On Monday evening, the body of Colonel Ulric Dahlgren, who was killed near Richmond, on Kilpatrick's raid, In March, 1864, and which was placed in a vault at Congressional Cemetery some months ago, will be removed to the City Hall, where it will lie in state until Tuesday, when it will be taken to the 4 1/2 street Presbyterian Church, where the funeral discourse will be delivered. It is expected that Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, of New York, will officiate. The remains will be placed on a train and taken to Philadelphia, where it will be laid in state in Independence Hall, and afterwards it will be taken to Wilmington, Del., where it will be interred in the old family burial ground.

The Evening Star, October 31, 1865

The Funeral of Col. Dahlgren

The remains of the late Colonel Ulric Dahlgren, who was killed on Kilpatrick's raid near Richmond in March 1864, and whose body was recovered about six months ago, brought to this city, and placed temporarily in a vault at the Congressional Cemetery, were yesterday, preparatory to the funeral ceremonies removed, under an escort of eight sergeants of the Veteran Reserves, in charge of Brevet Captain Dempsey. The remains were placed in the Mayor's office until after the adjournment of the Board of Common Council, when they were removed to the Council Chamber, and a guard of honor, composed of the following officers of the Veteran Reserve Corps, placed over them: Captains James Cromlie, 12th; M.J. Bunnell, 24th, W.H. Eldridge, 9th; H. Camp, 14th; O.W. Preston, 10th; and J. O'Dwyer, 7th Veteran Reserve Corps.

The corpse, which was encased in a metallic casket, remained in the Council Chamber until near noon, the President's and Secretaries' desks being draped with the National colors, while over the corpse a mammoth flag was flung, on which was a profusion of flowers and a photograph likeness of the deceased, which was viewed with interest. They will lie in state tomorrow, and from thence they will be taken to Wilmington, to be interred in the family burial ground. The arrangements for the funeral here were under the charge of Capt. A.H. Wands, A.A.G., Mr. Kirby being the undertaker.

About noon, the escort under the command of Brevet Brigadier Gen. Gile, V.R.C., composed of battalions from all the Veteran Reserve regiments in the city, the 8th regiment of Hancock's Corps, and the 195th and 214th Pennsylvania regiments formed, when the remains were taken to the 1st Presbyterian Church (being carried by eight sergeants of the Veteran Reserves) the following acting as pall-bearers: Brevet Brig. Gen. DeWitt, 10th V.R.C.; Brev. Brig. Gen. McKibbin, 214th Pa.; Col. J.R. Mansfield, 12th V.R.C.; Col. C.F. Johnson, 18th V.R.C.; Col. T. Pearce, 8th regiment, 1st army corps; Brevet Col. Johnston, 9th V.R.C.; Brevet Col. Foust, 10th V.R.C.; Brevet Col. Collis, 7th V.R.C.

On the arrival of the funeral procession, at the church, the Marine Band, stationed in the choir, performed a miserere while the corpse was being carried to the front of the altar, where it was deposited. The church was crowded in every part, among the audience being President Johnson, accompanied by Secretaries Stanton, Welles, and Harlan, Mr. Faxon of the Navy Department, Generals Ekin, T.M. Harris, Howe and others. Mayor Wallach and a number of members of the City Government. The chief mourners were the father of the deceased with his son and two daughters.

The services were commenced with an invocation by Rev. E.D. Neill, of Minnesota, followed by the choir singing "I heard a voice from Heaven." Rev. J.C. Graves, of Boston, then read selections from various parts of the Scripture, which was followed by a prayer of Rev. Dr. Nadal, of Wesley Chapel. The hymn "I know my Redeemer liveth," (solo) was sung by Mrs. Butts.

Rev. Henry Ward Beecher announced his text, 24th verse of the 20th chapter of Acts. He proceeded to speak of the qualities of the true man, with whom honor is better than life. If the country had continued as it was going four years ago, in fifty years we would have been ruined. Our young men were trained up to be devotees of policy not principle. But it pleased God to give us deliverance, and he ordained young men to be in a measure saviors of the country. The speaker regarded the late civil war in almost every particular as beneficial to the country. Rain is good for the roots of trees and blood for the roots of men, and the channels of thought were now opened, every one may now say what he thinks and think when he pleases. It was a great thing to roll away, as it were, the stone from the sepulchre.

For four years the nation has been holding up its hands to God, saying, take our money, our peace, our children, but save our country (applause). Mr. Beecher then spoke of the many noble young men who went into the war from principle, with their lives in their hands, the sacrifices made by the people when they sent their sons one after another to battle for their country. Thanks be to God that so many were willing to die;

they have a memorial that they went out to save their country, and saved it! They were assembled to pay homage to one of the youngest, best, and purest of the defenders of the Union. He was called to duty before he reached manhood, and earned advancement in the field. He sought it not--did not chase honors, but honors had to travel fast to overtake him. He carried home virtues to the camp, and gave his time, courage, and life to the cause of the nation. He got up from a sick couch and joined a hazardous expedition--mounting his horse by the aid of a crutch--the object of which was to succor our prisoners then in the prison pen. We can form some idea of him, as he dashed along close by the rebel Capitol, but none will even know the anguish he felt when he was forced to give up his object. He turned and had almost reached a safe place when the bullets from an ambushcade pierced him, not killed him, but he still lives and ever will live in history. The name of Dahlgren was now permanently written on the page of history of the country. Mr. Beecher closed with a prayer, after which the choir sung, "Rest Spirit Rest," and the benediction was pronounced. The remains were escorted to the depot, where they were placed on the 4:30 train, accompanied by the family and friends. On the arrival of the train in Baltimore, a number of General Hancock's officers will take charge of the remains and escort them to Philadelphia, where they will arrive tonight and be taken to Independence Hall.

The National Intelligencer, February 13, 1846 Distressing And Fatal Accident We are sorry to learn that another fatal accident occurred yesterday, about ten o'clock in the morning, by an explosion in the laboratory at the Navy Yard. It appears that while the workmen were engaged in the dangerous operation of preparing detonating powder, an explosion took place which caused the immediate death of a person named Dailey, from Philadelphia, whose skull and head were shattered in a dreadful manner. A son of Captain Mitchell, of the steamboat Oceola, had also an arm broken by this distressing occurrence. We understand the concussion was very great, so as to raise the roof of the building and otherwise injure it. Coroner Woodward held an inquest over the body of the decease in the course of the day; but we could not obtain, at a late hour last night, the verdict of the jury. The National Intelligencer, February 16, 1846 The Late Fatal Accident at the Navy Yard Which was briefly noticed by us in the National Intelligencer of the 13th instant, was fully investigated by the jury which was summoned on that day by Coroner Woodward. After due deliberation and the hearing of one witness, who seemed to entertain the opinion that carelessness had led to the fatal explosion, the jury returned a verdict in which they declared it as their belief that "the explosion was purely accidental and that no blame can attach to any person connected with the laboratory." It seems to be almost providential that only one person was killed. If the explosion had taken place a day or two earlier there would undoubtedly have been a greater sacrifice of human life, as there were many more persons at work in the laboratory. Nineteen hands had been discharged on the previous day. We learn that Mr. James Daily, the unfortunate person who was killed by the explosion, was a young man of excellent character, and his premature death has been generally regretted.

Mrs. Dalton, who was 64 years of age, resided with her widowed daughter, Mrs. Alice Gorman, and was quite decrepid. Mrs. Gorman had, after putting the supper on the stove, started to a drug store, leaving her mother reading by the stove. Soon after Mrs. Gorman had left, the house took fire in some unknown manner. On the arrival of the firemen Mrs. Dalton's body was found lying on its face. She was burned almost beyond recognition. It is thought that after Mrs. Gorman left that her mother attempted to attend to the supper when her clothing took fire. She had evidently attempted to reach the front door and falling, the flames had communicated to the furniture.

Ellis Dalrymple Dies After a Long Illness
Resident of Washington for Twenty-Five Years and for Twenty-Four Years in the Pension Office
 Ellis Dalrymple, seventy-two years old, father of Policeman C.L. Dalrymple, who has been stationed at the door of the executive office of the White House for many years, died this morning at his home, 1340 East Capitol street, after a long illness. Mr. Dalrymple, formerly a citizen of Ohio, had lived in Washington twenty-five years, and twenty-four years of that time had served in the pension office as an examiner. At the beginning of the civil war he enlisted as a private in the 52d Ohio Regiment, under Col. Dan McCook, and served with gallantry throughout the war. He was married to Miss Annie E. White of Springfield, Ohio, May 29, 1868. His widow and six children are living. The children are Policeman Dalrymple, Ernest A. Dalrymple, Mrs. A.J. McCurdy, Mrs. A.N. Mitchell, Ira B. Dalrymple and Earl Dalrymple.

Moy Dan's Friends Provide for His Journey to Heaven

Moy Dan, a Chinese laundryman, who died Monday at Emergency Hospital, was buried yesterday at Congressional cemetery. The body was prepared for burial at Lee's undertaking establishment, and before the coffin was closed friends of the dead man placed in his hands a number of tickets, which were intended to pay Moy's fare across the Styx, and written instructions were also given as to the way he should take to outwit the devils who would follow and try to capture him.

Eight Chinamen in two carriages accompanied the remains to the cemetery, three riding inside of each carriage and one with each driver. Those outside scattered bits of red, white and green paper, inscribed with charms, to drive away the devils in the air, which are supposed to be ever seeking to catch souls of the departed and carry them off to torment.

At the grave punk sticks were lighted, and while they were burning one of the Chinamen threw twenty-one grains of rice in the open grave. When the grave was filled two roasted chickens, a package of tea, three jars of preserves and a bag of rice were placed on it, in order that Moy should not go hungry on his journey. A small pot of tea was poured upon the grave, and then the pot and several small cups were placed by the food.

W.W. Danenhower Dead

The End of a Useful and Honorable Career

At an early hour this morning Mr. William Weaver Danenhower breathed his last at his residence, North Carolina avenue and 6th street southeast. While the news of his death will come with a sense of personal loss to a large circle who knew and loved the deceased, it will not be received with great surprise, for those who were near to Mr. Danenhower were aware that he was gradually failing. In fact, since the accident of two years ago, when he broke one of the bones in his leg, he has not enjoyed his usual health. For more than thirty years Mr. Danenhower has been a resident of this city. He was identified with its interests, and his high character and his general popularity made the influence of his presence and the value of his advice sought for on occasions of public moment.

He was born in Philadelphia on the 22d of December, 1820, and his family had made that city, or rather Germantown, their home for many years. In 1849 Mr. Danenhower left Philadelphia and went to Chicago as the representative of the publishing house of Harpers. He became interested in politics and took such an active and prominent part in the first Lincoln campaign, that after the election he was invited by Mr. Lincoln to Washington, and was appointed acting fourth auditor and chief clerk. After holding this position for a short time, he resigned and went into the claim business in this city. In 1879, in connection with his son, Washington Danenhower, he engaged in the real estate business, from which he retired in the year 1888.

He has lived a life of leisure ever since, having massed a competence, his property being largely real estate in this city. For a number of years he lived in the old Chain House, which is now the Fredonia Hotel, and which was his property. He leaves a wife, four sons and two daughters to mourn his loss. His children are Joseph E. of Chicago, Charles, W.W. jr., and Washington Danenhower of this city, Mrs. John W. Schenck and Mrs. Frank L. Williams of this city. The funeral services will be held on Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, at Christ Church, near the Navy Yard.

Daniel, William H.	b. 12 Jan 1844 - d. 27 Aug 1897	53 yrs.	R91/134
The Evening Star, August 27, 1897 William H. Daniel Dead Well-Known Musician and Musical Composer Unexpectedly Passed Away The Director of St. John's Choir and Also Connected With Many Local Groups Mr. William H. Daniel, the well-known musician, died at his residence, 414 10th street southwest, at eighteen minutes before 6 o'clock this morning. Mr. Daniel had been ill for some time and suffered considerably from an abscess which gathered on the right side of his neck. It is supposed that blood poisoning was the ultimate cause of his death.  The death of Mr. Daniel came suddenly and as the greatest surprise to his friends, who are numbered; by the thousands, in every section and quarter of the city. Mr. Daniel, like his father before him, and with him, was identified with the musical interests of Washington for more than a quarter of a century, and during that time he steadily increased the number of those who deemed it an honor to call him friend.  Taxed His Energies When death came he was engaged in building up the St. John's choir, of which he was leader, and in the spring taxed his energies more than his friends were willing he should in order that the boys should have their regular summer outing. During that outing he worked still harder to care for his flock while away from the city, and see that each one enjoyed the opportunity for fun. While Mr. Daniel had not been well for the past year, the end was not supposed to be in sight, and his death will be a severe shock to all who knew him.  Mr. Daniel was the eldest son of James H. and Ann C. Daniel, and was born January 12, 1844, in this city, where the greater part of his life was spent. At the age of seventeen he joined the confederate army under Gen. Jackson, and fought in that service until the end of the great struggle. As a soldier he was noted for his daring and bravery, and several times received public commendation for some brilliant exploit. Mr. Daniel married Miss Mary A. Brown, December 23, 1869. Miss Brown was the daughter of William Brown, surgeon in the United States army. From 1883 to 1884 Mr. Daniel was connected with the firm of Geo. F. Timms & Co. having charge of an important branch of business.  Career in Musical World Mr. Daniel's career in the musical world was a long one and a most useful one. From his father, who taught music in the public schools of Washington for such a long period of time, he inherited a strong love for music, an excellent voice and an understanding that reached into the innermost recesses of musical lore.  He was director of the St. John's choir at the time of his death, which position he had held for over sixteen years. The choir under his direction was brought from a position of obscurity in the local musical world to a place ranking among the foremost church organizations of this city, and occupying a position with the great vested choirs of the country.  While choirmaster at St. John's, he personally directed and participated in many notable funerals and weddings. At the request of the President, Mr. Harrison, Mr. Daniel personally conducted the music at the funeral of Mrs. and Miss Tracy, and later that of Mrs. Harrison in the White House. Mr. Harrison for this service transmitted to Mr. Daniel a letter of thanks in which his warmest sentiments were brought forth.

Composer of Ability

Mr. Daniel was also a composer of no mean ability, his talent in this line being mainly directed to practical church work. Some of his work is now widely used in the Episcopal Church of this country, and has excited general comment by its worth. It is not generally known that he was the creator of the part of Captain Corcoran in "H.M.S. Pinafore" in this country.

His Prominent Connections

There was scarcely an organization in Washington with which Mr. Daniel was not affiliated, including the old Arion Society, the Saengerbund, the Choral Society, the Washington Operatic Society and a host of others interested in musical work. For two years he was the honored president of the Choral Society, resigning from that position last year on account of failing health.

He remained on the board of directors, however, and continued to lend his valuable aid and influence in conducting its affairs. He was also identified with a musical coterie, consisting of Mr. Pugh, Mr. Hay, Miss Helen Lamont and Mrs. True, which put on such operas as "Penelope," "Rose of Auvergne," "Barber of Bath" and other light works.

As an arranger and director Mr. Daniel was particularly well known, and he was constantly in demand when Sunday schools and other organizations were preparing musical works for presentation. The death of Mr. Daniel's father and of Mr. Daniel himself have removed from Washington two of its brightest lights and two of the most beloved members of the musical world.

Funeral Services at St. John's Church Yesterday Afternoon

A large concourse of people attended the funeral of Prof. William H. Daniel, which took place from St. John's Episcopal Church yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The services were conducted by Rev. Robert S. Wood, assisted by Rev. Thomas O. Tongue and Rev. George Dudley, and the body was placed in the vault at Congressional cemetery. The pallbearers were M.B. Fugitt, R.H. Atkinson, E.E. Stevens, E.B. Hay, H.C. Pearson and J.C. Spencer.

Representatives of the Choral Society of Washington were present, and there were handsome floral tributes from organizations and personal friends. The Choral Society sent a magnificent piece in the shape of a harp, with the initials "C.S." on the strings.

After the 11 o'clock service at St. John's Church yesterday morning Rev. Mr. Wood spoke feelingly for some time on the life of Prof. Daniel. The beautiful character of the dead man was emphasized, together with his devotion to his church and choir, and the example of his just life to all mankind.

D.A.R. Founder Expires Suddenly in New York

Resident of Washington -- About to Start for Home Here When Summons Came

Was Seventy Years Old -- Was One of the Organizers of the Original Society Formed in This City

New York, January 6 – Mrs. Flora Adams Darling, a founder of the society of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and the Society of the Daughters of the War of 1812, died this morning, at 9 o'clock, from apoplexy, at the home of her brother, John Quincy Adams, at 153 West 117th street. She was seventy years old.

Mrs. Darling was just starting for Washington. A cab had been summoned and when it reached the door she rose to go out, but was seized with a stroke of apoplexy, when she reached the hall. Dr. Lombard of Graham Court, the family physician was sent for. When he reached the house Mrs. Darling had already died. Mr. Adams, her brother was going to accompany her to Washington.

Mrs. Darling will be buried at Lancaster, N.H., Saturday or Sunday. She was the widow of Gen. Edward Irving Darling of the southern Confederacy, who was killed in the civil war. She is survived by two grandchildren, Charles Tiernon Darling and Nancy Darling of Washington.

Controversy Over Founding

There has been a controversy of long standing as to who was the actual founder of the Daughters of the American Revolution, other claimants to that distinction being unwilling to cede all the honor to Mrs. Darling.

The Society was organized in the city of Washington. The headquarters are in Washington. Its present membership is reported by the secretary general to be 60,250. It has 1,000 state chapters in forty-five states and territories and the District of Columbia. Chapter regents have been appointed for Cuba, China, Mexico and the Philippines.

The Daughters of the Revolution were organized in the city of New York, August 20, 1891. Eligibility to membership is restricted to women who are lineal descendants of an ancestor who was a military or naval or marine officer, soldier, sailor or marine in actual service under the authority of any of the thirteen colonies or states, or of the continental congress, and remained always loyal to such authority, or descendants of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, or one who actually assisted in the establishment of American independence.

Mrs. Flora Adams Darling was a resident of Washington for many years, and was prominent in patriotic society circles. Until recently she resided at 1007 N street. This house was given up a short while ago, and Mrs. Darling expected to make her home in another section of the city.

In addition to her brother, John Quincy Adams of New York, the deceased is survived by two grandchildren, Charles Tiernon Darling and Miss Nannie Darling.

Reported Remains Will Be Brought To This City

New York, January 8 – Funeral services for Mrs. Flora Adams Darling, founder of the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Daughters of the Revolution and the Daughters of the War of 1812 were held here today at All Souls Church.

By request of the several societies of which she was founder it has been decided that Mrs. Darling shall be buried in Washington, D.C. She lived there for more than fifty years, during all the active period of her life.

Mrs. Matthew T. Scott, president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and other officers of that organization last night said they had not been advised of the purpose to bring the remains of Mrs. Darling to this city for interment.

Shocked at the Charges

Mrs. Spranger Says That Mrs. Darling is a Monomaniac

Los Gatos, Cal., April 20--Dr. Francis X. Spranger and his wife, accused of the murder of Edward I. Darling, the former husband of Mrs. Spranger, by slow poisoning, are in the Santa Cruz mountains, and have been almost ever since they were married in Boston on the 11th March.

With them are the two children of Darling, a boy and a girl.

"We were greatly shocked at these charges," Mrs. Spranger said, "but, do you know, I have been expecting this for a long time. Mrs. Darling, the mother of my first husband, is a monomaniac on the subject of money, and ever since my husband's death she has made my life miserable. This persecution has grown almost unbearable since my marriage to Dr. Spranger. I want it understood, in the first place, that I am not nearly so wealthy as I have been credited with being.

"To be frank, we do not consider that she is in her right mind. The truth is that Mr. Darling killed himself, though, mind you, I would never have said anything about this had not my former husband's mother begun. During our entire married life he was addicted to the use of stimulants, and their excessive use finally brought on consumption and a general break-down, from which nothing could have saved him. Dr. Spranger was called in as any other physician might have been, and did what he could for my husband, but we all knew that he could not be saved.

"The cry about the poisoned milk at the Ebbitt House in Washington is all nonsense. The milk served us there was not good and made us all sick. Mrs. Darling, herself, ordered her son's body cremated. I had nothing to do with it. She had also done all she could to make my life miserable, once even trying to have my husband send me to an insane asylum, and she also took away my six-year-old girl, the one I have with me, and put the child in a convent."

The following telegram was sent today to John J. Connelly of Detroit, and Mrs. A.A. Birney at Washington, Mrs. Spranger's attorney: "Darling has maligned us. Use your own judgment and course.

(Signed:) "Spranger."

Found Dying in Her Room

Mrs. Julia Darne Had Swallowed Carbolic Acid

Coroner Prepares Certificate That Death Was Due to Suicide,

But Withholds Same

Mrs. Julia E. Darne, forty years of age, who boarded at the house of Mr. and Mrs. J.H. Kaiser, 607 21st street, died at the Emergency Hospital last night shortly before 12 o'clock, her death being due to carbolic acid poisoning. It is not known if she took the acid with suicidal intent, or if it was swallowed by mistake. Mr. and Mrs. Kaiser, incline to the latter opinion. They had never heard her say a word that would indicate that she had the slightest intention of ending her life, although she was somewhat despondent over the death of her daughter, who died two years ago.

Yesterday being the anniversary of the death of her daughter, Mrs. Darnes gave the matter more thought than usual and she seemed somewhat nervous last night when she returned home from her work. She was employed at the glove counter of a department store and was a general favorite among the other employes there. It is stated that she formerly resided near Glymont, Charles county, Md. and that relatives live there now. Mr. and Mrs. Kaiser had become very much attached to the deceased. The latter had only a few friends in this city, it is stated, when she was admitted to the Kaiser household two years ago as a boarder, and she had come to be regarded as one of the family.

Heard Suspicious Noise

Mrs. Darne last night left her place of employment as soon as the store closed and went to her room. When she reached the house she found the members of the family in the parlor. They were enjoying music. During a lull in the entertainment a suspicious noise was heard on the upper floor. Mr. Kaiser went to the door of Mrs. Darne's room and knocked. He received no response, but heard heavy breathing. Fearing something was wrong he sent for Dr. Brecht. Upon the arrival of the physician the door was broken open and the woman was found lying upon the bed dying.

At the suggestion of Dr. Brecht the patient was removed to the Emergency Hospital, where death occurred about the time stated. Miss Anna Darne, the daughter who died, worked in the department store where her mother was employed up to the time of her death. The daughter, it is stated was a consumptive. Mrs. Darne felt the death of her daughter to such a great extent that at times she seemed to suffer from melancholia. She was at her place of employment all day yesterday, however, and nothing was said to the other clerks, so far as could be ascertained last night, about any desire on her part to end her life. At the store she was regarded as a model clerk.

The body was placed in the hospital morgue.

Views of the Coroner

Coroner Nevitt made a partial investigation and prepared a certificate to the effect that death was due to suicide, but he withheld the same pending further inquiry. He says he may conduct an inquest.

In the room occupied by Mrs. Darne was found a two-ounce vial that contained carbolic acid and a tumbler, from which the poison had evidently been swallowed. It is stated that since the death of her daughter two years ago, Mrs. Darne had lost several relatives at short intervals, which had added to her despondency.

Notification of Mrs. Darne's death was sent last night to her brother, C.W. Compton, 306 Vanderbilt avenue, Brooklyn, N.Y., and also to a friend, Mrs. Ella Anderson, at Rockville, Md.

Funeral This Afternoon of Mrs. Julia E. Darne

Coroner Nevitt made an investigation of the death of Mrs. Julia E. Darne, who died at the Emergency Hospital Saturday night after she had swallowed about two ounces of carbolic acid, as stated in the Sunday Star, and gave a certificate of suicide. Friends of the deceased suggested that she had taken the acid by mistake, but the circumstances as related to the coroner indicated that she had taken the dose with suicidal intent.

The body of Mrs. Darne was removed to an undertaking establishment and prepared for burial. Services were conducted at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The interment was in Congressional cemetery.

Obituary

The numerous friends of the late Mrs. Sarah Virginia Darrell, wife of Mr. Wm. Darrell, of the General Post Office, cannot permit her to pass from their sight without briefly recording their grief at her departure, and their respect for her worth. There is no ordinary loss, since in all the relations of life her character was not merely unblemished, but shown with a quiet yet serene and admirable beauty, as rare as attractive. In her the most amiable natural affections were blended with the Christian graces, and the guileless cheerfulness of her spirit was elevated by the Faith that overcomes the world, the Hope that maketh not ashamed, and the Charity that never faileth. Vacant is her seat in her Family, and in the Church which she loved on earth, inasmuch as she has been called to ascend to the kingdom of glory; yet, if precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints, precious should be the memory of their lives to us; nor will any lapse of time cause the image and the virtues of her to whom we are permitted to render this humble tribute to fade from our hearts.

"We saw the momentary cloud
The pale eclipse of mind,
From earthly sight that came to shroud
The deathless ray behind;
A moment more, the shade was gone,
The sun, the spirit, burneth on.

"To die! 'tis but to pass, all free
From death's dominion here;
To burst the bonds of earth, and flee
From every mortal fear;
To plunge within the gulf untried,
And stand beyond it glorified!"

Bullet In His Heart

Andrew B. Davidson Commits Suicide Today
Shoots Himself at the Hotel Johnson --
Ill-Health Said to Have Caused Act.

Andrew B. Davidson, a member of the United States Marine Corps committed suicide this morning in a room in the Hotel Johnson by shooting himself through the heart. He was seated on a Morris chair at the time and death came so suddenly that his body did not move a particle.

A chambermaid in the hotel heard the report of the pistol. She declared she heard the reports of two shots, but there was only one empty chamber in the weapon and the bullet from this chamber had done effective work. The revolver was found on the floor where it had dropped from the hand of the marine.

As soon as the chambermaid heard the report of the weapon she told the boy on the elevator and he found the dead body of the guest in the Morris chair.

Coroner Nevitt was notified and he visited the hotel before 11 o'clock. He examined the body and read notes that had been left by Davidson. There could be no doubt as to the circumstances under which the act was committed and the necessary death certificate was given.

