Dr. G.C. Ober Dead; Prominent Mason

District Grand Lodge and Grand Commandery to Officiate at Funeral

Dr. George C. Ober, for many years a prominent physician of Capitol Hill and a past grand master of Masons of the District of Columbia, died at Providence Hospital this morning at 6 o'clock, following an attack of erysipelas early in January. The funeral will be held at the residence, 135 B street southeast, at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The Grand Lodge of Masons and the Grand Commandery of Knights Templar will officiate. Interment will be in Congressional cemetery.

Dr. Ober was born in Washington, April 17, 1860, and was educated by private tutors, graduating from the Emerson Institute in 1878. The following year he began the study of medicine at the medical college of Georgetown University, and was graduated with the highest honors of his class in 1882. He served a year as resident physician at the Children's Hospital. In 1883, after which he began the private practice of his profession.

Professional Positions

From 1891 to 1903 he was professor of materia medica and therapeutics in the medical department of the National University and upon the passage of the medical practice act by Congress in 1896, he was appointed by the District Commissioners a member of the board of medical examiners, serving as secretary to the board for nine years and afterward as its president. He is an ex-president of the board of medical supervisors for the District, having served for four years or more as its secretary. He also served as secretary and as first vice president of the Medical Association of the District, as chairman of the judicial council of the American Therapeutical Society and was for many years a member and also president of the board of counselors of the Medical Association of the District.

Masonic Honors

He has been grand master of the Grand Lodge, F.A.A.M., grand high priest of the grand chapter of Royal Arch Masons and grand commander of the Grand Commandery of Knights Templar of the District, holding the last two offices at the same time during 1910.

He was made a Master Mason in Naval Lodge, No. 4, of this city, in 1889; a Royal Arch Mason in Washington Naval Chapter, No. 7, in 1890, and was knighted in Washington Commandery, Knights Templar, in September, 1891; affiliating, as a charter member, with Orient Commandery, No. 5, and being its first captain general, in October, 1895. He was master of his lodge in 1899, high priest of his chapter in 1894, and commander of Orient Commandery in 1898. He was also a past president of the Convention of Anointed High Priests, a member of Adoniram Council, Royal and Select Masters, and of the Masonic Veteran Association, as well as of Almas Temple, Ancient Arabic Order of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine.

He is survived by a son, Lieut. George C. Ober, jr.; a brother, John R. Ober, and three sisters, Misses Eleanor R., Clara V., and Frances A. Ober.

History of the Naval Lodge, No. 4, F.A.A.M.

George Clarke Ober, Worshipful Master in 1899, was born in Washington, D.C., April 17, 1860; educated by private tutors and graduated with honors from the Emerson Institute in 1878; in 1879 began the study of medicine at the Medical College of the Georgetown University, from which he graduated in 1882, winning the highest honors of his class, together with a handsome prize offered by the faculty; after a years' service as a resident physician of the Children's Hospital, he engaged in private practice, in which he has won an enviable reputation. In 1891 he was elected Professor of Materia Medica and Therapeutics in the Medical and Dental Departments of the National University, which chair he still occupies. Upon the organization of the Board of Medical Examiners of the District of Columbia, in 1896, he was appointed Secretary, and has served continuously as such ever since. He has also served as secretary and first vice-president of the Medical Association of the District of Columbia, and as chairman of the Judicial Council of the American Therapeutical Society. He was made a Master Mason in Naval Lodge, No. 4, April 18, 1889; exalted in Washington Naval R.A. Chapter, No. 6, May 29, 1890; knighted in Washington Commandery, No. 1, K.T., Sept. 23, 1891, and became a charter member of Orient Commandery, No. 5, K.T., Oct. 19, 1895; was High Priest of his Chapter in 1894, and Commander of his Commandery in 1898. He has been an officer of the Grand Lodge since 1899, and now holds the chair of Senior Grand Deacon. In the Grand Chapter of R.A. Masons he served from 1896 to 1903, in which latter year he held the rank of Grand High Priest. In the Grand Commandery of Knights Templar he has served as an officer since 1903, and now holds the office of E.G. Sword Bearer. He is also a member of Almas Temple, Order of the Mystic Shrine. W. Brother Ober was married March 31, 1891, but had the misfortune to lose his wife within a few years. He has one son, a promising lad of thirteen.

*Harper, Kenton N., History of the Grand Lodge, 1911
p. 403-404: Grand Master, 1910*

Brother Ober, son of the late John and Frances Ober, is a native of the jurisdiction over which he has presided. Born in Washington, April 17, 1860, he was educated by private tutors and graduated at the Emerson Institute in 1878. The following year he entered upon the study of medicine at the Medical College of the Georgetown University, from which he graduated with the highest honors of his class in 1882. After serving a year as resident physician of the Children's Hospital, in 1883 he engaged in private practice, in which he was won distinction and success. From 1891 to 1903 he was Professor of Materia Medica and Therapeutics in the Medical Department of the National University. Upon the passage of the Medical Practice Act in 1896 and the organization of the several Boards authorized thereby, he was appointed by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia a member of the Board of Medical Examiners, elected Secretary thereof, and served in that capacity for nine years, when he was elected to the office of President, which he still holds. He is an ex-President of the Board of Medical Supervisors of the District, and for the last four years its Secretary. He has also served as Secretary and as First Vice-President of the Medical Association of the District of Columbia; as Chairman of the Judicial Council of the American Therapeutical Society, and is an ex-President and for many years a member of Board of Counselors of the Medical Association of the District.

Bro. Ober is a ready, easy, and forceful speaker, a man of dignified yet pleasing personality and polished manner, and possessing, as he does in an unusual degree, a judicial mind and sound judgment, has won an enviable reputation as an able executive and presiding officer.

These qualities have brought to him the rather unique distinction of having filed, in addition to the office of Grand Master, the positions of Grand High Priest of Royal Arch Masons and Grand Commander of the Grand Commandary, K.T., of the District of Columbia, being the incumbent of the latter office at the date of this publication. It is also sufficiently unprecedented to be worthy of note that from May until December 1910 he ably filled both the chairs of Grand Master and Grand Commander.

M.W. Bro. Ober was made a Master Mason in Naval Lodge, No. 4, April 18, 1899; exalted to the sublime degree of Royal Arch Mason in Washington Naval Chapter No. 6, May 29, 1890; knighted in Washington Commandary, No. 1, September 23, 1891, and became a charter member and the first Captain-General of Orient Commandary, No. 5, October 19, 1895. He was Master of his lodge in 1899, High Priest of his chapter in 1894, and Commander of his commandary in 1898, and his term of service as presiding officer of each body was notable for its prosperity.

In the Grand Lodge he served a full term in every chair from Junior Grand Steward to Grand Master. He was elected Grand Commander in May 1916, after serving successively in the various subordinate offices.

In the Grand Chapter, R.A.M. he filled every station from Grand Master of the Second Vail, with the exception of Grand Captain of the Host, and was Grand High Priest in 1904.

He is Past President of the Convention of High Priests and a member of Adoriam Council, No. 2, R. and S.M., of the Masonic Veteran Association, and of Almas Temple, Mystic Shrine.

The Evening Star, June 13, 1872

Mr. H.N. Ober, a well-known citizen of East Washington is very ill at his residence of smallpox.

The Evening Star, June 14, 1872

Mr. H.N. Ober, whose illness of small-pox has been noticed in the STAR, died about noon today at his residence on E street, between 8th and 9th, southeast. Mr. Ober is an old resident of East Washington, having been born on the navy-yard, and for many years was a foreman in the blacksmith shop of the yard, but for several years past has been a draughtsman in the ordnance department. He was well and favorably known, possessing many qualities which endeared him to all who knew him.

The Evening Star, June 15, 1872

Funeral of H.N. Ober

The funeral of the late H.N. Ober, whose death from smallpox was noticed in the STAR of yesterday, took place this morning, and the remains, enclosed in a metallic sealed coffin, were interred at the Congressional cemetery. Rev. Mr. Hyson, of the 12th street M.E. Church, officiated at the grave. Thirty or forty of his relatives and friends, including a committee of Harmony Lodge of Odd Fellows, were present.

