Creek Canal--Mysterious Features of the Affair--Cries of Murder

Today at noon at J. William Lee's undertaking establishment on Pennsylvania avenue Coroner Hammett held an inquest in the case of the boy William Buchanan, who was drowned in the James Creek canal about 1 o'clock Tuesday morning, as printed in The Star at the time. Policemen Purks and Bruce, who fished the body from the death trap, were present as was a young man named Charles Lippard, with whom the deceased had been during the evening before he met the fatal accident. On the stone wall near where the body was found, some one, probably the dead boy, had vomited, and the hat was also found there, indicating that he had stopped on the coping before he took the fatal step.

The fourth precinct officers had summoned a jury, composed of J.E Crump, V.C. Woodbridge, M.F. Rue, T.P. Lightfoot, B.P. Vernon and W.J. Shepperson, and these men viewed the body in Undertaker Lee's morgue before listening to the evidence. The members of the jury reside in South Washington, and are fully aware of the dangers attending the death trap in which the deceased lost his life.

Before the first witness was called the coroner excluded reporters and others from the room, as he did not want the public to know what he had to say to the jury. In his short talk to the men it is thought that he had something to say about the dangerous placed called a canal.

Testimony Submitted
Robert Coleman, a colored man, was then called and examined. He lives at 1216 1st street southwest, about 100 yards from the canal. He testified that about 1 o'clock Tuesday morning his wife around him and said she had heard some one calling "murder." Witness got out of bed and when he heard the cry repeated he went to the canal. There was a man named Smith standing on the bridge and another man on an old scow.

"Could he have walked in the canal?" a juror asked.

"It was the most natural thing for him to do," replied witness. "There is no fence along the canal."

Witness, resuming, said that after he had left the house and was on his way to the canal he heard the drowning boy call, "For God's sake save me."

The man on the scow told him about where the boy had gone in, and witness helped to take his body out of the water.

There were no piles of sand near there. On the shore, he said, the boy's had was found, and there was also the odor of beer or whisky where some one had vomited.

Another Witness
Richard Smith, the colored man whom the previous witness said was on the bridge when he reached there, was next called. He said he was on his way home from work Tuesday morning, and when near South Capitol street he heard a cry of "help." He went directly to the bridge, and when he reached there he saw a woman on the bridge and two men on a scow with poles trying to get the body.

"Was the woman white or colored?"

"Colored woman."

He denied that he had had any conversation with the witness Coleman. Witness said he could not render any assistance, as he could not reach the scow.

Heard the Cries
Samuel Wilson, an old colored man, was next called.

Wilson testified that he was aroused by the noise, and he heard the cries of the drowning boy, but could not say that he cried "murder."

The boy continued his cries for some time, but his voice became weaker, and finally ceased. One man reached there ahead of him and told him just where the boy went down. Witness was the first one to get on the scow and Coleman came soon afterward.
Witness said he smelled the odor of strong drink around.

Sarah Mayo, colored, 1216 1st street southeast testified that she heard the boy’s cries of “help,” but did not hear him cry “murder.” When witness opened the door she saw a man standing on the bridge with his hands in his pockets.

Was With Him

Charles Lippard was next examined. He knew William Buchanan, who was an intimate friend of his. Monday night witness said he remained at Mrs. Buchanan’s house until William came home, and after supper they went out together. When Buchanan came home he was under the influence of liquor. This was about 7:20.

During the evening they stood on street corners along Pennsylvania avenue, and when they reached his (witness’) house it was about twenty minutes of 12 o’clock, more than an hour before Buchanan was drowned.

Witness said good night to him and they parted. Witness went in the house, and Buchanan started in the direction of his home. He could not understand how Buchanan got so far east as the canal.

During the five hours they were together Buchanan did not drink anything, said the witness.

The witness was closely questioned by members of the jury, but he repeated that Buchanan did not take a drink while with him Monday night.

The Boy’s Mother

Mrs. Elizabeth Buchanan, mother of the drowned boy, was called, and she said that her son had always been a good boy. On one occasion, some time last summer, when he was out with Lippard, he had something to drink. That was the only time she had ever known him to remain out late and give her any uneasiness. She said she had told him to keep away from Lippard. Saturday night, she said, she gave him $1 for lunch money for the week, and she knew he had some other change.

Mrs. Buchanan said she had an idea that her boy had been in a scuffle on the bridge. She could not account for his presence about the canal and said she thought he did not go there alone, as he was afraid.

Mrs. Buchanan was questioned by the jurors concerning her son’s associates and his character, and she charged that other boys had led him astray. She told of one occasion when the boys were in a colored man’s house and had beer, and Lippard’s father found them there.

Good Character

Mr. A.F. Morgan, shoe dealer, for whom the deceased worked, testified to the good character of the deceased.

“He’s always been a good boy,” said Mr. Moran, “and we thought a good deal of him.”

“Did you ever suspect that he drank?”

“No, sir. I have heard of his refusing liquor.”

Monday night he left the store about ten minutes before 7 o’clock, and it was thought it would take him more than twenty minutes to get home.

“And Lippard says he was drunk at 7:30,” the coroner remarked.

“I don’t see how he could have got drunk in that time unless he was drugged,” said Mr. Moran.

Mysterious Man

Samuel S. Wall testified that he was at home when he heard a cry of “murder,” and following this came the cry of “help.” Witness was the first man to reach the place. He saw a man walking along the street going from the bridge and he turned down 2d street. Witness was satisfied that the man must have heard the cries.

The coroner thought it rather strange that the man should have walked away from there under the circumstances.
Witness said that when this man turned down 2d street he saw the officers coming.

“Then,” remarked the coroner, “the man may have seen the officers.”

Frank Cowns testified that he heard the screams in the direction of the bridge. He walked up 2d street to M, but did not meet the man seen walking from the direction of the bridge. He did not reach the canal until after the police had arrived there.

Accidental Death

The jury, after the evidence had been completed, retired and rendered a verdict of accidental death. A recommendation was made that some safeguards be placed along the banks of the canal to prevent loss of life.

Buchly, Anthony
d. 25 Jul 1881 R79/126
The Evening Star, July 22, 1881
Death of a Well-Known Business Man
Mr. Anthony Buchly, the well-known undertaker, 912 Pennsylvania avenue, died this morning about half-past ten o’clock. Mr. Buchly has been sick since the 10th of May last, having overheated himself on that day in attending a funeral, since which time he has been growing worse and sometimes better, his illness having assumed the form of a low typhoid fever. His physician, Dr. J.E. Morgan, until recently, has been much encouraged from his condition, and all his friends were led to believe that he would recover. Last Monday he partook of some fruit, which disagreed with him, since which time he has been growing weaker up to the time of his death.

Mr. Buchly was a man of sterling integrity of character, and although of a rather brusque turn had a tender and charitable heart, and was generally respected in this community. He was in the 68th year of his age, and a native of this city, having been born on the same ground where he died. He was past master of Federal Lodge, No.
1, of Masons, and past high priest of Eureka R.A. Chapter,
No. 4, and past grand treasurer of the Grand Lodge of Masons, and an active and honored member of all the Masonic bodies of which he was a member. He was also connected with the Odd Fellows, being past grand master of the Grand Lodge of this District, and continued his membership in the order to the time of his death in Columbia Lodge and Columbia Encampment, and the Mutual Relief association. He was also a member of Friendship Lodge, No. 8, Knights of Pythias. Mr. Buchly’s wife died about 18 years ago. The only child is Mr. William S. Buchly, who has for many years been connected with his father in business. The funeral will probably take place Monday next, of which further notice will be given in the papers.

The Evening Star, July 23, 1881
Locals
The funeral of the late Anthony Buchly (whose death was mentioned in The Star last evening) will take place from his late residence, Pennsylvania avenue, between 9th and 10th streets northwest, tomorrow afternoon at 4 o’clock. It will be attended by the various bodies of Masons and Odd Fellows to which deceased belonged.
Mr. Buchly was in the 58th year of his age, not the 68th year as erroneously printed.

The Evening Star, July 23, 1881
Funeral of Anthony Buchly
The family of the late Anthony Buchly have placed the entire charge of the funeral in the hands of the Odd Fellows, and the Masons will not participate in the ceremonies as an order. The funeral will take place from his late residence on Pennsylvania avenue, tomorrow (Sunday) at 4 p.m., and he will be buried at the Congressional Cemetery. The funeral cortege will consist of the Grand Encampment I.O.O.F., of District of Columbia, Dr. John Edwin Mason Grand Patriarch; the Grand Lodge of D.C., Solomon E. France Grand Master; Columbian Encampment I.O.O.F., Edward F. O’Brien acting Chief Patriarch; and Columbia Lodge,
No. 10, C.W. Shiles Noble Grand. These organizations will be escorted by the Uniformed Battalion of Patriarchs, John T. Chauncey commander. It is understood that the Washington Light Infantry and National Rifles, of which Mr. Buchly was an honorary member, will participate in the funeral procession. The burial rites of the Odd Fellows will be performed at the grave. All organizations to which he belonged will assemble tonight at Odd Fellows Hall, 7th street northwest, or send committees to represent their organization, where all arrangements will be made for the funeral. Mr. Buchly was 58 years old at the time of his death, not 68 years as erroneously published.

Col. Moore this afternoon ordered the Washington Light Infantry corps to assemble at their armory at 2:45 o’clock p.m. in full dress uniform, to attend the funeral of their late honorary member, Mr. Anthony Buchly.
They will be headed by the 2d U.S. artillery band.

The Buchly Obsequies

Large Attendance at the Funeral—An Escort of Military and Odd Fellows

The extraordinarily large attendance at the funeral of the late Anthony Buchly yesterday afternoon attested the esteem in which he was held by the citizens generally. During the day there were many callers at the residence of Mr. Buchly, who took a farewell look at the familiar face. The remains were enclosed in a walnut, cloth-covered casket, with satin lining, and it was finished with silver extension handles with plate inscribed “Anthony Buchly, died July 22d, 1881, in the 59th year of his age.” There were a number of floral ornaments—a garland from the National Rifles, a pillow with the letters W.L.I.C., with white dove bearing the letter A in its beak, from the Light Infantry, a broken column from No. 2 Engine Co., and a garland with the words “from an old friend” (understood to be from Mr. Joseph Gawler.)

The services took place at the residence at 4 o’clock, and were conducted by Rev. Byron Sunderland of the 1st Presbyterian church, who paid a handsome tribute to the worth of the deceased, and was followed by Rev. Mr. McLain in a few remarks and prayer.

The following were the pall-bearers:—Honorary—William W. Moore, P.G.S., for the board of trustees of Odd Fellows’ Hall; Harrison Burr, Past Grand, Grand Lodge; T.K. Gray, Past Grand, Columbia Lodge, No. 10; John T. Given, Grand Representative to the Grand Lodge of the United States, Grand Encampment; Rev. P. Hall Sweet, Columbian Encampment, No. 1; J.F. Whitemore, Uniformed Battalion Patriarchs; Samuel Kirby and Charles F. Jarvis, on the part of the citizens.

Active—W.G. Philips, Past Grand for the board of trustees for the hall; J.W. Colley, Past Grand for the Grand Lodge; Henry Trine, Past Grand, Columbia Lodge, No. 10; Samuel E. Douglas, Past Chief Patriarch, for the Grand Encampment; B.F. Gettinger and Thomas Greer, for the Uniformed Battalion of Patriarchs; J.J. Burroughs and Michael R. Combs, on the part of the citizens.

The remains were followed by a long line of carriages, containing relatives and friends of the deceased, to the Congressional cemetery, where the interment took place with the burial services of the Odd Fellows. Mr. Joseph Gawler and a committee of undertakers had charge of the funeral arrangements.

The Fourth Presbyterian church session met yesterday, Rev. Mr. McLain in the chair, and Dr. Daniel McFarlan acting as clerk. The following was adopted: “Having learned with profound regret of the death of Mr. Anthony Buchly, a constant friend of the church, who in early life was engaged in many of its activities, and has ever since manifested the warmest interest in its welfare, and who in his business relations has been so tenderly identified with its people. Be it resolved as a mark of respect that the session attend his funeral this Sabbath afternoon in a body, and that this action be communicated to the family of the deceased with the assurance of our deep sympathy.

Mr. Buchly's Estate and Will

Mr. Anthony Buchly, the deceased undertaker, leaves an estate worth probably $150,000, and made a will which it is understood is locked up in his safe, the combination of which was known only to himself will make it necessary to open it by force. The contents of the will are not definitely known, but it is understood that among the bequests are $10,000 each to Federal Lodge, No. 1, of Masons, (charity fund) and to the Odd Fellows. The amount due him as a member of the Masonic relief association, he gives to St. John's Mite Society; and his business he leaves to his son, with bequests of $10,000 to be paid to him at certain periods. His sister, W. Pierce Bell and L.L. Johnson are the executors.

The Evening Star, July 13, 1881

Mr. Anthony Buchly, the well-known undertaker who has been quite sick for several weeks with a low typhoid fever is now rapidly convalescing.

The Evening Star, May 21, 1881

Mr. Anthony Buchly, the well-known undertaker, is confined to his residence, on Pennsylvania, between 9th and 10th streets, being quite sick with gastric fever.
The Lodge (Federal) is fortunate in having become the beneficiary, in 1899, of the sum of $20,000 by the will of Anthony Buchly, a former member, which bequest is used exclusively as a charity fund.

This Association was organized in 1872, and has enjoyed an uninterrupted career of usefulness to the present day. It is composed of one delegate from each of the subordinate lodges, and was formed for the purpose of rendering relief to Master Masons of the jurisdiction, their wives, widows, and children, and primarily to relieve the lodges of a share of the burdens they encountered. The revenue until 1898 was limited and uncertain, being mainly derived from voluntary contributions from the several lodges, but in that year it came into possession of a fund of about $15,500, a generous bequest of the late Bro. Anthony Buchly, a member at the time of his death of Federal Lodge, No. 1, of this jurisdiction, and for several years Treasurer of the Grand Lodge, the possession of which fund has enabled it to most satisfactorily widen its field of usefulness.