Notes written by Davidson this morning shortly before he fired the fatal shot, and a letter he had received from his sister "Sue" indicated that he had been feeling badly and had contemplated a trip west for his health. He had been in the Marine Corps since 1902.

Registered Yesterday

Davidson registered at the hotel yesterday and was in the dining room last night. He attended one of the theaters and returned to the hotel at a late hour. This morning he was up early and appeared in the dining room at the breakfast table. Shortly after breakfast he returned to his room and was seen by one of the guests engaged in letter writing. The door of his room was closed shortly afterward and a few minutes before 10 o'clock the fatal shot was fired.

Relatives of the deceased live in Baltimore and Hagerstown, Md., and Hampton, Va. In the letter found in his room that he had recently received from his sister he was advised not to leave the Marine Corps and go west. He was told that he might be taken ill in the west, where he would be without friends or funds and might be caused unnecessary suffering. His sister dwelt upon the necessity for his keeping better hours and suggested that such a reformation might result in the restoration of his health. She also said she hoped his prospective visit to Hagerstown would benefit him.

Davidson had his photograph taken one day this week and received the proofs this morning. He paid for the photographs this morning. Shortly before he killed himself he had the bell boy mail several letters for him. These letters were probably addressed to relatives who will receive them this afternoon or tomorrow.

On the table in his room was a photograph of his sister, on the back of which she had written: "To my death brother Harry: only a snap-shot dear, but thought you would like it. "Fannie."

The brother had added: "Fannie: To make you happy I will take my life.
 "Andrew."

Another Letter

A letter addressed to the "person who finds it" reads:

"You will kindly notify Miss Fannie Davidson, 1429 McCalloh street, Baltimore, of my death, and Miss Annie G. Davidson, National Soldiers' Home, Va., also. The phone number of my sister in Baltimore is Madison 397-W.

"My suit case and keys will be given to John A. Christian, room 603 Mills building, when he calls for them. Other expense involved will be charged to the United States Marine Corps. Commandant notified.
 "Very truly.        A.B. Davidson."

In another note he directed that the government revolver be turned over to H.C. Owen, hospital steward at the barracks.

Davidson's appearance indicates that he was a consumptive and that he was about thirty years old. He had only his suit case and cane with him when he registered at the hotel. This morning he went to the office and paid his hotel bill in full. Capt. Boardman notified the Baltimore relatives of his death and some of them are expected here later in the day. It is likely that his body will be taken to Baltimore for interment.

It is said Davidson had many friends in this city. He had recently boarded with friends on Morgan avenue.

The Washington Times, February 3, 1905
Commits Suicide After Careful Preparation
Private A.B. Davidson of the United States Marine Corps
Shoots Himself at Hotel Johnson Today

Despondent because he believed himself to be in ill health, A.B. Davidson, a private in the U.S. Marine Corps stationed at the Marine Barracks, sent a bullet through his heart at the Hotel Johnson this morning and died almost instantly.

Davidson got leave last night and was due to return to the barracks this morning. He went from the barracks to the hotel where he registered as A.B. Davidson, Lexington, Va. His only baggage was a suit case. He was assigned to a room and went out after dinner for an hour or two. Returning to the hotel he retired and was seen no more until this morning when he came down to breakfast.

Wrote Several Letters
 After breakfast he returned to his room, where he wrote a number of letters. He called a bellboy, Council Nixon, and sent him on an errand. When the boy returned, some time later, he found Davidson fallen back in his chair, dead. On the floor by his side was a 38-caliber pistol, and his shirt was stained with blood. The bellboy called for help and the police were informed.

Coroner Nevitt was called in, and after a thorough examination of the room, ordered the body removed to the morgue. There it was identified later in the day by members of the marine corps and sent to an undertaker.

On a table in front of which Davidson was sitting when he fired the fatal shot was a photograph, on the back of which was written, "To my dear brother." Under this the man had written in a firm hand, "To make you happy I will take my life."

Sister in Baltimore
 One of the letters was to the hotel clerk asking that Davidson's sister, Annie Davidson, 1429 McCollough street, Baltimore, be notified of his death. Another letter was intended for the police making the same request. The third note asked that the revolver with which he shot himself be returned to a comrade at the Marine Barracks. Davidson's uniform was found in the suit case.

Davidson was formerly detailed as a messenger at the headquarters of the Marine Corps in the Bond Building. He had an excellent record, but was continually laboring under the hallucination that he was in a bad state of health. This the officers at the barracks say was not the case, as he was an unusually robust man.

 At the residence of her father, in this city, on Saturday last, at half past 12 o'clock, Mrs. Clementina Mary Davidson, wife of Lieutenant Delozier Davidson, United States Army, and daughter of the Hon. T. Hartley Crawford, aged 19 years.

The death of this young wife will bring the deepest affliction to the bosom of a young and absent husband, as it has done to her family, in the midst of which her last trial came. Her death is one of those mysteries of a wise and good Providence that we cannot penetrate; but while we bow in humble resignation to this sad event, it cannot be wrong to lament, in the bitterness of sorrow, that one so much admired, beloved, and esteemed for all the graces of person, manners, disposition, and mind, which attract and secure attachment, should have been called so early to leave this world for one more appropriate to her excellence.

Miss Adelaide Davis Made Supervisor of New School Division

Education Board Also Names Mrs. W.B. Hardy Community Center Head

Survey of Districts is Made At Meeting

Entire System Is Now Arranged in Regular Sequence of Units

Miss Adelaide Davis, administrative principal of the Emery-Eckington school, was chosen supervising principal of the Fourth division, newly created, and Mrs. William B. Hardy, assistant director of the community center department, was chosen general director of a conference of the Board of education last night at the Franklin school.

Miss Davis' appointment, although to a new division, fills the vacancy to be made when Robert L. Haycock becomes assistant superintendent on October 1. Mrs. Hardy's appointment is to succeed Mrs. Cecil Norton Sisson.

The board voted that the superintendent of schools should by an executive order fill the existing vacancies to be effective on October 1. This will obviate the necessity of calling a special meeting to pass upon the selections of the superintendent. The board will ratify the appointments when it meets again at its regular meeting the first week in October.

Survey of Districts

The next most important business was the survey of the new school districts laid out during the past two weeks.

In making Miss Davis supervising principal of the Fourth division the board established an entirely new section in the downtown section.

Miss Jessie LaSalle, who was appointed supervising principal last June to install the psychological tests and educational research work in the local schools, was designated to be in charge of the Second division. This division is also a new district and was made by combining portions of other districts.

Kimball Transferred

Ephraim G. Kimball, of the Seventh division, will be changed to the Third division, that over which Mr. Haycock now has charge.

Miss Flora L. Hendley, who is now supervising principal of the Seventh division and takes over a portion of Mr. Kimball's old territory in addition to her own. The other portion of Mr. Kimball's old division will be taken over by Dr. Hosmer M. Johnson, who is now supervising principal of the Ninth division, but who will on October 1 become supervising principal of the Eighth division.

Walter B. Patterson, director of special schools, and at present nominally in the Franklin-Thomson division, will after October 1 be nominally in the Ninth division over which he will supervise. The Franklin-Thomson division will be abolished on October 1.

Gives Regular Sequence

This arrangement will give the local school system a regular sequence of divisions for the first time in many years. The divisions now run First, Third, Franklin-Thomson, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth and Ninth. After October 1 they will run consecutively from one to nine. The colored school divisions have always run in sequence from ten to thirteen.

In mapping out the new school divisions the special committee has been guided chiefly by the populations of the various sections and with a view to having them harmonize with the arrangement of the Junior High schools.

Miss Adelaide Davis, who becomes the new supervising principal, has long been considered one of the most valuable teachers and principals of the system. Besides her regular school work Miss Davis has taken advanced courses during the summer at George Washington university, the University of Pennsylvania, Harvard and Columbia universities. She is a member of the National Education association, the National Geographic society, the Red Cross, the Associated Charities and the Washington Society of Fine Arts. She has traveled extensively both in this country and abroad. She was promoted to administrative principalship last week.

The National Intelligencer, June 28, 1842

We regret to learn that a dreadful accident happened at the Navy Yard of this city yesterday evening, by which two worthy men were deprived of life--the one, Mr. Barry, an aged gunner who has been long in the service of the United States, and who had charge of the ordnance stores at the yard; and the other an assistant of his, named David Davis. We have not learnt fully the particulars of the accident, but understand that it was caused by the bursting of a shell, which they were engaged in handling or charging. They were both instantly killed by the explosion.

The Late Fatal Explosion at the Navy Yard

It will be seen by reference to the following statement, which bears the signature of the worthy commandant at the Navy Yard, that the unfortunate individuals who were killed and horribly mangled last Monday night by an explosion of detonating shells in the laboratory, came to their death by disregarding a positive and written order, issued by the Commandant and the Secretary of the Navy, forbidding the filling of those shells and the manufacture of the composition within the precincts of the Navy Yard. This is deeply to be regretted, not only on account of the unfortunate sufferers and their distressed families, but on account of the numerous officers, workmen, and others connected with the Navy Yard, and the valuable property which it contains, all of which were jeopardized by this reckless disregard of a positive and necessary order, which (as we are authorized to state) was in the first instance suggested by the Commandant to the Secretary of the Navy, soon after the fatal explosion which caused the death of the lamented Captain Bright.

We are sorry to learn that this terrible explosion, besides causing the death of Mr. Barry (who had charge of the ordnance and was a master in the Navy) and Mr. Davis, his fellow laborer and sufferer at this dangerous work, three other individuals were severely, if not dangerously, wounded by the explosion—Mr. Bynum, an attorney from North Carolina, and Mr. Watson, who were both strangers and viewing the Navy Yard at the time of the sad event, and corporal Lusky, of the Marine corps, who happened to be near the unfortunate men when they lost their lives. Yesterday morning it was reported that Mr. Bynum had died of his wounds, but this is erroneous; the gentleman, though severely hurt, being in no present danger.

It is extremely gratifying to learn that Mr. John F. Tucker and Mr. Thomas Goss, members of the Anacostia Fire Company, who nobly rushed into the laboratory to extinguish the flames, which were within a few feet of the power magazine, were favorably reported yesterday to the Commandant, and it is to be hoped they will not go unrewarded, as they will certainly not go undistinguished, for their dauntless bravery and disregard of personal consequence during so appalling an emergency. Commandant Kennon does no more than justice to the Anacostia Fire Company for their "heroic exertions" on t his trying occasion. Never, that we can recollect have any Firemen more distinguished themselves, or more richly deserved the thanks and approbation of their fellow citizens. We subjoin the statement of Commandant Kennon, politely furnished at our request, and the verdict of the jury who were summoned by the Coroner late on Monday night, to investigate the circumstances which led to the dreadful catastrophe.

At about five o'clock p.m. this day, the Navy Yard was alarmed by several heavy explosions. They proceeded from the laboratory. I hastened to the spot and found the laboratory on fire, immediately over and about the powder magazine. By the most heroic exertions of the Anacostia Fire Company and the men employed in the Navy Yard, it was most providentially saved from destruction.

Gunner Barry, and one of the men named Davis, employed in the laboratory, were killed and much mangled, and the building and its contents materially injured. The powder and all combustible things were removed as quick as possible, but the keys, being in the gunner's pocket when he was blown up, were not to be found, and the doors had to be forced at the utmost peril, the fire being directly over it and about it in various directions.

From the men employed in the laboratory, it appears that gunner Barry and Davis, at the time of the explosion, were employed in filling combustible shells in a private room in the laboratory; if so, they were acting in violation of the orders of the Commandant of the yard and the Secretary of the Navy, which had been expressly given, forbidding this work within the Navy Yard.

On the first alarm, Colonel Henderson and the marines from the barracks hastened to the relief of the yard, and rendered important assistance.

B. Kennon, Com'dt Navy Yard
June 27, 1842.

The Jury find that Thomas Barry came to his death by an explosion of detonating shells, of highly combustible matter, while he was in the act of filling those shells, contrary to a positive written order of the Commandant of the Navy Yard and the Secretary of the Navy.

A verdict similar to the above was rendered in the case of the other sufferer, David Davis.

Noted Lawyer Dead

Henry E. Davis Expires at Home

Influenza Attack Is Fatal. Noted Lawyer Had Distinguished Career

Henry Edgar Davis, a prominent member of the District bar for nearly half a century, died at his home, 1931 Nineteenth street, at 8:55 o'clock last night. He had just passed his 72nd birthday.

Mr. Davis' death followed the recurrence of an attack of influenza, a relapse taking place three weeks ago, and confining him to his home, after he had insisted on making a trip to Prince Frederick, Md., to conduct a case while he was recuperating from an earlier illness.

Funeral arrangements will be made today.

Old Maryland Family

"Harry" Davis, as he was best known, was the son of Henry S. Davis and Mary Eliza Galt, both members of pioneer Maryland families. His father was a well known business man. At the paternal residence on Ninth street between E and F streets, Mr. Davis was born March 15, 1855.

He was educated in the local schools and academies, including Young's School, preparatory to entering Princeton University, from which he received his A.B. degree together with highest class honors in 1876. The following year he entered Harvard Law School, but was compelled to return home during the school year because of illness, and resumed the study of law at the old Columbian Law School, where he received the LL. M. degree in 1879. The same year Princeton University conferred on him the master of arts degree.

While pursuing his studies at Columbian Law School Mr. Davis also was reading law in the offices of Walter D. Davidge, an acknowledged leader of the local bar, and he was admitted to the District of Columbia and Maryland bars in the Fall of 1879, after which time he engaged in the active practice with the late Albert Gallatin Riddle, a member from Ohio of the war Congress, and considered one of the greatest orators before the courts in that period.

Wed Partner's Daughter

January 17, 1882, Mr. Davis married Harriet Williams Riddle, daughter of his partner, who, with a sister, Miss Josephine Davis, survives him.

Mr. Davis from the very outset enjoyed a large and varied practice. He served as Assistant Corporation Counsel for the District of Columbia from 1885 to 1889, and as United States District Attorney for the District of Columbia from 1897 to 1899, at which time he resigned to re-enter private practice. During the period from 1888 to 1906, in addition to practicing his profession, Mr. Davis devoted himself to teaching, being professor of common law practice and lecturer on history of the law, at Columbian University, and professor of evidence, pleading, mercantile law and history of the law at National University, which latter university in 1898 bestowed on him the honorary degree of LL. D.

From the time of his resignation as District attorney until his death, Mr. Davis devoted himself exclusively to the practice of his profession and public affairs. In the criminal branches of the courts during the last half century he has been considered the dean, having tried upward of 40 first degree murder cases in addition to innumerable other important criminal trials. Associates recall that he was never so much interested as when engaged in an exceedingly difficult and technical case and his attention was being employed almost continuously by what are known as test cases, in both the criminal and civil branches of the law.

Was Leading Authority

He was recognized as a leading authority on the history of the law in the District of Columbia and the history of local courts, and had accumulated one of the largest and most complete collections of books and pamphlets on this subject in the city, which he recently donated to the Public Library. At the same time he donated to Howard University library about 3,000 volumes on the history of the English law and all the English law and equity reports.

Mr. Davis was a former president of the District Bar Association, was one of the oldest members of the American Bar Association, and a member of the bars of Maryland, Virginia, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Kentucky, as well as the United States Supreme Court, before which he frequently appeared. He was a member of the Cosmos, Metropolitan and Chevy Chase Clubs of this city, and the Princeton Clubs of New York and New Jersey, the Columbia Historical Society, the Association of Oldest Inhabitants of the District of Columbia and Society of Natives and many other local organizations.

Mr. Davis was president of the class of '76, Princeton University, and was one of its most loyal and devoted alumni. He never missed a re-union or a football game between Princeton and Yale. One of his outstanding characteristics was his love for Washington.

When urged by a fabulous offer to remove to New York City, Mr. Davis said, "I was born here when it was a village, I am a villager, and I want to live and die in my village."

The active pallbearers will be younger members of the bar: Joseph Y. Reeves, Frederick Stohlman, president of the Barristers' Club; George D. Horning, jr., representing the District attorney's office; Bolitha J. Laws, Bertrand Emerson, jr., and DeWitt Patterson.

The entire membership of the bar association will attend the funeral, according to an announcement by Acting President Paul E. Lesh and George E. Gertman, secretary of the bar association. This will be in lieu of the appointment of a representative committee due to the prominence of Mr. Davis at the District bar for the past 50 years.

The Columbia Historical Society, Association of Oldest Inhabitants of the District of Columbia, K.F.R. Society, Princeton University class of '76, the Princeton faculty, the Washington Literary Society, the Society of Natives and other organizations will be represented by delegations.

The death of Mr. Davis was called to the attention of Chief Justice McCoy of the District Supreme Court this morning by John E. Laskey, former United States attorney, in behalf of the bar association. The chief justice directed that formal notice of the death of the distinguished lawyer be entered on the minutes of the court and said that when court adjourned this afternoon it would not resume until after the funeral of Mr. Davis tomorrow morning. Mr. Laskey said:

"If your honor please, since the court last adjourned it has suffered a distinct loss. Henry E. Davis, the nestor and best beloved member of its bar, died Saturday night, some 10 days after his 72nd birthday. He was native here his long, active, useful and kindly life was spent in our midst and we learned to love him much. These corridors and these courtrooms, in which he lived his professional life, are filled with memories of his brilliant career and appropriate proceedings will late be had in this building to pay fitting tribute to his memory as a lawyer and as a man.

"Some one once aptly said of him he was every inch a lawyer. He was all of that and more to the many of us who could call him friend, he was every inch a man. His profession was his obsession; to it his life was devoted, and no man did more to exemplify and uphold its best traditions. He honored the courts and by the courts was held in high esteem."

Chief Justice McCoy, in granting the request of Mr. Laskey for appropriate entry of the passing of Mr. Davis, said that "besides being a great lawyer, Mr. Davis had another side, which was his great capacity for human companionship, which will remain in memory long after his capacity as a lawyer shall have been forgotten."

All branches of Municipal Court also will be adjourned tomorrow out of respect to Mr. Davis.

History of Naval Lodge, No. 4, F.A.A.M.

John Davis, of Able, the first Master of the Lodge, was born in Delaware, September 27, 1774; engaged for a time in business in Baltimore, and established his permanent home in Washington, D.C., at the beginning of the last century. He was employed in the Navy Yard for many years, from 1830 to within a few years of his death holding the position of Master Workman, being the second incumbent of that office in the local Yard. He is described as of medium height and build, and although having suffered the loss of an eye, is said never to have worn glasses. While in this city he resided on Capitol Hill--for some years of I, between 10th and 11th Streets, S.E., and later near the Congressional Cemetery. Domestic and retiring in his disposition he yet took an active interest in religion and public movements, being a leading member of the Baptist Church all his life and prominently identified with every measure of municipal progress. He was a member of the old Volunteer Fire Company of Anacostia, D.C., and for many years its treasurer. In addition to serving his Lodge seven years as its presiding officer, and subsequently in other positions of honor and trust, he was the first Treasurer of the Grand Lodge of the District of Columbia and was one of the most influential members of that body during its formative period. He was twice married and left five children. Full of years and honors he was called from labor to refreshment, January 22, 1853. A strong, virile character, gentle yet firm, of simple life and faithful, yet withal strong and effective in all movements looking to the advancement and uplift of his brother man. Such was the master spirit who first stood at the head, and for a long period helped to shape the destiny, of Naval Lodge.

Death of a Well-Known Citizen

Mr. Joseph W. Davis, a well-known and estimable citizen, died this morning about 11 o'clock, of smallpox, at his residence on E street. Mr. Davis was a printer by trade, and was formerly a member of the Columbia Typographical Society. He was for a time a member of the Board of Common Council of this city; was for many years engaged as penny postman, and in that capacity gave very general satisfaction. Latterly he has been keeping the well-known grocery store at the corner of Ninth and E streets. Mr. Davis was 45 years of age.

The death of so many useful members of the community by this frightful disease [small pox] points out the necessity for profin action in staying the pestilence by every available means--vaccination, isolation of the infected from the community at large, and designation of the infected houses so that persons may not go unwarned into the very jaws of death.

The various measures to these ends before the two Boards of the city councils will, we trust, be made effective laws at their next session, and put into immediate force.

The Evening Star, April 2, 1889 In Memoriam Just approaching the threshold, as it seemed, of a useful, honorable, upright manhood, Paul R. Davis, at the age of 18, was last Sunday suddenly called to the bosom of his Maker. When apparent convalescence, following a brief, though serious illness, was filling home with sunshine, the mortal stroke came with the abruptness of a thunder-clap. A devoted mother, momentarily and with cheerful words leaving her cherished charge, is recalled by a sudden fall, and in a few minutes finds herself alone with the dead semblance of an idolized son. A father, leaving home with buoyant, thankful heart, is speedily met at the street corner with the news that the joy and pride of his life has been struck down.  To the parents thus bereaved, and to others near akin, a sorrow has come in the presence of which human sympathy seems cold and out of place. Human wisdom can compound no "sweet oblivious antidote" for grief like this. Even superhuman Power, while it may and will in time bind up these wounded hearts, can never repress the ever-present longing for "the touch of a vanished hand and the sound of a voice that is still." But this longing will be softened and assuaged by the precious recollection of the pure character of this bright, brave boy, who lived his life of filial devotion under the chastening influence of a calm premonition (not a fearful foreboding), confided months ago to a few, that for him death was not far away. The memory of his brief but lovely career will "smell sweet and blossom in the dust." B.

The Death of Mrs. Sarah Davis

Mrs. Sarah Davis, of East Washington, who died yesterday morning, as stated in The Star, was probably the only person who ever shook hands with all the President's of the country except President Garfield. She was in the 94th year and was born in the District near Bladensburg. She died at No. 1010 I street southeast, where she has lived for about 60 years. She had been an active member of the East Washington Baptist church for nearly 75 years. Her husband, John Davis, who died about 25 years ago, had charge of the Navy Yard during the War of 1812, and took all of the records and other valuable documents of the government to Montgomery county in a wagon to save them from being destroyed by the British.

A Long Life Ended

Death of Mrs. Sarah Davis at the Age of 94 Years

Mrs. Sarah Davis, one of the oldest and most highly respected ladies in East Washington, died at her residence, 1006 I street southeast, yesterday morning, at the ripe old age of 94 years. She was the widow of John Davis, who was for many years master plumber at the Navy Yard, this city. Mrs. Davis was born in the District and resided here the best portion of her life. She boasted of having seen all the Presidents except Gen. Garfield, and at the laying of the corner-stone of the Capitol stood by the side of Gen. Washington. She was for a long time a member of the board of managers of the Washington Orphan Asylum and a leading member of the Second Baptist church. Her oldest son, Dr. C.W. Davis, served in the Mexican war on the staff of Gen. Wool.

Mr. John B. Larner

Editor of Records of the Columbia Historical Society

Washington, D.C.

My dear Mr. Larner:

I enclose a copy of a clipping taken from my mother's "Scrap-book." You will observe at the close of the notice it is stated that Mrs. Sarah Walker Davis had shaken hands with every President from Washington to Hayes.

Having been born in this City prior to the Civil War, I may say that I have seen every President from Lincoln to Coolidge, with only one President in doubt, namely Andrew Johnson. Without question I have seen every President from Hayes to Coolidge.

It is a matter of regret that the date of the clipping cannot be given with accuracy. The stone over Mrs. Davis' grave at the Congressional Cemetery gives the following information:

In

Memory of Sarah Walker

Wife of John Davis

of Abel

Born

Sep. 14, 1787

Died

Sep. 12, 1881

When quite young I was allowed to accompany my Mother to call on Mrs. Davis at her home at the Navy Yard, and I remember her distinctly. The fact that she had seen General Washington lay the corner-stone of the Capitol was well authenticated and often alluded to in my Grandfather's family.

Very truly yours,

Frank L. Stickney

The Evening Star,

Ninety-Four Years

Death of an Aged Lady Who Saw the Cornerstone of the Capitol Laid

One of the most remarkable women in the District, Mrs. Sarah Davis, died early yesterday morning at her residence on I street south-east, near the navy yard aged ninety-four years. She was the widow of John Davis, of Abel, and mother of Dr. Charles Davis, who died eleven years ago, and Abel Davis who died eight years ago. The former was once consul to Guaymas, and at the time of his death a translator in the State Department. His daughter, Mrs. Brown, survives him. Abel Davis was for many years president of the Fireman's Insurance Company of this city. Both were men of note, and highly respect in this community. Mrs. Davis saw Washington lay the cornerstone of the Capitol on the 18th of September, 1793. She was then a little girl, six years of age. A few years afterward she saw the Father of His Country at Rockville, Md., and was fond in after life of telling an incident of that occasion. So great was the enthusiasm that the people took the horses from the carriage and pulled it along the crowded thoroughfares. At a certain point the carriage was stopped by the crowd opposite to where she was standing. Directly in front of her a mother proudly lifted up her curly-haired boy to get a glimpse of General Washington. The little fellow burst out in exclamation: "Why mother, he's only a man!" Washington heard the remark and laughingly called the child to him, gave him a coin, and said: "Yes, my son, only a man; always remember that."

Mrs. Davis was born in an old mansion near where the Congressional Cemetery is now located, was married in the same house, died within sight of the place and will be buried in the cemetery tomorrow at two o'clock from her late residence 1006 I Street southeast. She had traveled considerable, was a well-educated lady of the old school, and had shaken hands with every President from Washington to Hayes. She was tall and commanding in appearance, with a strong and pleasant face, keen black eyes and affable manner. The witty sayings, charitable doings, and the recollections of her eventful life she was so fond of relating will not soon be forgotten by those who had the pleasure of an acquaintance with Aunt Sally Davis.

The National Intelligencer, Friday, January 30, 1835

The lamented decease of the Honorable Warren R. Davis, one of the Representatives of the State of South Carolina in Congress, which occurred in this city yesterday morning, arrested the proceedings in both Houses of Congress. The melancholy event was announced to the House of Representatives, in terms more than usually appropriate, just, and eloquent, by Mr. Pickens, the Representative from South Carolina; and, when the news reached the Senate officially, it was responded to with equal eloquence and feeling by the distinguished elder Senator from that State. After voting to attend the Funeral of the deceased at 12 o'clock today, and to wear the usual mourning, both Houses immediately adjourned.