The Evening Star, June 19, 1872

Spreading the Small Pox

Complaints of the carelessness of the sanitary officer having charge of the small pox ambulance are made daily. It is stated by citizens living in the neighborhood of Mr. Ober's residence, East Washington, that the sanitary officer in charge, on entering the room where the corpse was lying, raised the window and tossed the bed clothing out upon the roof of a back shed without using any disinfectants, thus exposing the neighborhood to the contagion, and after the coffin containing the body had been placed in the ambulance, the driver, instead of taking an unfrequented street, drove up through Garrison Street and through the crowd of children just dismissed from the Wallach school building. It is also reported that a man named Becket employed in laying out the dead in the small pox hospital, yesterday got upon a street car after leaving his hospital duties, thus exposing all within the car to the risk of taking the disease. It is not believed that the board of health will countenance this carelessness on the part of its officers.

A Family Poisoned

Within a week past six persons in the family of Mr. H.N. Ober, of the Sixth Ward, have been taken seriously ill with symptoms peculiar to cases of poisoning. It is supposed that their sickness was occasioned by heating of a ham on which some poisonous substance had been used. Mrs. Burdine, Mrs. Ober's mother, was attached on Sunday last, one of the children on Monday morning, and Mrs. Ober, her sister, the child and the servant girl on Tuesday. They are all in a fair way of recovery, although at one time there was little hope for some of them. The two Drs. Roberts have had charge of the cases. It is understood that the bacon is in the hands of a chemist for analysis.

O'Brien. On Saturday night, the 14th instant in the 73d year of his age, Richard O'Brien, Esq. late Consul General of the United States to the Barbary Powers.

The character and history of this very extraordinary man are too generally known to need any statement here. A mind of native vigor, and the most ardent feeling, was in him still further strengthened by a series of adventures the most interesting and diversified. He was, in succession, an active and experienced seaman, a successful adventurer in the privateering exploits of the Revolution, a brave commander in the regular naval service, a captive slave in Algiers, Consul General to Barbary, member of the Pennsylvania Legislature, a worthy farmer, and lastly, an ardent party politician. His earthly scenes are now closed, and he has experience his last and great change. The merit of his public services has been officially acknowledged by three successive Presidents; and will long be remembered by his country.

His friends are invited to attend his funeral from the house of Mrs. Arguelles, Pennsylvania avenue, corner of 9th street, on Tuesday morning, at 10 o'clock.

O-Com-O-Cost (Yellow Wolf) The Evening Star, April 6, 1863 Death of an Indian Chief	d. 5 Apr 1863	58 yrs.	R66/149

Yellow Wolf, chief of the Kiowa Indians, and who was sent here as one of the delegates to see the President, died on Saturday evening at the Washington House after a short illness, and was buried yesterday afternoon, at the request of the surviving Indians. "as the white brethren were." The Government furnished the coffin, which was a very fine one. About half an hour before the breath left deceased his companions commenced to paint his face, hands and feet with a red paint, and then securing new clothing and new blankets, they arrayed the dying chief in them.

A few moments before expiring Yellow Wolf sent to Major S.G. Colley, the Indian agent for that and other tribes, and taking the agent's hands, said to him: "We have come a great way to see our Great Father, and make peace. I have seen the big father, and am at peace with every one -- with the Great Spirit and with the Great Father -- and I am now going to lay down and sleep with him here."

As soon as the chief expired, his companions took his bow and arrows and broke them in half. They were then made up in a bundle together with his other effects and will be buried with him, as also will his buffalo robes and blankets, and all that he owned at the time of his death. A large silver medal, a present from President Jefferson to Yellow Wolf's ancestors, will be buried with him also. This appears almost ridiculous, as it has been handed down from father to son since the days of President Jefferson, and is a connecting link between the present and the past which should be placed in charge of the Government. But the Indians insist upon its interment with Yellow Wolf, and the agents do not desire to offend them by a refusal.

Yellow Wolf was nearly 59 years of age, and Major Colley, the agent of the tribe, and of the Indians in their section, says he is a serious loss, as he was always disposed to peace, and ruled his people justly but firmly. Another strange fact connected with his death is, that when the delegation was about leaving their western homes, the family of Yellow Wolf implored him not to leave, and were so persistent in their efforts to induce him to remain, as to follow the delegation for miles, and with tears and lamentations vainly endeavored to dissuade him from going.

Local Attorney Dead

Arthur O'Connor, Formerly Assistant Corporation Counsel

Victim of Pneumonia

Mrs. O'Connor Is Absent From The City

Funeral Arrangements Await Her Return--

Her Husband Was Preparing to Join Her

Until the widow is heard from no arrangements will be made for the funeral of Mr. Arthur Hill O'Connor, a prominent local attorney, who succumbed to hydrostetic pneumonia at the Georgetown University Hospital yesterday afternoon after a comparatively short illness. This decision was reached by the members of Lafayette Lodge, No. 19, F.A.A.M., who have taken charge of the remains of the deceased. Up to a late hour this afternoon the officers of the lodge had not received any reply to their message to Mrs. O'Connor, and for this reason it could not be stated at what time the funeral will take place.

Mr. O'Connor had only recently resigned the office of assistant corporation counsel of the District and had intended to go to Detroit for a summer vacation, as soon as he could arrange his private business. He sent Mrs. O'Connor to Detroit nearly two weeks ago, at which time he assured her that he would follow as soon as possible. In order that neither he nor his wife would be troubled with household affairs, the O'Connor apartments at 1336 I street were closed and Mr. O'Connor took temporary lodging at a West Washington hotel.

Subsequently he contracted a severe cold, which was so severe in its effects that a physician was summoned. Upon the advice of the proprietor of the hotel, Mr. O'Connor went to the Georgetown University Hospital last Friday, with a view to procuring the best attention possible, so that he could leave Washington to join his wife at an early date. The physicians at the hospital diagnosed his malady as pneumonia, but his condition was not regarded as threatening. The symptoms, however, did not disappear under treatment, and yesterday morning the physicians became uneasy at his condition, and communicated with his wife. His suffering continued to become more intense until about 2:30 o'clock yesterday, when death came. His wife was then informed of the sad termination.

Body in Charge of Fraternity

The members of Lafayette Lodge, No. 19, F.A.A.M., of which Mr. O'Connor had been a member, immediately took charge of the remains and had them removed to the undertaking establishment of James T. Clements in Georgetown. Early this morning they were again removed to the establishment of Mr. John Lowe of 612 11th street, who is also a member of Lafayette Lodge.

Mr. O'Connor was in the 44th year of his age. He was born in Muscatine, Iowa, the son of Judge Henry O'Connor, who was appointed solicitor for the State Department in 1872, at which time the O'Connor family removed to this city. Mr. O'Connor, the son, after graduating from the Emerson Institute, left this city and took a course in the State University of Iowa. Later he returned to this city and took up the study of law, graduating in 1880. He again left Washington to practice his profession making his residence in Custer county, Mont. He soon returned, however, to practice before the Interior Department, which he continued for two years. Three years ago Mr. O'Connor journeyed to Alaska, as representative of the Pacific Whaling Company. He became associated with the municipal government in January 1901, and figured prominently in District affairs until his resignation of the office of assistant corporation counsel.

The news of the death of Mr. O'Connor was a shock to the members of the bar. Mr. O'Connor was highly regarded by his brother attorneys, all of whom have only words of praise to say of him, both as a man and a lawyer.

It is understood the Bar Association of the District will at an early date take action in respect to the memory of Mr. O'Connor.

Arthur O'Connor's Funeral

Services to Be Held at First Congregational Church

Arrangements have been completed for the funeral of the late Arthur Hill O'Connor, formerly assistant corporation counsel for the District, whose death occurred late Tuesday afternoon. The services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at the First Congregational Church, and will be conducted by Rev. A.E. Wurst, assistant pastor of the church.

The interment will take place in Congressional cemetery. The services at the grave will be conducted by Federal Lodge, No. 1, F.A.A.M., of which Mr. O'Connor was a member.

The funeral arrangements are in charge of the members of Federal Lodge.

The president of the District Bar Association will appoint a committee of attorneys affiliated with the association to attend the services at the church and at the grave, and the members of the Masonic lodge will be present in a body.

Mrs. O'Connor, who has been visiting in Detroit for about two weeks past, arrived in Washington this morning.

Last Rites Over Dead

Funeral of Arthur H. O'Connor This Afternoon

Services at the First Congregational Church--

Deceased Buried With Masonic Honors

The funeral of the late Arthur Hill O'Connor, formerly assistant corporation counsel for the District of Columbia, who died at the Georgetown University Hospital of pneumonia last Tuesday evening, was held this afternoon, beginning at 2 o'clock, from the First Congregational Church, corner of 10th and G streets northwest. The service at the church was conducted by Rev. A.E. Wurst, acting pastor, and special music was furnished by the First Congregational choir, consisting of Mrs. Hattie Meads-Smith, soprano; Miss Edna Scott Smith, alto; Mr. Douglas Miller, tenor, and Mr. J. Walter Humphrey, bass. Rev. Mr. Wurst delivered a brief address and read the ritual appointed by the Congregational Church for such occasions.