Buchly, Rudolph
On the morning of the 8th inst. at his residence in Alexandria co., Va., Rudolph Buchly in the 47th year of his age. His funeral will take place on Wednesday afternoon, 10th inst. at 2 o'clock from the residence of his brother, No. 912, Pennsylvania ave. north west, Washington, D.C. His friends and acquaintances and those of the family are respectfully invited to attend.

Mr. Buchly testified that between 2 and 3 o'clock on the day in question he was standing in front of his own door engaged in conversation when the defendant came up and placed his hand on witness's shoulder, and gave utterance to a number of profane expressions directed to witness, and called him a perjured, lying son of a b--h and other ill names and referred to an affair that had occurred a long time ago, in which witness had stated that defendant was drunk, and called witness a lying, perjured son of a b--h. Witness replied to defendant that he returned all the compliments which he (defendant) had directed to him (witness). Defendant then told witness he would arrest him, and called him a liar. Witness told him he was a liar. He then took witness by the collar, and Mr. German, with whom witness had been in conversation, cautioned the defendant not to arrest witness, as he was quiet and had done nothing. Defendant then took witness along towards the watchhouse and struck witness several times over the head, and was choking witness with his hand in his necktie, which he was twisting. Several persons in the crowd spoke to defendant and begged him not to beat and choke witness, saying to him that he was killing witness. Witness was choking under his hand, and caught hold of the tie of his neckcloth and pulled it out, and loosened his hold on his neck, and defendant was forced to let go. He swung off in another direction, and a man named Wise called upon defendant to desist, and he cried out that he would arrest him (Wise) and went back to do so. Witness stood there a moment and presently defendant came back and asked for witness. Witness turned round and saw defendant coming towards him and stepped to one side, and defendant went by. He came back and made a grab at witness and struck him several times, and took him along to the watch house and left him at the door. He didn't even go upstairs, but witness went up and finding no charge against himself went away. Witness was entirely sober, and Gormley was very drunk.

Mr. German testified that he was in conversation with Buchly, and heard the charges preferred by defendant against Buchly, and heard Buchly say in reply to defendant's charge. "That he was a liar"—put his hand out and say, "I wouldn't dirty my hands with you." Other words passed, and Buchly said "Go to hell!" whereupon defendant struck at Buchly and finally got hold of him, and took him along the street, when presently they both fell down, and witness thinks Buchly fell on the top of Gormley; Gormley had been drinking, and so had Buchly, but not to hurt him, and behaving in a quiet and gentlemanly manner when accosted by Gormley; witness cautioned Gormley not to exceed his powers; witness spoke to Gormley, saying, "how are you Pat" as he was going down the street, and Gormley came back; the difficulty above described then ensued. Buchly made no remark about Gormley as he passed, and until Gormley came back after witness addressed him, witness thought they were on good terms; Buchly made no remark to Gormley, or about him, till Gormley came up, and, putting his hand on Buchly's shoulder, told him he was "a mean, contemptible puppy," after Gormley told Buchly he was a d--d liar. Buchly replied that "he (Gormley) was another."

Mr. P. Burns testified that he saw the latter part of the affair; was coming up the street, and saw defendant hold of Buchly's collar; witness walked behind them till they got off from the street, and took Gormley by the arm and walked along with him, telling him not to be so rough. When they arrived at the watchhouse Gormley left them at the lower door, and witness and Buchly went up and after waiting for someone to appear, Buchly was discharged by Capt. Goddard. Witness was induced to take Gormley by the arm because he was using Buchly rather roughly--too much so--and was using rough and violent language to Buchly and the crowd which was following Buchly had been drinking, evidently and showed it; Gormely was drunk. Witness don't think Gormley was capable of knowing what he was doing. Witness didn't see what had occurred with the crowd before they got down opposite the Intelligencer office. Witness didn't see that Gormley was hurt at all; he made no complaints. Gormley was the drunkest of the party.

Criminal Court

Trial of Police Officer P. Gormley for an Assault and Battery on Rudolph Buchly

When our report closed yesterday, Messrs. Buchly, German, and Burns had been examined for the prosecution and the District Attorney had called to the stand.

Mr. Hagerty, who testified that he was on the spot when Gormley came along, and after passing came back, and putting his hand on Buchly, said something to him; same hard works passed, and the lie was passed between them; Buchly stepped up on the steps and told Gormley to go to hell; Gormley then struck Buchly, and afterwards took him by the necktie and pulled him along; witness followed the crowd, and when near the Post Office, Buchly got away and went on down the street with Mr. Young; the first remark made was by Gormley, who called to Buchly, and called him a dirty dog, or something; witness didn't see Buchly strike Gormley at all; Gormley accused Buchly of swearing falsely, and Buchly, after a few words, told Gormley he was a liar; Gormley, before Buchly said anything, called him "a mean, low, contemptible, dirty dog;" witness heard Buchly say, "I swore you were drunk, and so you were."

Mr. Young testified that he was coming down the street in a buggy and saw Gormley strike Buchly and take him by the collar; witness got out and walked down by the side of them; at the Post Office, Buchly got away, and Gormley had hold of three other men; witness and Buchly walked down the street and presently Gormley came along and struck at Buchly twice; when on the avenue, as they were crossing it Buchly said he was a citizen, and Gormley struck him again; witness remonstrated with Gormley for his rough conduct.

The United States closed here.

Mr. Denham, for defense, testified that he was riding up Seventh street, and saw a large crowd opposite the Patent Office; stopped and got up with the crowd, and saw Gormely have hold of a large man with red hair; the man was trying to get away; several blows were passed, and an effort was made to take the prisoner from Gormley, who was thrown, and witness told him to defend himself if attacked; two men had their hands in his hair as he got up; witness thought it his duty to protect him in the discharge of his duty, whether he was doing his duty or not witness don't know; the man who struck at Gormley first was the large man with red hair, and Gormley let go him and struck him; witness thinks Buchly was on Gormley's left when he was struck from that side, but didn't see him strike Gormley at all; witness don't think Gormley was drunk, so far as he could judge; at the Post Office a cry was raised to rescue the man, and witness told the crowd to let Gormley alone.

Mr. Perry testified that he was standing in his front door on G street and saw a large crowd, and an officer in the midst, some seventy-five or one hundred feet from the corner; witness went up to the corner of Seventh and F streets, and the officer seemed to have two men by the collar; when they got to the Post Office corner there seemed to be a fight, and witness rushed in and called the peace; Denham was also there in the character of peacemaker; Gormley had his hands entangled in some one's hair; as they got near the area at the corner of the Post Office, Gormley's hand came out of the man's head, bringing an immense tuft of hair with it, and witness picked up the officer's hat and placed it on his head, when Gormley said --“Where is the man I arrested?” and started off down the street after him; witness don't know whether Gormley's excitement proceeded from drunkenness or physical exertion, but witness noticed that he made a very poor run when he started off after his prisoner; there was no blow struck at all that witness noticed, nor any resistance made; there seemed to be a general flourishing of arms (not firearms) and uttering of oaths on the part of the crowd.

Messrs. Alexander Adamson and Finley (tobacconists) testified to the rough handling of Gormley by a number of persons in the crowd at the corner by the post office; they also testified to his character, giving him a good character for peace and order and also testifying to his efficiency as an officer.

Mr. Reynolds testified that he saw a portion of the affair, but saw no blows struck, nor the contest at the post office; it was all over when witness got there. This witness also testified to the defendant's good character as a private citizen and as an officer; also that Buchly was evidently pretty tight,” and that Gormley did not appear to be so.

Mr. Smith saw the struggle between Gormely and the red-haired man; also noticed the crowd, several of whom cried out that Gormley had no right to strike the red-haired man when he struck him.

Mr. Harper testified that he saw Gormley taking away Buchly and the red-haired man, and the rush that was made at the Patent Office. Mr. H. testified to defendant's uniform steady conduct while working on the Patent Office extension as a granite cutter (stone cutter).

Lieut. Thomas of the night watch, testified that he saw Gormley on the night of the day in which the affair occurred, and thinks he was as sober as he ever was. Mr. T. testified to his good character as an officer.

The evidence for the defense closed her and Mr. Norris for defense, addressed the jury touching the evidence which had been given on both sides of the case, and held that it showed that the officer had the right to arrest Buchly for using profane language in the street, as was shown he had done, and read from Sheahan's Digest of the Laws of the Corporation, to sustain his position.

When he had concluded. Mr. Ould asked the Court to instruct the jury in reference to the duties of police officers, when they begin and how far they extend. This was done, the Court remarking among other things, that after an officer had arrested a party, and he is going along quietly without making any resistance, it is a gross outrage against the law and of his duty, and a violation of the rights and immunities of a citizen, in the officer to treat him roughly and strike him.

Mr. Ould then addressed the jury briefly, characterizing the conduct of the officer in this case in severe terms. The jury, without leaving the box, returned a verdict of guilty as indicted.

Dr. Alonzo M. Buck Dead

Was Forty Years in the Service of the Government

Dr. Alonzo Morris Buck died at his late residence in Hyattsville, Md., Friday evening, in the eightieth year of his age. For over forty-four years Dr. Buck was in the service of the government. He was born near Glens Falls, N.Y., January 26, 1826. When a young man he removed to the then far west, locating in Wisconsin. Later he took a course of lectures at Chicago and entered upon the practice of medicine, and was a practitioner when the civil war broke out. He enlisted in a Wisconsin regiment formed for the defense of the Union, which became a part of the famous Iron Brigade. Later he was transferred to the hospital corps, and served as a hospital steward until the close of the war, when he was appointed a clerk in the office of the surgeon general of the army and retained that position until his death.

For many years he had been the chief clerk of the sanitary and disbursing division, and was held in high esteem by the many surgeons general under whom he served. Until his last illness he was rarely away from his desk by reason of sickness. He was a great reader and a student of history. After he was fifty years of age he began studying languages and became master of French and German. When the Spanish war was in progress he began the study of Spanish, and although then nearly seventy-five years old became quite proficient in it. He was particularly fond of reading fiction and scientific work in the original French.

For the past few years Dr. Buck lived in Hyattsville, Md., but was for a long time a resident of this city. He was connected with the North Presbyterian Church, of which he was treasurer for many years.

Dr. Buck's wife, who was Miss Marion Pollard Douglas; a daughter, Mrs. W.F. Drown, and two sons, Alonzo Morris Buck, jr., an instructor in Cornell University, and Espy D. Buck of Kalamazoo, Mich., survive him.

In this city, on Friday evening last, at 10 o'clock, of consumption, Col. D.A.A. Buck, aged 52 years.

Colonel Buck graduated Middlebury College, Vermont, at the age of seventeen years, and entered West Point immediately afterwards. The next year, owing to his collegiate education, he graduated at West Point, and entered the Army as a lieutenant. After serving three years Col. B. resigned, some time before the war, and returned to Vermont to take charge of his father's estate. When war was declared, he took command of a company of volunteer rangers, and hastened to the lines. He was present at the battle of Chatauga Woods and Plattsburg, though not engaged in the latter, being unable to cross the river. After the war, Col. B. became a member of the Legislature of his native State--Vermont--and continued sixteen years, twelve of which he was Speaker of the House of Representatives.

In 1823, he was elected to Congress, and again in 1827, where he served with credit to himself and fidelity to his country.

He has left a widow and three children, besides a numerous circle of friends, to regret his death.—Globe

Dr. Charles M. Buckey Accidentally Killed

Entire Charge From Companion's Gun on Hunting Trip Enters Neck

Shot While Gaming in the Vicinity of Forestville, Md. Yesterday Afternoon

Dr. Charles M. Buckey, fifty-four years old, who was a dentist at 602 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, was accidentally shot and killed yesterday afternoon while on a gunning trip in the vicinity of Forestville, Prince Georges county, Md. The entire charge from a gun held by Joseph Weber, clerk in the Post Office Department, entered his neck and killed him instantly.

Last night a jury was impaneled and an inquest held. The jury promptly reported a verdict of accidental death and Mr. Weber, who resides at 1501 Vermont avenue northwest, returned home.

Dr. John E. Sansbury of Forestville, while hurrying to the scene of the accident in response to an emergency call in his automobile, struck a fence on the Tayman farm and he was thrown to the road and injured. He sustained a painful injury to his hip.

Late yesterday afternoon a telephone message from the wife of a member of the gunning party told Mrs. Buckey of the fatal accident.

Dr. Buckey and Fayette Smart, his nephew, left home yesterday morning to go on their accustomed Thanksgiving outing. Weber and others joining them. Near Forestville they visited the Tayman farm, and two sons of their host accompanied them to the fields and woods. It was about 3 o'clock in the afternoon when the dogs of the hunters started a rabbit and several of the sportsmen shot at it.

Then arose the question of who had killed the rabbit, most of the members of the party jokingly claiming it.

Account of the Shooting

"Let's draw straws for it," suggested one of the gunners, and all agreed that it was the way they could get the most fun out of their efforts to solve the problem. Dr. Buckey stepped a few feet away from his companions, and it was suspected that he was going to try to get a shot at another rabbit while the others were enjoying the straw-drawing contest.

Weber, standing near his friends, reloaded his gun and, it is stated it was accidentally discharged the charge taking the life of his friend. Fayette Smart was standing near enough to his uncle to catch him and prevent him from falling. A physician was summoned, but life was extinct.

Dr. Buckey, who was a native of Wilmington, Del., was a member of the Buckey family of Georgetown, having come to this city when he was a boy. When a young man he was associated in the grocery business with his father, the late Philip Buckey. Tiring of the grocery business, he studied dentistry and practiced his profession in New York city several years.