The National Intelligencer, Saturday, January 31, 1835

The funeral of the late lamented Warren R. Davis, of S. Carolina, took place yesterday from the Capitol, according to previous arrangement. The gloom of the day rendered the occasion yet more gloomy. Neither House of Congress transacted business afterwards; the Senate adjourning over to Monday.

An occurrence took place at the close of the ceremony at the Capitol, which produced naturally a great sensation at the time, which can be heard by no one without shuddering, and which, if the consequence had been equal to the apparent purpose, would have signalized the day by a horrible catastrophe.

[We were not witnesses of it, and, in our account of it, speak from information, but from information entirely to be relied on.]

As the President of the United States (Jackson), who was present at the solemn ceremony of the funeral, came into the portico of the Capitol from the Rotundo, a person stepped forward from the crowd into the space in front of the President, and snapped a pistol at him, the percussion-cap of which exploded without igniting the charge! This person was struck down by a blow from Lieutenant Gedney, of the Navy, who happened to be near; he also received a blow promptly aimed at him by Mr. Secretary Woodbury; but, before receiving either blow, snapped a second pistol at the President. The cap of that lock also exploded without igniting the charge! The perpetrator of this daring outrage was of course immediately seized and taken in custody by the Marshal of the District, by whom he was carried to the City Hall, where he underwent an examination before Chief Justice Cranch. His name, it appears, is Richard Lawrence, by trade a painter, a resident for tow or three years in the first ward of this city, and formerly of Georgetown. The gentlemen whose testimony was taken before the Judge, were Mr. Secretary Woodbury, Mr. Secretary Dickerson, Mr. Burd, Representative from Pennsylvania, Mr. Randolph, Sergeant at Arms of the House, Mr. Kingman, one of the Reporters for the National Intelligencer, and Lieutenant Gedney. The pistols, which had been secured by Mr Burd, were of brass, and, on examination in court, were found to be well loaded with powder and ball, which our readers would suppose, until the fact is stated, could hardly have been possible. How extraordinary (and O how fortunate!) the failure of the evident design of this miserable maniac, (for so he must be considered, under all the circumstances,) against the life of the President! We say he is a maniac because the act shews him to be insane, and not because any evidence of his insanity was produced on his examination; though we have heard that he has been heretofore confined for acts of violence indicating an unsound mind.

On his examination, the unhappy man declined making any explanation or cross-examining the witnesses. We have hard no rational motive even conjectured for his crime.

The offence being aailable one, and excessive bail being forbidden, bail was demanded to the amount of a thousand dollars, for want of which the prisoner was committed for trial, the Judge intimating that if he had been able to give bail, sufficient securities would have been required, in addition, to insure his good behavior. He will be tried of course at the next term of the court.

Dawes, Dr. Frederick	d. 10 Feb 1852	73 yrs.	Keyworth Vault
The National Intelligencer, February 11, 1852
Died, in this city, yesterday morning, at half-past one o'clock, after a protracted illness of nineteen months, Dr. Frederick Dawes, in the 74th year of his age.
This distinguished physician, valuable citizen, and amiable and excellent man was a native of the town of Huntingdon, in the county of Huntingdon, England. After enjoying the advantages of a regular medical education, in the course of which he studied under the celebrated Sir Astley Cooper, he commenced the practice of his profession at Wisbeach, in Lincolnshire. Subsequently, he was induced to accept a commission in the service of the Emperor of Russia, acting as surgeon with great acceptance on board a Russian man-of-war in the Mediterranean. After this he returned to his native land, and resumed his profession there, but being a liberal in politics, and having contracted a warm admiration for the Government and policy of the United States, he in 1819 embarked with his family from Liverpool for New York. Though strong inducements were held out to him, both in New York and Philadelphia, to continue in those cities, his first practice in the United States was in Washington. Here he remained several years, and then removed to Illinois, where he purchased and resided on a farm. Not satisfied with the West, he recrossed the mountains, and located himself on a farm in Westmoreland county, Virginia, where he continued three years. In 1839 he returned to Washington, where he has remained ever since. Dr. Dawes always maintained a distinguished position in the ranks of the medical profession of this city. His judgment in general was very good, but in the diagnosis of diseases pre-eminent. Towards his medical brethren, as indeed to all with whom he had intercourse, his bearing was ever that of a most benevolent, intelligent, high-toned gentleman; modest, kind, considerate, always delicately mindful of the rights, the welfare, and comfort of others. For the country of his nativity he kept a tender recollection, which by no means interfered with the deep interest he took in the honor, the progress, and dignity of his adopted land. A faithful husband, a tenderly affectionate father, a kind master, he was admired and beloved by all who knew him, and by those most who knew him best. For the week previous to his decease he suffered greatly, but, as throughout his trying illness, with wonderful patience and submission. The funeral will take place from his residence, corner of D and 9th streets, on Thursday afternoon, at half-past three o'clock, to which the friends of the family are, without further notice, invited. The National Intelligencer, February 14, 1852 The funeral of Dr. Dawes, yesterday afternoon, was quite fully attended by man of the numerous friends of the venerated deceased, both professional and non-professional, attesting the deep and sincere regard in which he was held. The services, after the form of the Episcopal Church, were performed by the Rev. Mr. French, of the Church of the Epiphany. At about quarter past five the procession reached the Congress burial ground, in one of the private vaults of which the mortal remains of this modest but worthy and valued friend of rich and poor will temporarily rest. History of the Medical Society of D.C., 1811-1909 Born Jan. 26, 1778, in Huntingdon, England. Served as Surgeon on Russian man-of-war. Returned to Wisbeach and then, in 1819, emigrated to the United States, and came to Washington. Donations Bar Pauper's Grave
 Frances Dawson, aged and penniless daughter of a wealthy Washington attorney of the late 19th century, was buried in her family plot at Congressional Cemetery yesterday.

Miss Dawson, who died at St. Elizabeths Hospital last Thursday, was saved from a pauper's grave by parishioners of St. James Episcopal Church, 222 8th st. n.e. She and her sister, Marguerite, who died at St. Elizabeths two years ago, were the daughters of George F. Dawson, who donated the land for the church and paid for the parish house.

Seven persons, including two old friends, attended a solemn requiem mass at the church yesterday. There was another pledge of a donation for the burial cost, bringing the cash and pledges to about $154. There is $30 in the church discretionary fund, leaving about $70 still to be raised, the Rev. William Lloyd Goodrich said.

A Well-Known Citizen of East Washington Passes Away
 Geo. Francis Dawson, one of the leading citizens of the city, died yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at his home, 227 A street southeast, of apoplexy. About three weeks ago he was taken ill with the grip and when he recovered was in a very weak condition. Last Friday a week the doctor told him that he might go down stairs for the first time. While he was dressing for breakfast he fell with a stroke of apoplexy. His wife, hearing the fall and fearing something had happened, hastened upstairs and found him stretched upon the floor. The doctor was summoned, and it was found that Mr. Dawson had been paralyzed on the left side, his brain in part affected. He lingered ten days, with occasional returns to consciousness, and yesterday afternoon passed quietly away. He was in the fifty-ninth year of his age and leaves a family of a wife and three children. The funeral will take place from St. James' Church next Thursday.

His Late Colleagues
 On learning of the death of Mr. Dawson the assessor and board of revision met this morning in the office of the assessor and unanimously adopted a resolution setting forth that in the sudden demise of Mr. Dawson this city is deprived of a citizen conscientious in the discharge of his official duties, and whose sterling qualities commanded the admiration of his friends, and tendering to his family sincere condolence in their sad affliction.

His Life
 Mr. Dawson was one of the best known of Washington citizens and his death will be deeply regretted. By birth Mr. Dawson was an Englishman, but his early arrival in this country and entire sympathy with American ideas rendered him as truly a citizen of the United States as if his ancestors had lived here for generations. Early in his career in this country Mr. Dawson did journalistic work on the Pacific coast. Afterward coming to this city he was employed for many years under the Senate. Always interested in politics the deceased has rendered efficient services in the party with which he affiliated. For several campaigns he acted as editor for the national republican committee's campaign text book. Mr. Dawson has been an energetic and able exponent of the greater Washington, and his time and abilities were always at the service of the city of his adoption. East Washington especially owes a debt of gratitude to the dead man. Since its formation he has been an active and useful member of the East Washington Citizens' Association, of which for many years he was president, resigning only because his sense of fitness pointed to that action, at the time he was appointed a member of the board of assessors to make the recent new assessment of real estate. Mr. Dawson was appointed to this board in May, 1891, and served as a member until the new assessment was completed not long ago.

Died. In this city on Thursday night, of a lingering illness, John Dawson, a Representative in Congress, from Virginia, aged about 52 years. He had filled with respectability various public stations, having been in the occupation of some appointment by the People from the time he reached maturity until the day of his death. He had successively filled the stations of the Member of the Virginia Convention, of the General Assembly and Executive Council of Virginia and Representative in Congress from the Fredericksburg district, to which he had been reelected by the People for sixteen or eighteen years successively. Mr. Dawson owed his painful illness and his death to his expedition to the seat of war during the last summer, in the capacity of volunteer aid to the commanding general. He caught the fever common on the Lakes; which left him much debilitated, and induced a cold, which settling on his lungs, terminated his life by a rapid and painful decay of those vital organs. He was buried on yesterday evening. His remains were attended to "that bourne whence no traveller returns," by both Houses of Congress; and a numerous train of personal friends, who had known him long and appreciated his political virtue and private worth.

Death of Mr. Dawson, of Louisiana

Mr. Harmanson rose and addressed the House as follows:

It is, indeed, Mr. Speaker, a painful duty I have to perform, to announce to this honorable body the demise of one of its most gifted members, my friend and predecessor, Gen. J.B. Dawson, of Louisiana, member elect to the 29th Congress.

He called into public life, Mr. Speaker, at a very early age; and, guided by his noble nature, embraced the Jeffersonian doctrines, the great humanizing cause of equal rights; and he fervently believed, sir, if fairly carried out, they would produce a higher civilization, a more perfect happiness, a more refined virtue, and a larger liberty, than has yet fallen to the lot of man. And, to attain those great ends, he labored with a zeal, energy, and ability that gave him the unbounded confidence of his friends. And his great courtesy, frankness, and noble bearing won him the admiration and esteem of his opponents. Yet, Mr. Speaker, he had his faults--some thought, grave faults. But, sir, they were so overshadowed by his many great virtues, that his friends, at least, were blind to them. He was highly intellectual, accomplished, generous, and brave: of the keenest sensibility. He ever had a tear of sympathy for the afflicted and oppressed. His purse was ever open to relieve distress. As to fear, he was an utter stranger to it. Indeed, sir, he was the very soul of chivalry. He is gone, Mr. Speaker; he is gone, sir, cut off in the meridian of his life, in the zenith of his usefulness. His frail constitution sank under your cruel northern blasts. But he had the great consolation of reaching his beloved home--his beloved Tunica hills--and there to meet and mingle with his relatives and friends; and, Mr. Speaker, their hearts sank within them when they beheld but the wreck, the shadow, of their beloved Dawson. They saw that his days were numbered; but hope, that great comforter, had not deserted him. He promised he would soon get well. God, sir, willed it otherwise. And, Mr. Speaker, in the closing of his days he had the holy satisfaction of being surrounded by devoted friends, and an angel wife, to smooth his pillow, to sooth and comfort him--of drawing his last breath in her arms, and giving her his last, long, farewell look. His grave, Mr. Speaker, was attended by all the surrounding country, rich and poor, political friend and political foe. All paid tribute to his many virtues, and all forgot he ever had faults.

Followed by resolutions, the House adjourned.

Was Swept Off Yacht by Swinging Boom -- Would-Be Rescuer Fails

The body of George Deale, the eleven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Deale of 9 3d street northeast, who was drowned Tuesday afternoon in the Coan river, near the mouth of the Potomac, was recovered this morning.

The body will be brought to this city tomorrow morning and funeral services will be held at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at St. Mark's Episcopal Church, 3d and A streets southeast. Rev. Dr. W.L De Vries, rector of the church, will officiate. Burial will be in Congressional cemetery. Companions of the boy will act as pallbearers.

Young Deale was a member of the vested choir of St. Mark's Episcopal Church and was one of the party of fifty choir boys who went on an excursion to Scotland, St. Mary county, Md. The party was under the direction of Rev. Dr. De Vries, his assistant, Rev. R..A. Curtis and Henry Blair, a lawyer of this city.

Dr. De Vries wanted to return to Washington Tuesday afternoon. The members of the party boarded their yacht and crossed the river at Cornfield harbor. While in the harbor they became becalmed. The engineer was endeavoring to start the engine when suddenly a breeze sprang up, and without warning the boom swung around and Deale, who was standing on the deck, was knocked overboard. George Bullough, a clerk in the rural free delivery division of the Post Office Department, who was in the party, jumped overboard and caught Deale as he came to the surface.

Boy Slips From His Grasp

In his plunge overboard, however, Mr. Bullough swallowed a quantity of water, and while endeavoring to eject it the boy slipped from his grasp and sank. Mr. Bullough was himself nearly overcome by his exertions and had to be assisted aboard the yacht.

Shortly after the boy went down several members of the party dived about the spot, but were unable to recover the body. The yacht returned to Scotland and Rev. Dr. De Vries came to this city to inform the boy's parents of the drowning. Dr. De Vries received a telegram from his assistant this morning stating that the body had been recovered.

Mr. Bullough, who made the unsuccessful effort to save the boy, is a member of the Washington Canoe Club and a fine athlete. He is regarded as a strong swimmer, and had he not swallowed so much water it is believed he would have saved the boy.

The outing of the choir boys this year which is an annual event, is the fourteenth that has been given. Deale had only been a member of the choir since February.

Dean, Mary Ann	d. 2 Jan 1884	58 yrs.	R90/279
-----------------------	---------------	---------	----------------

Dean. On Wednesday, January 2d, 1884, at 9:45 o'clock, Mary Ann Dean, in the 59th year of her age, after a sudden but lingering illness, which she bore with Christian fortitude and resignation, at her residence, 725 Tenth street southeast. Gone but not forgotten.

Our Mother from us has gone,
A voice we loved is still,
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.
God in his wisdom has recalled
The boon His love had given,
And though the body moulders here,
The soul is safe in heaven.

By Her Sons

Relatives and friends are respectfully invited to attend her funeral at 2:30 o'clock, Sunday afternoon. No flowers.

Death of Llewellyn Deane

A Well-Known and Useful Citizen Dies

Mr. Llewellyn Deane, for many years a resident of this city, and prominent in church, business and social circles, died Tuesday night at Garfield Hospital. He has been declining for the past two years, but death was due directly to valvular disease of the heart. His wife and his son, Mr. William W. Deane, were with him at the time of his death. Services will be held at the First Congregational Church tomorrow afternoon at 4:15, to which relatives and friends are invited, but the interment, which will be made at Congressional cemetery, will be private.

Mr. Deane was born in Ellsworth, Me., and for many years was closely identified with politics in that state, being a warm supporter of Mr. Blaine. He also represented his district in the Maine legislature for several terms. Just before the war Mr. Deane came to Washington as principal examiner in the patent office, which place he held for several years, and finally relinquished it to take up the practice of law and the soliciting of patents. He had been recognized for years as one of the leading patent attorneys of the city. In late years his son, Mr. W.W. Deane, has been associated with him. Mr. Deane was an earnest church worker, and one of the pioneers of the First Congregational Church. He organized the Bowdoin College Alumni Association, and was always a prominent figure at the annual gatherings of the members of that association, being a brilliant talker and a most pleasing entertainer. He was a man of distinguished bearing and polished manners, possessing also a great deal of personal magnetism.

He possessed sterling qualities, and one of his most marked characteristics was his unselfishness of nature, that led him to be always doing something for others.

Mr. Deane's first wife died at Kensington, Md., and he afterward married Miss Sarah M. Benedict, a member of one of the oldest and most prominent families of New Haven, Conn. At the funeral services tomorrow the pallbearers will be Messrs. R.W.F. Ogilvie, Ernest N. Gray, O.D. Kinsman, H.A. Hazen, Alfred Wood and Wm. Lamborn.

DeAtley, Howard M.	d. 22 Nov 1897	38 yrs.	R93/306
The Evening Star, November 23, 1897 Takes His Own Life Suicide of Howard M. DeAtley, a Saloon Keeper Fear of Financial Ruin The Cause Brooded Over Troubles and Drank Liquor to Excess The Deed Premeditated Howard M. DeAtley, who kept a saloon at No. 802 8th street southwest, committed suicide about 8 o'clock last night by shooting himself through the head. The report of the pistol shot was heard about the hour mentioned, but his body was not found until about 6:30 o'clock this morning. Fear of financial ruin and over-indulgence in liquor are the causes assigned for the deed.  According to the statements of friends of the unfortunate man, he was in the liquor business only because he had a large family and had failed of success in the grocery business. His wife was anxious for him to give it up, and he had concluded to sell out in the event of his license being renewed this year.  During recent months, it is said, DeAtley has been a steady drinker, and it was believed by the police that he had frequently violated the Sunday law, although they had been unable to get the evidence against him. When the time came for him to renew his application for a license he did not have the funds necessary, and one of the brewing companies had to put up the money for him. This allowed him to continue in business until the excise board passed upon his application. He had heard that the police had reported against him, which proved to be true. He realized that, in consequence of the adverse report, he would probably be refused a renewal of his license. He discussed his business affairs with his wife, and only a few days ago he remarked:  "If my license is turned down I'll kill myself."  Mrs. DeAtley reasoned with him. To kill himself, she told him, would only make matters worse. There were seven small children to support, to whom he owed a duty. The wife advised him to go in the grocery business again or any other business in which she could help him.  Became Despondent DeAtley became despondent. Yesterday he was about his home on H street, just around the corner from the saloon, until about 3 o'clock in the afternoon, when he went out for a stroll. Mrs. DeAtley says he was sober when he left her. He was later seen hanging about the door of his saloon, and it is stated that he was also observed to enter the place. Notice of this violation of law was made to the police by several men employed at the stable near the river front, and Policeman Vermillion and Smith went to make an investigation.  There had been a crowd of men on the corner drinking, and the police learned that De Atley had furnished them the liquor. About 7 o'clock the officers went in a yard opposite his place and remained on watch. It was but a few minutes until the saloonkeeper entered the place. Then the policemen moved across the street and met him as he came out the door. He had a pint bottle of whisky in his pocket and was placed under arrest.  On the way to the station DeAtley conversed with the officers about his license saying his arrest was made for the purpose of influencing the excise board against his application. When the station was reached a charge of violating the Sunday law was preferred against him, and he was told that he would have to leave $50 collateral for his appearance in court.  Released on His Promise

"I haven't got but five or eight dollars to my name," he said to Sergt. Daley, who was in charge of the station.

"Then I suppose I'll have to let you go upon your promise to appear," said the sergeant.

Lieut. Hollinberger entered the station just about that time, and, as DeAtley was a business man, he directed his release upon his pledge to appear in court that morning.

DeAtley's only conversation in the station was about the license and his poverty. Upon the lieutenant assuring him he would not lock him up, the accused man was extremely grateful, and when he left he started in the direction of his house. Instead of stopping to see his wife and children, however, he went to the saloon and entered by way of the south door. Persons standing on the street saw him enter, but no light was seen afterward and the incident was forgotten. All was quiet in the place when the men on the corner moved away, but a few minutes afterward a watchman in the neighborhood named Blake heard what he thought was the report of a pistol shot. As such noises are frequently heard about the river front he paid no attention to it.

The morning brought to DeAtley's family the news of the death of the father and husband. When he did not return home at midnight, Mrs. DeAtley became very uneasy, but she decided to make no inquiry until morning. Policeman Bruce, who was on the beat near the saloon and house, suspected something wrong when the saloon remained closed until after the usual hour, and made inquiries. Soon after 6 o'clock he met Mrs. DeAtley at the front door of the saloon. A sign that had been put up against the door to hide his body was pushed aside and the arm of the man fell to the floor.

The Discovery

Mrs. DeAtley screamed and the officer took her to her home, going immediately thereafter to his own home and directing his wife to call at the DeAtley house. Bruce then returned to the saloon, broke open the door and went inside. There on the floor was the dead body of DeAtley. The pistol was on the floor near his head, and there was a big pool of blood between the body and the door. DeAtley had gone behind a partition at one end of the bar, and after removing his coat had stretched himself out on an oyster sign, using an old shirt for a pillow. He was in this position when the fatal shot was fired.

The deceased was 38 years old, and was born in Westmoreland county, Va. His father, J.C. DeAtley, keeps a grocery store on 7th street southwest, while a brother is in the saloon business on Pennsylvania avenue.

Coroner Carr viewed the body and gave a certificate of death. The remains were then turned over to an undertaker and prepared for burial.

Obituary

DeAtley. After a short and painful illness, Mollie Barnes DeAtley, on February 2d, 1882, in the 24th year of her age.

In her has ended the life of wife, mother and child and it is but simple truth to say that in all those relations none more faithful, loving and true. This, together with her pure Christian life, drew her nearer yet, and to many.

And so, while upon earth her life led us to higher, holier things, so in her death do we feel that she is "not lost, but gone before," and is there a beacon light bearing us on and over and up. So weep not fond husband, devoted parents and loving sister, for in following her pure example you shall meet her again, for "blessed are the dead who die in the Lord; even so saith the spirit; for they do rest."

Pasquale De Falco, a member of the Marine Band, died yesterday afternoon, at the Marine Barracks, from injuries received in an affray with two soldiers about two weeks ago. Miss DeFrain and Edward Meininger

A mother's thought for the future happiness of her daughter when the shadows of death were surrounding her is recalled today in the announcement of the marriage of Miss Robena M. DeFrain of 707 Rhode Island avenue northwest and Albert Edward Meininger of 2017 9th street northwest, which was solemnized yesterday afternoon at Rockville by Rev. Ernest L. Wolfe, pastor of the Southern Methodist Church of that place.

Calling her daughter to her bedside yesterday morning the mother, who has been seriously ill for several months said, "Robena, I want to see you safely married. Can't you have the ceremony performed today?"

The daughter realized that her parent was within the shadow of death and agreed to have the marriage solemnized at once.

Ceremony Performed at Rockville

She lost no time in communicating with her fiance and he agreed at once that they should go to Rockville and have the nuptial knot tied. The young man is but eighteen years of age, while his bride is several months his junior. He speedily obtained the written consent of his parents in the marriage and hurried away with his bride-to-be to the Maryland Gretna Green. Here he applied for a license to wed, but the clerk of the county court announced that the letter was not sufficient, but that he should have a printed blank filled out and signed by two witnesses to the signatures of his parents. Young Meininger left Miss DeFrain at a hotel and hurried to the city to obtain the necessary signatures. He then returned to Rockville, where the ceremony was performed.

Found Bride's Mother Dead

Mr. and Mrs. Meininger came at once to the home of the bride, and as they passed the portal the young woman was informed that her mother had died at 2:30 o'clock, several hours before.

"If I had not been compelled to come back to Washington to obtain the signatures of my parents the second time," said the groom this afternoon, "we would have arrived here before Mrs. DeFrain died. As it was, we were delayed and came too late to see her alive again."

Instead of going on a wedding trip the young couple will follow the body of the bride's mother to the grave in Congressional cemetery Thursday afternoon. The services will be held at the residence on that afternoon at 3 o'clock and will be conducted by Rev. Dr. Frederick D. Power, pastor of the Vermont Avenue Christian Church.

Besides the husband and daughter, Mrs. DeFrain is survived by five brothers, Norman, William, Reese, George, D. Hazen and Benjamin Harrison McLeod, all of this city.

A Shocking Double Tragedy

A Husband Murders His Wife and Then Commits Suicide

A shocking double tragedy occurred last evening in a quiet neighborhood on Capitol Hill. Frederic de Frouville murdered his wife and then killed himself at the wife's residence, No. 610 South A Street. Since last November, de Frouville and his wife had been separated, and an application for divorce, upon which no decree has been rendered, was made by the wife. About half-past eight o'clock last night, while Mrs. de Frouville was in her parlor with George Buckingham, a young man living in an adjoining house, de Frouville came to the door and rang the bell. Mrs. de Frouville going to the window saw her husband and told him to go away. He demanded admission, and the wife being in fear told Buckingham to get a policeman. Buckingham thereupon left by a rear door, but had hardly left the house, when de Frouville forced the door open. It appears that de Frouville then at once sprang towards his wife, and shot her dead with a revolver, the ball entering her left temple. Then placing the pistol to his own head, he fired and fell, dying beside his wife. The neighbors were at once alarmed, and, running to the house, found the two bodies stretched upon the floor of the parlor. Dr. Bayne was summoned, but his services were useless. De Frouville was about 35 years of age, and his wife a year or two younger. She was a Dane, her maiden name being Andrea Wolstrup. She was tall, handsome and accomplished, being an excellent linguist. They lived apparently in harmony until about two years ago, when, it is alleged, he began to be dissipated and treated her with much cruelty. De Frouville was born in Virginia of French parentage, and at the time of his marriage was employed in the Signal corps. Subsequently he lost his place, as it is stated, through his dissipated habits. Afterwards he secured employment under the Coast Survey, but lost his place from the same influences. Since their separation, Mrs. de Frouville had been engaged as a translator in the Agricultural department. Many stories as to the motive of the murder are in circulation. One alleges that de Frouville was angered at the attentions paid his wife by young Buckingham, and it is said that Buckingham was included in the scheme of murder, but fortunately escaped.