The services were attended by a large congregation, including representatives of the District Bar Association, and the members of Federal Lodge, No. 1, F.A.A.M., of which Mr. O'Connor was a member. The arrangements for the funeral were in charge of the Masonic lodge mentioned. Those appointed by Mr. Benjamin F. Leighton, president of the Bar Association, to attend the funeral were Messrs. E.H. Thomas, Conrad H. Syme, John Paul Earnest, M.J. Colbert and B.H. Minor. The pallbearers were selected from among the members of Federal Lodge, and were as follows: Messrs. Charles B. Bayly, W.S. Jenks, J.H. Doran, A.G. Hall, C.F. Benjamin and F.H. Blackford.

The casket was covered with floral tributes from friends of the family.

Interment at Congressional Cemetery

Following the services at the church the body was borne to Congressional cemetery, with the members of the Federal Masonic Lodge acting as escort, where the interment was made. The services at the grave were conducted under the auspices of the lodge, and the burial ritual was read by Mr. E.J. Shumate, acting master.

The service at the First Congregational Church was opened by the singing of "Lead, Kindly Light," by the church choir, after which Rev. Mr. Wurst read the burial service, which included several passages of Scripture and short poems appropriate to the occasion. Following the singing of "Abide With Me," by the choir, the clergyman made a brief address, taking his text from a part of the 24th verse of the 15th chapter of First Corinthians: "Then cometh the end."

The preacher spoke of the similarity of life and used several homely illustrations. Man lives, works, loves and passes away, he said, and though apparently that is the end, yet faith and hope tell us that there is something more and that death is just the beginning of a new existence. There is an end to all things, he said, and it is natural to expect the close of life. The clergyman in a few words told of the career of Mr. O'Connor, and the service closed with a prayer.

The service at the church lasted about half an hour, and the body was then borne to the cemetery, where the Masons took charge of the burial.

Sudden Death

Washington Contractor Falls in Stupor and Does Not Recover

Thomas A. O'Donnell, a contractor, who lived at No. 1217 K street northeast, died in the City Hospital in Baltimore about noon yesterday. His death occurred under such circumstances that Coroner Saunders at once started a rigid investigation. The body was sent to the morgue and Dr. N.G. Keirle, the city post-mortem physician, was directed to hold an autopsy this afternoon. Should the doctor deem it necessary the contents of the stomach will be sent to a chemist for analysis.

O'Donnell spent Saturday evening at the Olympia Theater, No. 3 North Gay street. It is stated that he took a number of drinks. About midnight he fell to the floor, and a policeman was called. This policeman, it is stated, declined to care for him, thinking he was helplessly intoxicated and that he might remain on the floor until he got sober. At 2:40 o'clock in the morning, when there had been no change in the man's condition, Sergeant Weaver was summoned. Seeing that O'Donnell was unconscious, he sent for Dr. Thomas Sudler of No. 700 East Baltimore street, who made an effort to restore consciousness. A few minutes later the dying man, whose life, it is believed, might have been saved by prompt action, was on his way to the hospital.

Berney Louis, proprietor of the theater, turned over to the police $108.63 that had dropped from O'Donnell's pocket. Business cards found upon the dead man revealed his identity. In his pocket the police found a red paper box labeled Morphine Poison, on which was the advertisement of Powers & Weightman, druggists, Philadelphia. While there was nothing in it, the police believe that it had contained morphine.

From statements made to the Baltimore police it is said O'Donnell reached the theater about 6 o'clock Saturday and remained there until he fell in a stupor. He stated in a conversation with the proprietor of the theater that he had come over there from this city to meet a bricklayer on business. The cause of death may be determined at the inquest, which will be held tonight at the central police station.

Yesterday afternoon information of the affair reached police headquarters from Marshal Hamilton, and Detective Barbee was sent to the house on K street to break the news to Mrs. O'Donnell. Upon his arrival at the house he met Mrs. O'Donnell, who had just returned from a drive with her five children. The shock was a severe one to the widow and she was completely overcome with grief.

Mr. O'Donnell was about fifty years old and was well known in business circles. He had built several public school buildings in this city, and had several big contracts on his hands when he left here two days ago. Relatives went over to Baltimore last night and will probably attend the inquest there tonight. It is likely that the body will reach here tomorrow morning.

Brought Home for Burial

Contractor O'Donnell's Remains at Rest in Congressional Cemetery

The body of Thomas A. O'Donnell, the contractor who died in Baltimore Sunday, as published in yesterday's Star, was brought here last night by Undertaker J.H. Bradley, a brother-in-law of the deceased. After being prepared for burial the body was removed to the family home, No. 1217 K street northwest. His funeral took place this afternoon, the body being interred at Congressional cemetery.

Dr. N.G. Keirle, who performed the autopsy, reported that no trace of morphine poisoning was found in the remains. The inquest which was to have been held in Baltimore last night was postponed until tonight. It is stated that the Baltimore police board may investigate the conduct of the policeman who failed to care for the dying man when called to the Olympia Theater. A man who was called Bob was with O'Donnell in the variety theater Saturday night, and the police will endeavor to have him attend the inquest tonight.

 Firends, husband, children, He loveth them all,
 We can trust for the rest.

Faithful toiler, thy work all done,
 Spotless soul into glory guns,
 Beautiful life, with its crown now won,
 God giveth thee rest.

Rest from all sorrows and watching and fears,
 Rest from all possible sighing and tears,
 Rest though God's endless wonderful years,
 At home with the blest.

Beautiful spirit, free from all stain,
 Ours the heartache, the sorrow and pain
 This is thy glory and infinite gain.
 Thy slumber is sweet.

Peace on thy brow and the eyelids so calm,
 Peace in the heart 'neath the white folded palm,
 Peace drooping down like a wondrous balm,
 From the head to the feet.

The Evening Star, June 3, 1859Horrible Accident--One Man Killed, Another Seriously Injured

Yesterday afternoon, at 6 o'clock, as the mechanics at work on Willards' Hotel building were about leaving for the day, two of them, Geo. O. Streeks and Wm. R.M. Offutt, in attempting to lower their kettles from the swinging scaffold on which they had been at work, accidentally caused the scaffold (a ladder) to turn inwards, precipitating them both to the ground. Streeks fell, with his head foremost, a distance of about 27 feet, to the ground, and was so badly injured as to preclude all hope of his recovery; he died about 1 o'clock last night, remaining insensible from the time of the accident. Offutt fell on Streeks, and had his jaw-bone slightly fractured, and his breast-bone, with one of his ribs and legs broken. He slept very well last night and this morning conversed quite freely; last night he expressed great anxiety for his fellow workman, and told them not to mind him, but to attend to Streeks for he thought he would die.

The manner in which the accident occurred, as well as we can ascertain the facts, is this: Streeks, at the time referred to, went and stood upon the inner edge of the ladder, took a rope and tied his kettles to it for the purpose of letting them down on the ground. Offutt standing by and holding on to the rope. Streeks at that time was in a stooping position. On lowering the kettles, he raised himself, and, in doing so, his back struck against the wall, which, pushing the ladder out, caused him to lose his balance. Offutt then, in an attempt to save him, let go the rope that he had hold of; but his efforts were unavailing and he fell with Streeks.

Each of them is a married man. Streeks leaves a wife and two children. Offutt has no children. They were both painters, and worthy men, and in the employ of Parker & Spaulding, who were soon on the spot and rendered every assistance. They have taken charge of Streeks' body. The proprietors of the hotel were unremitting in their efforts to relieve these poor sufferers.

The Evening Star, June 16, 1859W.R.M. Offutt

This young man, a victim of the unfortunate accident at Willards' Hotel, by which his fellow-workman, George O. Streeks was hurried into eternity, died this morning at the Infirmary, about 11 1/2 o'clock. A few moments before his death we visited the Infirmary. The scene in the chamber was truly sorrowful; near his bedside in silent grief sat his wife, his sister and his mother-in-law; near the door stood his two brothers, awaiting the solemn announcement that all was over; not far distant were his employers, Messrs. Parker and Spaulding, who have been unremitting in their attention to him. In the passage were many of his friends and his brethren of the Order of Odd Fellows. The corpse will be taken in charge by Washington Lodge, I.O.O.F., and the funeral attended tomorrow afternoon. The deceased was quite a young man, an excellent mechanic, and highly esteemed by his numerous acquaintances.