Built Up Large Practice Southeast

Returning to this city, Dr. Buckey established himself in the southeast section where he built up a large practice and gained the friendship of a large circle of neighbors. He was a member of the Grand Chapter, Royal Arch Masons; Naval Lodge No. 4, F.A.A.M., and Martha Chapter, No. 4, O.E.S.

Dr. Buckey leaves a wife, Mrs. Georgie Jarboe Buckey; a sister, Miss Helen Buckey, and Philip Buckey, a brother, who resides in New Brunswick, N.J. Rev. Father E.L. Buckey of St. Matthew's Church is a cousin of the deceased.

Funeral arrangements probably will not be completed until the body is brought here this afternoon.

Mrs. Buckingham was the wife of John E. Buckingham, well-known as a theatrical doorkeeper, having been employed at the National Theater and at Albaugh's Opera House for many years. He was also the doorkeeper at Ford's Theater upon the night that President Lincoln was assassinated. Mr. and Mrs. Buckingham had made arrangements to celebrate their golden wedding, but Mrs. Buckingham's illness prevented anything of the kind. The deceased had been ill for some time prior to her death, and about two weeks ago one of her sons was summoned here from the west because of her extremely critical condition. She was a woman of many sterling qualities, and her death will be sincerely mourned by a large circle of friends. It is expected that at the funeral on Monday all of her sons and their wives will be present.

Familiar Face Gone -- Death of John E. Buckingham the Veteran Doorkeeper
Enfeebled for a Year
Known to Thousands of Theater-Goers of the City -- Last One to Talk to Booth Conversed With Lincoln's Assassin Shortly Before the Tragedy on 10th Street Occurred

John E. Buckingham, who was a doorkeeper at the old Ford's Theater, on 10th Street the night of President Lincoln's assassination, died at the home of his son, John E. Buckingham, jr., 716 8th street northeast, at 8:50 o'clock this morning. Mr. Buckingham was eighty-one years old.

His death, although expected, was a great shock to the members of his family and the large number of friends both in this city and Baltimore. He had been practically confined to the house, because of his enfeebled condition, for the past year.

Mr. Buckingham married in 1851 in Baltimore, Miss Jemima Young, who died about eight years ago at her home in this city. In addition to a number of grandchildren, Mr. Buckingham's four sons, John E. Buckingham, jr.; Charles Buckingham, George Buckingham, and William Buckingham, survive him. A fifth son, Henry Buckingham, a successful actor, lost his life to a theater fire in Baltimore about fourteen years ago.

The Veteran Doorkeeper

John E. Buckingham was born in Baltimore. He learned the trade of woodmaker and served an extended apprenticeship. Mr. Buckingham came to Washington in 1861 to take a position as expert woodman at the Washington navy yard. There he labored continuously until 1887, and then entered the service of Edward Clark, then Architect of the Capitol.

While he was employed by Mr. Clark he constructed the portable scaffolding in the rotunda of the Capitol from which the artists worked in decorating the interior walls. After being employed by Mr. Clark about ten years he retired from active pursuits and made his home with his eldest son, John E. Buckingham, jr., at 716 8th street northeast.

Mr. Buckingham soon after his arrival here devoted his evenings to the theaters, having had a previous experience in Baltimore as doorkeeper at the playhouses there. He was employed at different times as doorkeeper of several theaters in Washington.

During Mr. Buckingham's experience as doorkeeper in this city and Baltimore he compiled a continuous record of events covering a period of more than thirty-five years. At the time of the assassination of President Lincoln in April, 1865, Mr. Buckingham was the doorkeeper of Ford's Theater, and conversed with John Wilkes Booth, the assassin, about ten or fifteen minutes before the crime was committed.

Recollections of Booth

In speaking of the incident recently, Mr. Buckingham said:

"About ten minutes or more before he shot Mr. Lincoln Booth came to me at the front door and chatted over some trivial matters, during which he asked me for a chew of tobacco -- I recollect that as though it were yesterday. Suddenly he looked up and asked me what time it was. I didn't have a watch, and directed him to go to the box office, where he could see the clock on the inside.

"He glanced at the timepiece, then returned to where I was standing and talked a minute or so more before entering the theater. He walked down the aisle opposite the box occupied by the President, looked about him, and then left. A very short time after that he fired the fatal shot. Throughout the whole time he talked..." to me there wasn't the slightest indication of nervousness or suppressed excitement. He was about the coolest man I ever talked with."

Immediately after the shooting, Mr. Buckingham, with a large number of others who were about the theater at the time or were rounded up in different sections of the city, was taken to the navy yard and confined until the preliminary investigation into the murder had been concluded. It was proven conclusively to the inquisitors that the doorkeeper had nothing to do with the assassination plot, and in the course of several days was released.

Career as Doorkeeper

Subsequent to the assassination of President Lincoln and the closing up of Ford's Theater, Mr. Buckingham was employed as doorkeeper at Watt's, afterward Ford's Opera House, now the Majestic Theater, also at the old Washington Theater. Albaugh's Grand Opera House, the National Theater and the Lafayette, now the Belasco. His active work as a theater doorkeeper ended when he retired from the gates of the Lafayette entrance because of physical disability.

Prior to coming to Washington he was employed as doorkeeper at John T. Ford's Theater, in Baltimore, and in his youth acted as call boy in the same house. In this capacity Mr. Buckingham met many of the leading actors and actresses of that day, including Edwin Booth.

Because of his long association with various theaters Mr. Buckingham enjoyed an extensive acquaintance among actors of the old school, and delighted to talk of his theatrical experiences.

Doorkeeper Buckingham's Memory

"You were keeping door at the theater on that fatal night were you not?" said a Star reporter recently to Mr.
John Buckingham, now the doorkeeper at Albaugh's, when the conversation had turned upon the tragedy, after speaking of Edwin Booth's oath never to play in Washington again.

"I was, indeed," was the reply, "and I don't want ever to go through such an experience again. Booth came up to the door and looked into the house two or three times during the evening before he went upstairs to go around to the President's box. He made some pleasant remark to me, and wanted I should leave the door and go into the adjoining saloon with him, and take a drink; but I declined to do so. He had the run of the house and could, of course, go where he pleased. I never once thought of his having any particular motive in his frequent visits to the door and glances about the house. It was late when the President arrived, and there had begun to be a fear that, after all the preparations that had been made, such as decorating the boxes, etc., he would not put in an appearance. He did come, though, and I remember he had the same kindly smile, though tinged with sadness, that I had always noticed when he came to the theater. I was not looking at the stage when the shot was fired, but the moment I heard the sound of the pistol I turned into the house just in time to see Booth jump from the box and rush back of the scenes. No one realized at first what had happened, until there was one piercing shriek from Mrs. Lincoln, and then the cry from some one, 'He shot the President,' told of the terrible crime that had been committed. Harry Haw and Laura Keene were on the stage, for you remember it was 'Our American Cousin' that was being played, and they appeared perfectly paralyzed with terror. Billy Withers, who was leading the orchestra and big Joe Stuart, were the first to get upon the stage and make a rush for Booth, and the former had a slit or two cut in his coat by the knife which Booth had in his hand. Neither of them could stop him, however, and he got away. You know all the rest. I had a light overcoat that I had put under the rack where I kept my checks, and I forgot, all about that until a month afterward, when I found it just where I had left it."

John E. Buckingham is Called by Death

Retired Interior Department Employee Fatal Stricken When Parting With Brother at Station

John E. Buckingham, 72 years old, retired Interior Department cabinet maker, and well known Potomac fisherman, of 478 Massachusetts avenue was fatally stricken yesterday with a heart attack at a Union Station train gate as he was saying goodbye to his brother, Charles W. Buckingham, of Sparta, Wis., and died within a few minutes in the emergency room at the station. His sudden illness and death were unexpected, as he had been in robust health all his life. He and the brother had just enjoyed their first reunion in 20 years.

Mr. Buckingham was born in Washington, the son of the late John E. Buckingham, who was doorkeeper at Ford's Theater on the night President Lincoln was assassinated. He entered the employ of the navy yard as an apprentice and worked for many years there as a journeyman cabinet maker, later serving the Interior Department for 15 years until his retirement in 1924. Since then he had been employed keeping in repair the apartment properties of Alonzo O. Bliss.

A familiar figure among local anglers, Mr. Buckingham, it was said, "knew every hole in the Potomac," where his leisure hours were spent fly casting and trolling. His hobby was to fashion fishing rods and tackle. The late President Harding was the recipient of a fishing rod of Mr. Buckingham's handiwork. Postmaster Mooney was a frequent companion angler on his fishing expeditions, which were noted for the elaborate equipment of fishing tackle. He was a member of Osiris Lodge F.A.A.M.

Mr. Buckingham is survived by his wife, Mrs. Eva Buckingham; a son, William E. Buckingham, advertising manager Telegram-News, Lynn, Mass.; a daughter, Mrs. Mildred A. Nicholson of Peoria, Ill., and two brothers, Charles W. Buckingham and William C. Buckingham, of this city, all of whom will be present at the funeral services Friday at the latter's residence, 213 Eighth street southeast at an hour to be announced later. Interment will take place in Congressional Cemetery.

Burial of H.C. Buckler

Eastern High Student Interred With Military Honors

Howard Creston Buckler, the sixteen-year-old son of C. Howard Buckler, superintendent of the registry system of the Post Office Department, died of pneumonia after a brief illness Tuesday afternoon. The body was buried in Congressional cemetery yesterday afternoon with military honors, tendered by Company F of the regiment of High School Cadets, stationed at the Eastern High School, of which the deceased was a corporal.

Funeral services were held in Trinity M.E. Church, 5th and C streets southeast, of which the deceased was a member, Rev. H.S. France, the pastor, officiating. The pallbearers, chosen from friends in the cadets and the Sunday school of Trinity Church, were Dutton Wainwright, Wilson McCaw, Walter Buckler, John Buehler and Albert Weber. The high school company escorted the remains from the church to the cemetery.

Funerals

The funeral of Mr. James S. Buckley, yesterday afternoon, was attended by the Grand Lodge and Union Lodge, No. 11, I.O.O.F., Jefferson Circle, Brotherhood of the Union, and Union Lodge, No. 22, Knights of Pythias, headed by a band of music, the membership of the different orders present numbering about five hundred. After services at the house of deceased, on I street southeast, the cortege proceeded to Congressional Cemetery and, the funeral rites of the orders being performed, the remains were interred.

Accident

Yesterday afternoon, a man named James Buckley, formerly a watchman, now a laborer at the Washington Navy Yard, had his left leg broken. He was engaged with several others in hoisting the iron rafters for the roof of the new shell house when the coupling to which it was attached parted, and the rafter fell a distance of from 25 to 30 feet striking Buckley in its descent, and causing a dangerous single fracture near the left ankle. Buckley has been employed in various capacities about the Navy Yard for many years, and is represented to be a man of excellent character. He has, we understand, a large family of young children dependant on his labors in the Yard, to whom this unfortunate accident will be a serious draw-back.

John L. Buckmaster the Victim of Pneumonia

Policeman John L. Buckmaster died at Providence Hospital last night, after an illness of only five days. He was taken sick Sunday and was compelled to go off duty. Being unmarried and having no relatives in this city he went to the hospital to be treated. He had pneumonia and his condition, it is stated, was serious when he reached the hospital.

The deceased was a native of Pennsylvania, where he was born in 1855. He served in the army, spending several years at Fort Monroe. His first duty as a policeman was performed in July, 1889, and four years later he was promoted. For more than twelve years he did duty in Anacostia where he gained many friends. Members of Naval Lodge, No. 4, F.A.A.M., took charge of his body and had it removed to Zurhorst's undertaking establishment to be prepared for burial.

A brother of the deceased at York, Pa., and a sister in Baltimore were notified of his death. The funeral arrangements will not be completed until the arrival of the brother.

Anacostia
On Saturday, 15th Sept. in the 46th year of her age, Mrs. Elizabeth Bugh. This estimable lady fell a victim under the withering hand of the ruthless destroyer now marching with such gigantic steps over our devoted city. Unwearied in her attentions to the sick and distressed, actuated by the pure spirit of benevolence and of piety, and fearlessly devoting herself to the discharge of those duties enjoined upon her by our great and immortal Master, of whom she was an humble follower--she has fallen like the sweet lily of the valley, silently, but not forgotten, into the tomb.

"Thou, didst not sink by slow decay,
Like some who live the longest;
But every tie was wrench'd away,
Just when those ties were strongest.

A lot like thine may justly make
The sanguine doubt tomorrow
And in the heart of others wake
Alternate fear and sorrow.

Well may we fear, for who can think
On thee so lately living,
Loving and loved, and yet not shrink
With somewhat of misgiving.

Well may we mourn, for cold indeed
As those since death has found thee,
Must be the heart that does not bleed
For thee and those around thee,"

Mrs. B. was a lady much respected and beloved by her friends and acquaintances, and deeply lamented by her afflicted relatives. She has left an only son, Mr. Charles Pryse, a worthy and reputable artist, with whom she resided at the time of her decease.

A Little Girl Run Over By A Street

Beckie Bunyea, aged seven years, was run over on Saturday afternoon at the corner of Seventh and East Capitol streets by car 76 on the Metropolitan railroad, driven by George T. Hudt, and the latter was arrested on a charge of assault and battery. The little girl's leg was nearly cut in two and will probably have to be amputated. In the Police Court this morning Hudt was charged with assault and battery and the case was continued indefinitely; bonds $500. Mr. Geo. W. Pearson, president of the road, went on his bond.

Locals

Little Beckie Bunyea, the 7 year old daughter of Emmet P. Bunyea, who was run over by a street car three weeks ago last Saturday, died this morning of lockjaw, the result of the injuries received.