The Unhappy Married Life of the Victims

Mrs. de Frouville's maiden name, as stated above, was Andrea Maria Wolstrup. She came here from Denmark in 1871, accompanied by Col. Sheets, who had been U.S. consul at Elsinore, but had been elected to Congress as a republican from Alabama. He obtained a position for her in the Post Office department, where she acted as translator in the Dead Letter office. Some time in 1874 she got acquainted with Frederic de Frouville, a Virginian by birth, but of French descent. She married him secretly in Baltimore in 1876, against the remonstrances of her friends, to whom he was known as a wild, reckless man. After that she retained her place in the Post Office department under her maiden name; but upon the birth of a child, which soon died, she resigned her position there. She was afterwards appointed to a clerkship in the Agricultural department through the influence of the late Senator Hill. De Frouville, however, went from bad to worse, and in November last, through John Ambler Smith, she applied for a divorce from him on account of habitual drunkenness and cruelty. In a conversation in St. Marc's hotel, about two months ago, De Frouville expressed his confident belief that she could not obtain a divorce from him. He spoke of her having transferred her affection to Mr. Buckingham; but he still declared that he loved her and could not help it, and would love her as long as he lived. The only thing he complained of was that she refused to deliver to him his private papers. He was then a clerk on one of the Seacoast and Inland steamers between here and Norfolk. She was seen on the Avenue yesterday afternoon, dressed in a red dress with a black cloak, accompanied by Mr. Buckingham, while de Frouville followed them on the other side.

The Divorce Suit

The bill for a divorce was filed November 19th last by the deceased wife. She set forth their marriage in September 12th, 1877, by Rev. J.W. Osborne, in Baltimore, and she charged that defendant has for three years past been an habitual drunkard, and by his violence had endangered her life. Mr. J. Ambler Smith appeared as her counsel.

Mr. W.T. Johnson, for defendant, filed his answer on December 13th, admitting his residence here and the marriage, but denied habitual drunkenness or violence.

On January 30 a replication was filed, and the case was referred to Mr. John Cruikshank, examiner in chancery, February 10, since which time some testimony had been taken, the witnesses being relatives.

Threatening to Blow His Wife's Brains Out

The testimony of Orsena L. Zimmerman, taken February 28, was the most important in that she testified that on the previous Sunday (February 25) de Frouville said, when perfectly sober, "I am driven to desperation, and I am going to blow her brains out." When she expostulated on his conduct he replied, "I am determined in my course." He was so cool and determined that witness was induced to warn Mrs. de Frouville. This deposition was taken, subject to cross-examination and exception.

No other testimony was taken till March 16th, when George W. Buckingham testified that he had known the parties for about five years; that de Frouville in te last three or four years indulged in drink pretty freely, and, as far as he knew, it seemed to be habitual.

Still Loved His Wife and Believed Her Virtuous

Yesterday de Frouville called at Mr. Cruikshank's office and asked to see Buckingham's testimony, which was shown him. He became excited and expressed his love for his wife and his confidence in her as a virtuous woman. He referred to Buckingham as doing him great injustice, and said he would not attack Buckingham himself, but would get his nephew (a youth about his weight) to whip him. Subsequently he became more calm and left.

Later in the afternoon he drank a little. When the divorce case was referred to he spoke of his wife in the highest terms and thought that the action she had taken had been the result of advice from pretended friends, and he asserted that he loved the very ground on which she walked.

De Frouville's Career Here

De Frouville came to this city when he was very young, but left here when he was a young man for New Orleans, and for a time was employed in the custom-house in that city. He came back to Washington some ten years ago, and had been employed in various capacities from time to time about the Capitol, and in the coast survey office, and was in the employ of the latter at Norfolk in November last, when the above suit was filed. When he returned he stated that this was the first intimation that he had of his wife contemplating such action.

Taking the Risk of Being Shot

Mrs. de Frouville having been warned of his threats some three weeks since, called on her counsel, Mr. J. Ambler Smith, who advised her to have him arrested, and Mr. Smith said it was her duty to do so. She replied that rather than their affairs be made public she would not do so, and would take the risk of being shot. In an interview with Mr. Smith a few days ago, de Frouville said that he was satisfied that his wife was a pure virtuous woman, and the very fact that she had taken action against him was evidence to him that he ought to be dead.

The Inquest Today

A curious, expectant crowd loitering about in the sunlight in the vicinity of 610 A street, a small two-story brick house marked the scene of the double tragedy last evening. The coroner, Dr. Patterson, arrived about 10 o'clock and viewed the remains. He decided that an inquest was unnecessary. The bodies were left lying in the parlor, where they had fallen after the fatal shot. The friends of deFrouville directed that his body be removed to Zurhorst's undertaking establishment on the avenue. The remains of Mrs. DeFrouville will remain in the house until the funeral. About 11 o'clock Coroner Patterson impaneled

The Following Jury:

W.B. Marsh, E.A. Lipscomb, M.J. Shomo, Chas. Beall, Sam'l Cook, Hugh McCaffrey.

The First Witness

was the young man Geo. W. Buckingham, who was in the house at the time. He is about eighteen yars of age, and has quite a youthful appearance. He said that he was taking a German lesson last evening with Mrs. de Frouville. They were about half through when the bell rang and she went to the bay window, and he heard a man's voice speaking. He did not hear what he said, but she said, "You can't come in here." The witness then knew it was de Frouville. The latter then began to kick upon the door, and Mrs. de Frouville, turning to witness said, "Run for an officer." He had just got out the back door when he heard two shots. He found two officers and brought them back to the house. The witness never heard de Frouville threaten his wife. She did not appear to be much excited. He had been taking lessons for three months. The witness thought from the man's voice that he was sober. He did not think that she was afraid of her husband, or he would carry out his threats. They had been separated seven or eight months.

Other Testimony

Mr. John E. Buckingham, Sr., the father of the witness, who lives next door, was sworn. He said that Mrs. de Frouville was in his house early in the evening and said she was busy on a dress which she wanted to wear to the matinee this afternoon and left early, and asked George to come in and recite while she sewed. He heard no sound in her house until his son came running in. The witness did not think that the husband had any feeling on account of her intimacy with his son. He never knew of de Frouville making any threats against his son. The witness heard through Mrs. Zimmerman, de Frouville's cousin, that he intended to kill his wife and Mrs. Z. so notified Mrs. de Frouville.

Mrs. Zimmerman was sworn and testified that on the 25th of February she had informed Mrs. de Frouville of these threats. Her motive in doing this was simply to warn the wife. De Frouville left his house shortly after 8 and when leaving he wrote a paper stating that if anything occurred to him he wished her to have certain things of his. When he left he said, "I intend to settle this at once."

He seemed to be perfectly calm. He showed a pistol, but witness did not believe that he was going to do anything, as he had made these threats before. Witness thought he had been drinking a little, else he would not have done it. The witness said that she was friend to both. She handed to the coroner a postal from Mrs. de Frouville, dated March 25th, which read:

"My Dear:--Do me the favor of coming around and take a list of the things, as I think that de F. will feel better satisfied. I think he will feel better. Love to yours and the children.

Yours, Andrea."

The witness also showed a list of things given to her by de Frouville, and were principally personal articles.

James McCadden also testified, but nothing new was elicited.

The Verdict

The jury returned the following verdict: "That the said Frederick and Andrea de Frouville came to their death from pistol shot wounds in the head inflicted with a pistol in the hands of Frederick de Frouville with the intent to commit murder and suicide."

Mr. Max, of the Agricultural department, who said he was a friend of the deceased lady, offered to take charge of the body and see that it was buried. Mrs. de Frouville, he said, was a native of Poland, and had no relatives in this country.

Matrimonial Troubles of Long Standing

In the deFrouville wife-murder and suicide case, reported at length in yesterday's Star, it appears that as long ago as February 16, 1879, the wife called on Mr. W.C. Stone, with a view to obtaining a divorce from her husband, charging him with cruelty and threats in the winter of '76 and '77; with kicking her out of bed in 1878; with threatening to brain her with a demijohn, and on February 14th smashing the furniture and threatening to break her neck.

The Two Funerals Today

About noon today a large crowd assembled in front of Zurhorst's undertaking establishment, No. 320 Pennsylvania avenue east, to see the 1st of the unhappy young man, Frederick DeFrouville, who on Tuesday night shot and killed his wife, Andrea deFrouville, and then killed himself on the spot with the same pistol. The funeral was a very quiet one, and only a limited number of the deceased man's friends were present--the only relatives being his mother and sister, who came from Cumberland, Md., to attend the funeral. The coffin was a handsome rosewood one, with silver handles and a silver plate, with the inscription, "Frederich deFrouville. Died April 3d, 1883, aged 32 years." The pall-bearers were all friends of the deceased, and were: Edward Quigley, John McNamee, John Pearson, Joseph W. Knight, John M. Shomo and James Douglass. Chaplain Samuel Kramer, of the navy yard, read the funeral service, after which the procession started for Glenwood cemetery, where the interment took place.

The funeral of Mrs.deFrouville will take place from her late residence, No. 610 A street southeast, at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon. The interment will be made in the Congressional Cemetery. The coffin is a handsome black cloth-covered casket, with silver bar handles, satin and lace linng, and has the following inscription on a silver plate: "Andrea deFrouville, died April 3, 1883, aged 33 years." There are none of Mrs. de Frouville's relatives in this city, and Mr. Marx, of the Agriculture Department, has charge of the funeral arrangements.

that in the deFrouville, Fields-Alexander and Kershaw cases one or more of the parties have been, or are, parties in divorce suits, and that the same member of the bar appeared or was consulted in each case. Mrs. deFrouville, as is stated elsewhere, in 1879, consulted Mr. W.C. Stone as to bringing suit; the wife of

Mrs. DeFrouville's Estate

The Danish minister, M. deBille, has written to the register of wills in regard to the estate of Mrs. deFrouville, stating that as she was a native of the country he represents, being childless, and having a sister and half brother in Denmark, he would ask that a proper person be appointed administrator of her estate. The Register notified M. de Bille that a citizen of the United States would be appointed and every attention would be paid to the unfortunate lady's affairs.

Cora Alverta Della, the six-year-old daughter of Edward T. Della, a huckster residing on the Anacostia road, about a mile beyond Twining City, was fatally burned late yesterday afternoon. A younger child, Florence, aged eighteen months was also severely burned. Just how the accident occurred is not known. The mother was the only grown person about at the time. From her statement it was learned that she left her kitchen to go to the spring after water. She left in the room Cora, Blanche, aged three years, and Florence, the baby, who was in her cradle. All were some distance from the stove. When Mrs. Della started to return, after about ten minutes absence, she was alarmed by hearing cries of fire from the lips of Blanche, who was standing near the rear of the house.

Mrs. Della ran quickly to the kitchen which she found full of smoke. She procured water and extinguished the blaze, rescuing the babe. She was of the opinion that Cora was outside the dwelling, but instead her dead body, literally roasted was discovered beneath the baby's cradle.

Mr. Della's opinions is that Cora's dress had taken fire from the stove and that she in her fright had accidentally communicated the flames to the cradle. The, in endeavoring to save the younger child, Cora had perished. This opinion is generally held to be correct.

The coroner was notified of the accident and gave a certificate of death in accordance with the facts shown. The condition of the dead child's body was such as to make early interment necessary, and it took place today.

The baby was not burned as badly as was at first supposed, and will recover. The dead child was a favorite with her parents and was, it is said, very intelligent and careful for one so young.

Funeral services for Henry M. Dellinger, a native of Washington county, Md., but for more than seventy-two years a resident of The District of Columbia, who died at his home, 231 G street northwest, yesterday morning, will be held at his late home at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. He died at the age of eighty-nine.

Mr. Dellinger enjoyed the distinction of not only being one of the oldest and most widely known officers and members of the Association of the Oldest Inhabitants in the District of Columbia, but was the man who installed the first telegraph office in the world for the inventor, S.F.B. Morse, in his home in this city in 184. He was also the oldest trustee of Wesley M.E. Church, corner of 5th and F streets northwest, having been associated with that organization since 1844. Mr. Dellinger was for a number of years vice president of the Association of the Oldest Inhabitants.

Installation of Telegraph Office

In the course of a reminiscent talk some time ago, about early days in Washington, Mr. Dellinger told of the first installation of the telegraph, in which work he played so important a part. He said at that time:

"It was sixty-seven years ago, in 1844, when the first telegraph office in the world was installed in a couple of rooms in an old government building on 7th street. The general post office stood on the site of the old building. The first official dispatches that came over the telegraph wire, however, were received in one of the rooms of the Capitol some time before this."

Mr. Dellinger recounted the astonishment with which these dispatches were received at the time. The first was the announcement of the death of an American commodore at Cadiz, in Spain, and the second was the announcement of the nomination of Polk for President by the democratic national convention, then in session in Baltimore.

These dispatches were received with incredulity by the scoffers of Morse, and they would not accept them as authoritative until verified by ail. Even then there were suspicions of a trick somewhere.

"People had the impression," said Mr. Dellinger, that it was the paper on which the dispatch was written that was sent over the wire. You have no idea how the people laughed at the old man (Morse) in those days.

Morse Subjected to Ridicule

"You know Congress voted him $30,000 the year before to build the line between Baltimore and Washington. Well, when that bill was up before Congress he and his telegraph were unmercifully ridiculed. One day he went into the House when the bill was up for discussion, and he was very much discouraged and down-hearted.

"Nathan Sargent, who was then sergeant-at arms of the House, came up to him, and, tapping him on the shoulder, said:

"What's the matter, Mr. Morse?"

"If this bill don't go through I am a ruined man. I can't even pay my bard. If it goes through, I am a made man."

"Cheer up!" said Sargent, "It's going through all right, and it did."

"When Morse took his first messages at the Capitol I don't believe he had an instrument. He held the wires in his hand in some way and brough them against something. That's my impression. They had an instrument in the office, however, which Vail operated."

"I remember when Morse brought his lead pipes in coils to Washington the first time. You know, his first idea was to lay wires underground. But that didn't work. He couldn't insulate the wires in the pipes."

His Career in Washington

Speaking of Washington, he said:

"I have lived in Washington since August, 1838. I was born in Williamsport, Washington county, Md., on the 22d of February, 1822. I learned the carpentry business under Tom Ciscle in Georgetown, and afterward under John C. Harkness, a prominent man in those days. I started in a small way on G street between 4th and 5th. Then I carried on business for fifty years, until ten years ago, when I threw up the sponge to live retired.

"I remodelled Oak View for President Cleveland in 1886 and did all W.C. Whitney's work, built his ballroom on I street between 17th and 18th streets, and fixed up the Loughborough place near the Tenleytown road, when he bought it."

"For sixty-seven years I have been a member of Wesley Chapel, corner of 5th and F streets. That's no discredit for any man. I am the oldest member who has belonged to that church consecutively from year to year. I hold the position of trustee there, and steward, also."

"The best thing I ever had was the smallpox. I used to have such bad sick headaches before that, but afterward I never did."

"I was the originator of what is called the 'Falling Waters Fishing Club,' on the Potomac, at the place where Lee crossed when he came back from Gettysburg. There were seven members at first, but some of them died and the rest I bought out."

Growth of the City

"Since I came here the city has grown from 35,000 to nearly 400,000. All the prominent public buildings have been put up in my time. I have known all the Presidents from Van Buren down, and have shaken hands with most of them. I shook hands with Lincoln and remember him very well."

"The local street car system has been developed entirely in my recollection. Why, when I came here buses were run from the navy yard to Georgetown, and the fare was 12 cents. I fitted up the laboratory here for Samuel F.B. Morse, the inventor of the telegraph and remember well the two messages first sent from Baltimore. One announced the death of one of our naval commodores at Cadiz, Spain--we didn't have admirals in those days--and the other told of the nomination of James K. Polk for President."

Mr. Dellinger was an uncle of Mrs. Joseph B. Updegraff and Mrs. S. Snively of Hagerstown, Md.

Native of State of Maryland, but Resident of District for Past 13 Years

William Edward Dement, one of the oldest residents of Maryland, but who lived for the past thirteen years in this city, died about midnight Saturday, December 26 at his residence, 319 D street northeast, after a short illness.

The deceased was born in Charles county, Md., May 22, 1827, and was a member of one of the best known families of that state, his father having been John Edward Dement, and his mother Rebecca Dent Briscoe. At the age of 19 he enlisted in the United States army and served throughout the Mexican War.

In his early years Mr. Dement took an active part in the politics of his native state, and filled a number of local offices with credit and ability, but the greater portion of his life was spent on his farm.

In 1851 he married Eliza Wolfe, a cousin of the late Alexander R. Shepherd, with whom he lived in perfect companionship for more than fifty years, her death having occurred about ten months ago. Three sons and five daughters survive him. They are John G. and Charles E. Dement, Mrs. T.A. Burch, Mrs. W.L. Padgett and Mrs. G.M. Clagett of this city, William L. Dement and Mrs. B.H. Padgett of La Plata, Md., and Mrs. J. Benjamin Mattingly of Laurel, Md. Funeral services were held at 2 o'clock p.m. yesterday at his late residence and the interment was made in Congressional cemetery.

At his residence, in Prince George's county, on Saturday the 14th instant, Mr. William Dement, in the 42d year of his age. This sudden death is another forcible illustration of the unstable tenure of human life. But a few hours before his death he was enjoying himself in a social intercourse with friends and neighbors, looking in the prospective for the realization of all the pleasure and happiness the world is capable of bestowing on man. But, alas! Death, who is unerring, and who exercises no preference, has summoned him into the presence of his merciful Creator. In every private and domestic relation of life, the deceased, by his bland, affectionate, and exemplary deportment, endeared himself to a large circle of friends and relatives. He was distinguished for his untiring industry and excellence of judgment in the pursuit of agriculture, and has left an example for his neighbors worthy of emulation. Mr. Dement has left a large and interesting family to deplore their irreparable loss.. They still have a solace in the recollection and admiration of his many virtuous deeds, with a sincere hope that it has only been a translation from a world of trouble to one of imperishable happiness.

Hero of Mexican War

William Edward Dement, Aged Resident Passes Away

Native of State of Maryland, but Resident of District for Past 13 Years

William Edward Dement, one of the oldest residents of Maryland, but who lived for the past thirteen years in this city, died about midnight Saturday, December 26 at his residence, 319 D street northeast, after a short illness.

The deceased was born in Charles county, Md., May 22, 1827, and was a member of one of the best known families of that state, his father having been John Edward Dement, and his mother Rebecca Dent Briscoe. At the age of 19 he enlisted in the United States army and served throughout the Mexican War.

In his early years Mr. Dement took an active part in the politics of his native state, and filled a number of local offices with credit and ability, but the greater portion of his life was spent on his farm.

In 1851 he married Eliza Wolfe, a cousin of the late Alexander R. Shepherd, with whom he lived in perfect companionship for more than fifty years, her death having occurred about ten months ago. Three sons and five daughters survive him. They are John G. and Charles E. Dement, Mrs. T.A. Burch, Mrs. W.L. Padgett and Mrs. G.M. Clagett of this city, William L. Dement and Mrs. B.H. Padgett of La Plata, Md., and Mrs. J. Benjamin Mattingly of Laurel, Md. Mr. Dement leaves a large circle of relatives and personal friends, by whom he was greatly esteemed, and who knowing and appreciating his many good qualities, will sincerely mourn his death.

Funeral services were held at 2 o'clock p.m. yesterday at his late residence and the interment was made in Congressional cemetery.

Autoist Wounded, By Police in Chase

Car, Which Officers Say Contained Liquor,

Hits House in Southeast

Cornered by the police and suffering from a bullet wound in the head, William Frank Dement, 29 years old, 1354 Spring road, lost control of his high-powered machine early this morning, permitting it to crash up a steep embankment and obliterate the brick support of the porch of 565 1/2 Fifteenth street southeast. Austin Jarboe, 30 years, 303 Twelfth street, whom police allege had been operating a smoke screen for Dement during a whirlwind pursuit of the liquor squad which started near Bradbury Heights, was only slightly injured.

Dement, under the care of two special nurses, was reported in a critical condition at Casualty Hospital today, Dr. J. Rozier Biggs, who is attending him, has taken X-rays. He reports the bullet entered Dement's brain and has scattered, but he will no operate pending the developing of the X-ray pictures.

Alleged Whisky Fund

Both Dement and Jarboe are charged on the book at the fifth precinct station with illegal possession, transporting and use of a smoke screen. One hundred quarts of alleged corn whisky was confiscated in the automobile, which was only slightly damaged outside of a number of bullet punctures, police say.

Sergt. George Little and his squad reported to Maj. Edwin Hesse today that they had heard rumors that Dement and Jarboe were "coming through" last night, and were awaiting them. They said they picked them up near the District line at Bradbury Heights, when the chase began.

Policemen George Deyoe and W.A. Schotter, the former riding in the liquor squad automobile and the latter following on a motor cycle, are credited with the shooting at the Dement car. The officers claim they shot at the tires of the car and advance the theory that one of the bullets ricocheted either from the fender or the road, hitting Dement. Sergt. Little and Policeman W.H. Schultz both deny firing.

Officers Are Cleared

Having a preliminary report of the shooting today Inspector Charles Evans said that the officers would not be reprimanded for the shooting. Evans declared that both of the men had been taken into custody of police before on liquor charges.

The shooting and the following crash of the Dement automobile into the 15th street house aroused sleeping residents in the vicinity who thought a "young war" was in progress, it was said today.

It is estimated that repair of the porch will cost about $200. Bricks were scattered for many feet.

Poor Smoke Screen Blamed

Police said today that Jarboe, who was caught by the police when he attempted to escape after the crash of their automobile, blamed the capture of Dement and himself on the poor quality of fluid used in the smoke screen. He is alleged to have told police that they were using crank case oil instead of the more effective embalming fluid or mustard usually used.

Police say that Dement and Jarboe obtained their cargo of alleged liquor in Southern Maryland and were "tipped off" at Waldorf that the liquor squad was waiting for them. This is said to have caused them to abandon the natural route and detour around Marlboro.

Coroner Hits Police in Liquor Car Death

Delays Inquest in Shooting of W.F. Dement,

Holding Report "Insufficiently Illuminating."

Declining to accept the police report as "insufficiently illuminating" on the case of William Frank Dement, 29 years old, of 1354 Spring road, who died yesterday at Casualty Hospital as the result of a bullet wound in the head, inflicted April 13, as he was being pursued by the liquor squad, Coroner Ramsay Nevitt after a consultation at the morgue with Dr. Joseph B. Rogers, superintendent of the hospital, and Assistant District Attorney Raymond Neudecker, postponed the inquest, until Monday morning at 11:30 o'clock.

It was stated that the police report of the case made no mention of gunshot wounds or names of witnesses, and was unsigned. Policeman George Deyo and W.A. Schotter have been suspended from the force pending the disposition of the case, as is customary in such instances.

Dement's death followed a desperate effort by Dr. Charles Stanley White to remove pieces of the bullet which had scattered in his brain.

When shot, Dement, in company with Austin Jarboe, 30 years old, of 303 Twelfth street, was driving his car, laden with 100 quarts of alleged corn whisky, at a high rate of speed along Fifteenth street southeast.

The wound caused Dement to lose control of the car, which crashed into the premises at 565 1/2 Fifteenth street, with slight damage resulting. Jarboe, who was only slightly injured, was charged with operating a smoke screen.

Life Crushed Out
C.Y. DeNeal Instantly Killed By Accident
Telegraph Operator Under Arrest, Charged With Causing Wreck --
He Enters a Denial

A fatal accident occurred on the Pennsylvania railroad tracks near the Benning race track last night at eight minutes after 11 o'clock, the victim being C.Y. DeNeal, who was employed on the road as a brakeman. Conductor William J. Moore was seriously injured and was taken to Providence Hospital. The accident was caused by a Pullman car being pushed against the rear end of a "dead freight." It is alleged by the police that the operator in the Deanwood tower, Charles Nichols, threw engine 5040 upon the wrong siding. The operator was placed under arrest by Sergeant Russell and taken to the ninth precinct police station, to be held to appear at the inquest tomorrow.

Engine 5040, in charge of Engineer William H. Pearson, was being used to shift passenger coaches between the yard at Deanwood and the city. The engine went north on the track a few minutes before the accident occurred, and was returning with a heavy Pullman car when it went upon the wrong siding and crashed into a string of twenty or more freight cars. Conductor Moore and Brakeman DeNeal were riding on the end of the Pullman and did not realize their danger until it was too late to jump. Both men were caught and pinned beneath the cars.

Conductor Moore was released without much difficulty, but Brakeman DeNeal was wedged between the cars so tightly that there was no way of releasing him without the aid of the wreckers, who were at once summoned. It was ascertained that he had been instantly killed and attention was directed toward the saving of the conductor. The latter was placed upon an electric car and brought to the city. From the car he was removed to Providence Hospital. He sustained a broken leg, a fracture of his arm and other injuries. While his condition is serious, the surgeons believe he received no severe internal injuries. Moore is thirty years old and his home is at 100 Hechman street southeast.

Body Removed to Morgue

The body of the dead brakeman was removed to the morgue, and it was found that his head and almost every bone in his body had been crushed. He was thirty-five years old and lived at 108 8th street northeast.

Sergeant Russell reached the scene of the accident in a short time and made an investigation. After conversing with several railroad employees he placed the operator under arrest and took him to the station. The latter denied that he was responsible for the accident. His home, it is stated, is at Odenton, Md. Traffic on the road was interrupted until the wreckers succeeded in getting the derailed cars back upon the tracks.

DeNeal is the man who was painfully injured in an altercation with another railroad employee at Benning several weeks ago. The two men had some words over the method of side-tracking some cars and DeNeal was struck over the head with a heavy piece of wood used in turning brake wheels.

A Double Tragedy

Herman Denham Kills His Wife and Then Himself

Cause A Mystery

Wife Was Shot as She Slept and Died Instantly

Supposed That Man Was Actuated by Jealousy--

What Friends of Family Say

A double tragedy, that was premeditated and was a most complete affair, was enacted this morning about 5 o'clock at 426 8th street northeast. A letter carrier named Herman F. Denham shot and killed his wife and then ended his own life. The bullet that ended his wife's life penetrated the left temple, while the leaden missile that was sent from the weapon immediately after the first shot was fired entered the right temple of the man. Except that the husband was insanely jealous of his wife, without cause, no motive can be ascribed by friends for the man's conduct. Three nights ago Denham turned on the gas in his room after his wife had retired, but the odor of the gas was detected in time to prevent a serious ending. His explanation of his conduct was that he had been dreaming and was not responsible for what he had done.

