Yesterday the argument in this court in the case of W.C. Zantzinger et al., agt. William Gunton and the Bank of Washington, was commenced by Mr. Miller for appellants. This is an equity case, growing out of the estate of the late Wm. and Harriet Fisher. Complainant, Harriet A. Zantzinger as the only child of the Fishers, and the bill charges that in 1845 Fisher and wife conveyed to Gunton, in trust, certain property to secure the payment of a note of $6,065.84, and that there has been no settlement of the accounts by the trustee. Gunton, in his answer, denies that the plaintiffs have any legal or equitable interest in the proceeds of the note, and denies the right of plaintiff to require an account under the will.

Zantzinger. William C. Zantzinger, son of the late purser of the navy, W.P. Zantzinger, died in Washington on the 28th ult. He was in the State department for a number of years and when Daniel Webster succeeded to the office of Secretary of State he selected him as his private secretary, which position he occupied at the time of the statesman's death. He occupied many positions of trust in Washington until he was appointed secretary on the flagship of the East India squadron, and also as judge advocate of the East India fleet. In Japan he was seized with inflammatory rheumatism and sent home on sick leave to the regret of the admiral and all the officers. From this attack he never fully recovered, and it undoubtedly was the cause of his death. Mr. Z. leaves a widow and children, one of whom was named for the illustrious statesman. He was a gentleman of accomplished manners, and his many friends in this city regret to hear of his decease. W.H.D. (Boston Journal, June 6th, 1878).

Aged Resident Dead

*John R. Zimmerman, Capitol Employee, Passes Away
Had Been on the Official Rolls Nearly Half a Century -- Funeral Arrangements*

John R. Zimmerman, who has been for nearly half a century employed at the Capitol as upholsterer and cabinet maker, and has been closely associated with church work on Capitol Hill since the inception of the first missions there, died early this morning at his residence, 612 A street southeast, aged seventy-six years. He had been failing for a year or more but became seriously ill of cirrhosis of the liver only last week. The funeral is expected to take place Sunday, and will be from the Metropolitan Presbyterian Church, corner of 4th and B streets southeast, where he has been an elder for a great many years. It is expected that Rev. John Chester, the first pastor of the church, will conduct the services, and it is possible that Dr. George N. Luccock, the last pastor, will come from Orange, N.J., where he is filling a temporary engagement, and will assist in the services. The services will be public and the burial private.

Mr. Zimmerman was born in Fairfax county, Va., in 1828. He lived for some time at Harper's Ferry, where he was engaged in the undertaking business, and was there during the terrible cholera epidemic of 1850, when scarcely a home was without a vacant chair. While there he married Mary Margaret Fleming, whose father was afterward in the flour and feed business in this city. In 1852 he came to Washington, and soon afterward obtained employment in the folding room of the House of Representatives.

At the beginning of the civil war he was sworn in, together with the other employees, to defend the Capitol, and had at command a stock of interesting stories of war times in Washington while he was at home. One day, before a regiment had been detailed to defend the Capitol, he heard loud firing in the direction of the building. Thinking it might be an attack he grabbed his hat and ran at full speed in the direction of the noise, only to find when he got there that a Massachusetts regiment had arrived to relieve the impromptu guard and was emptying its guns with peaceful intent.

Stood by the Union

He was always a strong Union man, although he had two brothers on the other side. For a while during the war he was engaged in manufacturing mattresses for the United States government, but he failed in the business ultimately, and returned soon after the war to accept a position in the Capitol, this time on the Senate side. While there he became acquainted with many public men, and it is said Senator Allison and several others of the upper house who were there many years ago considered him their close friend.

At the time of his death, as stated, he had charge of the upholstering and cabinet-making of the Senate. He supervised the preparation of the catafalques constructed to receive the remains of Garfield, Logan and McKinley, and whenever a senator died it was he who draped the vacant desk on the floor. He had many friends in the building, and had known nearly every prominent man who had been there during the time of his employment. Some time after the death of his first wife Mr. Zimmerman married Katherine Lehmann, the daughter of Col. Lehmann, a prominent patent attorney in the city.

He has always been identified with mission work, and was instrumental, it is said, in founding the Waugh M.E. Church, at the corner of 3d and A streets southeast, and was the first class leader. After the war he joined the Metropolitan Presbyterian Church, at a time when it was scarcely more than a mission. No man in that church today, it is said, has watched it through its growth more closely than he.

Mr. Zimmerman leaves a wife and one son, Robert H. Zimmerman, who resides at 1120 B street northeast, and two daughters, Mrs. B.J. Cady, 113 5th street southeast, and Katherine, aged 15 years, the latter by his second wife.

Funeral of John R. Zimmerman

Death of Miss Zurhorst Generally Regretted

She Passed Away in Nova Scotia After an Illness of Several Months

The death in Kempville, Nova Scotia, on Thursday of Grace Marie Zurhorst has been learned with deep regret by her young friends. She had been Nova Scotia several months trying to regain the health lost through an illness which began last winter.

It is expected the body will be brought to Washington some time tonight, and funeral services will be held at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George P. Zurhorst, 233 Third street, southeast. The Rev. Dr. Evans, pastor of the Metropolitan Church will conduct the services.

Miss Zurhorst had been in excellent health until last winter, when she suffered an attack of pulmonary trouble, from which she never recovered. In the hope of receiving benefit she went to Falls Church, Va., and other places where it was thought pure air would do much to restore her, and finally she was sent north. She was in her fifteenth year, and was extremely popular with the young people of Capitol Hill.