The Evening Star, December 15, 1885

Killed By An Accident

The case of George Huth, a driver on the Metropolitan railroad, charged with manslaughter in running his car over the little girl Beckie Bunyea, at the corner of 6th and East Capitol streets, on the 14th of November, thereby causing her death, was called for trial in the Police Court today, and Mr. Appleby, for the defendant, pleaded "not guilty." Testimony was heard showing the occurrence to be purely accidental, and the judge held it to be an accident and a case in which there was contributory negligence. He therefore dismissed the case.

Loses Life in River
George Colton Burch Drowned at Colonial Beach
Body Brought to This City
Funeral From the Residence of the Parents Tomorrow Morning Sad Ending of a Lad's Outing
Had Gone Out in a Boat With Others and the Craft Was Overturned
The remains of George Colton Burch, fifteen years of age, of 511 D street southeast, who was drowned yesterday morning shortly before 11:30 o'clock at Colonial Beach, were brought to this city this morning and conveyed to Lee's undertaking establishment, where they were prepared for burial and thence to the family home.

The funeral will take place tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock at the residence of his parents, Rev. Mr. Graves, pastor of the Falls (Va.) Church Baptist Church, will officiate. Interment will be at Congressional cemetery. The pallbearers, who were chosen from among the boy's young companions, will be Walter White, Edwin Tyler, Evans Reed, Harold Shannon, Samuel McCauley and John Hardey.

There were several hundred bathers within easy reach of young Burch, but none knew that he was in danger. He had gone out with three companions, all of Washington, in a rowboat. The names of the boys could not be definitely learned, but it is said one was Roland Boller and another was named Robertson. The third has not been identified.

After leaving the beach the boys began to frolic in the boat and the craft was overturned, plunging the four occupants into the water. Burch was the only one who could not swim. For a time his companions, who believed he was a swimmer, thought he was showing them his ability in remaining under water. They were sure he would come up again, and they said nothing.

At last they raised an outcry, and many of the bathers went to the rescue. All of them dived into the water frequently in search of the boy, but always came up empty-handed. The search lasted fully two hours before a man brought the lad to the surface. The name of the man who recovered the body was not stated, although it is known that he lives on 11th street southeast.

Most of the bathers had paid no attention to the upturned boat, believing the boys had done it purposely. A sister of young Burch was bathing at the time of the accident, and was informed of her brother's death. She swooned before she could reach the shore, and it was with difficulty that she was kept above the surface while being taken to the beach. Restoratives were applied and she soon recovered.

Mr. J.R. Burch, father of the drowned boy is assistant superintendent of the Prudential Insurance Company at the Commercial National Bank building in this city. He was spending the day with Mrs. Burch, his son and his three daughters, Miss L.M. Burch, Miss D.A. Burch and Miss Lillian Burch, at the beach. All of these excepting the boy, went down the river Friday. Young Burch, who was employed for the summer by the Southern Railway Company, followed them Saturday evening.

Incorrect Rumor

It was at first stated that the boys were diving from the boat, but this statement, according to Mr. Burch, is not correct. He states that his son could not swim, and therefore would not attempt to dive.

Harbormaster Sutton, who is ill at his cottage at Colonial Beach, where he is passing his vacation, sent a man with the grappling irons to search for the body of the boy after he was told of the accident.

As soon as the body was recovered arrangements were made by the family to return to Washington. They applied to the captain of the steamboat St. Johns for permission to bring the body to this city aboard the boat, but the request was denied. Mr. Burch, however, was relieved of all anxiety in this respect, Mr. Robert H. Bontz of 11 N street northwest, employed at the Columbia Theater, offering his launch, the B.C.L., and his services, which were gratefully accepted.

The boy's body was cared for in the best manner then possible and the launch left Colonial Beach at 11 o'clock last night, arriving at the 7th street wharf this morning at half past 6. Those in the boat besides its owner were Mr. Burch, F.L. Walter of 27 1/2 Bates street northwest and E. Leaman of 764 Gresham street northwest.

When seen at his home this morning, Mr. Burch said he would have to be excused for not giving many details. "I haven't quite completely recovered from the shock. All the funeral arrangements have been completed. As to my family, all are prostrated, especially Mrs. Burch. I owe a debt of gratitude to a great many people, but especially to Mr. Bontz, who certainly proved to be a great friend at such a time."

"I offered my services and my launch to Mr. Burch," said Mr. Bontz to a Star reporter today, "when I first learned of the accident. Why the body was refused by the captain of the St. Johns I cannot tell."

"It was imperative that the body be brought into Washington at once as the law allows only thirty hours after death for a body to be brought into the city, without first being embalmed and prepared for burial. There were no such facilities at the beach, and therefore the need of a quick conveyance."
In speaking about the accident, Mr. Walter said that the boys had more than likely been rocking the boat, and that when they went under water George Burch did not come to the surface because he was not a swimmer. He added that the run from Colonial Beach was made in good time, considering the handicaps of the hurried run at night. The B.C.L. is a launch thirty-five feet in length, and has been used by the owner for pleasure only.

Statement of Steamboat Company
At the offices of the E.A. Randall Steamboat Company it was stated that the reason the body of the drowned boy was not accepted for transportation aboard the St. Johns was because his family did not have the required coroner's certificate. Furthermore it would have been impossible to procure the certificate before the hour set for the boat to leave for Washington.

Funeral of George C. Burch
Lad Who Was Drowned at Colonial Beach Buried Today
The funeral of George Colton Burch, the boy who was drowned at Colonial Beach Sunday, occurred this morning from his late home, 511 D street southeast, Rev. A.W. Graves, pastor of the Falls Church, Va. Baptist Church, an uncle of the dead boy, officiated. Interment was at Congressional cemetery, many of the schoolmates of young Burch attending. Many beautiful floral pieces were placed upon the casket. The pallbearers were Walter White, Edwin Tyler, Evans Reed, Harold Shannon, Sam McCauley and John Hardy.

The body of the boy was found two hours after the drowning, one hundred years out. It was recovered by Toye Olsen and John Kees, Dr. William G. Schafhirt of 1008 F street made every effort to resuscitate the boy, but it was finally conceded that life was extinct.

In an interview with a reporter for The Star, J.B. Burch, the boy's father, declared that the statement made at the office of the E.S. Randall Steamboat Company of the reasons for declining to bring home the boy's body aboard the St. Johns the evening of the drowning, printed in yesterday's Star, was not correct.

"I wish to state," said Mr. Burch, "that the statement relative to the coroner's certificate is unqualifiedly false. I had the necessary coroner's certificate in my pocket when I asked Captain Randall to allow the remains of my boy to be brought up on the St. Johns. Captain Randall did not ask me if I had such a certificate, but most positively refused to allow me to bring my dead son up on said boat under any circumstances."

"I make this statement to correct any false or erroneous impression which may have been conveyed by the above statement of the E.S. Randall Company."

Discouraged, Jumps to Death
John L. Burch Leaps From Railroad Bridge
Dies at the Casualty Hospital Three Hours Later
Content to Face the End

Feeling that his occupation as cabman would amount to but little in the future, because of the improvements being made to perfect horseless vehicles, John L. Burch ended his life last evening by jumping from the top railing of the railroad bridge at 2d and M streets northeast. It was about 6 o'clock when he made the jump, and about three hours later he died at the Casualty Hospital. Coroner Nevitt made an investigation today, and gave the necessary certificate of death, being satisfied that Burch committed suicide.

Burch selected a place to end his life near the spot where John Wahl was accidentally killed a few days ago. When he leaped from the bridge a number of children were playing near where he fell. They were frightened at the sight of the man falling so great a distance, nearly fifty feet.

When Burch, who lived at 641 2d street northeast, left his wife, Mrs. Alice Burch, at home yesterday afternoon he said nothing to her to indicate he was going to end his life, and she was greatly shocked when told of his act. She hurried to the hospital, reaching there after her husband had regained consciousness, and remained with him until he died.

During the time Burch was a patient at the Casualty Hospital he displayed remarkable nerve. With Dr. Moffit he discussed his adversities, recalling his discouraging experience as cabman after he had failed to make a success of the dairy business, and seemed content that his earthly career and troubles would soon end. His wife was hysterical most of the time she was at the hospital.

Dead In Police Cell
Fate of J.T. Burch, 12 Years Magistrate at Berwyn Locked Up As Intoxicated
Death Due to Heart Failure Hastened by Drink, Coroner Finds Body Is Taken To Morgue
Recognized Authority on Government Land Affairs -- Prominent in County Politics

John T. Burch, for twelve years magistrate at Berwyn, Prince George county, Md., was found dead this morning in a cell in the sixth precinct station, where he had been locked up overnight on a charge of intoxication. His body was removed to the morgue.

Death was due to heart failure, hastened by the use of alcoholic stimulants, according to the finding of the coroner, after an autopsy held at the morgue this morning.

Burch, who was sixty-six year of age, and lived a Berwyn, was locked up about 5:30 o'clock last evening. He was seen by police in charge of the station a number of times during the night.

At midnight he was told he might go home. He declined to go, saying the last car had probably gone and he would be unable to start for home before morning.
This morning shortly before 5 o'clock Desk Sergeant Harry Evans went to look after the man from Berwyn. The body was on the floor. Evans opened the door and touched the body to find it cold in death.

Coroner Nevitt was notified. He directed that the body be removed to the morgue. There he held an autopsy later in the morning.

Prominent in County
Judge Burch, as he was known because of his long service as a Berwyn magistrate, was a native of this city, born in the vicinity of 5th and E streets northwest. For years he lived near 5th and H streets northwest.

There his mother died only two or three years ago. She left a large estate which has not been settled.

A clerk in the general land office for years, Mr. Burch was regarded as one of the best government land authorities.

He severed his connection with the government to engage in practice as an expert in laws affecting government land and had an office in the Pacific building. There his son, John Earle Burch was in the blueprint business.

About twenty years ago he moved to Prince George county. There he became an active politician, establishing and editing a democratic paper at Berwyn several years ago.

Twelve years ago he was appointed a magistrate under the republican administration, although a democrat. During two recent sessions of the Maryland legislature he served as clerk in one of the legislative branches.

Taken to Police Cell
Yesterday Judge Burch remained at his office until after 4 o'clock and showed no signs of intoxication when he left the building. On his way out of the building he had a pleasant word to say to the colored boy in charge of the elevator. Little more than an hour later Policeman Humphries found him in the street and sent him to the police station. A charge of intoxication was preferred against him.

At the station Mr. Burch was able to give his name and address before being led back to a cell.

"He was visited every hour," Capt. Byrnes stated this morning. "At midnight he was practically discharged. He was told that he might go. He asked that he be permitted to remain until morning. "His request was granted. He was really not a prisoner at the time of his death."

Policeman Hanley visited the cellroom several times after midnight and saw that Mr. Burch and others in the cells were all right.

Friends of the dead man say that Mr. Burch had suffered from heart trouble for years. He was not a steady drinker, they stated, but did indulge at long intervals.

The wife and three sons survive. The sons are John Earle, Philip Highland and Raymond Burch.

Mrs. Burch is a daughter of the late Gen. McEwen. Her mother is still living in this city.

Body To Be Taken Home
Berwyn, Md., November 20 -- His family has been notified of the death in a police cell this morning of Justice of the Peace John T. Burch a well-known and highly respected citizen of Maryland, who had resided at Berwyn, Prince George county, for the past twenty years. Undertaker Gasch, at Bladensburg, was sent for and the remains will be brought to the home.

Justice Burch was personally acquainted with all the leading democratic politicians of the state, and was particularly close to the late United States Senator, A.P. Gorman.

The members of the family are afraid to inform the widow of his death, fearing the shock will be too much for her. She is troubled with heart disease.

Drowned

Yesterday William Burch, a lad 15 years old, son of Richard Burch, a carpenter, who resides on New Jersey avenue between L and M streets south was drowned in the Potomac at Guinard’s Wharf foot of 4th street east. When last seen he was fishing from the wharf having previously cast loose the lines for the steamer Wawaset, which had started with an excursion party. The lad was subject to fits, and it is supposed fell overboard in one of those attacks. The body had not been recovered at an early hour this morning.

The Evening Star, June 15, 1866

Recoverd.

This morning about 6 o’clock the body of William Burch, the little boy who was drowned on the morning of the 13th instant in the Potomac was found by William Rotthingham floating in the Eastern Branch near Poplar Point. The body was taken to the house of his mother and father at the foot of 4th street near the river and the coroner was notified to hold an inquest.

A little heart has ceased to beat
That once was filled with love
But strikes its measured notes again
In that bright land above.

A mind mature beyond its years
Has faded out in time
But lives again beyond the stars
In heaven’s blissful clime.

Those black eyes that gleamed with joy
Will gleam on earth no more
But open again in brighter scenes
Beyond the earthly shore.

That silvery voice that sang so clear
Is now forever gone
But wakes again in clearer strains
Around Jehovah’s throne.

The little one so fond and good
Has faded from our view
Transported from this earth by death
To better bloom anew.

The National Intelligencer, July 30, 1814

A melancholy and very distressing accident occurred yesterday morning, a few miles north of this city. The excessive rains of Thursday night produced so great a flood in the eastern branch of the Potomac which passes the town of Bladensburg, as to overflow the banks to a considerable extent. One of the Baltimore stages only attempted to ford the stream to the bridge, the railings of which were visible; the driver urged on by the passengers, or unfortunately deeming the passage practicable, rashly proceeded, and in a minute the horses, driver and stage, containing five passengers, were all swept down the rapid current. The driver and four passengers, by their own exertions and the aid of boats, were rescued -- the remaining passenger perished. This was a young gentleman, we learn, of the name of Birchett, son of Mr. Robert Birchett, President of the Petersburg branch of the Bank of Virginia, and was on his way to one of the eastern colleges. His body has not been recovered. The driver attempted to preserve his horses by cutting them loose, but to save his own life was obliged to abandon them to their fate.

The National Intelligencer, August 2, 1814

The body of Mr. Birchett, whose melancholy fate we noticed on Saturday was found on Sunday in the Eastern Branch, by some of the Marine Guard, near the magazine, about 4 miles below the place where the stage was lost. His remains were yesterday interred in this city.