Herman Denham had been connected with the post office for more than twelve years. He was a son of Thomas S. Denham, a painter, whose home is at 702 9th street southeast. A sister of the deceased figured in the scandal in Southeast Washington several years ago in which the Rev. Gilbert F. Williams, pastor of Christ Church, Navy Yard, gained so much notoriety. Denham was thirty-three years old and was well known in the northeast and southeast sections of the city. Beyond his display of jealousy he was of a happy disposition. Six or seven years ago he married Miss Willie M. Kilgore, daughter of Judge James Kilgore, a law clerk in the Treasury Department. He formerly lived at Newberry, S.C. Three years ago Denham built the 8th street house, where Judge Kilgore and his wife also lived. Only this summer he had the house painted from top to bottom and there was no apparent reason why he should not have been happy.

Two weeks ago he was granted his annual leave and he took two days extra in order that he might spend his time in camp with friends at Colonial Beach. His sister-in-law and her husband, Dr. Philip N. Wisner, were in the party. So far as his friends in the party know, nothing occurred during the summer outing to mar the pleasure of the two members of the Denham family, and when they returned home Wednesday night the husband was apparently in the best of spirits. It is now certain, however, that something disturbed him and his relatives are sure that when he turned on the gas in his sleeping apartment that night he did so for the purpose of ending the lives of his wife and himself. As already stated, the odor of the gas was detected and the husband was called upon for an explanation.

"I was dreaming about being in camp," he said, "and thought I was turning up the light."

The explanation was deemed a reasonable one although his wife had never known him to follow up his dreams in so dangerous a way before. Thinking over the affair afterward her mind was not clear as to her husband's conduct. They had never had any trouble, however, and she could not imagine that her husband had a desire to get rid of her. She knew that he had engaged in pistol practice while on his vacation, but she too had used the revolver in the same way and she knew she had no improper motive concerning its use. Last night Dr. Wisner and his wife were at the 8th street house with other members of the family and enjoyed a game of cards. Refreshments were served and it was late when those living away--from the Kilgore and Denham home departed. Denham went with them to the door and said good night, as had been his habit when they called, and there was nothing about his conduct to indicate that he contemplated violence.

Shot As She Slept

He had evidently thought over what he intended doing, for he destroyed some papers before he retired. His wife went to bed ignorant of what was in store for her. The condition of the bed this morning indicated that she had been a sound sleeper, and that she had hardly moved from one spot after retiring. It had been her habit to sleep on her stomach, with one arm under her head, and it was in this position that she was lying at the time the fatal shot was fired. That she did not know of the shooting is evident. Her body had not moved and her arm was still under her head, although her mother is satisfied that the daughter was still alive when she reached the room.

Immediately after taking the life of his wife the husband turned the weapon toward his own head and fired the second shot. Lying side by side on the bed were the dying forms of the husband and wife when Judge Kilgore entered the room. It was just ten minutes past 5 o'clock when the judge entered the ninth precinct police station and said that a double tragedy had been enacted at his house. Sergt. Falvey, who was in charge of the station at the time, sent Policemen Curd and Smith to the house and he also sent for Drs. Boswell and Cole. The doctors responded promptly but death had claimed both victims, and there was nothing that they could do except to assure the elderly couple that both were dead. Coroner Nevitt was notified and he reached the house before 6 o'clock. His conclusion was that the man had murdered his wife and had then committed suicide. Certificates of death were given accordingly.

Jealousy Only Known Cause

Mrs. Kilgore explained to the police that she had been awakened by hearing the reports of the pistol shots, and she thought they had been fired by some person on the lot near the house. She called her husband and sent him on a tour of inspection. He had taken but a few steps before he found that the shots had been fired in his own house. Returning to his wife's room he told her of his ghastly discovery and then went for the police. Dr. Wisner and other relatives who were at the house last night were sent for, and they returned to the house to assist the elderly couple. They discussed the affair fully, but were unable to determine what had caused the man to kill his wife and himself. Jealousy was the only reason they could assign.

"But," said Dr. Wisner to a Star reporter, "there was no occasion for jealousy. Mrs. Denham was a lovely woman, and had never done a thing that was calculated to arouse any jealous feeling the man may have harbored."

While they were at Colonial Beach, he said, her conduct was exemplary. She was in her husband's company most all the time and would have had no opportunity to have done anything out of the way had she so desired. Several friends of the family who were seen by a Star reporter told the same story of the Denhams. They all said that Denham had exhibited evidences of his jealousy ever since his marriage. Denham was on a run along H street northeast for several years, and recently he had been on duty in the vicinity of the Capitol Hill post office. He was a member of several beneficiary organizations and had a host of friends. Undertaker Scott prepared the bodies for burial, but the funeral arrangements have not yet been made. It is probable that the body of the wife will be sent to Newberry for burial and the body of the husband interred in Congressional cemetery.

The father-in-law of the dead man, J.F. Kilgore, is a well-known and much liked official of the office of the controller of the treasury. He has been a law clerk in that office for a number of years, and is at present acting as chief clerk of the office. He is originally from Newberry, S.C., where he is highly connected and has a large number of friends. Treasury officials who know Mr. Kilgore expressed deep regret that he and his family had been plunged into such a calamity.

The National Intelligencer, Wednesday, April 16, 1834

In the Senate

A message was received from the House of Representatives by Walter B. Franklin, Esq. their clerk, notifying the Senate of the death of the Hon. Littleton Purnell Dennis, late a member of the House, from the State of Maryland, and that his funeral would take place from the Hall of the House of Representatives tomorrow at 12 o'clock.

The message having been read, Mr. Kent, of Maryland rose and said -- Mr. President: The message which has just been read, announces to you, and to the Senate, the death of the late Mr. Dennis, one of the Representatives from the State of Maryland, in the other branch of Congress. Already, Mr. President, our feelings have been repeatedly agonized by the sudden death of several of our associates, in the legislative labours of the session, and the one that has just been made known to us is little less sudden than those that have preceded it.

But a few days since, and the deceased was busily engaged in the attentive discharge of the duties of his station, and he is now numbered with the dead. He is gone to "that bourne from whence no traveller returns." Truly has it been said, "in the midst of life we are in death." The deceased was a native of Somerset County, in Md., a prominent member of a highly respectable family, in the 50th year of his age, and although of a delicate constitution, was justifiable in looking forward yet to many years of usefulness and happiness. He was a member of the Bar, justly esteemed in his profession, and always in possession of the confidence of his countrymen. His modest, unassuming, and retiring habits, could not conceal from them his good sense, and high attainments; and early in life he was returned a delegate to the General Assembly of Maryland, and has been continued in the discharge of his legislative labors, with but little interruption to the period of his decease.

Mr. Kent then submitted the following resolution , which was unanimously adopted;

Resolved, unanimously, That the Senate will attend the funeral of the Hon. Littleton P. Dennis, late a member of the House of Representatives, from the State of Maryland, at the hour of 12 o'clock tomorrow; and, as a testimony of respect for the memory of the deceased, they will go into mourning by wearing crape round the left arm for thirty days.

On motion of Mr. Kent, the Senate then adjourned.

In the House

The Journal of yesterday's Proceedings having been read, on the opening of the House--Mr. Stoddert, of Maryland, rose, and addressed the House as follows:

Mr. Speaker: In announcing the death of Littleton Purnell Dennis, a Representative on this floor from the State of Maryland, I discharge a sad and solemn duty. Not a week has elapsed since he mingled in the deliberations, and cooperated in the active duties of this House; he now sleeps the sleep of death. What an impressive illustration of the instability of human life -- "of what shadows we are, and what shadows we pursue." The deceased stood to me, sir, in the double relation of colleague and friend. I knew him long and well. He was a useful, benevolent, and estimable man, and has finished his course in honor. He was no tame and ordinary character; and although his modesty may have delayed the development of his faculties for public service, during his brief connection with this House, his State is not left without proofs of his legislative prudence and skill. He served her in both branches of her Legislature for many years, with honor and ability. He was well gifted by nature, well educated, and well principled. His native sagacity, sound judgment and decision, and purity of purpose, made him what he was, a capable and honest public agent. The brave, generous, open, and manly qualities of his nature secured him the confidence and affections of the people among whom he lived, and made it their delight to honor him.

He is gone hence, sir, but his memory will survive, embalmed in the kindly regards of those who knew and appreciated his noble and manly qualities, and unembittered and untarnished by a single act of meanness, injustice and oppression. He died, as he had lived, deserving and possessing the warm-hearted esteem of many, the ill-will of none. As the last act of respectful duty which it remains for friendship to perform, I move you, sir, the following resolutions:

Resolved, That the Members of this House will attend the funeral of the late Littleton Purnell Dennis, at 12 o'clock, tomorrow.

Resolved, That a Committee be appointed to take order for superintending the Funeral of Littleton Purnell Dennis, deceased, late a Member of this House from the State of Maryland.

Resolved, That the members of this House will testify their respect to the memory of Littleton Purnell Dennis, by wearing crape on the left army for thirty days.

Ordered, That a message be sent to the Senate to notify that body of the death of Littleton P. Dennis, late one of the Representatives from the State of Maryland, and that his funeral will take place tomorrow, at twelve o'clock, from the Hall of the House of Representatives.

The above resolutions and order were unanimously adopted, and then The House adjourned.

The National Intelligencer, Thursday, April 17, 1834

The funeral of the late Hon. Littleton P. Dennis, one of the Representatives in Congress from Maryland, was attended by both Houses of Congress yesterday at the appointed hour. In consequence of this melancholy engagement, neither House transacted business yesterday.

In the vast army of Uncle Sam's hired help in Washington no more interesting characters can be found than four armless men -- S.H. Decker, Thomas Dennis, W.B. Denny and L.A. Neur -- each one happy and prosperous, and who, even in their seemingly helpless condition, have successfully accomplished undertakings almost past belief.

Mr. Thomas Dennis

"I am in my eighty-first year and expect to live out the full century," said Mr. Thomas Dennis, "and the report that I gave up my place in the War Department on account of old age is untrue. I simply want to live quietly and enjoy myself the remainder of my life, and I am going to do it."

Mr. Dennis is the "dean" of the armless men employed by the government in Washington, and until a few months ago was a watchman in the War Department. If vigorous looks and actions go for anything, this gentleman will be on this earth many years yet, for he does not look a day over sixty, and there is not a crow's foot on his smooth and round face, and he is the picture of health. "Mrs. Dennis is the best cook in eighteen states," he declared, "and I have an eat-up-everything appetite. I am able to buy what we want to eat; I take just a little bitters occasionally, smoke one good cigar a day, take three chews of tobacco; have always had a clear head and conscience and that is all there is to it."

When Mr. Dennis was a young man he enlisted as a seaman in the United States navy, being assigned to the Princeton. While cruising in the Mediterranean along the coast of Africa the accident occurred which caused the loss of his arms. Prince Demidoff of Russia, who married Napoleon's sister, Princess Matilda, was at Gibraltar and paid a visit to the American vessel. The prince enjoyed his visit thoroughly, and as he was leaving a salute was fired in his honor. Mr. Dennis had fired the first gun, and was ramming the second charge home when there was a premature discharge, completely tearing off both the young seaman's arms. Prince Demidoff was greatly shocked by the accident, and at once made the offer to have the sailor carried ashore and to provide liberally for him then and for all time. Of course this generous offer was declined by the officers, but Mr. Dennis was sent to one of the best hospitals, and as soon as the prince heard of this he had the most skilled surgeons and nurses employed and gave instructions that the young man was to receive the best attention.

Traveled With Demidoff

When Mr. Dennis was able to travel the prince carried him from city to city, furnishing him with the finest clothes and everything that money could buy, having false arms made for him at different times. After a time Mr. Dennis came back to the United States, but Prince Demidoff had a liberal allowance sent him regularly, and at his death it was found that an annuity of $80 had been provided for him in the will of the young prince. This Mr. Dennis receives each year, and with the $100 a month pension from the United States government and a snug sum saved from a liberal salary he has received for many years, he has plenty to live on the balance of his life.

Mr. Dennis has several grown sons and one daughter. One of the sons is in the real estate business in Chicago and another is in business in Philadelphia. Before coming to Washington, which was in 1893, Mr. Dennis had made his home in Chicago for a number of years, being in the customs house for nearly seven years and at the county building for four years. When President Cleveland took Judge Gresham into his official family Mr. Dennis came to Washington to pay his respects to the judge, as they had been life-long friends, and he was persuaded to remain here.

"I am out of the harness for good," said Mr. Dennis, "and I hope some deserving man will fill the place I could still keep. The government has been considerate and liberal with me, and as I have enough I thought I ought to get out. I shall not be entirely idle, for I have some interests to look after which will give me something to do. I can go about a good deal and do a great many things with the aid of the 'Decker tweezers,' which are worth a train load of all the false arms and hands ever made, and Prince Demidoff had the very best made for me. I only keep them around the house because the generous young fellow gave them to me. He was one of the best fellows in the world, and his unhappy marriage sent him to an early grave. I have a number of valuable presents and keepsakes he gave and sent me."

Derrick, William Sharples b. 1802 - d. 15 May 1852 49 yrs. R31/210
The National Intelligencer, May 17, 1852
Obituary
On Saturday morning last, William S. Derrick, Chief Clerk in the Department of State.

Mr. Derrick was born in Westchester, Pennsylvania, on or about the 31st of July, 1802. He was appointed a clerk in the Department of State in 1827. He was well acquainted with the French and Spanish languages and with English literature. Throughout the term of his service in the Department he strove to earn promotion, and obtained it, not by courting the acquaintance of those having or likely to have political importance, but by the conscientious and accurate discharge of the duties assigned to him, without any taint of personal servility to his superiors in office, and by employing his leisure in those pursuits which were adapted to inform, expand, and elevate his mind, and to improve his great natural capacity for business. By his death the public has lost a faithful and laborious servant, his immediate family an affectionate husband, father, and friend, his associates in the Department a valuable exemplar, and his friends one whose worth they will always hold in vivid remembrance.

The friends of the family are respectfully invited to attend his funeral this (Monday) afternoon, at 4 o'clock, from the Church of the Epiphany, (Rev. Mr. French's) on G street, between 13th and 14th.

Family History by Clarence Derrick

William Sharples Derrick, son of Philip Derrick (1772-1819) and Sarah Sharples (1774-1832) was born in West Chester, Pa., on or about July 31, 1802. His father, Philip Derrick, was the first Burgess of West Chester and co-owner of Derrick & Sharples; Printers. William S. Derrick "was well acquainted with the French and Spanish languages and with English literature". He married Anne Patterson Lyons (1807-1892) on August 9, 1827. He died of tuberculosis in Washington, D.C. on June 15, 1852. After services conducted by the Reverend Mr. French at the Church of the Epiphany on G Street between 13th and 14th, he was buried in the Congressional Cemetery in Washington D.C.

William S. Derrick was employed by the U.S. Department of State from 1827 until his death in 1852 and at "sundry times during that period he performed the duties of Acting Secretary of State an aggregate of 263 days by virtue of presidential appointments." At the time of his death he was Chief Clerk in the Department of State. After his death his widow, Anne Patterson (Lyons) Derrick, petitioned Congress for pay reimbursement, arguing that her husband should have been paid at a higher rate for the 263 days he was Acting Secretary of State. The issue dragged on for about 30 years when the petition was finally denied, after having been approved by certain Congressional acts.

During his career William Sharples Derick served under eight presidents: John Quincy Adams, Andrew Jackson, Martin VanBuren, William Henry Harrison, John Tyler, James Polk, Zachary Taylor, and Millard Fillmore. He was private secretary to Henry Clay when Clay was Secretary of State and named his eldest son, Henry Clay Derrick. He also knew James Buchanan when Buchanan was Secretary of State. When Buchanan was President, he appointed William S. Derrick's second son, Clarence Derrick (1837-1907) to West Point.

Henriette Dessez, 91; Taught Indians in Wild West Days

By Carter Gorski

Miss Henriette Louise Dessez, who spent three years in the West teaching school on Indian reservations and collected enough memories to last her the rest of her 91 years, died here Monday.

She had outbluffed a mountain lion when her life was at stake, ridden on a stagecoach when it was held up and went several days into the mountains chasing two truant Indian pupils before she caught them.

She could ride and shoot (except when she faced the "soft brown eyes" of a deer) and had a knack for keeping little Indians in the classroom. When they got restless she adjourned school long enough for every one to do "half a dozen turns in high speed around the school house."

Tracked Down Truants

Once when two little Klamath Indians played hookey, Miss Dessez got their fathers and together they tracked them into the Oregon mountains. The trip lasted several days by pack-canoe. When they came to a falls, the Indians told her, "White squaw get out," But Miss Dessez's feet and ankles were so swollen through her shoe laces that she couldn't move. "White squaw get drowned." the Indians told her, but she shot the rapids with them anyway and survived.

The Indians called Miss Dessez "the big tall lady in black." She always wore black out of respect to her father, Leon Dessez, a Confederate soldier and French engineer who died in 1895 just before she began teaching among Apache, Pimo and Klamath tribes.

The West had great respect for a woman, Miss Dessez used to tell her family. And she would illustrate this with the time she was the only woman on a stagecoach in Arizona that was held up by five men. She was carrying several hundred dollars in gold coins and was the only passenger who wasn't robbed.

She used to tell about the Indian who conferred in great detail with her about setting up a store. He would spend weeks getting gold in the hills, exchange it for store goods, and then give away everything off his store shelves to other Indians.

Only One Returned

Only two white men offered the storekeeper gold certificates if he would show him where he got his gold. He refused. The two men followed the Indian on his next trip into the hills. The white en never returned, Miss Dessez said. Later their bodies were found.

Miss Dessez was born in Morgantown, N.C. As a small child she was in Richmond during the Civil War siege and was in Paris when World War I broke out. She was graduated from Wilson Normal School and formerly worked for the Commerce Department. For many years she lived at the Ontario Apartments.

Miss Dessez had a large collection of Indian baskets and pottery. She donated part of the collecton to the Smithsonian Institution and the Museum of the American Indian in New York and the rest was scattered aong her family.

Active in Church Groups

She was active in the Christ Child Society, Little Sisters of the Poor and other Catholic charitable groups.

Survivors are nieces and nephews, including retired Marine Brig. Gen. Lester A. Dessez, 409 Harwood road, Bethesda, Md.; Army Maj. John R. Dessez, Ontario Apartments; Retired Navy Capt. John H.S. Dessez and Miss Elizabeth Dessez, both of 3815 Jenifer street N.W.; Charles V. Dessez, 2950 Legation street, N.W., and Miss Eunice Dessez, All States Hotel.

Services will be at 9 a.m. tomorrow at St. Matthew's Cathedral, of which she was a member. Burial will be in Congressional Cemetery.

Miss Dessez; Collector of Indian Ware

Requiem mass will be conducted at 9 a.m., Thursday at St. Matthew's Cathedral for Miss Henriette Louise Dessez, 91, donor of a collection of American Indian baskets and pottery to the Smithsonian Institution.

Miss Dessez, a retired Commerce Department employe, died Monday in this city. She once lived at the Ontario Apartments, 2853 Ontario road n.w.

Born in Morganton, N.C., Miss Dessez came to Washington soon after the Civil War, and was graduated from Wilson Normal School (now Wilson Teachers College).

Her collection of Indian ware was started when she taught children of the Apache, Pimo and Klamath tribes in Arizona and California for about three years at the turn of the century.

Later, Indian delegations to Washington often sought her advice on settling disputes with the Government.

Part of her collection was given to the Museum of the American Indian, New York City.

Miss Dessez was active in the Christ Child Society, Little Sisters of the Poor and other Catholic charitable groups. She was a member of St. Matthew's Cathedral.

Survivors are several nieces and nephews, including retired Navy Capt. John H.S. Dessez, 3815 Jenifer st. n.w.; retired Marine Brig. Gen. Lester A. Dessez, 5409 Harwood road, Bethesda; Charles V. Dessez, 2950 Legation st. n.w.; Army Maj. John R. Dessez, 2853 Ontrio road n.w.; Miss Elizabeth Dessez, 3815 Jennifer st. n.w., and Miss Eunice Dessez, All States Hotel, 514 19th st. n.w.

Burial will be in Congressional Cemetery.

French Are Calm As Enemy Nears

Miss Henriette Louise Dessez Pays Tribute to Soldiers and Citizens of France

Most Excited People In Europe Americans

Pays Visit to Paris Before Returning and Was There When Bombs Are Dropped on City

"The most excited people I saw in Europe were some Americans," declared Miss Henriette Louise Dessez of the office of the disbursing officer of the Department of Commerce, speaking yesterday of her experiences in the war zone, from which she returned recently. Miss Dessez was in Europe from the last of June until the last of August. She witnessed the Swiss and French mobilizations, traveled through the heart of France when the German army was within hailing distance of Paris, and was in the Frenc capital the day the bombs were dropped into the city from the German dirigibles. In speaking of her experiences, Miss Dessez spoke entirely of what she saw and heard in France and Switzerland. The war as seen through a woman's eyes is what she tells.

"You have always heard of the excitable French nature," she said. "Why I never saw people so calm. What impressed all of us was the absolute calmness of the soldiers. They would sit smoking and drinking in the cafes and never make the slightest demonstration. The soldiers did not stand at the bulletins at all but seemed indifferent. The most excited people in Europe were some Americans."

Miss Dessez and party landed in Naples, June 29. They traveled through Italy, and were in Geneva on the day the Crown Prince of Austria was assassinated.

"I sat in the shade and watched the street sweepers buying extra papers on that day," said Miss Dessez. "There was great excitement throughout the city. Later, when I was at Ringzenberg, which is about three miles from Interlaken, I received the first intimations of the war. For several days there had been slight runs on the banks, and when war was officially declared this tendency became a regular run."

Saw Swiss Mobilization

Miss Dessez witnessed the mobilization of the Swiss troops to preserve the neutrality of their country and tells of the companies of Swiss yodling in unison as they passed through the town. At Bern she saw a tremendous display of soldiery.

About this time the Queen of Holland sent a special train for her people and it was on a train that went out parallel to it that Miss Dessez and her party left Geneva for Paris.

"At Geneva the Cook's office had closed. The railroad office was closed for the day. Everything was in charge of troops. The stores were closed for all the men had gone to the border, and the women were doing all the work. Cook's sold us tickets saying, 'Perhaps you can get to Paris.'

"We went to our hotel for rest and were called at 1 o'clock in the morning, we were so afraid of missing the train," continued Miss Dessez. "Soldiers were everywhere. But we had our papers and that was all that was necessary. At 5:30 o'clock, the train began to pull out of the station going very slowly. Belgrade at the frontier was the first stop. The soldiers did not collect our tickets."

Here Miss Dessez produced the indential ticket as evidence that the soldiers, acting as trainmen, never collected tickets.

"At all our steps we were invariably switched off the main line, sometimes for hours, it seemed, to allow troop trains to go through. We arrived at Lyons at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon Sunday. The city was filled with troops French dragoons, souaves, and the famous mountain artillery by the trainload with their guns."

Miss Dessez spoke of the calmness of the troops and their apparent indifference to the war bulletins. She said the French soldiers are not undersized as is commonly thought.

All Quite In Paris

"We arrived in Paris Monday, August 24, and found everything quiet. The women, girls and boys selling papers were making the most noise. The newspapers seemed to try to be impartial in presenting the news. The papers consisted of only one sheet, because no one wanted anything except war news. Women read them eagerly -- you would see them come out of their houses and buy the papers, read them and go in again without the slightest manifestation of excitement.

"The dropping of the bomb on the city caused no especial excitement. One bomb was aimed at one of the principal railroad stations that was a route for supplies to the frontier, it hit a house nearby and demolished it, and we heard a woman and two girls were killed.

"When we were in Switzerland we thought no one could treat Americans any better than the Swiss did, but in Paris we -- and all Americans -- received the same kindly treatment. Paris was even then on a sort of rations. There were no French rolls even -- all the bread was baked in one shape -- with a sort of groove in it.

"There were in Paris at the time we were there about 2,000 English, Irish and American volunteers going to the front. They passed down the street, not in uniform, headed by three French soldiers in uniform. The middle soldier carried a huge bouquet of American beauty roses, and the other two soldiers carried the colors.

"If you want to have a thrill you should hear the Irish sing Vive la France!" smiled Miss Dessez.

"The Louvre, a great department store of Paris, sent 2,000 men to the front. All the large stores, instead of transacting business as usual, had girls and women employed all day long sewing for the soldiers. No gasoline was sold to private individuals. It was all kept for the use of the government.

Girls Sew for Soldiers

"The girls sewing for the soldiers were served soup at the long tables where they worked. And somebody discovered that soldiers march better in wool socks than in ordinary cotton, so the women of Paris all set to work knitting, too.

"We saw a great truck hauled by two enormous horses and driven by a little Frenchwoman. At our stay in Paris we never heard a bitter word spoken of the Germans. I never saw such splendid self-control in my life. Despite the great worries of the hour, the French people were always gallant in the extreme, especially to the Americans, who themselves were not always courteous. The courtesy of the French under such pressure was wonderful.

"The boys of Paris were crazy to enlist. We saw one young boy volunteer his services to an officer.

"The officer said: 'Young man, you are not old enough.'

"'Please take me! Please take me! I am nearly fourteen,' the boy responded.

"All during our stay the searchlights on Eiffel tower played throughout the night, searching for possible invaders from the skies. We left Paris for Havre September 1.

"That morning! I will never forget it! We got up at 5 o'clock. With some trouble we got a cab. When we finally arrived at the station we had to stand for three hours in one spot and we didn't dare move. After awhile the crowd got so bad that the police called the soldiers. They finally got the place cleared and we managed to get to our compartment.

"Imagine leaving Paris, one of the great capitals of the world, carrying water, provisions, passports, permits to leave the city, railroad tickets, suitcases, etc., all in one hand, almost!

Whole Day Going to Havre

"As we passed from Paris we saw the outlying suburbs which had been ordered razed on the near approach of the German troops to the capital. We passed trains of soldiers, who always cheered us and showed the best good humor. They never seemed excited. It took us the whole day to get to Havre, when it usually takes but five hours.