The Evening Star, June 18, 1859Funeral of Mr. Offutt

The funeral of Mr. W.R.M. Offutt took place yesterday afternoon, and notwithstanding the heavy rain, was largely attended by friends of the family and Washington Lodge, No. 6, I.O.O.F., (in hacks). Rev. A. G. Caruthers delivered an impressive funeral discourse at the late residence of the deceased, and the body was conveyed to the burial ground near Congressional Cemetery, where the ritual of the Odd Fellows was read by Chaplain J.T. Clements, and the remains placed in the vault.

The deceased was a member of Franklin Lodge, I.O.O.F. of Baltimore, and since the accident which cost him his life has received the unremitting attentions of the officers and members of the Washington Lodge of this city, thus showing that at home or abroad the members of this "mystic order" receive brotherly care in the hour of distress and death.

Sudden Death of Mr. Wm. Ogilvie, From an Overdose of Morphia

This morning, about 5 o'clock, Mr. Wm. Ogilvie, the well known photographer, died at his residence, No. 27 A street southeast, from the effects of an overdose of morphia. Mr. O. has of late complained of restlessness, and a few days ago he told Dr. McCoy that he thought he would take morphia to quiet his nerves. Dr. McCoy advised him not to take it, that it was dangerous; and it is believed he followed the doctor's advice at that time. Last evening he appeared more restless than usual, and told his wife that he intended to take some of the drug; but she had no suspicion that he did so until she was awakened this morning by his labored breathing. This was about 4 1/2 o'clock, and Mrs. O, becoming alarmed sent after Dr. McCoy, who promptly obeyed the call, and found Mr. Ogilvie in a comatose state, and in a few moments he breathed his last. On a small table near the bed was found a vial containing about 23 grains of morphia, over one half -- 25 or more grains-- having been taken. This morning it was ascertained that he had purchased the drug at the neighboring establishment of Jones & Co., last evening, and it is supposed that he took it about 10 o'clock, directly after retiring to bed. The deceased was about 40 years of age, a native of Scotland, and was for some years in the United States coast survey. A few years back he was in the book business -- a member of the firm of French, Langran & Ogilvie -- and lately has been in the photograph business on Pennsylvania avenue, near 9th street. He leaves a widow and two children. He was a man of many excellent qualities, and a favorite among his acquaintances. The police notified the coroner -- Dr. Patterson -- who this morning, on hearing the statements of the widow and Dr. McCoy, decided that there was no necessity for an inquest.

The National Intelligencer, May 18, 1841

We announce with pain the death of the Hon. Charles Ogle, member of Congress from the Bedford District, Pennsylvania. He died at his residence, Somerset, Pennsylvania on the 10th of a consumption which has preyed upon him for many months past. Mr. Ogle we need not add was one of the most fearless, ardent and efficient advocates of the cause of National Reform.

The National Intelligencer, February 16, 1844

The Libel Upon The Dead

The Harrisburg Intelligencer thus notices the circumstances of the conviction and pardon of the libeller of the memory of the Hon. Charles Ogle, deceased:

The Ogle Slander -- Most of our readers ill recollect the infamous story so extensively circulated by the Locofoco press, in reference to the alleged deathbed confession of the Hon. Charles Ogle, of Somerset, in which he was said to have denied that he ever made the speech in reference to Executive extravagance. The friends of Mr. Ogle, commendably jealous of the reputation of their deceased relative, instituted a prosecution for libel against George W. Bowman, Editor of the Bedford Gazette, one of the papers in which the story had appeared, and at the court held in Somerset last week he was tried for the offence and found guilty. A day or two after, however, the sheriff of Somerset county received a document from the Governor, remitting the fine imposed upon Bowman by the Court in the above case, equivalent to a pardon. In other words, a proclamation to all unprincipled Locofoco editors to go on in their career of slandering the living and the dead, without fear as to the consequences.

On the subject of this conviction we have received a letter from a correspondent, who thinks that the circumstances of Mr. Ogle's speech, and the motive for slandering his memory in regard to it, not being as generally known elsewhere as they are here, ought to be brought more prominently to view in our columns than they have been on this occasion. Elsewhere than here it may, perhaps, be necessary; but there is no reader of ours who does not well remember Mr. Ogle's speech, its effect, the recent abortive attempt to discredit it, and the more recent conviction of one of the authors of that most disreputable party trick. The whole subject is, therefore, already before our readers.

Death of Rev. M.S. Olds, Rector of Christ Church, Navy Yard

We regret to announce that the Rev. Dr. Olds, Rector of Christ Church, died at 1 o'clock this morning after a lingering illness. Dr. Olds was in perfect health, apparently, until six months ago, when a cancer appeared on his right cheek, which developed itself so quickly as to cause the most serious apprehensions to his family and friends. He consulted eminent physicians of this city and Baltimore also, whose skill was of no avail, and, as a last resort, he went to the springs at St. Albans, Vermont, the waters of which are said to be a special curative of cancer. He remained there some time without any perceptible improvement, and came home to die. The members of his congregation have been unceasing in their efforts to alleviate the terrible agonies of pain, which he endured with the most Christian fortitude. For twelve days prior to his death he has been unable to take nourishment of any kind, on account of a cancer which appeared on his tongue two months since, and developed itself as rapidly as the one on his face.

Dr. Olds was forty years of age, and was a son of Judge Olds, of Ohio. Early in life he moved from Ohio to Wisconsin, where he studied and practiced law. He served gallantly as a Lieutenant during the Mexican War, and its close returned to Wisconsin. A few years after he studied for the Ministry, and in 1855 was ordained by Bishop Whipple, with whom he was always a great favorite. He was pastor of a Church in Wisconsin for some years, and afterwards in Trenton, New Jersey, from whence he received a call in 1864 to Christ Church in this city, which he accepted, and has since acted as its Rector until prostrated by sickness. He leaves a wife, who is a daughter of Nathan Sargent, Esq., of this city, and five children. The funeral services will take place tomorrow at 12 m., at Christ Church, when the Holy Communion will also be celebrated.

Funeral of Rev. M.L. Olds, Rector of Christ Church, Navy Yard

The funeral of Rev. M.L. Olds took place today at 12 m. from Christ Church, of which the deceased was pastor. The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Lewis, of St. John's Parish, and there was quite a large concourse of clergy present, among whom we noticed the Rev. Mr. Hodges, of Dorchester, Md., Dr. Pinckney, Dr. Hall, and Rev. J.C. Smith of this city, besides Bishop Wittingham, of this diocese. The pall-bearers were the Rev. Messrs. Harris, Lewis, Hall, Parkman, Holmead, Pinckney and Hodges, while the body was borne by the vestrymen of the church. As the funeral procession entered the church, which was crowded, the many weeping eyes and audible sobs attested the love of the congregation for their deceased pastor. The remains were encased in a metallic coffin, on the lid of which was a silver plate, with the inscription:--"Rev. M.L. Olds, Born June 11st, 1828. Died Sept. 18th, 1868."

The coffin was covered with a beautiful pall of a maroon color, in the centre of which was a large white cross. After the conclusion of the funeral services the Holy Communion was celebrated, and the funeral cortege moved to the Congressional Cemetery, where the remains were temporarily deposited in the receiving vault.

When 'neath the daisies, out of sight
Those hands must folded be.

But, oh! beyond the shadowy lands
Where all is bright and fair,

Death Charged to Paint Gas

Verdict at Inquest Over Body of Bradshaw Oliver

"Gases arising from paint" is given as the cause of death in the case of Bradshaw Oliver, thirty-nine years old, over whose body an inquest was held at Sea Pleasant, Prince George county, Md., last evening. Oliver died suddenly at Seat Pleasant last Wednesday afternoon while assisting two other employes of the Chesapeake Beach Railroad Company to paint the interior of a tank in the tender of one of he engines. The other men, Walter Riggles and Henry Arminger, narrowly escaped death at that time.

It was in evidence at the inquest, held by Magistrate Behrend, that the gas which is alleged to have killed Oliver came from a red paint that was being used, its effect being similar to that of carbon monoxide gas, witnesses stated.

Considerable interest was displayed at the hearing by friends of the deceased and officials of the railroad company, and experts were called to give testimony. Dr. L.W. Glazebrook, deputy coroner in this city, and Prof. J.D. Hird, former chemist in the health department, were among them.

Wednesday afternoon, it was stated, the three men were working in the tank of the tender, having entered through a large manhole in the top. There was a large valve in the bottom of the tank, which was open, and through which, it was thought, a good current of air would make the atmosphere comfortable.