Hattie E. Burdette,
Portrait Artist, Dies: Did Painting of Lee
Miss Hattie E. Burdette, prominent Washington portrait painter, died today at her home, 1835 K street N.W. Miss Burdette had followed a distinguished art career until about three years ago when her eyesight began to fail after a fall.

For many years she occupied a quaint, old studio on H street across from Decature House. After she gave up the studio she continued painting at her home. She worked in oils and pastels and also was noted for her miniatures.

Miss Burdette was an unusual artist, in that she could copy famous portraits as well as painting portraits of her contemporaries with a high degree of accuracy.

Many famous personalities had had their portraits painted by Miss Burdette.

Did Lee Portrait
She was commissioned to paint Gen. Robert E. Lee's portrait for Washington and Lee University, where he had been president.

Termed a strong and dignified interpretation of character, the portrait was original in that it was not a copy of any existing portrait or single photograph, but was composed by the artist from a number of sources.

Miss Burdette was a native of Washington. She received her art training here.

Her portraits have hung in the Capitol, Navy Department, George Washington Masonic National Memorial and in many citieies from Cambridge, Mass. to Florida and Mississippi.

In 1940 the Arts Club exhibited her pastels, chiefly portraits, but including a few still-life subjects.

Active in Art Groups
Miss Burdette was active in various art groups, including the Society of Washington Artists, the Water Colo Club, Arts Club Miniature Painters, Sculptors and Gravers and was formerly president of the latter. She was affiliated with the national American Artists' Professional League.

Survivors include her cousins, Mrs. Craig Atkins, Mrs. J. Mark Trice, Miss Alice Burdette and Geoge F. Linkins, of Washington.

Services will be held at 3 p.m., Wednesday at Gawler's funeral home, 1756 Pennsylvania avenue N.W. Burial will be in Congressional Cemetery.

Miss Burdette Dies; Noted Painter
Miss Hattie E. Burdette, who for several years was rated among the top of American portrait painters, died yesterday at her home, 1835 K street n.w.
A native of Washington, whose work was recognized by the United States Government, universities and other institutions, Miss Burdette had remained active until about three years ago in an art career that began before the turn of the century.

Some of the Nation's top leaders of Government and industry sat before her easel. Her portrait of President Woodrow Wilson when he first entered the White House was considered one of his best likenesses.

For many years she maintained her studio in an old house at 1623 H street n.w., across from the Stephen Decatur House, where in 1939 she put the finishing touches on a portrait of George Washington for Washington and Lee University. Her portrait of Robert E. Lee, taken from an old photograph, already had been completed for W. & L.

She was widely known for her originality and accuracy in her paintings of famous persons of history which she painted from a combination of portraits and photographs of her subjects.

She also won praise for the delicacy of coloring and accuracy of line and composition of the many miniatures she turned out. Some of her miniatures won honors at the Royal Society of Miniature Painters in London.

Failing eyesight following a fall forced her to give up her work about three years ago, but she remained interested in Washington art groups.

She is survived by four cousins, Mrs. Craig Atkins, Mrs. J. Mark Triee, wife of the secretary of the Senate, Miss Alice Burdette and George F. Linkins, all of Washington.

The Washington Post, November 20, 1938

In Washington Art Circles

In the first rank of American portrait painters is a Washington artist, Miss Hattie M. Burdette, the high quality of whose work has been recognized by the United States Government, universities and other institutions. The portrait of President Woodrow Wilson she made when he first entered the White House he regarded as one of his best portraits.

That portrait today, with one by Miss Burdette of the first Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, now hangs in Savannah, Ga., in the Wilson room of the old Presbyterian manse where President Wilson married his first wife.

Miss Burdette painted two portraits for the Navy Department, one of Admiral Dewey and the other of Secretary of the Navy Charles J. Bonaparte. Her portrait of John Langdon hangs in the United States Capitol.

In her portrait painting Miss Burdette has the high art of acquiring excellent likenesses plus the spiritual qualities of her subjects. Thus, while her portraits really look like their subjects, an accomplishment not true of all portraits, they have character and an appeal which make them most unusual.

Miss Burdette does not confine her work to full size portraits however. Her many miniatures have won high praise for the delicacy of their coloring and their accuracy of line and composition.

In a current exhibition of her flower paintings in oils Miss Burdette exhibits her great command of color, her sense of rhythm and powers of exact composition.

Miss Burdette maintains her own attractive studio at 1623 H Street N.W. She does a great deal of work in pastels as well as oils.

She is a member of the Society of Washington Artists, the Washington Water Color Club, the Washington Arts Club, Miniature Painters, Sculptors and Gravers Society and the American Artists Professional League.

(The chief, Charles Cooley, was given a Model T Ford instead of the motorcycle.) Montgomery County was divided into beats. Ward P. Burdine, 74, who retired in 1960 after 44 years as a tax collector for the Internal Revenue Service, died after a heart attack Tuesday.

He lived at 59 Walnut Ave., Takoma Park, Md.

Mr. Burdine, whose wife died in 1933, was employed at the IRS office at Four Corners, Silver Spring, at the time of his retirement.

He had been a field agent with IRS since 1916, much of the time supervising collection of federal taxes on tickets to the Washington ball park, area race tracks and Washington Redskins football games.

He also collected special levies against cigar factories and distilleries in nearby Maryland areas.

When he retired, his colleagues and friends, including representatives of the Washington Senators, the Redskins and Laurel Race Track, honored him at a retirement dinner.

Before going to work with Internal Revenue Service three years after passage of the federal income tax law, Mr. Burdine was a steamfitter. He was recommended for the federal job by the late Sen. Blair Lee of Maryland, and his son E. Brooke Lee, long a Montgomery County Democratic leader.

Mr. Burdine leaves a son, Ward P. Burdine Jr. of Sarasota, Fla.; two daughters, Mrs. Florence Raley of 5314 Broad Branch Road NW and Mrs. Wilbur B. Leizear of 516 Northwest Drive, Silver Spring; two brothers, Eugene Burdine of Herndon, Va., and Earl H. The Evening Star, November 29, 1858
Mr. William Burdine died at the residence of his son, near the Navy Yard Bridge, last evening, aged seventy-eight years. Mr. Burdine came to this city in the year 1804, and was one of the first hands employed in the pattern department of the Navy Yard, after the establishment of the Government works here; and few vessels built for the U.S. Navy since that period but what bear the marks of his handiwork; for, until within the last nine months, he has hardly ever been missed a day from his post in the pattern shop, during a space of fifty-five years, when the works there have been in operation. In the time of the war of 1812, Mr. Burdine, with many other citizens, shouldered his musket and went forth to do his duty in the field. He was a member of Captain Burch's company, during the war, and was one of the guards appointed to superintend the burning of the Anacostia bridge on the occasion of the visit of His Majesty's troops to Washington, in August, 1814. He was the most active of the founders of the Navy Yard Beneficial Society in 1831, of which society he was a member up to the day of his death. In February last he was completely paralyzed (having been partially so for the last nine years) and from that stroke never recovered so as to be able to speak, to the time when called upon to render up his final account to the Great Author of all existence. Requiescat in pace.

The Evening Star, January 31, 1899

Cadet Burgdorf Buried

Ranked High as Student at Virginia Military Institute

Funeral services were held at 3 o'clock this afternoon over the remains of Augustus J. Burgdorf at the residence of his parents, 2000 7th street. The deceased was a cadet at the Virginia Military Institute, Lexington, Va., and died there Saturday last. A platoon of cadets from the institute acted as funeral escort.

A general order issued from the headquarters of this institute by the superintendent set forth that it became his sad duty to "announce to professors, officers and cadets the death of Cadet Augustus J. Burgdorf, third class, in the cadet hospital. The most distressing casualty, due to heart failure, was most sudden and unexpected. He was sent to the hospital three weeks ago and seemed to be convalescing from a sharp attack. His mother was with him since last Saturday, and all arrangements had been made for him to go home on sick leave when the shocking end came. Cadet Burgdorf entered the institute in September, 1897, and by application and diligence achieved very high standing in a large class, and was distinguished in mathematics. The reports of class grades up to the time of his last illness indicated that he continued to hold his class rank. In his convalescence he repeatedly regretted the time he was losing from his duties and studies. His afflicted family and friends have the heartfelt sympathy of all. Definite arrangements for the funeral will be announced in further orders. The acting commandant will hold in readiness a platoon of cadets, supplied with three rounds of blank cartridges, to act as a funeral escort. The flags will be kept at half-staff until after the interment, and the usual badge of mourning will be worn for thirty days."

Sitting lonely, ever lonely, Waiting, waiting for one only, Thus I count the years moments passing by; And the heavy evening gloom Gathers slowly in the room, And the chill November darkness dims the sky, Now the countless busy feet Cross each other in the street And I watch the faces fitting past by my door; But the step that lingered nightly, And the hand that tapped so lightly And the face that beamed so brightly, Come no more!

By the firelight's fitful gleaming, I am dreaming, ever dreaming And the rain is slowly falling all around; The voices that are nearest, Of friends the best and dearest, Appear to have a strange and distant sound, Now the weary wind is sighing And the murky day is dying, And the withered leaves lie scattered 'round my door; But that voice whose gentle greeting

Death Due To Accident

Coroner's Jury Passes on Case of John Burgess

A coroner's jury in the case of John Burgess, sixty-eight years of age, for many years a resident of Congress Heights, who died yesterday, having been struck by a street car while at the corner of 9th and B streets December 26, today rendered a verdict that death was due to unavoidable accident.

The autopsy showed that the body was in an exceedingly diseased condition from Bright's disease, heart disease and asthma, and therefore, it was pointed out, the enfeebled man could not withstand even he slight shock of the accident. The car struck him on the left ankle.

William Scantlebury, a resident of Anacostia, was a passenger on the car at the time the accident happened. He interested himself in the injured man and had the motorman stop the car at Providence Hospital and summoned a physician from the institution.

The physician examined him, detected the injury to the ankle, and said he would not admit Mr. Burgess to the hospital.

Dr. J.A. Watson gave the jury the information that he had been attending Burgess for heart disease, kidney trouble, asthma and dropsy. Deputy Coroner Glazebrook performed an autopsy and found the conditions mentioned by Dr. Watson.

It was stated to the jury that Burgess could not hear well, and that he was feeble. A statement made by Burgess, it was remarked, indicated he thought the accident resulted from his enfeebled condition.

Arrangements have been made for the funeral to take place from the family home. The interment will be in Congressional cemetery.

The Evening Star, August 31, 1897

Reported Drowning

Fred Burlingame, a Young Boy, Lost on the Potomac

A message was received by The Star this morning from Indian Head, stating that Fred. Burlingame, the eight-year-old son of Mr. Fred. H. Burlingame, an employee of the bureau of engraving and printing of this city, was drowned off Sandy Point last night by the capsizing of a boat.

Mr. Fred. Burlingame took his son with him on a cruise down the river in a small yacht a week ago last Saturday. Mrs. Burlingame left at that time on a trip to Providence. She returned, however, about a week ago. When a Star reporter broke the sad news to her this morning at her residence, 24 C street northeast, she was totally unaware of the accident and the loss of her boy seemed to affect her deeply.

Mrs. Burlingame, it seems, had been loath to let the boy go on the trip, and statede this morning that she has had a premonition all along that something was going to happen. She said she had always been afraid that something would happen to the boat, and a report received from a naval officer several days ago, to the effect that the boat was leaking and that her husband and son were forced to put up for repairs, did not tend in any way to soothe her troubled mind.

The boy was a handsome little fellow, a little over eight years of age, and a prime favorite at school, at home and with his playmates. He had a bright, cheerful disposition, and was always generous and kind-hearted.

The message received contained no news of Mr. Burlingame, but it is supposed that he survived the accident.

Police Boat Vigilant Returns With Remains of Little Fred Burlingame

Discovered Floating in the Open Channel Near Clifton Beach --

Violence of the Storm

The police boat Vigilant returned to the city last evening at 7 o'clock with the body of Fred Burlingame, the eight-year-old son of Mr. F.H. Burlingame, custodian of presses of the bureau of engraving and printing. As exclusively announced in The Star last Tuesday, the little fellow was drowned off his father's boat, the William Washington, in a squall last Monday night.

Through the kindness of Commissioner Ross the police boat was ordered to the scene of the wreck off Sandy Point and directed to search for the body. The tops of the masts of the sunken boat were plainly visible, and the police boat crew directed its energies to dragging about the wreck. The water was quite deep and the men experienced considerable trouble in their work. Shortly before 2 o'clock a schooner spoke the Vigilant, and reported that the schooner Walter P. Snow. Captian Roberts, had discovered the body floating in the main channel this side of Clifton Beach and was lying close by watching it until the arrival of the police boat. Harbor Master Sutton called in his men and all steam was crowded on for Clifton Beach.

The Father's Discovery

The agonized father of the boy was in the pilot house and was among the first to discover the body. A boat was lowered, and the remains carefully and tenderly placed in the bottom. After a word of thanks to Captain Roberts, the Vigilant was put about, and hurriedly returned to the city.

The storm which sunk the William Washington was a severe one. During Monday afternoon signs of the approaching squall were visible and toward sunset all vessels in sight sought shelter. Off Sandy Point there is but little good harbor, and the river is very wide, giving the wind a chance to blow its hardest. Out in the middle of the stream, fully a mile and a half from shore, the William Washington came to anchor. Everything was made snug for the night. The sails were furled, the anchor dropped and preparations made for weathering the storm. It did not break in all its fury until 9 o'clock, and then it came, heralded by the most magnificent electrical display ever seen.