"When we finally got aboard La Flandre of the French line, that night, they gave us something to eat! They gave us something to eat, mind you! We sailed at 5 o'clock the next morning, but were stopped out in the ocean for five hours, for some reason we never knew. We never felt sure we were really on our way for a long time.

"English war vessels were evidently picketed clear across the Atlantic, for we sighted them all the way to New York, every now and then, but they were always away off -- you could hardly see them."

Mrs. Dessez told of the happy mood of the returning Americans aboard the Flandre, which was making its first voyage from Havre to New York, she being a South American boat. The stewards were not regular stewards, but were volunteers, who, on their return to France, would immediately enlist.

"A great many of the voyagers," concluded Miss Dessez, "were in what was called the ameliorated steerage. It was also called the glorified steerage, but I should have called it glorified storage."

Of A Distinguished Family

The Death of Jean Baptiste Dessez Recalls Interesting Historical Events

Jean Baptiste Leon Dessez, aged seventy years, who died on the 17th instant at his residence, No. 2418 Fourteenth street northwest, belonged to an old and distinguished family of France, his maternal grandfather, George Tonnell, having held the honorable position of chancellor at the court of Louise XVI, and being devoted to the king's cause, was, with his wife, imprisoned in the Bastille during the reign of terror, and only by the secret intervention of a friend in power were their names removed from the fated list of those names sentenced to die by the guillotine. Later they were liberated, and lived to be warm personal friends of Napoleon I, many interesting mementoes of whom Mr Dessez's family still possess.

Stanch royalists as were his ancestors, Mr. Dessez has ever been a believer in republican form of government and institutions. He came many years ago to this country, where he successfully followed his profession of civil engineer and was engaged on important work in North Carolina when the late war began. He wore the gray, and rendered valuable service as military engineer in the construction of fortifications for the defense of Richmond. For many years past his home has been in Washington, where he held a position in the Hydrographic Office of the Navy Department, and otherwise lived quietly in the midst of his family circle, a devoted husband and father.

Leon Dessez Badly Injured

Well-Known Architect May Die as the Result of a Fall from His Bicycle

Leon Dessez, the well-known architect, whose office is at 1421 F street northwest, is lying at the Emergency Hospital in a precarious condition, the result of a fall from his bicycle.

Mr. Dessez was riding along H street, near Fourteenth street northeast, yesterday afternoon, when bystanders saw him suddenly lurch forward and fall to the ground, striking his head with much force against the curbing.

He was picked up unconscious and taken to the Emergency Hospital. The surgeons have made several examinations and are of the opinion that his skull is fractured at the base. If this should prove true no operation can be performed and it is quite likely Mr. Dessez will die.

Mr. Paul Dessez, a brother of the injured man, was notified, and remained at the bedside of his brother all last night. From him it was learned that his brother was subject to sudden attacks of heart failure, and it is surmised that one of these caused the fall.

Mr. Dessez is one of the best-known architects in the city. Many of the handsome residences of the northwest are evidences of his artistic planning. He also planned the improvements to the building which is now the Hotel Raleigh.

Up to a late hour he had not regained consciousness.

Leon Dessez Will Recover

Leon Dessez who was injured by a fall from his bicycle on Tuesday last, was removed yesterday afternoon from Emergency Hospital to Garfield where he is resting comfortably and no doubts are entertained as to his recovery.

Leon E. Dessez who was so badly injured by falling from his wheel last Tuesday is much better and the physicians at Garfield Hospital are confident of his speedy recovery.

Mr. Dessez Leaves the Hospital

Leon E. Dessez, the architect who was dangerously injured March 16 by a fall from his bicycle, has recovered sufficiently to be removed from Garfield Hospital to his home at Chevy Chase. His physician expects to have him out in a few days.

Death of Samuel DeVaughn

Mr. Samuel DeVaughn, an old and well-known resident of the Third Ward, died last evening at his residence on E street, near 9th. Mr. DeVaughn was a native of Alexandria, and had resided here for many years, having in the meantime become possessed of quite a large amount of property, a large portion of which, it is stated, he intended to have left to the Masonic order of the District; but we believe he did not consummate the transfer. He has no immediate family, and his nearest relatives, who will inherit the property, are his nephews.

Funeral of Mr. DeVaughn

The funeral of the late Samuel DeVaughn took place from his late residence, on E street, near 9th, yesterday afternoon, and was very largely attended, among others number of our oldest citizens being present. Columbia R.A. Chapter, No. 15, and B.B. French Lodge, No. 15, of Masons, attended in carriages, and after the services had been concluded at the house by Rev. T.B. McFalls, of the Assembly's Presbyterian Church, the cortege proceeded to the Congressional Cemetery, where the remains were interred with Masonic services, conducted by Companion E.L. Stevens. Messrs. Milburn, Smith, J. Brown, Oate, of the Lodge, and Messrs. Boswell, Nutze, Humer, Edwards, of the Chapter, officiated as pall-bearers.

The Evening Star, Saturday, Sept. 21, 1867

The Judge in the case of the contested will of the late Samuel Devaughn, which has been argued for some time by Judge Hughes for the contestants and Mr. M. Thompson for the propounders, rendered his decision, in which he said:--The law points out the mode of making wills, and also the mode of revoking wills. The attesting proved the perfect sanity of the testator, and the scrivener who drew the will proves that it was made in accordance with the wishes of the testator, and the testator, but a few days before his death, point to this as his will. It is true he intended to make another will, but he had not done so.

The Evening Star, August 19, 1858 An Uncommon Case Mr. Lewis Devers was arrested by County Officer Pimms, with a warrant issued by Justice Giberson, in which Mr. D. is charged with having, about a month since, "rented his house, situated on Fourth street, between M and N streets, in the city of Washington, to common prostitutes, well knowing them to be such at the time he rented the said house, and that they intended to keep a bawdy house in the same, to the great scandal of the neighborhood and against the peace and government of the United States." Mr. Devers appeared this morning, and entered into bond in the sum of $200 for his appearance on Saturday next for a further hearing.
Such cases are very uncommon, and few are acquainted with the fact that the penalty, upon conviction before the Criminal Court, is fine and imprisonment, or either, at the discretion of the Court.

The Marine Band

A Dissatisfied Cornetist Raises a Small Tempest

An investigation is now in progress at the marine barracks to determine whether there is any foundation for a number of charges that have been made against Prof. Fanciulli, the leader of the Marine Band. The charges were made by A.G. deVincente, who formerly played the cornet in the band, and grew out of the recent trip which the band made through the south and southwest, and which was not as great a success from a financial point of view as had been hoped.

The former cornetist was one of those who went with the band, and ever since they got back he has been stirring up discord where there should be only a concord of sweet sounds. He was discharged a few days ago, and since then his allegations have taken a more definite form. The gist of them is that on their recent trip the men were not treated as well in the matter of accommodations as they had been led to expect and that the leader had not distributed among them as much of the coin of the land as they thought was justly due them. He also claims that he, personally, has always been discriminated against in the matter of outside engagements, by means of which the men are accustomed to add to their rather meager incomes.

These troubles came to the ears of Col. Heywood, the commandant, and he forthwith placed the matter in the hands of two of his subordinates to be sifted to the bottom. This action is invariably taken in cases of trouble of any sort at the barracks, and does not of itself, Col. Heywood says, imply any slight or disrespect to the leader of the band. The aggrieved DeVincente was looked upon as rather a dissatisfied Italian and was always affected by the jealousies which are so prevalent in musical organizations. In speaking of the matter today, Col. Heywood said that while he had not received formal notice from the two officers who were making an examination, he was satisfied that there was nothing in the charges, and that the whole affair would blow over or end in smoke.

Dropped Dead in the Street
 About 12:30 o'clock today a middle-aged man, while walking along D street, near 8th street, was seen to totter and fall. Some citizens observing the condition of the man, ran to his assistance, and found blood rushing from his mouth and nose, and in a few minutes life was extinct. Officer Duvall being near by, summoned some bystanders to his aid, and took the body to the central guardhouse, where it was laid down in the back office, and the coroner notified, who soon after came, and decided that an inquest was unnecessary, as death had taken place from hemorrhage caused by pulmonary disease. The name of the deceased was George DeWees, and he was well-known by old residents of this city as an eccentric kind of character, perfectly quiet and harmless, very plain his manner of dress, and had few acquaintances. His father, a former native of France lived at the corner of G and 13th streets for many years. Deceased resided at 932 B street south. On his person was found $507 in money and some papers and memoranda of his personal expenses.

Of her it may indeed be said:

"None knew her but to love her;

None named her but to praise."

Her life, marked by so much evenness of disposition, such unvarying kindliness of heart, and a sympathetic tenderness always expressing itself in charity towards others, was closed by a death so calm and peaceful as to be in perfect keeping therewith; and she who had so often and so lovingly ministered to the wants and sufferings of others found at last, though far away from what had until so recently been her home, many loving ones to minister unto her in their turn, and to shed the tear of sorrow over her loved form when all that earthly aid could accomplish had been done. Dexter, Aubrey D. d. 11 Jun 1907 R159/240

The Evening Star, June 12, 1907, p. 7

Death Due to Accident

Verdict in Case of Aubrey Dexter, Killed by Car

Six men composing a coroner's jury and sitting at an inquest conducted by Acting Coroner Glazebrook today declared that Aubrey Dexter, who was killed by a car of the City and Suburban railroad near Brentwood road early yesterday morning, came to his death by an unavoidable accident. The inquest began at 11 o'clock and was finished shortly before noon. The jury recommended better lighting along the car tracks.

John G. Hailey of 2801 4th street northeast, the motorman of the car which struck Dexter and killed him, gave the most important testimony before the coroner's jury. His car, he stated, left Berwyn for the last trip at 12:40 a.m. yesterday morning. Just after passing Brentwood road, he stated, he turned off all the current and allowed his car to drift down the grade, which continues for about 1,000 feet. He was holding the car up with a brake, he stated. After passing over 13th street, the motorman said, he noticed a dark object lying between the tracks, and he said he did all in his power to stop he car, but was unable to do so, and the vehicle passed over the body and ran thirty feet beyond it.

"How far was the dark object ahead of you when you saw it?" the motorman was asked.

"About fifteen feet."

Discovery Made

The motorman said he went back immediately to see what the dark object was and found the body of a man. Witness said he felt over the man's heart, but could not detect a heart beat. He stated that the body was warm, indicating that the man was probably not dead before the car came along, as had been suggested.

"I could smell the odor of liquor, and it was very strong near the body," testified the motorman.

The testimony of the conductor, Harry F. Faya, 1811 3d street northeast, and of Charles Wright, a passenger, was similar to that of the motorman, except that they did not see the man before the car struck him.

Albert Adams, with whom Dexter had lived recently, testified that Dexter was an "excessive drinker." The witness recalled that Dexter sat down on the railroad tracks once before when intoxicated.

Samuel J. Prescott, a friend of the dead man, was present at the inquest and asked several questions. He took charge of the body following the inquest, and it was taken by an undertaker to be prepared for burial. Word from relatives in Maine is desired before making arrangements for the funeral.

Obituary
The venerable Asbury Dickins, late Secretary of the Senate, died at his residence in this city yesterday morning. Mr. D. was, we believe a native of North Carolina, but removed in early life to Philadelphia. He afterwards spent several years in Europe. Returning to America he filled a post in the Treasury Department under Secretary Crawford with signal usefulness. Subsequently he served with equal credit as chief clerk in the Department of State, under Secretaries Van Buren and Forsyth. In 1836 he was elected Secretary of the Senate of the United States, which respectable and confidential office he filled with great ability and universal approval down to the extra session of the present year. In all the stations which he occupied his faithfulness, talents and gentlemanly bearing won the high respect of his superiors and of all others who knew him.

Mr. Asbury Dickens, the present Secretary, who was elected to fill the place of Mr. Lowry, is a very different man, and has nothing to do with tracts. He is a man of pleasant, mild manners, and has a countenance every way unlike toe black, long, demon visage of his predecessor, who never gave a cent to the poor in his life, to our knowledge.

We learn from the Alexandria Gazette that a most lamentable accident occurred on Monday evening last, in Fairfax county, near the residence of David Fitzhugh, Esq., about ten miles from Alexandria. took fright and ran off with great fury. The wagon was dashed against a tree, and broken to pieces. Miss Dickens, about twelve years of age, a most interesting girl, daughter of Francis A. Dickens, Esq. of this city, was so severely injured that she died in an hour or two after the accident. Mrs. Fitzhugh was very much injured, but it is hoped, from the report of the physicians, that her wounds are not dangerous. Another of the ladies had her arms shattered, and in other respects was much bruised; and the other young lady was slightly injured. Such was the violence of the concussion of the wagon against the tree, that it is a wonder the whole party were not killed. This melancholy accident is deeply regretted in the whole neighborhood.

When Dillard arranged the scantling and was about to throw the wall he was told by the contractor that he had not done the work properly. He said, however, that he had thrown many walls before and he understood his business. The accident followed and the body of the laborer was removed to the morgue. His Life For Others

Motorman Divers Dies in Effort to Protect Passengers

Burned By 3,000 Volts

Attempts to Pull Broken Live Wire Out of the Way

Succumbs To His Injuries

Accident Opposite the Chain Bridge Station of the Cabin John Bridge Electric Line Yesterday

Charles Divers, motorman, gave his life that passengers in his care might escape danger. Burned by a live wire which hung over the tracks opposite Chain Bridge station on the Cabin John line yesterday afternoon. Divers died in the Georgetown University Hospital at 8:15 o'clock this morning.

Charles Divers, motorman, had been in the employ of the Washington Railway and Electric Company for three years, and he knew the danger of touching a wire which carried 3,000 volts -- a current which must deal death upon slightest contact. But the motorman feared the dangling coil would touch some of the passengers in the open car, because it swung perilously near the tracks, and instead of waiting for repairman to reach the scene he put a newspaper over his hand and sought to pull the wire away.

Almost at the instant he grasped the wire he was thrown off his feet and his clothing burst into flames. The terror stricken crowd looked on for a minute while the motorman was being burned to death. But an unidentified hero appeared upon the scene. He seized the dying man and pulled him from the live wire, which was coiled about him.

"I couldn't tell just what he did," afterward said S.T. Dorsett, who was near the scene, "but I know he did a daring thing. It seemed as if he was certain to get killed. He made a success of his undertaking, however, and I'm only sorry he did not get the motorman from the curled wire in time to save his life."

Trouble With the Wires

It was shortly after 6 o'clock when the accident happened. Trouble having been experienced with the wires at that point earlier in the afternoon, repairmen were sent out from the company's shops shortly before 3 o'clock in the afternoon to repair damaged wires. Just before Divers was electrocuted an eastbound car ahead of hi had trouble with the wires, the trolley spool jumping the wire and breaking the span, throwing the latter across the feed wires. The broken span dangled over the westbound track so close to the eastbound cars, it is stated, that Divers feared it would endanger the passengers on the open car.

About eight cars had been delayed by the accident, and the passengers on ost of them had left the cars and gone ahead to see what was being done. The sputtering wire had to be removed before traffic could be resumed and Divers thought he could get it out of the way without calling out the repairman. He took the desperate chance and lost his life.

S.T. Dorsett and J.M. Maupin, treasurer and secretary, respectively, of the Potomac Heights Land Company, were near the scene of the accident. They were there earlier in the day, when the first trouble with the wires was encountered, and they remained until the dying man was taken away to the hospital. Mr. Dorsett said that when Divers took hold of the dangling wire with a newspaper it seemed as if the wire curled about him almost instantly and held him a prisoner.

Caring for the Victim

Dr. D.R. McNeill of Nashville, Tenn., who was returning in an automobile from a trip to Great Falls, went to the assistance of the victim. He found Divers being cared for on the ground nearby, water having been thrown upon him to extinguish the blaze. Many holes had been burned through his clothing, and his flesh had been burned and blackened. The sight presented was such that several ladies fainted and had to be looked after by other passengers.

Men, women and children crowded about the burned form of the man lying on the ground near the branch, many of them neglecting to notice the danger in which they placed themselves by walking near the live wire. It was with considerable trouble that those who rendered assistance succeeded in keeping back the crowd. It was not until some time after the fatality that repairmen repaired, remedied the trouble and restored traffic.

Divers Taken to the Hospital

T.K. Maupin, brother of J.M. Maupin, got his big touring car ready, and when Dr. McNeil had finished his first-aid treatment he hurried the dying man to the Georgetown University Hospital. The chauffeur paid no heed to the speed laws, covering part of the distance at a sixty-mile-an-hour gait. Drs. Moser and Ready were waiting at the hospital, ready to take charge of the motorman. Several persons who accompanied the motorman to the hospital assisted in carrying him into the building.

The physicians looked at the patient and shook their heads, realizing that death was a question of but a few hours. Divers' first thought, when he regained consciousness, was of his wife and two-week-old child. Mrs. Dives had left her sick bed and gone to the hospital from her home, 728 F street northeast, as soon as she heard of the accident and she was on hand when her husband asked for her.

Motorman Divers was thirty years old. He had been in the employ of the Washington Railway and Electric Company about three years, and was regarded as an excellent and careful motorman. Capt. Schneider of the seventh police precinct directed members of his command to investigate the accident and report to the coroner.

National Intelligencer, Monday, January 31, 1842

We have the painful duty of announcing the decease of the Hon. Nathan F. Dixon, a Senator in Congress from the State of Rhode Island. He expired at his lodgings in this city on Saturday last, of pulmonary disease, after an illness of three or four weeks. The age of the decease was, we believe, about 65. He was a gentleman of superior intellect, of excellent heart, of sterling integrity, and gentle manners, which qualities obtained for him the strong affection of numerous friends, and the warm esteem of all to whom he was known.

The Senate not having been in Session on the day of his death, order will no doubt be taken this morning for the funeral and appropriate tributes of respect to the memory of the deceased.

The National Intelligencer, November 20, 1832

Last evening, suddenly, at Brown's Hotel in this city, the Hon. Philip Doddridge, a Representative in Congress from the State of Virginia, aged about sixty years. In intellectual powers, and useful qualities, he has left hardly a superior in the body of which he was a member. In his death his State has sustained the loss of a most able and faithful Representative, and the citizens of this District have especial cause to lament his death, as it has deprived them of a zealous and efficient friend on the floor of Congress.

The National Intelligencer, November 21, 1832

The funeral of the Hon. Philip Doddridge, a Member of Congress from Virginia, is announced to take place from Brown's Hotel, at ten o'clock this morning. His effective exertions in Congress in behalf of the interests of this District, merit from us every testimony which it is in our power to pay to his memory. That the last tribute of regret may be duly paid, it is respectfully requested that the Corporate Authorities of the City of Washington attend the funeral, at the hour and place above named. The like request is extended to our citizens generally.

John P. Van Ness, Mayor

For details of the funeral and procession see "Pomp & Circumstance at Congressional Cemetery."

The National Intelligencer, Friday, November 23, 1832

In our notice yesterday of the funeral of the late Mr. Doddridge, we would have mentioned, had we been earlier apprised of the circumstance, that the President and Directors of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal Company, as a mark of respect for the memory of the deceased adjourned their meeting, and attended the funeral.

It will be gratifying to the people of the District, and to the friends of the deceased generally, to learn that, at the instance of several of our citizens, an accurate cast was taken of his face the day after his decease, which will enable the city to possess itself of a faithful likeness, in sculpture of one to whose friendship it is so largely indebted, and whose memory will always be held in grateful respect by its citizens.

In relation to the funeral of our deceased friend, we copy from the Alexandria Gazette of yesterday, the following paragraph:

"We had anticipated some public demonstration of the respectful regard in which the deceased was held, in the several towns of this District; and we speak with confidence when we say, that the public authorities of our town would have deemed it a sacred duty to have united in any such testimonial, had they been advised in due season. It was, therefore, with great regret we learned, after our paper had gone to press, that 3 o'clock of Tuesday had been fixed on as the hour of burial, and supposed, until yesterday's Intelligencer came to hand, that the melancholy rites of interment had been completed. Our citizens feel deeply the disappointment, that our public authorities have been debarred, by these circumstances, from the performance of the melancholy duty of attending the funeral of one who, by the zeal and devotedness with which he supported the interests of their town, had merited the lasting gratitude of its people."

It has been determined to inter the body on Tuesday evening. But to allow an opportunity to take the cast, mentioned above, and for a general attendance of the funeral, it was subsequently deferred to Wednesday.

Coroner's Decision in Case of Thomas Donaldson

Leaving no note or other message to let his relatives know why he was tired of life, Thomas S. Donaldson, fifty-two years of age, turned on the gas yesterday morning in his room, at 926 E street northwest, and accomplished self-destruction. It was not until some time after the body was found that any one discovered his identity. Several persons who had known Donaldson called at the house, some of them participating in the investigation, but the face of the dead man was buried in the pillow, and the identification was thereby delayed. There was nothing of value found in the room, and the landlady suggested that it was a case of "down and out." Other lodgers had committed suicide in her house before she moved to E street, and she said to the police that the incident was not a new one to her.

"But," she said, "there was no way that I could have prevented it. When a man wants to take his life he is bound to succeed."

She had no idea who the unfortunate man was. She said he had called at her house and said he had been sent there by Mr. Sweet, a plumber, and the landlady gave him a small room on the top floor of the house. He was seen when he returned to the house late Saturday night and went to his room. Nothing more was seen of him until his body was found about 10 o'clock yesterday morning.

The odor of gas was detected when the landlady went about the building to do her routine work. She went to the room occupied by Donaldson and found that the gas was escaping from there. The door was forced open and Donaldson's body was found upon the bed.

Had Served at Morgue

Donaldson had been employed as assistant superintendent of the morgue a few years ago and had become familiar with the cases of unfortunates who had committed suicide by inhaling gas. He prepared for suicide by securely fastening the door and window and filling the crevices with pieces of paper to prevent the escape of the gas from the room. After arranging the door and window the tip was removed from the gas fixture and Donaldson went to bed to die. The effect of the poisonous gas, it is believed, caused him to turn upon his stomach and bury his face in his pillow.

Coroner Nevitt reached the E street house a short while after the finding of the body and was greatly shocked upon recognizing the face of his former employe. The deceased was a native of Virginia, having been born a few miles below Alexandria. He was a plumber, but had not worked at his trade for several years. He had been employed in the District fire department and had also worked as starter at the 4 1/2 street car barn.

Since he gave up his position at the morgue about two years ago he spent his time with relatives in this city and Virginia.

A son of the dead man called at the E street house yesterday and identified the body. The son was surprised to know that his father had been in the city, as he had been in the habit of staying at the latter's house upon the occasion of his visits here.

It is stated that Donaldson had been addicted to the use of intoxicants and that his mind had probably become affected. Coroner Nevitt gave a certificate showing that Donaldson had committed suicide, and the son of the deceased had an undertaker take charge of the body.

Was Past Grand Master of the Masonic Order in District, Funeral Monday.

Dr. Robert Bruce Donaldson, senior past grand master of the Grand Lodge of Masons of the District of Columbia, and one of the prominent older residents of the Capital city, died at the family residence, 1216 16th street northwest, last night at 9 o'clock. The deceased was eighty-one years of age. Death was due to an attack of acute indigestion.

Dr. Donaldson retired from the active practice of dentistry fifteen years ago. His health was good, and yesterday afternoon he went for a drive. Returning, he expressed himself as being in unusually good physical condition. After eating dinner with the members of his family Dr. Donaldson retired to his room. Shortly after 8 o'clock he complained of pains in his chest, and immediately thereafter, as stated, suffered an attack of acute indigestion.

A physician was summoned, but upon his arrival it was seen that Dr. Donaldson had but a short time to live, death occurring shortly thereafter.

Dr. Donaldson came of Scottish stock, his parents having settled in Virginia in the early part of the past century immediately upon arrival in this country.

The deceased was born at Waterford, Loudoun county, Va., and later attended the Benjamin Hallowell School, in Alexandria, where he received his early education. Upon leaving this institution he entered the office of the late Dr. Finley Hunt of this city, where he studied dentistry. Afterward opening an office in this city, he rapidly secured a lucrative practice, which he enjoyed until the time of his retirement, as stated, about fifteen years ago.

Honored by Masonic Order

During his life spent in this city Dr. Donaldson, by his genial, kindly ways, won for himself a host of friends. Early in life he became a Mason, and subsequently arose to the position of grand master of the Grand Lodge of the District of Columbia. At the time of his death he was a member of Federal Lodge, No. 1, F.A.A.M., and Washington Commandery, No. 1, Knights Templar.

He was a thirty-seconddegree Scottish Rite Mason.

In 1854 Dr. Donaldson married Mary Anne M. Hall of Maine, who, with one son, Henry A. Donaldson, survives him. According to the arrangements completed this afternoon, the funeral will be held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the New Church, corner 16th and Corcoran streets northwest, Rev. Dr. Frank Sewall, the pastor of the church, will conduct the services. The pallbearers have not as yet been selected, but, it is stated, they will be chosen from among the associates of the deceased in the Grand Lodge of Masons of the District of Columbia. The interment will be in Congressional cemetery.

A special communication of the Grand Lodge, F.A.A.M., has been called to meet Monday next at 1:30 o'clock, and the members will attend the funeral in a body.

A History of Washington City, Its Men and Institutions

Dr. Robert B. Donaldson was born in Loudoun county, Virginia, in 1826. Having lost his father in childhood, he was sent to Alexandria, Virginia, to school at the age of seven, where he remained until he was seventeen, when, having his own way to make in the world, and having a natural aptitude for mechanics, he secured a position in this city with a mathematical and philosophical instrument maker, with whom he remained until he was twenty-one years of age. He then commenced the study of dentistry, and in 1852 entered upon the practice of that profession in this city, and for a period of forty-five years enjoyed a large and lucrative practice, during the course of which he served some time as professor of operative dentistry in the Maryland Dental College in Baltimore, and was the recipient of honorary degrees from two dental colleges.