No Thought of Danger

That the work was dangerous, it was stated, never entered the minds of he workmen. They had worked the red paint many times on exterior work without having experienced any trouble. Shortly after the trio went to work Wednesday afternoon one of them complained that he felt sick and said he would get out of the tank. Suddenly the others became sick and started to follow. Riggles and Arminger managed to get out, although it was about as much as they could do to get through the manhole.

Oliver was the last to make the attempt. He was unable to get out, however, and fell backward to the bottom of the tank. His limp and unconscious form was soon lifted from the tank, and efforts to resuscitate him proved futile. Dr. Glazebrook and Prof. Hird were summoned to participate in the investigation.

Result of Autopsy

An autopsy was performed by the former, while the latter made an analysis of a sample of paint furnished him. The paint, Prof. Hird reported, contained about 20 per cent of benzol, a coal tar product, which, it is stated, is dangerous to life. Dr. Glazebrook told the jury hat he found conditions in the body of Oliver similar to those found in victims of monoxide gas poisoning.

The deceased leaves a widow and three children. His funeral took place from his late home, Capitol Heights, this afternoon. Services over the body were conducted in the chapel at Congressional cemetery, the interment being made at 2:30 o'clock.

Commits Suicide In Cell At Jail

David N. Oliver Hangs Himself With Noose Made of Towel and Necktie

Fellow-Prisoner Not Awakened By His Act

Stonecutter Was Awaiting Trial on Charge of Attempting to Asphyxiate His Two Sons

David N. Oliver, a stonecutter, who was awaiting trial in the District Jail for attempting to asphyxiate his two sons committed suicide last night by hanging himself in his cell. He made a noose of a towel and a necktie and his lifeless body was found shortly after 11 o'clock by James S. Walters, a guard.

That Oliver had planned the deed with much forethought is conceded by the guards at the jail. He waited until his cellmate, Neal H. Clark, a former New Yorker, had gone to sleep before he made the attempt, and so noiseless was his actions that none of the other prisoners in adjacent cells heard him. Shortly before 11 o'clock the guard on his tour of inspection saw Oliver in his cell. The guard had occasion to pass the cell again shortly after 11 o'clock and discovered the body dangling from the grating in the lavatory to one side of the cell. He cut it down and summoned a physician, but life was pronounced extinct.

Was Regarded as Paranoiac

At the jail it was stated that Oliver recently had shown signs of restlessness, Coroner Nevitt, who reached the jail shortly after midnight, was told by officials that the prisoner was regarded as a paranoiac, although no more had been made looking to his transfer to the Government Hospital for the Insane. He would soon have been put on trial for assault with intent to kill his children, it was stated and his mental condition could then be passed upon.

Neal H. Stark, who was Oliver's cellmate, is awaiting a trial on a charge of false pretenses. He was arrested on complaint of Stephen J. Coster, treasurer of a Washington theater, and charged with having passed a worthless check. He was arrested in New York and brought here by a United States marshal.

Said Wife Deserted Him

David Oliver was in jail because he had tried to asphyxiate himself and his two boys February 4 at the home of William Lindgren, 215 1st street northwest. He had been out of work, and he claimed his wife had deserted him. Altogether, his attempt was one growing out of complete despondency. The two boys, Howard and Norman, eight and six years old, were unconscious when found early on the morning of February 4, and by their side was the father, also unconscious.

Oliver was placed under arrest by Policeman Saunders of the sixth precinct station, who said that Oliver had admitted trying to kill himself and the boys with gas. He also said that his wife, who was Tillie Weichman of Portsmouth, Ohio, had returned to her parents and had refused to live with him.

The Evening Star, March 16, 1914, p. 8Prison Cell Suicide Subject For InquestCoroner to Summon Jury to Pass on the Death of David N. Oliver

Coroner Nevitt is to conduct an inquest tomorrow morning over the body of David N. Oliver, a stonecutter, who late Saturday night committed suicide in a cell in the District jail, where he was held awaiting a trial for alleged assault to kill his two sons, Howard and Norman, eight and six years old, by turning on the gas in his room at 215 1st street northwest, February 4.

It had been the intention of the coroner to pass the case without holding an inquest, but he later deemed it advisable to have a jury upon the circumstances surrounding the suicide. Only a few weeks ago a Chinaman who was held in jail as a prisoner, committed suicide by hanging.

Oliver's bdy was taken to the city morgue. It will be kept there until after the inquest, it is stated, and will then be buried at the expense of the District unless relatives claim it.

The morning that Oliver and his two boys were found in the room with the gas turned on, it is stated one of the boys was critically ill. Father and children were treated at Emergency Hospital and the children were later transferred to Children's Hospital.

Later they were taken before the grand jury as witnesses. Louis Weichmann, their grandfather, took charge of hem after they had given their testimony and they are now at his home in Portsmouth, Ohio.

On, Lee The Evening Star, February 14, 1912, p. 1 Police Given Clue Suspect Negro Named "Curley" in Murder of Chinaman Seen To Enter Laundry Colored Woman Says He Was Accompanied by Another Struck Heavy Blow On Head Slayer Left Practically No Clue in Little Shop -- Robbery the Motive "Curley," a colored man, supposed to hang about Cheater court, is wanted by the police to account for his whereabouts and actions, and his association with another negro, before and after 10 o'clock last night about the time that a Chinese laundryman, Sam Hing, was struck down and killed while at work in his little laundry shop at 3430 14th street. A negro woman domestic, Mattie Gray, gives the only tangible clue in the mystery to the police, telling of having seen the man she knows as "Curley," accompanied by another negro, known to her by sight, but not by name, enter the laundry at about 10 o'clock. She declares that as she passed the men on the street in the vicinity of the laundry she overheard them talk of "getting him now." Curley, she says, carried a slender package in his hand, about fifteen inches long and wrapped in paper. This he was swinging by one end, she says. According to Mattie Gray, who went to the laundry at 10 o'clock this morning to tell her story, she had been sent out last night by the woman who employs her to deliver a message on 14th street in a house nearly directly opposite the laundry, and was accompanied on the mission by a negro girl employed in the house next to where she herself worked. Domestics Watched Negroes Reaching the corner of 14th street, the two domestics passed the two negro men, and became interested in their movements overheating their threat to "get" somebody. Not knowing who was meant, the women lingered, expecting possibly to see a fight. When their interest was apparent, the men turned down a side street, and the girls went on to their destination. While the women were waiting on the stoop of the house on 14th street, after having rung the bell, the two men reappeared from around the corner, and walked toward the laundry. The women saw the Chinaman within, working over his ironing board, talking to another Chinaman, who went away just as the two negroes entered. The women not able to arouse any person in the 14th street household then went on their way, not suspecting that the Chinaman was the man the negroes were after. Mattie Gray described Curley as dark brown of skin, with curling -- not woolly -- brown hair. His companion, she says, was almost white. Save for descriptions of negroes seen in the vicinity of the laundry at various hours of the evening yesterday, there is no other clue in the possession of the police to point the finger of suspicion in any direction in the search for the murderer of the Chinaman. There are finger prints in blood, but they are apparently those of the oriental, made while on his feet fighting off death. There are two footprints in the snow, probably made by the slayer in making his escape, but they are so indefinite in form that their use as identifying marks seems impracticable. There is nothing else. There is nothing to indicate that the Chinaman made a struggle against his murderers; probably the first blow, crushing his skull, rendered him unconscious. Robbery Believed to Be Motive Robbery is the real or apparent motive of the crime. The cash drawer was rifled; yet its contents must have been meager to attract the cupidity of a desperate character, ready to kill to obtain money. Sam Hing made only from $5 to $6 a week, according to Chinamen who know him and his affairs, yet he may have carried about him a greater sum. A tong man, Sam Hing, was a member of the Chinese Empire Association. There has not been a tong war in Washington for a generation. There is no evidence of any undercurrent of animosity among the vacations. In fact, the political struggle in China appears to have amalgamated nearly all sons of the Flowery Kingdom under the republican banner of Sun Yat Sen.	d. 13 Feb 1912		R99/19®

Sam Hing is a Chinaman who has been long in America, dwelling sometimes in San Francisco, afterward in New York and for many years in Washington, conducting his little shop on 14th street with habits of eternal industry that brought slender profit, and had no known enemy personal or political.

Pounding weakly on a partition wall that divides his quarters into rooms, crying feebly for help with the blood streaming down over his face and into his eyes, he was found by a policeman at about 10:20 o'clock last night. Hurried to the hospital, there the Chinaman died at midnight, without giving any account of the tragedy which had cost him his life.