The heavens were transformed into a brilliant, electrical dazzle, and for nearly an hour the lightning was so intense and frequent that one could have read a newspaper without trouble. When the lightning ceased the wind rose and blew great guns for half an hour.
From Bed to Billows
The little boy had been put to bed on board the William Washington, and the three men were watching the storm. Mr. Burlingame attempted to go on deck, but the wind was so severe he could not stand, and was forced into the cabin. Suddenly, without warning, the boat was blown over on her side. The men piled out of the cabin, the little boy with them. They were all thrown into the water by the force of the wind, and Mr. Burlingame swam to where his son was struggling. Reaching him he placed the little fellow on the high side of the capsized boat, and then swam off to the yawl boat, in the hopes of cutting her loose from the davits. After considerable trouble, he succeeded, and righting her, rowed off to where the men were sitting on the high side of the boat. When he reached them, the child was nowhere to be seen. The men said they had not noticed him. It was then too dark to see a yard in advance, and the rain was coming down in torrents, and the broken-hearted father was obliged to pull away into the night. They rowed nearly all night, and were finally picked up by a schooner. They stayed aboard of her until morning, and embarked for Indian Head, from where the harbor master was telephoned.

Vigilant Ordered to Scene
It was out of the harbor master's jurisdiction, and he could not respond without orders from the Commissioners. A reporter of The Star was nearby, and volunteered to telephone Commissioner Ross. The response came back that the police boat had been ordered to the scene. The Vigilant arrived Tuesday night and tied up at Chickamucksent. At daybreak, the crew, now augmented by Mr. Burlingame and several of his friends, set to work, with the result stated above.

The house of Mr. John Mills, near the scene of the drowning, was struck by lightning Monday night, and his eight-year-old daughter killed outright. Every one in the house was stunned.

Monoxide Kills Two, And Another May Die

Mrs. Burlingame and Mrs. Watson Dead -- Washerwoman in Critical State

Deadly carbon monoxide gas snuffed out two lives yesterday and left a third victim in a critical condition. The dead are Mrs. Lola M. Burlingame, wife of Harry T. Burlingame, desk sergeant at the fifth precinct police station, and Mrs. Stella Watson whose husband is a bartender. Mrs. Helen Naylor a colored washerwoman, was found in a critical condition and taken to the Casualty Hospital. Physicians say she may die.

The three women were found in the Burlingame apartment at 1443 1/2 A street southeast, about 7 o'clock p.m., when Mr. Burlingame returned home from the police station. Mrs. Burlingame and Mrs. Watson were on the bed in the sleeping apartment, while the colored woman was seated in the kitchen, where the subtle poison had been generated by a water heater.

Dead Several Hours

Mrs. Burlingame had been dead several hours physicians from the Casualty Hospital stated but Mrs. Watson was still breathing. She died while being conveyed to the hospital. Mrs. Naylor, although in the room in which the poisonous gas was generated, was in much better condition than was Mrs. Watson, and the physicians hurried her to the hospital. She was unconscious and unable to offer any explanation of the case.

When Burlingame saw that his wife was dead, and that Mrs. Watson and the colored woman were in a critical condition he sent a hurried message to the police station where he had been on duty all day.

Physicians labored hard to prolong Mrs. Watson's life and save the life of the colored woman. When the hospital was reached it was found that Mrs. Watson was dead, while the colored woman was improving, although her condition was critical.

Pulmotor Is Used

As soon as Coroner Nevitt reached the hospital to view the body of Mrs. Watson he suggested the use of a pulmotor on the colored woman and the instrument was quickly supplied by the Washington Gas Light Company, and it was used to good effect. Coroner Nevitt said the pulmotor gave a fighting chance for life.

Coroner Nevitt made an investigation of the affair, and at an autopsy this afternoon it was declared Mrs. Watson's death was due to carbon monoxide poisoning.

There was an utter lack of a ventilating pipe to the water heater, the coroner stated, and there was no escape for the fumes. He said today that he will send a communication to the Commissioners on the fatality.

Services for Mrs. Burlingame and Mrs. Watson, Monoxide Victims

Funeral services for Mrs. Lola M. Burlingame and Mrs. Stella Watson, who were killed Wednesday by carbon monoxide gas escaping from a hot water heater at the home of Mrs. Burlingame, were conducted at Lee's chapel at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Rev. V. Hinson Howlett, pastor of the Second Baptist Church, officiated, and the interments were in Congressional cemetery.

Mrs. Helen Naylor, colored, who suffered from the poison in the kitchen of the Burlingame apartment, at 1443 1/2 A street southeast, at the time the two women named were suffocated, was still in a critical condition.

Burnell, Hon. Barker

The National Intelligencer, Saturday, June 17, 1843
Death of the Hon. Barker Burnell, M.C. of Massachusetts

With all the sympathy which high worth and sense and private relations the most amiable can inspire, it is our painful duty to communicate to the public the loss of this excellent public servant and most exemplary man.
He expired at his lodgings in this city, at a few minutes before 10 o'clock, night before last, at the age of 45 years, a victim, in the very prime of maturer life and of what seemed a vigorous frame, to the painful and wasting disease of consumption; which first declared itself, in a decisive form, just at the close of the late session of Congress; and has ever since held him here in its fatal grasp, far from the consolations of home, the soothings of that general affection with which he would there have been surrounded, and every thing that could soften the sure approaches of death, except the kindness of a circle of friends who had learned here to know his value, the still warmer attentions of a few associates of his early life, and that one consolation, dearer and surer than all other human ones--the devoted care, the unexhausted tenderness and courage of one to whom his earliest attachment had united him, and whose love supported him to the last of the life which she had adorned and blest.

A native, and all his life an inhabitant of that hardy island (Nantucket) where yet linger in perhaps greater vigor than any where else the virtues of the New England race, Mr. Burnell was an admirable specimen of that remarkable lineage. Without the slightest tinge of their austere spirit, the gloom and the hardness of mind upon which their first colonists bordered, he had their force of character, their indomitable adhesion to what they believed right. To their robust, their muscular practical sense, which every where makes them serviceable in public affairs and successful in private ones, he joined a truth and a simplicity of heart the most entire. No man had ever better preserved the integrity, the faith, the disinterestedness of private life, in mixing with those ambitious schemes which usually make such havoc among men's individual virtues. He came into public life as alone one should come, without a reproach; he remained in it, to the last, that admirable thing, an uncorrupt politician.

Such were the qualities of which we know that he had ever maintained the repute among his own people, or of which we have ourselves been able to mark the display here upon a theatre where, to observant eyes, no man can pass for what he is not. At home, his excellent abilities and the confidence which his just and sagacious mind created in all about him, had rendered him, almost in his youth, the common umpire of the difficulties and disputes of all his neighbors and townsmen. Men who had quarreled, or who could not agree upon their rights, said, "Come, we will leave it to Barker Burnell;" and they were sure to have justice done, without the intervention of the law. This general esteem of his fellow-citizens introduced him, betimes, into public life. At only 22 he was already a member of the House of Representatives in his native Commonwealth. A few years later he passed into the Senatorial body; where, in spite of his youth, his excellent purposes and soundness of judgment soon made him a leading member. In the two bodies he served most usefully and honorably some ten years. He sat also in the Convention which framed the present Constitution of Massachusetts; took an active and influential part in the Harrisburg Convention and the great civil revolution of 1840; and was afterwards returned a member of Congress, to which he had been again elected this spring. In the last named body his speeches have not been frequent, but have always won him the praise of sense, usefulness and knowledge of his subject, rather than the reputation of mere rhetoric. He came, however, with an influence and a weight more felt than any which mere speeches can get or keep; and few men from his quarter possessed, while his health allowed him to exert himself, more power in the body to which he belonged.

Upon the close of a life of such rectitude Religion could scarcely fail to shed calmness, courage, and hope.
The rational but warm faith in which he had all his days walked lent patience to his bodily sufferings and the manliest composure to the last act of life. He died as one must die who had slighted no duty and felt every affection--with the regrets of a husband, a father, and a friend; but with the courage of a man and the confidence of a Christian.

The Funeral of the deceased will take place on Sunday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, from Mrs. McDaniel's near the corner of 4 1/2 street and Penn. avenue. All officers of Government, civil, judicial, and military, the Corporate authorities of Washington, and citizens, are invited to attend.

For details of the funeral and procession see “Pomp & Circumstance at Congressional Cemetery.”

Charles P. Burns Dies; Long in U.S. Service
Was Chief of Printing at Weather Bureau-Prominent in Masonic Circles
Charles P. Burns, fifty-one years old, chief of the printing division of the United States weather bureau, died at the Garfield Hospital last night following a protracted illness.

Mr. Burns was a native of Lancaster, S.C.  He was born November 4, 1872.  In September, 1893, he accepted a position with the government printing office, where he worked until April 1903.  In May of that year he entered the United States weather bureau as a compositor.  Later he was promoted to an assistant foreman of the printing division, and in 1919 was made chief of the division, which position he held at the time of his death.

He had been prominent in Masonic circles, being a member of Mount Pleasant Lodge, No. 13, F.A.A.M., Washington Commandery, No. 1, Knights Templar; Almas Temple of the Mystic Shrine and Jackson Lodge, No. 53, A.F.M., of Lancaster, S.C.  He also was a member of Columbia Typographical Union, No. 101.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Belle V. Burns, and one son, Willard Burns.  Funeral arrangements have not been made.

Weather Bureau Employee Reduced
Charles T. Burns, an Assistant Foreman, Is Given Cut in His Salary Guilty of Misconduct in Performing Duties
Case Is Outgrowth of Charges Resulting in Dismissal of Prof. Moore
Charles T. Burns, an assistant foreman in the weather bureau, suspended at the time of the dismissal of Chief Willis L. Moore, today was reduced in rank and salary by Secretary Houston, who declared Burns “guilty of misconduct in the performance of his duties.”

Moore was dismissed for “serious irregularities” and misuse of his office, of which it was alleged he had been guilty in his campaign for appointment as Secretary of Agriculture in President Wilson’s cabinet. The case was referred to the Department of Justice for investigation. Burns was charged with complicity.

Only One Charge Sustained
Prof. Oliver L. Fassig, against whom charges were preferred by Moore, was acquitted of all except one - that of making a false statement regarding an item of expense amounting to $6.65. No action was taken in his case. Fassig contended Moore made the charges because he refused to support his candidacy for the Secretary of Agriculture.

Secretary Houston’s investigation of the case disclosed, an official statement says, that December 27, 1912, Burns recommended that an inspection of weather bureau printing plants in various cities was necessary in the interest of economy and efficiency, “whereas the trip was planned by Moore for the primary purpose of promoting his candidacy for appointment as Secretary of Agriculture, and not for the promotion of economical or efficient administration of the bureau.”

Burns Feared Dismissal
Mr. Burns’ official excuse for doing this was that he feared dismissal if he did not comply with the orders of his chief. Secretary Houston said that this was not a valid excuse, and Burns was reduced from a salary of $1,800 to one of $1,250.

There are a number of parallel cases in which Prof. Moore is alleged to have used his position to forward his campaign for a cabinet place. These have been placed in the hands of the Department of Justice and will be acted on individually, as was done in the Burns case.

Distressing Death

Saturday afternoon last, the eldest son of Mr. George Burns, of this city, aged twelve years, who had been riding on an omnibus in Fourteenth street, jumped suddenly off, and before he could get off the street another omnibus, close behind, ran against him, knocking him down, and the wheels passed over the lower part of the body, inflicting fatal injury. He died at 12 o'clock that night, after lingering up to that hour in great suffering. Yesterday morning, the driver of the omnibus (John Lane) was arrested and taken before Justice Donn, who held an examination into the case. The evidence showed that the lad was riding behind the first omnibus on the steps with two others, when he jumped off, and in an instant was under the horses of the second one, before the driver had time to pull them up. All the witnesses agreed in holding the driver blameless in all, except the single circumstance that he did not stop to see what harm had been done. Lane appeared very much distressed at the accident, and said that he saw the boy fall or jump off, and before he could possibly pull up his horses they were upon him. He looked over the side of the coach, and seeing the lad on his feet and the other boys coming up to him, concluded that the omnibus had not touched him, but that he had passed under the axles, and was not hurt. He was held for further examination.

George Oscar Burns Killed By Railway Engine

Was Assistant in the Pennsylvania Yard at Benning

Result of an Accident

George Oscar Burns, who was employed as assistant yardmaster at the "J.U." tower in the Benning yard, was struck by engine 5257 of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company yesterday afternoon about 4:30 o'clock and instantly killed. He was killed while in the performance of his duty, and his father was satisfied with a certificate of accidental death being given by the coroner without the formality of holding an inquest. His father, Mr. Frank H. Burns, is a clerk in the War Department, and lives at 223 8th street southwest. He was at Lee's undertaking establishment, 832 Pennsylvania avenue, last night when the remains of his son arrived there in charge of the superintendent of the morgue. The unfortunate young man was thirty years old and lived at the home of his parents. He had been in the employ of the railroad company about four years. He had been advanced several times during the four years, and would probably have received another promotion in a short time had he not met with the fatal accident.

Ran in Front of Locomotive

The young man was in the tower and knew there was an engine approaching from the city. Being in a hurry to cross the tracks to book some cars, he ran from the tower and passed in front of one big locomotive. He apparently did not count upon the second engine being there, and ran directly in front of it. The engine was making fast speed at the time, and Burns was struck with such force that he was instantly killed, as stated. His body was dragged a distance of fifty yards or more along the track and horribly mutilated. Railroad employees gathered the remains and had them in a car on a siding by the time the wagon from the morgue reached the scene. Burns' gold watch was missing from his vest pocket, and search was made for it along the line of the tracks, but without success.

Last night Undertaker Lee prepared the body for burial, and it will be taken to the home of the young man's parents this morning. The arrangements for his funeral have not yet been made, but it is thought it will take

Bro. Thomas S. Burr, of Federal Lodge, No. 1, has presented to that Lodge the Masonic apron worn by the late Bro. Thomas Donoho, with the request that it be placed among the archives of the Lodge. Major Donoho is well remembered by most of our older citizens as the chief clerk to Gales & Seaton, of the National Intelligencer, and who for more than fifty years enjoyed the confidence of those gentlemen. The apron is very handsome, being embroidered in gold and colors of white satin, and bears upon it the various emblems of the higher degrees of the Masonic fraternity.