In the course of his long practice, he invented several new and useful dental instruments and appliances, and since his retirement from the practice of his profession he has engaged in the manufacture of dental instruments of his invention, which are highly esteemed in the profession and have a large sale throughout the world where dentistry is practiced. Dr. Donaldson has for many years been prominent as a Mason, and served during the years 1869-70-71 as grand master of Masons of the District of Columbia. He is a director in the Union Trust and Storage Company, and enjoys the respect and confidence of the community.

Mrs. Mary A. Dorsey of Buena Vista Heights Killed

When J.H. Dorsey, who is employed as a salesman of the commission house of Robert L. Anderson, went to his home at Buena Vista Heights late yesterday afternoon he received the sad information that his wife, Mrs. Mary A. Dorsey, thirty-eight years of age, had been killed while planning a surprise for their little daughter and himself. It was to have been given them in the form of a piano, and it was while Mrs. Dorsey was assisting her son to remove the instrument from a wagon to their home that the heavy instrument fell upon her and so seriously injured her that she died soon afterward while being taken to Providence Hospital.

Mrs. Dorsey visited the District building yesterday and paid her taxes. While on her way home she was attracted to an auction house by hearing the auctioneer telling of the good qualities of a piano he was trying to sell. The bidding was lively, but Mrs. Dorsey was willing to pay more than the others. She was made happy by the auctioneer accepting her bid and turning the piano over to her when she had made the cash payment. Then she hurried home for her wagon, being anxious to get her purchase home before the return of her husband.

Heavier Than Was Expected

Upon reaching the front of her house she had the wagon back as close to the door as possible, and her son and other boys proceeded to remove the instrument from the vehicle to the house. It was found heavier than they had anticipated and Mrs. Dorsey thought she would render them what assistance she could. When the heavy burden slipped from the hold of the boys Mrs. Dorsey thought she could prevent it from falling to the ground. Her strength was not sufficient, however, and she fell to the ground, the weight of the piano crushing her chest. Neighbors responded when they heard the children crying for help and lifted the piano from the unconscious woman.

The patrol wagon was summoned from the Anacostia station and the police hurried her to Providence Hospital, hoping they would reach there in time for the surgeons to save the life of the woman, but life was extinct when the hospital was reached. The police removed the remains to the family home and Coroner

The funeral of Henry H. Doubleday, who died of apoplexy at Garfield Hospital late Tuesday night, will be held this afternoon at 4 o'clock at his late residence, 715 H street northwest. The interment will be in Congressional cemetery.

Mr. Doubleday was in the 65th year of his age and had lived in this city for thirty-five years, during which time he was closely identified with the life of the city as a lawyer, scientist, musician and philanthropist. He was constantly assisting struggling artists and musicians, and his home was a gathering place for numerous clubs devoted to musical and scientific studies. One of these organizations was the Sunday Evening Musical Club. While instructing this class last Sunday evening Mr. Doubleday was taken ill, and was obliged to discontinue the exercises earlier than usual. Monday he was removed to Garfield Hospital.

Mr. Doubleday was born in Binghamton, N.Y. For twelve years after he came to Washington he was an active patent attorney. Having an independent income, however, he retired from business and devoted his time to pursuits for the general good. He formed musical, scientific and literary societies for young students and gave them free instruction, taking, besides, a personal interest in their welfare. His collection of sheet music was one of the most extensive in the city and was for the use of the visitors to his home.

The deceased leaves a widow.

The Rev. Frederick Heisse, pastor of Wesley Chapel, conducted brief services and Mrs. Lucie Nola sang the "Dream of Paradise." She was accompanied on the piano by Miss Clara Moran. A beautiful floral violin was sent by the Sunday Evening Musical Club, which was organized by the deceased. The remains were interred in Congressional cemetery.

Douglas. At the residence of her husband in this city on the 19th instant at 4 o'clock p.m. after a few days illness, Martha, wife of the Hon. Stephen A. Douglas of Illinois and only surviving child of the late Col. Martin of North Carolina. The funeral will take place from her late residence on Saturday next at 12 o'clock p.m. The friends of the family are invited to attend.

The past week has taken away from us one of the best and purest of God's creation. Mrs. Martha Martin Douglas has entered the "ponderous and marble jaws" of the tomb. Insatiate Death demanded the sacrifice, and we are left to mourn over the early fate of a loved one, whose example was a shining light to those who survive her.

It was my happiness to know this estimable lady, at her home in Chicago, and deeply does her demise fall upon the heart whose tears almost obliterate the lines endeavored to be traced upon the cold, passionless paper.

I cannot believe she is no more. I never bury my dead. If those who are dear to me while living must pass away from our outward senses, there is a spirit-strain ever ringing in my mental hearing that they still live. My other sight beholds them away beyond the empyrean, white-robed angels of light.

Mrs. Douglas was emphatically what one of her sex, exalted in talent and worth, entitled a characterless woman; that is, she possessed none of those marked features of character which attract the public gaze. She was content with being a loving wife and fond mother. Her happiness was concentrated in home and its endearments, and such virtues as are natural and admirable in woman she possessed in a high degree. Of early religious tendencies, she had great faith in the precept, "in all things charity;" for never did the breath of scandal pass her lips, and that was perhaps with her a leading virtue, while she regarded that other charity, hospitality, as one of the abstract duties of life. Crossing the Grand Prairie of Illinois in the night, your communicant was overtaken by a violent storm. The prairie being without a tree, shrub, or bush, the vivid lightning reflected from every side, while the rain and wind made a storm at sea, in comparison a mere summer shower. Baggage, papers, everything was lost, and, on arriving at Chicago, I was somehow moved to call upon Judge Douglas, of whose widely-extended hospitality I had often heard. He was not at home, but his beloved departed second-self was, and ingratitude, "more sharp than serpent's tooth," would be mind if I failed to remember with prayerful thought the incidents of that visit. May that Being to whom she attuned her spirit while on earth receive her into the companionship of the "just made perfect," and, while the disembodied immortal watches its clay below, may it shed its heavenly influence upon the friends left behind it, to direct their sorrowing steps in the path that will lead to a happy re-union.

In youth and in loveliness this gentle being has gone to the home of "many mansions," while sin and wretchedness live on. So true are the lines of Wordsworth--

"The good die first,
 And they whose lives are but as summer dust
 Burn to the socket."

The Nestor of the Treasury Department Passes Away This Morning

Richard G. Dove, the Nestor of the treasury, is dead. The death occurred this morning at Mr. Dove's home, 1317 L street northwest. After having served the government for fifty seven years and lived to a greater age than that allotted to man he has passed away. He was born in the vicinity of Washington Circle, on the 26th day of January 1814. Those were troublous times and when less than a year old his father and mother took flight from the city in August 1814, when the British marched through the streets, setting fire to the Capitol, White House and other public buildings. When Lafayette visited this country in 1824 Richard Dove was a schoolboy and was among the number of children who were sent to the navy yard, where the noble Frenchman landed, and assisted in strewing flowers in the pathway of that ardent patriot. When he was born this city was but fourteen years old and consisted of only a few houses scattered along Pennsylvania avenue from the Capitol to Georgetown. The thickest settlement was then in the vicinity of Washington Circle, which was, at that time supposed to be the best residence section of the city. It was near the stores and markets of Georgetown, where all the shopping and business was done. Pennsylvania avenue was then a dirt road and a stage line ran from Georgetown to the Capitol. In his boyhood he attended a school which stood near St. John's Church, which was at that time the only building of importance north of the avenue and west of 15th street. The place where the Arlington Hotel stands was the children's playground and Lafayette or Jackson Square was a briar thicket where the children went during "play time" to gather blackberries.

The fashionable northwest was to him a gunning ground, abounding in slashes, brambles and marshes. It was the home of the hare, the partridge and the hissing reptile, and was considered the most undesirable section for residence purposes in or about the city. During a part of his boyhood he lived in the old two-story frame house on Vermont avenue opposite the Arlington. This house is still occupied and is, apparently, in a well-preserved state.

He had seen and remembered the appearance of all but four of the Presidents; had heard and seen Clay, Webster and Calhoun in their palmiest days and remembered having seen the democratic hero of New Orleans walking arm in arm with the workmen who laid the foundation of the treasury building. It was in 1829, during the administration of Andrew Jackson, that Mr. Dove, who was then only fifteen years of age, was appointed to a position in the Treasury Department, which he continued to hold without intermission until 1861, when he was removed because he was what was then termed a southern sympathizer. Having accumulated considerable property he engaged in busienss during the war and was quite successful, but during a financial stringency soon after the war, during which one or more of the most substantial banks in the city went to the wall, he lost most of the funds that he had spent the better part of his life in accumulating.

In 1866, at the request of Assistant Secretary Hartley, with whom he had been associated in the department, he accepted a reapppointment and was placed in charge of the Secretary's files, which position he held at the time of his death. He was thoroughly conversant with the files, having devised the system of filing that is in vogue in the Treasury Department. One of his pet ideas or hobbies was a fireproof file building, where all but the current files of all the departments could be kept. He was never married; was temperate in his habits; amiable, almost to effeminacy, in disposition; a gentle, kind and affectionate friend and relative. Generous to a fault, his purse was always open to his friends. He always lent a willing ear and a helping hand to every worthy cause and never turned away the poor and needy unaided. He leaves a few relatives and many friends to mourn his death.

Arrangements have been made for the funeral to take place Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the house.

So silently we seemed to speak So slowly moved about, As we had lent her half our powers To eke her living out.
We thought her dying when she slept, And sleeping when she died, For when the morn came dim and sad, And chill with early showers, Her quiet eyelids closed, she had Another morn than ours.

John A Downs Drowned

His Friends Believe He Committed Suicide From Grief at His Mother's Death

John A. Downs, a bachelor fifty-eight years old, who lived at the home of his nephew, John Tindall, No. 914 I street southeast, went down the river on the steamer Charles Macalester last night and remained about the boat until the turn at Indian Head was made. When the steamer was opposite the White House landing a passenger found a coat, hat and cane on the lower deck. These articles of wearing apparel, as well as the cane, belonged to Downs. The next question to be solved was that had become of their owner. Capt. L.L. Blake, who had known Downs for more than twenty years, and who had conversed with him during the evening, instituted a search, but the passenger was not to be found. He then concluded that Downs had gone overboard, either accidentally or purposely. Capt. Blake realized that nothing could be accomplished last night in the way of searching the river for the body and beyond searching the boat and afterward reporting the affair to the police nothing was done. When the steamer reached the wharf at the foot of 7th street about 11 o'clock Policeman Auguste was given the coat, hat and cane and told of how they had been left on the steamer. Many of the passengers who had enjoyed the evening's outing were questioned, but none of them could throw any light on the question of the man's disappearance.

Suicide Suspected

It is generally believed that Downs committed suicide, because he had stated that he was tired of living and intended ending his earthly career last Thursday, so it is reported. His mother died about three months ago, leaving him the only member of the family living. During his mother's life the son saw that she never wanted for anything, and her death had a very depressing effect upon him. Since then he has been despondent, and friends say he made the remark: "I'm the only one left and I might as well kill myself."

The information concerning his disappearance from the Macalester was not a surprise to some of his friends who had heard of the threat he is reported to have made. He left his home Thursday and the fact that he did not return that night occasioned no alarm, for he had remained away from home over night many times before. For many years he was a drummer for a cigar firm, and he was also in the brokerage business. He was a Knight Templar, being a member of Washington Commandery, and was also a member of Harmony Lodge, No. 17, F.A.A.M. It is stated that he expressed a desire that the members of the lodge should take charge of his body.

To Search for His Body

Mr. Henry Littleton of 916 I street southeast has arranged to go down the river Monday morning and search for the body of his friend unless it is recovered in the meantime. Friends of the missing man were anxious to have the police boat go down the river this morning in order that the members of the crew might make a search, but the boat is disabled and has been out of service for several weeks. Passengers who went down on the river boat today were instructed to look out for the body.

On Lookout for Body

Capt. L.L. Blake said today that he had noticed all the fishermen about Holland Point to look out for the body and to notify Commodore Sutton, the harbormaster here, if it should be found. The trouble, he said, would be to locate the point where Downs jumped overboard. It might have been at any place within a distance of five miles. Downs was said to be an expert swimmer, and there is a bare possibility that he may have swam ashore. The harbor boat being out of commission awaiting a new equipment, it is not possible to employ the District apparatus for dragging the river, unless a boat be obtained specially for the purpose.

Body Recovered

Remains of John A. Downs Brought to Washington

The body of John A. Downs, who jumped overboard from the steamer Charles Macalester last Friday night, was recovered near Indian Head at 755 o'clock this morning and brought here on the steam launch Lovie Randall. Undertakers Boteler and Scott took charge of the body and removed it to their place of business, on 8th street southeast, where it was prepared for burial later in the day. Capt. Barker of the steamer Harry Randall sighted the body floating in the river near Craney Island and so informed Harbormaster Sutton when his boat reached the river front. Last night the crew of the police boat went down the river on the Lovie Randall to search for the body. They were assisted by Manager Woollen of the steamer River Queen, who used his search light.

About midnight the search was abandoned, but at 4 o'clock this morning the men were again at work. Every inlet and the shores in the vicinity of Quantico, Craney Island and Indian Head were explored and about the hour stated the work of the searching party was rewarded. The body was badly decomposed. It was about 11 o'clock when the searching party returned here with the corpse.

The funeral of the deceased will take place at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Members of Washington Commandery, No. 1, K.T. and Harmony Lodge, No. 17, F.A.A.M. will have charge of the funeral arrangements. The interment will be at Congressional cemetery.

Bequests Made in the Will of John Downs

The will of John A. Downs who disappeared recently from the steamer Macalester and was drowned, was filed yesterday with the District register. It is written on a sheet of paper with the heading of a local hotel, is dated May 25 last, and was not witnessed. The will is as follows:

"In case of my death, after my funeral expenses are paid, I bequeath to my aunt, Sarah Jane Field, $100; my cousins, William Field and Frank Field, $50 each; my cousin, Ada Littleton, $100, the balance of my estate to be divided between my nephews, Archie C. Tindall and James M. Tindall; my bed room furniture and everything else in my room to Ada Littleton; my clothing and personal property to Frank Field. I wish E. Hez Swem to be administrator. If there is any cash in my pocket book let Aunt Sarah Jane Field have it. Washington Commandery No. 1, Knights Templar, and Harmony Lodge, No. 17, F.A.A.M., to be notified if I should die."

The will was filed by Addie E. Littleton, who says she received it by mail the 8th instant, from the purser of the steamer Macalester. She explained that she is informed that another will was made by Downs while he was aboard the Macalester about two months ago.

Mrs. Shea, With Her Little Knife and Pistol Keeps Two Officers at Bay

After the proceedings in the Criminal Court today, in which it appeared that the watch of which Mr. A. Metzler had been robbed by Gassaway Butler and others, on the 5th instant, had been sold to a Mrs. Shea, Mr. M. procured a search warrant for the watch. Lieut. Johnson served the warrant on Shea, whom he found at his house, on Maryland avenue, near 4 1/2 street, and he accompanied Lieut. J. to police headquarters, but Officers Pfaff and Duvall, who had been deputized to serve the search warrant, had trouble. Going into the house they were ordered out by Mrs. Shea, who armed with a long knife and pistol, threatened to make mince meat of them and blow them to atoms, and to show that she was in earnest cut at Pfaff, but fortunately missed him, and struck the counter, cutting off a large piece. The officers being unarmed at the time retired, and Pfaff returned to headquarters for instructions while Duvall remained on guard at the house until he received orders, and in this condition affairs remained at 2 1/2 o'clock.

MURDER OF OFFICER DOYLE!

The shocking intelligence reached our office just before going to press that on a renewal of the attempt to arrest Mrs. Shea, she fired a shot which killed Officer Doyle instantly.

Full Particulars of the Fatal Shooting of Officer Doyle by Mrs. Shea

The Coroner's Inquest Today

Brief mention of the homicide of officer Francis M. Doyle was made in a portion of our edition of yesterday. The facts in this case appear to be, that about a quarter before one o'clock p.m. yesterday, police officers Pfaff and Duvall, doing special detective duty, went to the groggery kept by John Shea, No. 339 Maryland avenue, corner of Louse alley, armed with a warrant to search the house for a silver watch, which it was charged had been disposed of to Shea by the colored robbers, who took it from Mr. A. Metzler, in broad daylight, in 11th street on the 5th instant. John Shea had previously been arrested by Lieut. Johnson on a warrant charging him with receiving stolen goods, and he was lodged at police headquarters.

The officers charged with the execution of the search warrant found Mrs. Maria Shea, wife of John Shea, in charge of the house, and they were driven out by her, as stated in yesterday's STAR. Pfaff then returned to headquarters and reported the situation, and being advised that it was their duty to break open the door he returned. They found the door barred and Shea's wife in high dudgeon. One of the officers blew his whistle, and a response was made by Officer Lewis, doing patrol duty on that beat. When he arrived he found Pfaff and Duvall at the door trying to effect an entrance. Mrs Shea was in the house, and refused to let them enter, but afterwards agreed to let Lewis and Pfaff in if they would keep Duvall out. At this juncture Officer Lewis was relieved by private Doyle. About a quarter before 3 o'clock the officers determined to force an entrance, at which time, Mrs. Shea, from within, was threatening that she would shoot the first man that entered. The officers made a break for the door, which was forced in, and all entered together. Mrs. Shea was behind the counter, and levelled the pistol--a Remminger navy six shooter, of the largest size, and Mr. Gates caught at her hand just as she fired the ball taking effect in the right breast of Doyle, who exclaimed as he fell, "O! my God," and expired almost instantly. The enraged woman was immediately taken in custody by Officer Thomas Auldridge, who had arrived on the ground, and she was marched to the station house, on the way cursing and resisting the officers in a most violent manner.

The Murdered Man

The body of Doyle was taken to the first precinct station to await the action of Coroner Potter. Doyle was 38 years of age and leaves a wife and three small children, who are living at 340 K street southwest. He was a native of Ireland, and during the war served three years as fireman on board the man-of-war Wabash, from which service he received an honorable discharge. He has been on the police force about five years, and has always been regarded as one of the most faithful officers, never shirking any duty assigned him, however disagreeable or hazardous it might be.

A Vile Den

John Shea, the keeper of the vile den where the homicide occurred, has been located at this place about five years, and it is said to have made money fast. Certain it is that no ranche in this city has given the police more trouble than this one, it being a resort for all the thieves and prostitutes in the section of the town where it is located, and well known as a "fence" for stolen goods. The pistol with which the deed was committed, and a large butcher knife some ten inches in length, which Mrs. Shea was armed with, were both secured and are at the station.

Last night our reporter visited the ranche of Shea, and found officer Leach and another officer, and was shown through it. A viler and more wretched looking place could scarcely be imagined. It appears to be fully stocked with cheap goods, and the shelves plentifully dotted with whisky bottles and demijohns, the contents of which, as the officers remarked, "will kill at forty rods." Shea's four children were asleep up stairs, and a female was in charge of them whose face is familiar at the police court. She gave her name as Lizzie Nugent, and says she has just returned from a sojourn of some weeks at the social evil reform institution, on the corner of 6th and G streets, and is now in Mrs. Shea's service. The blood seems to have spouted out of Doyle's mouth the instant he was shot, the top of the counter and floor of the shop being covered with it. He was taken out by the other policemen and laid down on the ground in front of the shop, but never uttered a word after the exclamation above noted.

This Morning

A large and excited crowd gathered about the station house, corner 4 1/2 and M streets southwest, but few were admitted other than the personal friends of the deceased. The body was lying on a board in the rear room of the station-house, clad in the police uniform in which the unfortunate man met his death. The clothing had been opened, revealing the fatal opening in the right breast, just above the nipple, through which the pistol ball passed on the errand of death. At an early hour this morning, Mr. Jas. Doyle, a brother of the deceased, came to the station house to take charge of the body when it should be turned over to him.

Dr. W.W. Potter, the Coroner, with Drs. J.P. Hartigan arrived, and with Drs. McWilliams, R.C. Croggon, -- Brookheimer, Leach, Hickman and Williamson, proceeded to make

A Post Mortem Examination

Shortly afterwards the wife of deceased, with his mother and her sister, appeared, and demanded admittance to see the body, pleading that it should not be opened by the doctors; that it was unnecessary. The sobbing of the females was distressing, and it was only by the persuasion of some personal friends that they were induced to be quiet. The officers placed at their disposal one of the rooms in the upper part of the station house, where they remained until after the rendition of the verdict.

The Fatal Weapon

A large size six-shooter, Remington's make, as an object of interest to those admitted to the station as also the knife--a common cheese knife, with a blade ten inches long--with which Mrs. Shea was armed when she attacked Officer Pfaff, a short time before the homicide.

A few minutes before 11 o'clock Lieut. Johnson, by whom John Shea was arrested yesterday and Lieut. Noon had

An Interview With The Accused

Mrs. Shea, in the cells attached to the station to ascertain where the watch was. She declared that she did not know where the particular watch wanted was, but that there were three in the house--two behind the counter and one in a box upstairs. She complained to Johnson that had the officers (Duvall and Pfaff) "acted more like gentlemen" and showed the warrant there would have been no trouble, but they showed no authority whatsoever.

The Inquest

The following jurors were summoned: Geo. Holmes, Parker Murphy, Lloyd F. Oliphant, E.B. Caton, Francis Reeside, ? Skinner, Pat'k Clarke, Ed. S. Atkinson, Robinson Rutter, John Walsh, H. Busey and James Croggon.

At 11 o'clock, the autopsy having been completed, the jury was sworn over the body, and examined the opening in the right breast, in which the coroner stated the missile appeared to have entered. It had been taken out from under the left shoulder. The jury were taken to one of the upper rooms, and the prisoner, Mrs. Shea, a rather tall, heavy-built woman, with a masculine countenance, was brought up and given a seat besides her counsel, Mr. A.K. Browne, with whom she had a short conversation, and then sat with her head bowed down.

Officer Silas B. Lewis was first sworn, and testified that he was on duty in the neighborhood of 4 1/2 street and Maryland avenue; heard the whistle; ran down; saw Officers Duvall and Pfaff at the house of the prisoner, on Maryland avenue, between 3d and 4 1/2 street, No. 339. Asked what was the trouble, and Duvall said he wanted the woman. Witness went down, knocked at the door and after he knocked several times--the door being locked--Mrs. Shea answered from the window. Witness asked Duvall if he had a warrant and received for a reply that he had a search warrant, which was then in Lieut. Johnson's possession. Witness asked her to let the officers in, and she refused, calling Duvall a -- of a --, and threatening if she got hold of him she would break his d--n brains out with her fist. Witness told Duvall to get the warrant, and Officer Pfaff went after it and got it. Gates returned with Pfaff, and they had the warrant. Duvall tried to read the warrant, but she would not hear him. She told witness that if he got the warrant she would let him and the others (Gates and Pfaff) in, but that man (Duvall) shall not come in. Witness told her that they could not keep Duvall and advised her to open the door. Duvall said that he would try her again, and she answered, "There's the door, and if you come in, yo have got to come in there, and if you do, I will meet you there, and I will shoot the first d--d policeman who comes in." About 1 1/2 o'clock officer Doyle came up; he left him there; was not present at the shooting. Thanks the search warrant called for a silver watch. He was certain.

P.W. Pfaff, sworn, --Lieut. Johnson, with witness and Officer Duvall, went to serve the search warrant. Johnson took Shea into custody and deputized witness and Duvall to make the search; witness started to make the search, when Mrs. Shea seized Duvall, as he was going behind the counter, tearing his shirt and necktie, and witness attempted to grab her across the counter, when she seized a big butcher knife, (Witness identified the knife). She said to witness, "You --- of a ---, you searched my house before, and you can't search it today." Witness told her that she must submit to the law. She then uttered fearful oaths and curses, flourishing the knife, and Duvall went outside to get some help. She locked the door on witness and he tried to pacify her. Se said, "You -- of a --, you have got to get out, and by the back way." witness said he would not, and after flourishing the knife she condescended to open the door, and as he was going out she flourished the knife again and he drew his billy. Officer Lewis then came, and witness got Duvall to go to Johnson for the warrant, and they tried to persuade her to open the door; she said that they could all come in except the man who had the warrant, Duvall. Witness then went to headquarters and on his return Officer Doyle had been shot.

Dr. J.F. Hartigan testified to making a post mortem examination. He described the wound, and said that he believed death was occasioned by internal hemorrhage.

Dr. Alex McWilliams corroborated the testimony of Dr. Hartigan.

Edmund J. Duvall (policeman) sworn--Witness stated that when he started to go behind the counter Mrs. Shea rushed between him and the window and as he put his hand on the counter she said, "You little --- of a - --, if you lay your hands on anything here, I will cut your heart out! I want to see your warrant for proceeding in here." Witness told her that the warrant had been served on the proprietor, that she had heard it read, and knew what he came after, she then seized the butcher knife and grabbed him by the collar. Witness grabbed her and held her back, while she continued to call him a --- of a ---, etc. She had the knife at his breast several times. Officer Pfaff came to his assistance. While they were talking a crowd came in, and he (witness) backed out from behind the counter and then tried to get the crowd out, and when he got to the edge of the door it was slammed to and he was backed on the outside. Heard her threaten officer Pfaff to cut his heart out if he did not get out; then heard the scuffling; demanded that the door be opened two or three times and was answered that she would not open it; thought Pfaff was in a dangerous place, and witness kicked the pannel in, when the door was opened and Pfaff backed out, she menancing him with the knife; witness told Pfaff to knock her down, but he did not heed him and when he got on the outside the door was slammed to and bolted. Shen then went up stairs, opend the window and showing the reolver told witness if he put his head in that door she would blow his brains out. She said the other officers could come in, but he should not. Witness went to the Police Court and got the search warrant, returned and demanded admittance. Officers Gates, Doyle and Pfaff were present, and they begged her to open the door. She refused dto let him in, but said the others could enter; that if he (witness) attempted to enter she would blow the little -- of a --'s brains out. Held a consultation, and Gates and Pfaff decided to go in, witness having previously attempted to get something to open the door. She was then sitting at the window, behind the counter, with the revolver cocked. Witness demanded admittance, and in reply to the request to open the door, she said she would to others, but not to him. After demanding admittance several times, witness went to the door and knocked at it three times, the third time nearly falling in. Gates took hold of him and said on a colored man to help him. Witness told her that she had killed Doyle, and she at first said that she didn't care, but had killed the wrong one; but the last time he spoke to her of it she said she was sorry she had killed the poor man. Witness is certain that Duvall was not inside when the shot was fired.