Many Weapons About

Washroom, bedroom and the storeroom and shop, where customers are received, all have the appearance of a shambles. Over floor and walls and furniture and linen, hung to dry on lines of twine, the red blood is everywhere -- pools of it, on the floor, spattered about everywhere else.

There are many sorts of heavy metal pieces about, any one of which might have been used to inflict the wounds found on his skull. There are flat irons, a heavy fire poker and iron rod used to stir laundry in the clothes boiler, a hatchet for cutting boxes into kindling wood for the laundry range; none bear the slightest evidence of having been the fatal weapon -- on none is there a blood mark or stain.

Sam Hing, with tired eyes -- he was fifty-seven or more years old, with the age of the unvarying grind of eternal labor, and his eyesight was known to have been of the worst -- was working over his ironing board, with a man's shirt under his smoothing iron, when fate overtook him. The cuff of the shirt half polished, is on the ironing board where he would have been working, and the iron is on the stand where it would have been laid out of his hand for the morning.

Whoever struck him down struck the blow at that very place, where the Chinaman had suspended his work without moving his feet to peer up at the newcomer into the shop. A great pool of blood on the floor in front of the ironing board shows where Sam Hing dropped in his tracks.

An autopsy at the morgue this morning showed that his forehead was fractured by the only blow struck. A blow in the right side fractured three ribs, one of them broken in many places.

From this spot into the middle room, where the Chinaman had his sleeping bunk on a board against the wall, his body was apparently dragged out of the sight of any one on the street. Inert and unconscious, his clothing was searched and the cash drawer opened and its contents taken by the slayer.

Slayer Left by Back Door

Locking the front door, throwing the key under the bench in the front room, the slayer made his way out of the back. There is no knob on the inside of the rear door, nor is there any mark to show that the murderer had soiled his hands, which would have been made evident by the difficulty of fumbling with the stem of the knob to open the door.

The door opens upon an alley about two and a half feet wide littered with many impediments that make it impassable. A high fence is on the other side of the alley. Over this the slayer made his way, leaving no hand mark on the wooden boards which he must have clutched, but making the indistinct marks of his shoes in the heavy crusted snow on the other side as he jumped to the ground.

The Chinaman, recovering semi-consciousness in a few minutes, must have struggled to his feet, half-blinded, weak, aimlessly trying to find a way to the door, calling and pounding on the partitions. Everywhere is the evidence of his floundering about; there is blood on everything in three rooms.

By the vender of fruit next door -- who thought a drunken man was in the place and that it was none of his affair -- and by dwellers in the house to the rear of the laundry shop the cries and poundings were heard. The child in the house in the rear called the attention of their father to the noises and he went forth and notified a policeman.

Policeman W.C. Allen was the man he told. Allen went immediately to the spot. Finding the front way closed, he entered by the rear, climbing over barrels and boxes in the alley till he reached the rear door, which was unlocked.

He found the Chinaman in this rear room, sustaining himself on his feet by holding on to the side of the partition wall and to a box. With body bowed, knees bent and half collapsing over another box, the dying

Chinaman was still making ineffectual efforts at times to pound on the wooden wall, but his cries had subsided into moans.

Gave No Account of Assault

The Chinaman could give no account of what had happened to him. He sank almost immediately into unconsciousness. Policeman Allen summoned aid and the precinct patrol wagon. The oriental, on a litter, was carried out by the rear, down the alley, put into the patrol wagon and hurried to Garfield Hospital. There he died at about midnight, without recovering consciousness carrying with him his knowledge of how he met his death.

Annie Dade, colored, employed by the Chinaman to wash for him, left the shop at 8:20 o'clock last night. She appeared this morning to resume work at about 8 o'clock. She knew of no one who could have had enmity against the Chinaman.

On the hook, where the laundryman kept the laundry tickets returned by customers when they come for their wash she found several tickets that had not been there at the hour when she left the shop last night. As these tickets may represent wash called for by the slayer of the murdered man the police hope to find in them a possible clue.

Clarence F. Cobb, a resident of the vicinity, told the police that he has long taken a personal interest in the Chinaman, and he offered $100 reward for the capture of the murderer. He says that Sam Hing, in addition to his daily receipts of cash, kept in the cash drawer also carried about his clothing a big roll of bills.

Mr. Cobb recently gave to the Chinaman a money bag, in which he put these bills. What has become of this supposed roll of money is not now known to the police. They suspect that the murderer found it in searching the dying man's clothing.

Sam Hing is supposed to have three cousins living in Washington. A Chinaman gives their names as Lee Chom, Lee Mane and Lee Wan, all dwelling at 342 Pennsylvania avenue.

Says He Is Slayer

Theodore Norris, Colored, Confesses Murder of Lee Ong

Is Faced By Companion

Nathan Johnson Declares He Witnessed Killing of Chinaman

Both Are Held For Crime

Remark of Wife of Man Who Struck Fatal Blow Leads to Solving of Mystery

Theodore Norris, colored, twenty-eight years old, who lives at 2120 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, is alleged to have confessed to the police this afternoon that he killed Lee Ong, a Chinese laundryman, nearly a year ago. The confession of Norris followed a statement made to the police by Nathan Johnson, also colored, that he witnessed the killing of the Chinaman, and that the murder was committed by Norris, Johnson, who formerly lived at Sugarland, Md., now lives at 466 Washington street northwest. Norris, his wife, Hattie Norris, and Johnson were all arrested last night.

Lee Ong, the murdered Chinaman, was proprietor of a laundry at 3430 14th street northwest. On the night of February 13, 1912, he was killed in the rear room of his laundry, and the police failed to discover any clues leading to the detection of the murderer.

Johnson Tells All

Detective Stringfellow of the third precinct arrested Johnson yesterday, and after being questioned by the police Johnson, it is said, finally admitted that he knew the man who killed Lee Ong. A few minutes later he told the police the slayer's name, and Norris was arrested shortly afterward.

Norris vigorously denied any knowledge of the crime, but on repeated questioning finally broke down and told the police, so they say, that he was the Chinaman's murderer.

Detective Stringfellow obtained information leading to the detection of the alleged slayer when he arrested a young colored man three days ago. The prisoner, it is stated, in order to get in the good graces of the detective, told a story of a remark he said he heard Hattie Norris make to her husband. Norris and his wife were quarreling, he stated, and he said he heard the woman say to Norris: "If you strike me again I'll tell what you and Nathan Johnson did to the Chinaman."

Feeling satisfied the information thus obtained would lead to something of interest in the case of Lee Ong's murder. Detective Stringfellow set about to accomplish the arrest of Norris and Johnson.

Bolts Through Window

Norris, it is said, had an idea the police wanted him in connection with the theft of a bicycle, and he bolted through a back window in an effort to get away. Outside the house he was caught, however, and although the police had discussed the murder of the Chinaman with him several times he steadfastly maintained his innocence until he faced Johnson this afternoon.

Mrs. Norris was not inclined to discuss her domestic troubles or to say anything about the killing of the Chinaman further than to declare she knew nothing of it.

Not only did Johnson tell of the details of the murder, but he told of Norris having dropped a sweater in the laundry.

Soon Loses His Nerve

When the prisoners were brought face to face a police headquarters this afternoon. Norris soon lost his nerve and said he would "come across." He told substantially the same story as that told by Johnson, with the exception that he said Johnson dealt the Chinaman several blows.

Johnson declared that he had not the slightest idea where Norris was going to take him the night of the murder until they actually reached the laundry. They walked all the way from Washington street to Lee Ong's place of business, he stated, and he told of how they had looked through the window as was related by a resident of 14th street at the time the murder and robbery was committed.

Norris, the police say, said Johnson, had the gray sweater in a piece of paper, and when they reached the vicinity of the laundry he said he was going to leave the sweater there to have it washed. Entering the laundry, he said, Norris asked the Chinaman what he would charge to wash the garment, and he replied: "Ten cents."

Hit on Head With Club

Just as the Chinaman reached for the sweater, Johnson said. Norris struck him on the head with a club.

"I don't know where he got the club," he stated. "He may have had it when he came for me, but if he did I didn't see it."

As soon as Lee Ong fell to the floor, declared Johnson. Norris locked the door, dragged him to the rear room and robbed the till. He struck the Chinaman several blows while the latter was on the floor.

Johnson said he finally went to the back room and left the premises by way of the back door. He and Norris climbed the back fence and left that vicinity, going in the direction of 16th street. Norris, he stated, gave him $2.50, but did not say what amount of money he took from the cash drawer.