Contookcook, N.H., Vice Admiral Guy H. Burrage, USN Retired, onetime commandant of the Fifth Naval District and the naval operating base at Norfolk, VA died at his summer home yesterday. He was 87. Admiral Burrage headed the Fifth District at the time of his retirement in 1931 after 44 years service. In 1919 he was commandant of the Norfolk Navy Yard. He leaves his widow, Mary Burrage, 2 daughters and 9 grandchildren. Funeral services were scheduled for this afternoon at Hopkinton with burial in Congressional Cemetery, Washington, D.C.

Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage, United States Navy, and president of the Board of Inspection and Survey, Office of Naval Operations, Washington, D.C., was promoted to his present rank June 27, 1920. He had held the rank of temporary rear admiral, having been so commissioned while in command of the battleship Nebraska, which was in the convoy service during the latter part of the World War.

Rear Admiral Burrage was born at Lowell, Massachusetts, June 14, 1867, son of Hamilton and Mary Howe (Davis) Burrage. He was appointed to the United States Naval Academy and was graduated in 1887. During the years he has been in the navy he has risen steadily through the grades to his present rank and has seen the following service: Lieutenant, junior grade, on the Wheeling, Spanish-American War; executive office of the Washington and then on the Connecticut, 1907-10; commanded the Albatross, 1910-12; at Naval War College, Newport, R.I., 1912; on duty U.S. Naval Academy, 1912-14; commandant of midshipmen, Naval Academy, 1914-15; commanded the Nebraska, 1915-19; attached to office of naval operations, Navy Department, Washington, D.C., 1919; commandant, Navy Yard, Norfolk, Virginia, 1919; now president of the Board of Inspection and Survey.

On September 4, 1894, he married Mary Ricketts Graham, of California, and has three daughters -- Mrs. W.W. Gwathmey, Jr.; Mrs. Barton Myers, Jr.; and Miss Charlotte Meade Burrage. He is a member of the Army and Navy Club, Washington, D.C. [Prominent Personages of the Nation's Capitol]
The National Intelligencer, Tuesday, December 27, 1820

It is with deep regret that we have to announce the death of another Member of the National Legislature. The Honorable James Burrill, Junior, a Senator from the State of Rhode Island, departed this life on Monday night, aged 49, of a pulmonary complaint, which afflicted him, with more or less severity, for many years -- though the fatal attack which put a period to his useful and honorable career was of short duration. The death of this gentleman must be a great loss to the State which he has so faithfully represented. The shock which it inflicts on the high body of which he was a distinguished member, is strongly marked by the unaffected sorrow that pervades the Senate. The character of the deceased requires no eulogy from our lips, but justice demands of us to say of him, that few men, within our knowledge, have discharged the Legislative functions with more credit or usefulness than himself.

To a strong mind and much practical information, he added an assiduity and attention to his duties, which were constantly felt in the deliberations of the Senate; and to these qualities were joined a benevolence of disposition and a candor and liberality of sentiment, which acquired for him an esteem that gave full weight and value to his talents and industry.

The remains of Mr. Burrill will be conveyed to the Senate Chamber, this morning, at half past 10 o'clock, where Divine Service will be performed. They will from thence be carried to the burying ground. The following gentlemen of the Senate will act as Pall Bearers:

Mr. Mills
Mr. Lanman
Mr. Pleasants
Mr. Roberts
Mr. Williams, of T.
Mr. Thomas

The National Intelligencer, Thursday, December 28, 1820

The Funeral of the late Mr. Burrill, of Rhode Island, took place yesterday. The Ceremonies attending it were more impressive than usual, owing to the corpse being brought into the body of the Senate Chamber, and there rested. The President of the Senate was in the chair, by his side the Speaker of the House; the Officers both Houses in attendance, and the committee of Arrangements, the chaplains of Congress and the physicians, as well as the officers of both Houses, clad with the externals of that grief, which appeared to be felt internally by all persons present, and particularly by the Members of the Senate. An eloquent and appropriate exhortation was given on the occasion by the Rev. Mr. Ryland, concluded with prayer.

Of Mr. Burrill, it may be said, that his death is equally lamented by those who agreed with and those who differed from him in political opinion. He was a man without guile, whose amiable qualities disarmed animosity where his political course might otherwise have excited it.

It was impossible to witness the ceremonies of yesterday in the Senate Hall, without recalling the incident which took place this day three weeks, to which the subsequent death of Mr. B. has given a particular interest. We have no believe, certainly, in omens, and now allude to that incident only as having been nearly the last act of Mr. Burrill's public life, and as having been the occasion of his expressing a sentiment which is worthy of being recorded, even on his tomb.

Dictionary of American Biography
Burrill, James (Apr. 25, 1772-Dec. 25, 1820)

Lawyer, Rhode Island politician, and senator, was born in Providence, the son of James and Elizabeth (Rawson) Burrill. He prepared for college in the school of William Wilkinson, at that time a celebrated classical and mathematical teacher in Providence. After graduating from Rhode Island College (now Brown University) in 1788, he began the study of law in the office of Theodore Foster, a Providence lawyer of extensive practice. When Foster, elected to the Senate in May 1790, relinquished his law practice, Burrill went into the office of David Howell, a prominent Rhode Island politician, where he remained until he was admitted to the bar in September 1791. He then began the practice of law in Providence. In the summer of 1795 he served as secretary of protest against a new apportionment of state taxes that he had been ordered by... the General Assembly, and in August 1797 served on the committee of three that welcomed President John Adams to the town of Providence. In the following month (Oct. 8, 1797) he married Sally Arnold. Although little more than a youth, Burrill now became attorney-general of Rhode Island, which post he held from October 1797 to May 1813. During the next seven years he served as trustee of Brown University. In politics he was a Federalist. On June 7, 1813, he was elected to the General Assembly, and in May 1814, was chosen speaker of the House, which office he held until he resigned from the House in October 1816. At the May session of the latter year he was elected chief justice of the supreme judicial court of Rhode Island. A contemporary, writing in after years, speaks of Burrill at this time as the acknowledged head of the Rhode Island bar (Henry L. Bowen, Memoir of Tristam Burges, 1835, p. 38). On June 21, 1816, the General Assembly, in grand committee, unanimously elected Burrill to the Senate. He declined to serve, on the ground that there was some doubt as to the constitutionality of his election (Rhode Island Acts and Resolves, Feb. Sess., 1817, p. 5). The General Assembly, however, unanimously confirmed his election Feb. 19, 1817, and Burrill represented his state in the Senate from December 1817 until his death, during which time he came to be recognized as one of the leading orators in that body. The Annals of Congress and the Senate Journal testify to his activity. He served on the committees on commerce and manufactures and on the judiciary. His first important effort was on Nov. 26, 1818, when he unsuccessfully attempted to obtain an increase in the salaries of the chief justice and the associate justices of the Supreme Court of the United States (Annals of Congress, 15 Cong., 2 Sess., col. 27). The most important questions before the Senate were those of the admission of Maine and Missouri to the Union. Although a member of the committee that reported the resolution, Burrill vigorously opposed the bill in two important speeches. In the first, Jan. 13, 1820, he opposed binding the two questions together and urged that each be considered separately on its merits (Ibid., 16 Cong., 1 Sess., col. 94-97). The second speech, delivered Dec. 7, 1820, was an attempt to prevent the passage of the resolution. He urged that Section 26, Article 3, of the Missouri constitution, which made it the duty of the Missouri legislature to prevent free negroes and mulattoes from settling in Missouri, was "... entirely repugnant to the Constitution of the United States ..." on the ground that it distinguished between classes of citizens (Ibid., 16 Cong., 2 Sess., col. 45-50). The resolution passed the Senate Dec. 12, 1820. Burrill died in Washington and was given a memorable funeral in the Senate chamber (Daily National Intelligencer, Washington, D.C., Dec. 27, 1820).

W.C. Burroughs Dead; Lived Here 70 Years

Was a Pioneer Builder and Carpenter of City and Served in Civil War
Willaim Catesby Burroughs, a resident of this city for more than seventy years and a veteran of the civil war, died at his home, 217 Linsworth place southwest, last night. Mr. Burroughs had been suffering at intervals during the last year from brief attacks of illness, but his condition had not been considered serious until last Sunday a week ago, when he was compelled to go to bed. His death is said to have been the result of kidney and stomach trouble.

Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial will be private, in Congressional cemetery. Mr. Burroughs leaves a wife, Mrs. Annie Carroll Burroughs, and one daughter, Mrs. John M. Davis.

Mr. Burroughs, who was a a pioneer carpenter, builder and cabinet maker of this city, was born in St. Marys county, Md. nearly seventy-five years ago. When less than four years of age he was brought to this city, where he had lived ever since. While a boy he attended the First District School, at 14th and G streets northwest, being taught by J.L. Henshaw. Later he learned carpentry and building and at a still later time learned cabinet-making.

Did Work for Government
For a time he was employed as foreman by John Fitzhugh, who was doing contract work for the government. Under the direction of Mr. Burroughs the file cases in the patent office were made. He also made many cases and boxes for the Department of Agriculture. A large number of the most fashionable houses throughout the city show specimens of his handicraft, as he made mantels and other furniture for many of the most prominent people of this city. The house in which Mr. Burroughs died and had lived for more than forty years was built by him.
Mr. Burroughs was a lieutenant in the 16th Infantry, Virginia Volunteers, during a part of the civil war. He also served in Company E, Washington Light Infantry, otherwise known as the Zouaves, for several months during the war.

Mr. Burroughs' family were prominent in the organization of Grace Episcopal Church, more than fifty years ago. Two well known writers, Mrs. E.D.E.N. Southworth and Mrs. John W. Baden (Pinky Henshaw), were cousins of Mr. Burroughs.

Retired on Pension After Defying Death
Policeman Thought to be Fatally Ill
Now Planning a Fishing Trip
Frank Burrows a policeman whose service on the local force began in 1869, appeared before the retiring board yesterday, the members of which recommend to the Commissioners that the veteran be retired with the maximum allowance of $50 a month.

Policeman Burrows' appearance at police headquarters yesterday followed a most remarkable convalescence from what appeared to be a fatal illness. Only a few weeks ago members of his family were told to prepare for the worst, as it seemed only a question of a few hours at the most when all would be over.

Not Disposed to Die
The patient took an entirely different view of affairs. About the time it was thought his life would end he surprised his wife and children by getting out of bed and walking across the room. He told them he wanted to get his fishing rods together to have ready by the time he was in condition to go away for a vacation.

Members of the retiring board were Inspector Gessford, Capt. Teck and Capt. Byrnes, who for many as had performed duty side by side with the veteran policeman.

The members of the board were sorry they could not recommend more than $50 a month, the maximum amount provided by law.

Helped Defend Capital
Frank Burrows, who served as one of the Capital's defenders in the three-month service, became a member of the police force May 6, 1869. During the forty-three years he has been connected with the police force he has performed most of his duty in Georgetown. He had been a precinct detective a number of years. Later he was given a detail at the Emergency Hospital.

Many prizes were won by him for superiority in skating contests. He was once regarded as the best skater in the District. He was also an enthusiastic fisherman and is given credit for knowing more places where fishing is good than any other angler in the District.

"When I was able to get out after my last sickness," said the policeman today, "I knew I would never go on duty again. As soon as I feel a little stronger I am going to Red Rock or some other place up the river and catch a few bass."

Miss Bursley Buried
Funeral Ceremonies This Morning--Capt. Blake Exonerated
Funeral services over the remains of Miss Ruth Bursey were held at Congressional cemetery at 11 o'clock this morning, the Rev. A.J. Graham of St. Mark's Episcopal Church officiating. The body was carried from Zurhorst's undertaking establishment to the grave, attended only by the family and immediate friends, and the last rites of the Episcopal Church were administered at the place of interment.

Miss Bursley's family have made a statement in which they exonerate Capt. Blake and the officers of the steamer Macalester from all blame in connection with the unfortunate occurrence resulting in Miss Bursley's death. In view of this fact, the committee of post office clerks which had been appointed to investigate the circumstances of her drowning will take no action in that direction. It is probable, however that a petition will be presented to the supervising inspector general of steamboats asking that an inspection be made to ascertain if all the Potomac excursion boats are properly equipped with life-saving apparatus.

The National Intelligencer, Saturday, February 17, 1821

We have the pain of announcing the death of another Member of Congress. The Hon. William A. Burwell, a Member of the House of Representatives from the state of Virginia, breathed his last about two o'clock yesterday, after an illness of two or three weeks.

Though not much older than forty years, Mr. Burwell had been a member of the House of Representatives for fifteen successive years, and was nearly the oldest member of the House. He was a man of sterling integrity, which passed untouched, even by the breath of slander, the ordeal of this life. As a politician, he was virtuous, and he was consistent: As a friend he was beloved and admired. To his late wife, by whose side is about to be laid, he was an exemplary consort, and to his only son a most affectionate father. He retained his senses to the end, and almost his last words were, that he had no reason to fear the approach of death.

From the Senate

A message having been received from the House of Representatives, announcing the death of the Hon. Wm. A. Burwell, a member of that House from the state of Virginia --

On motion of Mr. Pleasants, it was Resolved, unanimously, That the members of the Senate will attend the funeral of the Hon. Wm. A. Burwell, late a member of the House of Representatives from the state of Virginia, tomorrow, at 10 o'clock, a.m.; and, as a testimony of respect for the memory of the deceased, will go into mourning, and wear crape for thirty days. On motion of Mr. Barbour, The Senate adjourned to Monday.