"I have seen Norris only once since the Chinaman was killed," Johnson told Detectives Cornwell and Stringfellow today, "and we did not discuss the killing."

Norris told the detectives that he got about $5 from the cash drawer. He said he killed the Chinaman with a billiard cue and not with the piece of iron that was found in the laundry and which it was thought was the weapon.

"I got the cue in a billiard room on 26th street," Norris stated, "and after leaving the laundry I took it home and burned it."

Following the confession of Norris and his statement implicating Johnson, the police charged both prisoners with murder, and held Mrs. Norris at the house of detention as a witness.

Serious Assault on a Policeman
His Skull Fractured by Negro Roughs
Yesterday, Charles O'Neil, a police officer of the 8th precinct, hearing a pistol shot at the corner of 11th and A streets southeast, ran to the place and found there three well known negro roughs in a melee. James Minor appeared to be the ring leader, and was brandishing a pistol when the officer attempted to arrest him. Minor made a desperate resistance, but officer appeared to be getting the better of him, when the other negroes went to his assistance, and O'Neill was knocked senseless. The officer soon recovered his senses, and, bloody as he was, took Minor into custody and got him to the station, where he was locked up. Drs. McKim, Johnson and Elliott were summoned to attend the injured officer, and they found that there were several wounds, one of them over the left temple being a fracture of the skull, and very serious, and under their direction the very serious, and under their direction the sufferer was taken to his home on 13th and G streets southeast. The entire force of the eighth precinct, with the detectives, started to get a clue to the unarrested assailants, Mr. O'Neill being unable to give any information and Minor being indisposed to talk.
A Fatal Termination Feared
During the whole afternoon the officers were busy, and after midnight Officers Carter, Prather and Clements succeeded in arresting the others of the party—Louis Bailey, Samuel Johnson and James Smallwood. They assert that the blows were given by Minor.

Orr, Benjamin G.	d. 10 Apr 1822		R28/15

Orr. In this city on Wednesday night, Benjamin Grayson Orr, Esq. aged near sixty years, of a lingering and painful illness, the closing scene of which was fortunate, peaceful, and composed. He was an active and useful citizen, and was lately, for two years, Mayor of the City of Washington (1818-1819). He was humane, kind, and hospitable, and sincerely respected and beloved by the circle of relatives and friends, who knew how to estimate the social virtues which eminently distinguished him.

Abstract from: Allen C. Clark, "Colonel Benjamin G. Orr, Mayor," Vol. 28, Columbia Historical Society, 1923.

Very little is known of Colonel Benjamin Orr's early years. It appears he was born in Virginia and married Elizabeth Flood also of Virginia. In 1797 he was involved in a quarrel in Kentucky that later resulted in a challenge to a duel -- which he ignored. He owned a store on Jefferson Street in Georgetown that sold groceries and liquor, and he became a large investor in realty. From 1813 he was a contractor for army supplies to Ohio and the Territory of Michigan.

Orr was elected Alderman in 1812 but resigned in 1813. He was elected the fourth major in 1817 by the City Council and served 2 terms during the presidency of James Monroe. His residence was at the N.W. corner of 8th Street and Market Space N.W.

During his terms he was very active in procuring public improvements such as grading streets and in promoting laws to better maintain law and order. Orr repealed laws allowing public markets to open on Sunday to the consternation of most housewives. He was, however, instrumental in establishing Washington's first volunteer fire companies. He appropriated $1,000 for the purchase of four fire bells and procured apparatus for the companies. One of his final acts was to authorize a lottery to collect funds to build a city hall and penitentiary.

Benjamin Orr died on Wed. April 10, 1822 at the age of 59. Mrs. Orr died February 16, 1827. Both are interred in the Congressional Cemetery, but their graves are unmarked. They had no children.

Orr. In this City, yesterday, after a long and severe illness, Mrs. Elizabeth Orr, relict of Col. Benjamin G. Orr, formerly Mayor of the City of Washington. She bore, with exemplary firmness and pious resignation, the bodily afflictions, of which, during her life, so large a portion fell to her share. The strength of her mind remained with her until death; and she died in the confidence, in which, she had always lived, of a glorious resurrection to life in a better world. The Friends and acquaintances of the deceased are requested, without further notice, to attend her funeral, from her late dwelling, tomorrow (Sunday) afternoon, at two o'clock.

Will of Elizabeth Orr, of City of Washington (dtd. Oct. 18 1825, probated Feb. 28, 1827, Will Book 3)

Wish to be interred in the burial ground by the side of my dear husband, in as plain a manner as decency will admit, without having an undertaker employed except for the purpose of making a plain coffin; service to be provided by a Baptist minister; expenses out of the money in the hands of friend Barcroft; division between brother William P. Flood and John Barcroft; to [Sarah] Reynold, of City of Washington, $10; to my servant Lucy Digges, $10; to a woman belonging to Peter Hagner, of City of Washington, called Cleona, $10; to Margaret Hopkins, a free colored woman, in City of Washington, $10; to friend Walter Jones, of City of Washington, my husbands writing desk containing his papers, my Wilton carpeting, and hair cloth soft to furnish his office; to A.D. Stewart, son of Ann Stewart, of City of Washington, my gold watch; to my two nieces, Elizabeth Cunie, of Lancaster Co., Va., and Anna Peck, of Richmond Co., Va., my books, to be equally divided; to niece Ellen L. Orr, of City of Washington, my mahogany wardrobe; testator has endeavored by the strictest economy in order to buy the freedom of a slave named Cleona and her two children now owned by Peter Hagner.

 Their only crave is earthly wealth.
 And when the Lord calls for their breath,
 They leave it all and go with death.

Death of Dr. Osmun

Dr. Charles J. Osmun , a physician connected with the health office, died last night at his home, 917 12th street, of diphtheria, contracted in the performance of his duties. The inspection of cases of diphtheria, scarlet fever and other contagious disease had been his work in the health department for more than two years. Last Friday afternoon he became quite ill. He grew rapidly worse, and only yesterday morning were the doctors satisfied that he had diphtheria. He died at 9 o'clock last night. Dr. Osmun was forty-four years old and was unmarried. He lived with his mother and sister. He received his medical education at the College of Physicians and Surgeons in Baltimore, but had resided in Washington quite a number of years, and was well known here.

Died. Yesterday in this city, after an illness of four or five days only, Samuel A. Otis, Esquire, late Secretary of the Senate, aged 73. His long and faithful service in many important public offices, and especially in that of Secretary of the Senate, from the first organization of the General Government, to the last day of the last session of the Senate, (during which time he was never absent a single day from the duties of the Senate while in session) entitle him to the grateful remembrance of his country.

His friends and the citizens of the District are invited to attend his funeral this day at 3 o'clock p.m. from his late residence on the Capitol-hill.

Senate elects a Secretary

by Richard A. Baker

In 1789 and for the next 75 years, the Senate compensated this officer at a greater rate than its individual members. It authorized the officer, in certain instances, to preside over the Senate, to administer oaths, and -- in later years -- to supervise employees of deceased ore resigned senators.

Early in 1789, as plans went forward for establishing the new Congress, a heated contest developed for the job of secretary of the Senate. The obvious candidate was dapper Charles Thomson, secretary of the soon-to-expire Continental Congress during its 15-year existence. But the self-important Thomson had many enemies. A group of his foes devised a scheme -- disguised as an honor -- to get him out of town during the crucial last-minute maneuvering leading to the secretary's election. Congressional leaders asked Thomson to travel to Virginia to notify George Washington of his election and accompany the president-elect back to the capital in New York. With Thomson safely away from the Senate, Vice President-elect John Adams arranged the election of his long-time protege Samuel Otis.

The 48-year-old Otis had been quartermaster of the Continental Army, Speaker of the Massachusetts House, and a member of the previous Congress. Two hundred and nine years ago, on April 8, 1789, the Senate elected Otis as its chief legislative, financial and administrative officer. On April 30, he had the honor of holding the Bible as George Washington took his presidential oath. Throughout that First Session, which lasted until September, Otis tirelessly engaged the many tasks associated with establishing a new institution. The growing importance of his job was reflected in the number of individuals who tried to take it from him -- including Washington's own secretary. From 1789 to 1814, at a time when half the senators failed to serve out their six-year terms, Otis functioned as the Senate's historical memory. When he died, in 1814, after not missing a single day's work in 25 years, senators deeply lamented his passing.

Aged Resident Dead

Samuel Frederick Davis Ourand Passes Away

One of the Oldest Native-Born Citizens of Washington --

Funeral Tomorrow Afternoon

Samuel Frederick Davis Ourand, one of the oldest and best-known residents of the District of Columbia, died yesterday morning shortly after 12 o'clock at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. B.A. Blundon, 2103 1st street northwest. Mr. Ourand was in the 81st year of his age. He gave up active business life several years ago on account of failing health.