From the House

Mr. Nelson, of Virginia rose, and announced to the House that his colleague, Mr. Burwell, had just departed this life. He therefore moved that the bill should be laid on the table. Which motion was unanimously agreed to.

Mr. Nelson then stated, that it was the wish of his late colleague, that his remains should be carried to Baltimore for interment, and that it was proposed to move the corpse from the lodging of the deceased at 10 o'clock tomorrow.

On motion of the Mr. Nelson of Va. the house then unanimously came to the usual resolutions, to wear crape for thirty days in testimony of their respect for the deceased, and to attend the funeral from the Capitol at 10 o'clock tomorrow.

The following gentlemen were appointed to superintend the funeral ceremonies:

Messrs.
Nelson, of Va.
McCoy
Randolph
Tyler
Newton
A. Smyth
Barbour

And the House then adjourned to 10 o'clock tomorrow, at which hour the Funeral will take place from the Representative Chamber.

<td>The National Intelligencer, Friday, June 29, 1838 Died on Wednesday, the 23d day of May, at the residence of William T. Maddox, Esq. in Leonardtown, St. Mary's county, Md., Miss Jane Maria Bury, daughter of James and Margaret Bury, of Washington City. This young lady had but three months previous to her decease left the roof of her parents for the purpose of becoming a teacher in the family of the gentleman at whose house she died. She came among our people a perfect stranger, but the sorrow and regret which her death has caused to all who knew her are the strongest evidence of the favorable impression made on their minds of the excellent qualities of her head and of her heart. Her patience, amiability, and intelligence, eminently qualified her for the duties of the office which she had but lately undertaken, and her unobtrusive manners, combined with these, seemed to command (what her modesty made her alone fear she might not deserve) the respect and kind attention of all. From the commencement of her sickness, such was the violence of her disease, (the pleurisy,) that she immediately entertained a presentiment of approaching dissolution, and in the necessary absence of our worthy minister availed herself of all means that lay in her power to reconcile her Maker, and to prepare her soul for His awful presence, and His hoped-for eternal benediction. Nothing appears to break in upon the stillness of her resignation to the call of Heaven, but the anticipated agony which her departure from them would cause her beloved and affectionate parents. And surely her God, to whom &quot;the piety of a child is sweeter than the incense of Persia offered to the Sun,&quot; will look with forgiveness on this slight resistance (if so it must be named) to His most fearful summons.</td>

The National Intelligencer, Friday, July 13, 1810

Died at 10 o'clock on Saturday morning last, at his own house near the Navy Yard, Mr. William Bushby, aged 64 years. He was long a respectable inhabitant of the town of Alexandria -- and for the last 6 years of this city. Few who have gone the round of life have surpassed him in attention to its milder duties; and a husband he was ever kind and attentive; as father the most indulgent, tender and affectionate; as friend the most sincere -- of manners mild and gentle -- he knew not to deceive; as a Christian his piety was exemplary - - and a perfect reliance on his God, enabled him to sustain, without a murmur, a lingering and most afflictng disease -- and at length to yield his breath -- without regret or sigh -- save only that which arose from witnessing the grief of his mourning family. A friend who knew him well offers this humble tribute to his memory.

Charles Bush, Dean Emeritus of Railroad Engineers, Dies
Piloted Trains on New York - D.C. Run For 45 Years

Union Station was a sadder place this morning. Most of the corps of railroad men had learned that Charlie Bush, dean emeritus of railroad engineers, had died late yesterday afternoon at his home at 922 F street N.E. - just within earshot of the train sounds he'd known for half a century.

Since December 1937, Mr. Bush had been living in retirement -- after driving trains some 3,650,000 miles without a major accident over the "Pennsy's" Washington-New York run.

When he retired he went down to his little farm in his native North Carolina. But after a year he began to miss the sounds of whirling steel on steel, the familiar snort of the electric locomotive's horn and chats with old friends at Union Station.

Mr. Bush would have been 72 next November, though his looks belied his age. He had an alertness that comes from watching the track ahead for 50 years.

Came Here at 19

At 19 he first came to Washington to work for the Pennsylvania Railroad as a brakeman. The following five years were spent in learning the work of a brakeman and a fireman and the regular railroad routine. Then came 45 years in the cabs of the crack trains on the Washington-New York run. For many years Mr. Bush had been at the throttle of the Congressional Limited and was the first man to drive the train from Washington to New York in a flat five hours. This might be considered a snail's pace today when the run is made in 3 hours and 35 minutes, but Mr. Bush could recall the time when eight hours was considered breathtaking.

His final trip before retirement was his most trying run. Bound to bring his train into Union Station on time, he got off from Pennsylvania Station in New York City a minute late. There were five stops and eight minutes to make them in on the scheduled run of 226 miles in 215 minutes.

At Trenton, the minute was made up and Mr. Bush was one ahead of schedule. Three minutes were lost in two Philadelphia stops. He had run into drizzle and darkness, and it was pitch dark when the engine pounded into Wilmington six minutes late. Three minutes were made up and then an order to pick up four passengers at Elkton -- a stop which would mean being shunted to a siding from the main tracks. Out of Elkton with the four passengers aboard and nine minutes gone. Charlie Bush bore down on Baltimore. There he had just 1 minute to bring his train over the 40-mile stretch to Washington. The engine whirred along the rails and the 1,800 passengers on the 16-coach holiday train of November 28, 1937, all unaware, were pulled into Union Station 30 seconds ahead of time.

A Literal-mined Neophyte

Mr. Bush liked to recall his early days as a brakeman. Having had little schooling, he couldn't spell the name of his own position. When he was told to "brake" a car he said he took his boss literally, uncoupled the car and let it roll down hill. At the bottom it ran into a time shed.

"If you call breaking up cars 'braking,' you're good at it." he recorded the boss as saying.

Mr. Bush was a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the Epworth Methodist Church, where he was very active.

Surviving are his widow, Mary: two daughters, Mary Louise and Grace Bush, and two sons, Charles R., jr., and Rudolph M. Bush.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. tomorrow at the Lee funeral home, with burial in Congressional Cemetery.

<td>Yesterday morning Griffin P. Bush, a watchman at the United States Treasury department, committed suicide by shooting himself in the head with a pistol at his residence, No. 2416 G street. Dr Baldwin was called in, but found the case hopeless, and death ensued in a few moments. Coroner Patterson was notified, and after viewing the body deemed an inquest unnecessary, as it was a clear case of self-destruction. No causes other than mental depression and financial difficulties are assigned for the rash act, but that it had long been premeditated was evidenced by a similar though unsuccessful attempt to destroy himself a year ago by shooting himself in the abdomen.</td>

Zouaves Killed

Saturday morning Sergt. Butterwoth, of the New York Zouaves, was shot dead at Alexandria by private O'Neal, a sentry. It appears that Butterworth advanced on the sentinel without giving the countersign, and O'Neal demanded it three times, and Butterworth replied "It's me." when O'Neal fired, killing B. and knowing who he was. It is supposed that Butterworth was testing the fidelity of the sentry. He was a particular friend and the constant companion of O'Neal, who is very much distressed at the fatal occurrence.

There were three other smaller children in the room. Clara, however, it is reasonably supposed, forgot the injunction; for by some means her clothes took fire, and, the carpet leading to the lower story being burnt in several places, the child must have ran in the direction of the yard, and then retraced her steps. The mother, when she returned discovered the girl lying on her face in the upper room--life was extinct. The body was horribly burnt, believed to the heart.--Republic.</td>

William H. Byers Dead; Long Resident of City

Born in Baltimore Seventy-Nine Years Ago But Came to Washington as a Young Man

William H. Byers, seventy-nine years old, veteran brick mason and resident of this city for nearly sixty years, died early this morning at his home, 219 E street northwest, where he had lived for more than a quarter of a century. Mr. Byers had been ill about four years.

Funeral services are to be held at the Fifth Baptist Church, Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Mr. Byers was one of the oldest members of the congregation of this church. Interment is to be at Congressional cemetery.

He was born in 1834 in Baltimore and came to this city as a young man. He was regarded as an "all-around brick-mason" and worked for Gov. Shepherd when the latter was in the contracting business. Mr. Byers had worked on the pension office, Cabin John bridge the Georgetown reservoir, the old building where the Raleigh Hotel now stands and many other Washington edifices.

Mr. Byers was janitor at the Amidon School, 6th and F streets southwest, for thirty-years, retiring about ten years ago.

His wife, Mrs. Mary Emily Byers; a son, Wm. J. Byers; a sister, Mrs. H. Hudson, and a number of grandchildren survive him.

The Evening Star, March 14, 1863
Another Old Citizen Gone
Major Samuel Byington, who has for the past two years been in charge of the Columbian Armory, died at his late residence on Missouri avenue, yesterday afternoon. Major B. at one time filled a responsible position at the Washington Arsenal, and has been for the last thirty-five years a resident of this city, with the exception of a brief space as Superintendent of the Armory at Harper's Ferry, Virginia. He has filled several Corporation offices, as Public School Trustee, member of the Board of Alderman, member of the Council, and with high credit, and enjoyed the confidence and esteem of all who knew him. The decease of Major Byington must be viewed as a public loss.

Byington, Samuel McL.
Byington. On Monday, September 15, 1890 at 10;15 p.m., Samuel McLain, son of the late Samuel and Elizabeth Bury Byington. Funeral from his late residence, 1015 L street northwest, Wednesday the 17th inst. at 1 p.m.

Byington, Telemachus
Byington. About 11 o'clock on Friday night after a severe illness of about 48 hours of scarlet fever, Telemachus, eldest son of Mr. Samuel Byington, master smith at the Washington Arsenal. Although he had just entered his age, he exhibited a desire to possess a knowledge of the general affairs of life far above his years which, added to his amiable disposition, endeared him to all who knew him.
Mrs. Frank Byram, 85, in charge of all music at Eastern High School for 36 years and organist and choir director at Westminster Memorial Presbyterian Church for more than half a century, died yesterday at Emergency Hospital.

Mrs. Byram, the former Carrie V. Law, widow of a City Post Office employe, retired in 1936 after a teaching career of 46 years. In 1914 she had served as director of music for the entire District public school system.

Mrs. Byram, who gave private piano lessons, even after her retirement from teaching at school, taught generations of students at Eastern, not only piano but choral singing and orchestration.

A native of Washington, Mrs. Byram began her career in 1885 as an elementary school teacher. She resigned in 1892 but was reappointed in 1896. After a number of years more as an elementary teacher she was placed in charge of music instruction at Eastern and Western High Schools in 1911. After 1923 she devoted all of her time to work at Eastern because of the school's size.

Mrs. Byram, who was honored by a special reception to Westminster Church in 1949, was a member of the National Guild of Organists, the Washington Association of Music Teachers and the In and Out Club.

Mrs. Byram lived at 6147 Thirty-first place N.W. with a nephew, Edmund Ormsby. Two other nephews, Funeral services will be held at 1 p.m. Wednesday in the Hines funeral home, 2901 Fourteenth street N.W.

Burial will be in Congressional Cemetery.

Byram, Margaret

Byram. On Thursday, March 8, 1894, at 6:30 p.m., Margaret Byram, widow of the late E.J. Byram, aged 56 years.
A precious one from us is gone;
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our hearts
That never can be filled.

Funeral from the residence of her son-in-law, William G. Haller, 1023 30th street northwest, Saturday, March 10, 2 p.m.

George Byron's Death
TheCoroner'sInquest in Progress This Afternoon
The body of George Byron, the young man who died at Providence hospital yesterday from the effects of injuries received in a fight with William Halliday, as published in yesterday's Star, was removed to the morgue yesterday where an autopsy was made. Halliday, as stated heretofore, was also badly injured in the fight, receiving a number of cuts about the head and body. Halliday has not yet been apprehended, although his counsel, Mr. Campbell Carrington, says that he will surrender at the proper time; that he is now in a Baltimore hospital. This afternoon the coroner's jury assembled in the sixth precinct station and took testimony concerning the fight Tuesday night, Halliday's father was present with his counsel, Mr. Carrington.

George Byron's Death
A Coroner's Jury Holds Wm. Halliday Responsible For It
After The Star's report closed Saturday afternoon in the inquest held at the sixth precinct station over the remains of George Byron, who died from the effects of injuries inflicted with a knife by his companion, William Halliday, near 12th and E streets southwest Tuesday night, several witnesses were called, but none of them saw the cutting take palce. All the witnesses who saw Halliday and the deceased said that both were intoxicated. George Henning heard the deceased say "My name is Byron and I'm a good man." John Tucker heard the scuffle, and heard one say "My name is Byron and I'm a-- good man." He also heard the same voice say "Let me go." James E. Hall testified that he was aroused by hearing cries of "murder." John Mooney gave testimony to show that when he last saw Halliday and Byron they were friendly and had not quarreled. George Berg testified that he heard the scuffling on 12th street Tuesday night. He could not identify either of the parties. He heard one of the parties say: "You ----, I'll kill you." One of the men started down the street, and the other, who seemed badly hurt, called to him, "Wait for me, George; I want to speak to you." The reply was "No, you ---- ; I gave you what you deserved, and I want nothing more to do with you." Other witnesses gave corroborative testimony. Dr. Cole, resident physician at Providence hospital, testified that about 11 o'clock Tuesday night Byron was brought to the hospital. He was drunk and boisterous. There was an incised wound of the arm, which was bleeding profusely, Witness sewed up the wound and made the patient as comfortable as possible. The next day he complained of a pain in his stomach. Upon examination witness found a stab wound of the stomach. Drs. Bayne, Mallon and Cook were called to see the patient, and after consultation, Dr. Bayne dressed the wound. Thursday night there were symptoms of peritonitis and Friday morning he died. Dr. Bayne gave corroborative testimony. Dr. Hartigan testified that the wound of the stomach caused death. The jury found that Byron died from a punctured wound of the stomach inflicted by a knife held in the hand of Wm. Halliday.