The deceased was one of the oldest native-born residents of the capital city, being a son of the late Elijah and Catherine Pickrell Ourand, who, in the early days of Washington, resided on H street northwest between 21st and 22d streets.

Prior to and during the civil war Mr. Ourand was chief of the old corporation police, and afterward, during the administrations of Mayors Richard Wallach and Matthew G. Emery, he filled a clerkship under the city government. In 1852 Mr. Ourand was married to Miss Margaret Miller of Baltimore, who died in 1897. Mr. Ourand was at the time of his death a member of the Oldest Inhabitants' Association of the District of Columbia and of Columbia Lodge, No. 10, I.O.O.F. He was an attendant at St. Paul's English Lutheran Church for more than 55 years, and was one of its most loyal supporters. When the territorial form of government in the District of Columbia was succeeded by the late corporation of Washington, June 1, 1871, Mr. Ourand was in the employ of the District government as a clerk and was continued in his position under the new regime. He served through successive administrations in the auditor's office until February 29, 1904, when, as stated, he was compelled to relinquish the position on account of failing health.

Part of the time of his service he acted as pay clerk to the public schools. Hundreds of teachers will recall his kindness to them at different times, when he would visit those who were ill in order that they should get their pay checks without delay.

Three children survive Mr. Ourand. These are: Mrs. B.A. Blundon, Col. Charles H. Ourand and Mr. Frank L. Ourand.

The funeral services will be held from Mrs. Blundon's resident on 1st street northwest at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Rev. John T. Huddle, pastor of St. Paul's Church, will officiate. The pall-bearers will be his sons, Col. Charles H. Ourand and Mr. Frank L. Ourand; his brother, Mr. John B.S. Ourand; a grandson Charles H. Ourand; a nephew, Guy A. Ourand, and his son-in-law, Mr. B.A. Blundon.

The interment will be in Congressional cemetery.

Found Dead, Gas Jets Open

Police Believe That Fred Owens Committed Suicide

Nothing in His Conduct Last Night When He Went to Bed to

Indicate Intention to End His Life

Frederick Owens, twenty-four years of age, who was employed as driver of a team for the Chapin-Sacks Company, was found dead in bed this morning at his home, 904 B street southwest. His death had been caused by inhaling illuminating gas, two jets in his room having been found open.

His relatives seem to think that his death was the result of an accident. Willard Owens, brother of the deceased, went to the latter's room this morning to see him and was astonished at detecting the odor of gas.

Repeated calls for the brother elicited no response, and it was found necessary to break open the door. The body was still warm, and a call was sent to the Emergency Hospital for a physician, but life had been extinct for about four hours.

Policemen went to the house and made an investigation. They learned that the young man returned home, last night about 12 o'clock, and at that time there was nothing about his conduct to indicate despondency. Other members of the family saw him, but he said nothing to them to indicate that he had any notion of taking his life.

The police concluded that Owens had turned on the gas with suicidal intent, and so informed Acting Coroner Glazebrook. A further investigation will be made by Dr. Glazebrook before a certificate of death is issued. Owens was married about three months ago, and his wife is visiting friends at Old Point Comfort.

A message was sent to the widow this afternoon telling her of her husband's death, and she is expected here tomorrow morning. Arrangements for the funeral will not be completed until Mrs. Owens reaches home. It is probable that the body will be sent to King George county, Va., for interment.

Peaceful be thy silent slumber,
 Peaceful in thy grave so low;
 Thou no more will join our number
 Thou no more our sorrows know.

Yet again we hope to meet thee
 When the day of life is fled
 And in heaven with joy to greet thee
 Where no farewell tears are shed.

An Attempted Suicide

A Treasury Messenger Shoots Himself, but Will Recover

Because of despondency over the death of two close relatives, Frank Owens, employed as a messenger in the Treasury Department, about 6 o'clock last evening made a desperate attempt to take his own life, but was unsuccessful. Since the death of a brother, September 27, young Owens, it seems, has been unable to divert his mind from the sad event, and late yesterday afternoon went to his room at 807 Florida avenue, and placing the muzzle of a .38-caliber revolver to his head fired.

On hearing the report the sisters of the would-be suicide rushed into his room and found their brother lying in a pool of blood. Policemen McDonald and Jett, who were near by, also hurried to the scene, and after the wound had been temporarily dressed an ambulance was summoned and Owens taken to Garfield Hospital. An examination by the surgeons disclosed that the bullet had entered the side of the head near the left temple, inflicting a scalp wound. After reaching the hospital the wounded man declared that he wanted to die, and meant to carry out that determination.

At the hospital this afternoon it was stated that Owens would probably recover rapidly. He rested well last night and the case is devoid of serious aspects.

Mrs. Owens' Sad Death

She Attempts to Fill a Lighted Gasoline

Stove With the Usual Result

The death of Mrs. Mar Owens in Providence Hospital yesterday morning was the result of a sad accident which occurred the night before. Mrs. Owens, who was fifty-four years old and occupied a room on the second floor of house No. 439 10th street southwest attempted to fill the tank of a gasoline stove that was lighted with the usual result.

As she poured the gasoline into the tank the fluid caught fire. Mrs. Owens' dress soon became a solid flame and she was badly burned from head to foot. She ran down stairs, where she was met by Mr. William O'Dwyer, and he did what he could to save the woman's life at the risk of losing his own. He threw a blanket around the burning woman and extinguished the flames, but in so doing he was burned about the arms.

Physicians were called to attend Mrs. Owens, but they found her injuries so bad that recovery was impossible, and, after affording what immediate relief lay in their power, she received the last sacraments of the church and was then sent to Providence Hospital. She died yesterday morning after a night of suffering.

Mrs. Owens was the widow of a soldier and her funeral will take place from St. Dominic's under the auspices of John A. Logan Post, of which her husband was a member.

Dearest husband, thou hast left me
And thy loss I deeply feel;
But 'tis God that hath bereft me,
He can all my sorrows heal.

I miss thee from my home, dear husband.
I miss thee from thy place;
A shadow on my life has cast,
I miss the sunshine of thye face.

Death of William Owens

The Smallpox Claimed Its Third Victim This Morning

No New Cases Found Today and the Health

Authorities Pleased With the Situation

No new smallpox patients were reported to the health office up to 3 o'clock today, the new features since yesterday in the situation being the death of Wm. Owens this morning and the discovery of a case of the disease at Hyattsville, Md., in the person of Van Buren Norwood, an employee of the Interior Department. ...

Another Death

"William Owens died about 4 o'clock this morning. Others are doing well." This was the 9 o'clock bulletin posted in front of the health office this morning.

"The smallpox situation is encouraging," said Health Officer Woodward to a Star reporter soon after the bulletin was posted. The death of young Owens has caused no great amount of surprise, for his case has been regarded as the most serious case in the smallpox hospital. Being a mere boy, he did not seem to fully realize the danger of his disease, and Dr. Nevitt experienced considerable trouble in giving him proper treatment.

Yesterday he became much worse, as was shown in the bulletins received from the hospital, and his death was not unexpected.

Besides this one death, making the third fatal case, there was one new case reported yesterday. ...

A Sad Ending

Wm. M. Owens, the young man who died at the hospital this morning, was the youngest son of the late Colonel James E. Owens, a famous hotel proprietor, for many years at Atlanta, Ga. He was a rather delicate boy of seventeen years old last January, and was the support of his mother, and always a kind and loving son. When he was taken sick last Friday night he was most tenderly and carefully nursed by his mother and sister day and night until the following Wednesday, when the nature of his sickness was discovered for the first time, and he was then removed to the hospital, but against the desire or wish fo his mother and sister. The shock of his death this morning was a terrible one to his mother and sister, as well as to his many friends in the city and among his associates in the Interior and Census Departments.

When the death of young Owens was made known at the health office the question of giving him a decent burial was discussed. It seems to be the general impression that all persons who die in the hospital must be buried in potter's field, but such is not the case. Physicians as a rule, think there is no special danger from the body after death and the health officer said that the wrapping of the body in a bichloride cloth would be sufficient. He would not permit a public funeral, nor would he give permission for the removal of the body from the city. The body of the deceased was taken to the dead house soon after he expired. Today arrangements were made for the interment, which will take place in Congressional cemetery about 5 o'clock this afternoon. The body will be removed from the dead house to the cemetery by the health employees at the quarantine station.