James Simons, Sarah Green, W.M. Boyd, Anna Morrison and Jack Williams gave their testimony, corroborating the above, and the jury proceeded to make their verdict as follows:

The Verdict

The jury returned a verdict, "That the said F.M. Doyle came to his death about 3 o'clock p.m. on the 29th day of December, 1871, near the premises of John Shea. On Maryland avenue between 3d and 4 1/2 streets. They further find that the cause of the death of the said Doyle was a wound by a pistol fired by the hands of Mary Shea, and the said Doyle was in the discharge of his duty as an officer of the Metropolitan Police at the time.

The coroner immediately filled out a commitment to jail for the prisoner.

Doyle, the policeman killed by Mrs. Shea, the remains were placed in a coffin and removed to his late residence, where a large crowd of friends called to condole with his family. The funeral took place yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. Father Call, of St. Dominic's church, preached the funeral sermon, referring favorable to the character of the deceased and to the fact of his having met his death while in the discharge of his duty. The funeral cortege was formed with fifty-two policemen at the head under the command of Lieut. Gessford, and the remains were interred in the Congressional Cemetery.

Mrs. Shea in Court--One Thousand Dollars Bail Offered and Refused

Mrs. Mary Shea, who was committed to jail last week by the Coroner, Dr. Potter, on the charge of killing Policeman Doyle, was brought into the Criminal Court this morning for the purpose of having the amount of bail fixed. The prisoner was attired in a neat brown striped poplin, a shawl, and brown bonnet, and had with her one of her children, an infant girl about a year old. Mr. A.K. Browne appeared for the prisoner, and Mr. Harrington for the government. The testimony of Officers Gates, Auldridge, and Duvall, to the same effect as given before the coroner's jury was taken.

Mr. Browne claimed that the pistol was not cocked when the officers entered, but that the weapon was discharged in the scuffle.

Judge Carter said that it was apparent that she had previously threatened to kill Duvall it he attempted to enter, and he questioned that officer as to his position when the pistol was tired, when he was there, and if she knew that he was in the room at the time. Officer Duvall was certain that he had hold of her at the time. She was stooping when the pistol was discharged.

Officer Aldridge was recalled, and testified that immediately after the shot he noticed Duvall about five or six feet distant.

Officer Gates was recalled and testified that she had stooped about two feet when the pistol was fired, and he was attempting to get the pistol from her. She was when stooping attempting to wrest herself loose from his grip.

Judge Cartter said that it was seldom that bail was accepted in capital cases, but there were exceptions, and he would make an exception in this case. Here we have a pregnant woman waiting trial in a prison furnishing no accommodations for her sickness. While he would not allow the evidence to prejudge the case, he would accept bail in the case, but would not fix the amount.

Mr. Browne said that she would give $1,000.

Judge Cartter -- "We will accept no such bail; we want as much as she can give, and the amount will be fixed when bail is offered."

The prisoner was then remanded to jail.

Mrs. Shea Released on Bail

This morning, Mr. Harrington representing the government, and Mr. A.K. Browne, counsel for the woman Mrs. Shea, who was committed to jail on Saturday last on the charge of killing Officer Doyle, appeared in the Criminal Court, Judge Carter, and arranged that bail should be taken for her appearance--$10,000 real estate and $4,000 collateral. Mrs. Shea was therefore sent for, and soon appeared with Bailiff O'Neal. She was attired as she was yesterday, and had her infant daughter with her. She was joined in the court-room by her husband. The money was drawn from the bank on the surrender of the certificate of deposit. About 12 o'clock the recognisance was taken, John Shea going on the bond with the accused in the sum of $10,000 to appear and answer, with the understanding that the amount deposited with the Marshal ($4,000) should be forfeited if she failed to appear. She was therefore released.

The Doyle Shea Homicide

This morning the grand jury found a true bill against Mrs. Mary Shea, charging her with murder, in having killed Francis M. Doyle, a member of the Metropolitan Police, on the 29th of December last. They also found a true bill against her husband, John Shea, for buying stolen property, knowing it to be stolen, (the watch of which Mr. Metzger was robbed in broad daylight, and for which the officers were attempting to search Shea's house when the fatal shot was fired.) They also found true bills against Chas. Johnson and Richard Burnett, charging them with highway robbery, in attacking and robbing Mr. Metzger of the watch above referred to. The others concerned in the robbery---Dick Gassaway and Philip Butler--have already been convicted and sentenced to the Albany penitentiary.

The Shooting of Officer Doyle by Mrs. Shea

The trial of Mrs. Mary Shea, indicted for the murder of F.M. Doyle on the 29th of December last, was commenced in the Criminal Court, Judge Carter, this morning--Mr. Harrington prosecuting, and Messrs. A.G. Riddle and A.K. Browne for the defence.

The mother, wife and other relatives of the deceased came into the court-room about 10 1/2 o'clock, and the accused arrived about the same time. Mrs. Shea was directed to stand up and the indictment being read she entered a plea of "not guilty." She exhibited considerable emotion, and her eyes filled with tears as she further answered the court that she would be tried by her country.

The Selection of a Jury was commenced and the names of the jurors were drawn from the hat in the following order, each one being sworn on his voire dire.

W.H. Rohrer was excused on account of ill health; James Grinnell, challenged by defense; Samuel Lewiss had formed an opinion; Donald McCathran, ditto; Joseph Fletcher, accepted and sworn; Robert A. Griffin, ditto; G.W. Cassell, ditto; John Watts, ditto; George W. Uttermuhle had formed an opinion; John H. Wise, ditto; Michael R. Combs, accepted and sworn; Perry W. Lowe, ditto; John E. Latham had conscientious scruples; Horace S. Johnson, ditto; W.H. Garges, accepted and sworn; George T. Howard, ditto; William H.

Barnes, ditto; Joseph Smallwood, ditto; Peter Hepburn had formed an opinion; James Davenport, accepted and sworn; Barney B. Curran, ditto. This completed the jury.

Mr. Harrington opened the case for the government, and was followed by Mr. A.K. Browne, who claimed that this was an accidental shooting.

Dr. W.W. Potter and Dr. J.F. Hartigan testified as to the fatal character of the wound and the appearance of the body. Officer S.D. Lewis and other witnesses then testified as to the shooting, detailing the circumstances as reported in The Star at the time, when the same witnesses were examined before the coroner's inquest.

The facts were, briefly, that Officers Pfaff, Duvall, Gates, and others were sent to the shop of the prisoner to search the house for a stolen watch, which it was supposed had been pawned or sold there. The prisoner resisted arrest and threatened the officers, and reinforcements were sent for and arrived, including the deceased, (Officer Doyle) who told Officer Duvall to do his duty. Mrs. Shea, who had her door fastened, threatened that she would shoot the first who entered it. Duvall kicked the door, and Officer Gates saw Mrs. Shea take up the pistol and walk from behind the counter to the middle of the room. Gates took hold of Duvall to keep him from going in, as Mrs. Shea had threatened him especially, and Gates then entered the door, which had to be forced. Mrs. Shea pointed the pistol towards the door, and Gates took hold of her on one side and Officer Aldridge on the other. She pulled from under Gates' arm, he having hold of the pistol by the barrel at the time to prevent her firing it, and it was discharged, and the ball entering Officer Doyle's body, killed him. The evidence was being taken as our report closed.

Trial of Mrs. Shea for the Murder of Police Officer Doyle

The trial of Mrs. Mary Shea, charged with the murder of Officer Doyle, was resumed this morning in the Criminal Court, Judge Carter and Mr. Colclazer, for defense, testified that he was looking in the door when the pistol was fired; that there were several persons holding Mrs. Shea at the time, and he could not say who fired the weapon; that Officer Duvall at this time was outside the door. Several other witnesses corroborated this testimony, Dr. C.C. Cox, testified that women in the condition Mrs. Shea was in are very irritable.

Mr. Harrington addressed the jury, claiming that the prisoner was accountable for the death of Doyle and guilty of manslaughter, because the shot was fired when she was resisting the officers of the law.

Mr. Browne followed for the defense, arguing that the death of the unfortunate officer was the result of an accident.

Mr Riddle followed on the same side, claiming that the accused was innocent of any crime; that it was the officer's indiscretion which led him to his death; that there was no idea of shooting in the mind of the accused, and she did not intend to shoot Duvall; that the firing of the pistol was accidental.

Mr. Riddle was quite pathetic, and the prisoner most of the time was in tears.

Mr. Harrington proceeded with the closing argument and argued that as this killing was in consequence of an unlawful act--the resistance of an officer--she was guilty of manslaughter. He proceeded to recite the circumstances, arguing that she was accountable. He, in conclusion, asked the court to instruct the jury that if they find the accused was engaged in an unlawful act at the time, that she was guilty of manslaughter.

Judge Carter charged the jury that if they find from the testimony that the officers had the search warrant, and they entered the house, and if she resisted, she was doing an unlawful act. If defendant discharged the pistol intentionally or accidentally, she is chargeable with the results. If they find that she did not discharge the weapon, or had reasonable doubts that she did discharge it, she was not guilty. The central point of the case is whether she had possession and control of the weapon at the time it was fired, and if they find she had, she is guilty.

Verdict of Not Guilty

The jury retired at 2:05 in charge of bailiffs, and returned at 2:55, and Mr. Coombs announced the verdict of not guilty.

There was some movement on the part of the crowd, but it was checked by the marshal and bailiffs. Mrs. Shea was congratulated by some of her friends and walked out of court exhibiting some feeling. While at the entrance of the witness' room, the widow of the deceased came out, weeping under considerable excitement, and Mrs. Shea also broke into tears, and retired to the witness room.

Had Held Many Important Posts on the Capital Staff --

Seventy Years of Age

Charles S. Draper, the oldest employe of the Senate, died at his home, 325 A street southeast, yesterday afternoon. He was in his seventieth year. He had been failing in health for several months past.

Mr. Draper spent his entire business life in the Capitol. His name appears on the records of the Senate as far back as 1852.

When a young man he worked in various offices of he Senate. In the early sixties he was appointed to the post of doorkeeper and messenger for Sergeant-at-Arms Brown. In this position he became known to every senator and official whose business carried him to the Senate. Mr. Draper finally became the confidential man of the sergeant-at-arms.

He was looked upon by the senators comprising the District committee as an ideal man to attend to the affairs concerning the city and District. Upon the appointment of Senator McMillan as chairman of he District committee, Mr. Draper was transferred to service with the senator.

In this position he became widely known to every newspaper man and many business men in Washington besides gaining the confidence of the senators on the committee.

Senator McMillan was succeeded by Senator Gallinger several years ago as chairman of the committee. Mr. Draper was transferred to the important post at the door of the diplomatic gallery. This was looked upon by senators and employes alike as a distinct honor.

Mr. Draper then began to form his wide acquaintance with members of the diplomatic corps, and was as well known by them as by senators and other men of national importance. In this last position he frequently entertained diplomats with interesting stories of American political life and was looked upon by them as a mine of information on senatorial topics.

His widow and three sons survive.

The National Intelligencer, May 2, 1847

The report of the decease of the Hon. George C. Dromgoole, for several years past a Representative in Congress from the Brunswick district of Virginia, and just re-elected to that station in the Thirtieth Congress, is confirmed. He died, of a severe attack of bilious pleurisy, on Wednesday night last.

Mr. Dromgoole was a distinguished politician. Endowed by nature with sagacity to plan and courage to execute, he was the ablest debater of his party, and unequalled as a legislative tactician.

His death will be sincerely regretted by those who have always known him, as we have done, as a decided political opponent, it is true, but also as a courteous and kind-hearted gentleman.

The National Intelligencer, May 19, 1847

The Late George C. Dromgoole

The following Letter from the late Gen. Dromgoole, written three years ago, giving an account of his descent, etc. will perhaps be of interest to a number of our readers, as it was to us. We copy it from the New York "Tribune:"

Washington, January 21, 1844

Dear Sir: Yours of the 2d was duly received. My parents were not both natives of the Emerald Isle. My father, Edward Dromgoole, was born in Sligo. When a youth he came to America a poor boy, with religious impressions and a strong desire for religious freedom. He landed at Philadelphia in 1772--came to Baltimore, and resided in that city, or its vicinity, with a Mr. John Haggerty, a tailor by trade, and a man of most exemplary piety. Edward Dromgoole had been brought up in Ireland to the trade of a linen weaver. When he came to reside with Mr. Haggerty, that he might not eat the bread of idleness, he assisted him in the business of tailoring. The thimble with which he worked is still carefully preserved in the family. They worked together and prayed together, and thus formed a social and religious attachment which endured during their joint lives; and the survivor, Edward Dromgoole, to the day of his death, cherished the memory of his departed friend with the fondest recollection. They were disciples, or followers as it was termed in those days, of John Wesley.

In 1774 Edward Dromgoole commenced preaching. While residing with Mr. Haggerty, however, he formed a society or class of Methodists, and held the first Methodist Class Meeting in America.

From a sense of duty he entered upon the plan of itinerant labor in the ministry. He proceeded from Maryland to Virginia, and travelled extensively in the latter State and in North Carolina. His adopted America engrossed all his feelings of attachment to country. Without mingling in political discussions and controversy, he was the ardent, prayerful advocate of Civil and Religious Freedom. In the very incipency of the war between the Colonies and Great Britain, he hesitated not one moment in deciding whether he should own allegiance to America or to England. He quickly and voluntarily repaired to his friend and Christian brother, Robert Jones, a magistrate in the county of Sussex, in the State of Virginia, a man of great respectability and undoubted patriotism. Before him he took the oath of fidelity and allegiance, administered at his own request. A certificate of this oath he continually kept with him. He travelled during the Revolutionary war, every where performing his ministerial functions, and was in the neighborhood of Halifax, North Carolina, when the news of the Declaration of Independence was received. After preaching to a large congregation, he read to them, from his stand, at the request of Willie Jones, Esq., and other distinguished patriots of the town, the Declaration of Independence.

He settled in Brunswick county, in the State of Virginia, where he resided until his death, in 1835, in the 84th year of his age, having been a minister of the gospel for more than sixty years.

He intermarried with Rebecca Walton in said county, whose ancestors had early emigrated from England to Virginia. Whether they descended from the family of the bishop, the author of the Polyglot Bible, or from old Izak the fisherman, is not known, nor is it material. They lived happily together, raised and educated a family of children, and left them a competency, acquired neither by speculation nor extortion--it was the result of economy and honest industry. I am their youngest child. Very respectfully, etc.

George C. Dromgoole

To. William L. Mackenzie, Esq., New York.

Drowning Accident
Two Brothers Lose Lives Near Gas Plant
A drowning accident occurred on the Eastern branch near the gas plant yesterday afternoon, in which there were two victims, Percy Dudley, ten years old, and his brother, George Dudley, who was sixteen years old. The older boy lost his life while trying to rescue his brother, who had accidentally fallen overboard. Both bodies were recovered before 6 o'clock and removed to the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dudley, 1358 K street southeast. The accident occurred early in the afternoon and at a time when there were many persons about the branch in boats and others on shore. Some of them witnessed the affair, but were unable to reach the boys in time to save their lives. Boy friends of the Dudleys were in other boats on the branch and made an effort to reach them when they saw the danger, but both boys had disappeared beneath the surface of the water by the time they reached the vicinity of the unoccupied boat, and there was nothing they could do except to make an effort to find the bodies. When they found their efforts were fruitless they went ashore and told the police of what had occurred.
How It Occurred
Persons who witnessed the accident said that the younger of the brothers was seen to leave his seat in the boat and start to pass George, who was doing the rowing. The latter was steadying the boat with his oars and the accident would not have happened had not Percy struck his foot and stumbled, falling overboard before he could recover himself.
It is said that George waited for him to come to the surface of the water and then plunged from the side of the boat to his rescue. George was known as a good swimmer, and had it not been for the excited condition of his little brother, who immediately clutched George's neck, both might have been saved. However, the little fellow wrapped his two arms about his brother's neck, while the latter struggled desperately to keep above the water, and at the same time reach the empty boat, a short distance away.
While the two boys were struggling for their lives in the water their friends hurriedly rowed toward them and shouted to some men on the gas house wharf for help. When they arrived within a few yards of the drowning boys the latter disappeared beneath the surface of the water. They went down to their deaths, observers say, clasped in each other's arms.
A rowboat containing two men from the gas house soon reached the scene and they began diving for the bodies, but no trace of them could be found.
Some of the drowned lads' little companions went to the Dudley home and broke the news to the parents, who were overcome with grief.

Little Child Drowns in Bucket of Water

Falling head first into a bucket of water left standing in the kitchen of his grandmother's home yesterday afternoon, little John F. Dudley, 18 months old, barely able to support the weight of his body on his tiny legs, was drowned before he could be drawn out. Coroner Nevitt was informed of the boy's death and issued a certificate of death by accident.

The little fellow was crawling around the floor of the house on Patterson Street northeast, while his grandmother, Mrs. Schlosser, was busy attending to her household duties. She passed from one room to another several times and last saw the boy supporting himself with a chair in the kitchen. When she returned she found him standing on his head in the bucket and his head and shoulders beneath the water.

She hastily drew him from the bucket, but he had been dead several moments before she discovered him.

Death of Sergeant Dick

Richard E. Dudley, Late of the Marines, Passes Away

Coroner Decides That Demise Resulted From Accident--

Interment to Take Place at Arlington

Richard E. Dudley, a retired sergeant of the United States Marine Corps, was found dead in his room at No. 804 L street southeast, shortly after 10 o'clock last night. A single gas jet in his room was turned on and the door and window were closed. Death had no doubt resulted from inhaling the gas, but whether it was the result of an accident or was done with suicidal intent will probably never be known.

The deceased was about sixty years old, and was an Englishman by birth, although he came to this country when he was quite young and spent the best years of his life in the army and Marine Corps of his adopted country. Since his retirement in 1885 he has lived in this city, and for a long time he occupied the room in which he was found dead. Sergeant Dick, as he was familiarly known, was fond of the marines and sailors, and for this reason he had always lived in the vicinity of the navy yard and marine barracks. Frequently he spent hours in the company of the men who were still in the service, telling them of his experience when there was hard fighting to do.

The old man knew a good story when he heard it, and was also able to tell a good one. He was a staunch admirer of Queen Victoria and the Prince of Wales, and in his room the police found many pictures of them, clipped from newspapers during the past twenty-five years. The old sergeant had accumulated many books and magazines, and they were found scattered about his room last night.

Yesterday afternoon Sergeant Dick mourned the death of Queen Victoria, and friends with whom he talked saw that he was visibly affected. He had been drinking heavily, and his intoxicated condition probably made him feel all the more sorrowful.

Item in His Diary

He kept a diary during several years of his service. It contained an interesting entry made during his third enlistment concerning the arrest of William M. Tweed, who was better known as Boss Tweed. The entry was made while Dudley was on the U.S.S. Franklin, reads as follows:

We left Villefranche September 14, 1876, homeward bound. Arrived at Gibraltar September 19, coaled, and received a telegram from the department to delay departure. On the 21st received a dispatch from the minister at Madrid to proceed to Vigo for the purpose of taking on board William M. Tweed of Tammany notoriety. Tweed had escaped from prison in New York and reached Santiago, in Cuba. The police got a clew to his whereabouts and communicated with the captain general, who was took late in making an attempt to secure him. He, however, found that Tweed had taken passage on a Spanish ship called the Carmen, and communicated with the government at Madrid, which gave orders to look out for the Carmen. There being over twelve ships of that name on the Spanish shipping list, this was a matter of some difficulty.

The Spanish police requested a photograph of Tweed, but there being none at hand they were furnished with copies of a caricature representing Tweed beating a child. This was taken from Harper's Weekly. The Spanish translated the picture in the wrong sense, as they construed Tweed to be a kidnaper, which is considered in Spain to be a most infamous crime. The police kept a bright lookout for William M., and gobbled him when the Carmen got into Vigo. He was confined for security on an island called St. Simons, on which stands the fort in which he was placed. We left Gibraltar for Vigo on September 22, arriving there on September 26. The Carmen was in port. The guarda costa told me that Tweed was in his bare feet washing down decks, dressed in a coarse suit of sailor clothes. He was confined in the large fort overlooking the city. His cell floor was sanded, and he was kept in his bare feet to prevent him attempting to escape. Shortly after our arrival a Spanish government boat came along with Tweed's baggage. At 10 o'clock at night

Tweed came on board with Hunter, his nephew. He was confined in the admiral's cabin, with a sentry inside. During his stay on board he occupied his time playing cards, and wrote a good deal. He is temperate and does not smoke. A bottle of wine lasted him a couple of days. He took great interest in the newspapers, and used to send round for all the papers that were to be had in the ships.

Coroner's Conclusion

Coroner Nevitt viewed the body this morning and made an investigation. He was told that Dudley had lived on L street southeast for about seven years, during which time he frequently went on sprees. He was also informed that he was very much under the influence of liquor yesterday. Dr. Nevitt concluded that death was the result of a fall accident, and gave a certificate accordingly. The body of the unfortunate man was turned over to the military authorities to be buried at Arlington.

Duffy. Suddenly on Tuesday, March 28, 1905 at 1356 Princeton street n.e., Nellie Duffy, beloved daughter of Michael and Ella Duffy. Notice of funeral hereafter.
The Evening Star, March 28, 1905
Committed Suicide
Sight of a Funeral Causes Desperation
The sight of a funeral yesterday afternoon in the vicinity of her home, 1335 I street northwest, preyed upon the mind of Catherine Ellen Duffy to such an extent that she committed suicide by taking laudanum. When the young woman saw the carriages on the street she made a remark to a member of her family that indicated she contemplated something out of the ordinary.
"You never can tell who will be the next," she said.
No attention was paid to the remark of the young woman at the time, but this morning her relatives recalled what she had said and realized what she meant. Miss Duffy was a daughter of T.V. Duffy, a grainer. She was twenty years old and was always considered as being demented. After making the remark stated, the young woman went to Price's drug store at 13th and H streets and purchased an ounce of laudanum.
"My little brother cut his eye," was the excuse she gave for making the purchase.
She was given the poison and no further attention was paid to the transaction. At an early hour this morning members of the family discovered that the young woman was sick and when they found she was unconscious they sent for Dr. Johnson Elict. The doctor found symptoms of opium poisoning and proceeded to wash her stomach. Her condition was so serious that he was unable to save her life and she died about 5:30 o'clock. Coroner Nevitt was notified and the facts were so plain that he gave a certificate of death from opium poisoning. The coroner was satisfied that the young woman was demented and so stated in the certificate.
Duffy, Helen	d. 13 Sep 1832		R27/3
Duffy. On Thursday night, of the prevailing disease [cholera], at the residence of William McCauley, Esq. of this city, Miss Helen Duffy. The moral beauties of the deceased were too striking to require illustration: in fact, posthumous praise cannot add a ray, and friendship need not tax the heart, to delineate worth like hers. To speak well of the dead is pleasant -- it is consoling to the afflicted survivors -- it gives a cheering hope to the Christian world that the departed has only changed a world of woe, for realms of bliss. Nevertheless, a blight has crossed the threshold of her late home, where she was always seen, felt, and best appreciated: where she united precept and example, and exhibited woman as we love to contemplate her. The infant will miss her untiring devotion -- the sister her affectionate duties, and the friend will mourn the loss of those sympathies which give to life all its energy -- all its balm. Let us not mourn as those that have no hope. Life and death walk through this world hand in hand. At all times and in all places there are the watchings and weepings of hearts severed or about to sever. Death calleth at the high house and the low! cometh to the maid and the matron, the grey-haired sage, and the child on the nurse's knee.
The blow struck, and the sick bed has become the bier. The being that we cherished has passed
Thro Nature up to Nature's God
Where "loud hallelujahs of Angels shall rise
To welcome the soul to its home in the skies."

Cecelia Dulin, 95, Dies; Ex-Teacher, Principal

Cecelia P. Dulin, 95, who served as a teacher and principal in District schools for 48 years, died Monday at the Episcopal Home, 1513 32nd St. N.W., where she lived for the past eight years.

Miss Dulin retired in 1942 after 15 years as principal of Buchanan School. She remained active in school affairs for years afterward, with the District Congress of Parents and Teachers. She also was a consultant for the Metropolitan Police Department, and was active on the Southeast Neighborhood Council.

One of Miss Dulin's chief interests during her school career was involving students in music. During the late 1940's she was chairman of the D.C. Public School Committee of the National Symphony Orchestra, which raised funds from parents and schools for the symphony and promoted school participation in the annual children's concert series.

Born in the District, Miss Dulin graduated from the old D.C. Normal School in 1892, and from George Washington University in 1927. She began teaching at the old Force School and had as pupils sons of Presidents Theodore Roosevelt and William Howard Taft, Quentin Roosevelt and Charles Taft.

She also taught at Morgan School, and from 1925 to 1927 at Powell Junior High School. She was the founder of the Parent Teachers Association at Buchanan School and president of the Elementary Principals Association from 1933 to 1935.

She was treasurer of the Altar Build at All Saints' Episcopal Church, of which she was a life-long member.

She leaves a half-brother, William R. Gordon Dulin of 6529 Utah Avenue. N.W.

Memorial services will be at 2 p.m. tomorrow at All Saints' Episcopal Church, Chevy Chase Circle N.W.

------	-------------	-----	------------

Miss Cecelia P. Dulin retired nine years ago from a 48-year career as school teacher and principal. But she still can't get tired of being with children.

For tens of thousands of them, that is fortunate. Miss Dulin has had a big hand in greatly enriching their lives.

For the last six years, she has been chairman of a little-publicized group called the "D.C. Public School Committee of the National Symphony Orchestra."

This committee has an impossible roster. It includes at least one teacher from every white public school--more than 100 in all. But without Miss Dulin, those who know agree, it would have few achievements.

The Public School Committee does two things. It helps to stimulate school participation in the annual children's concert series of the Symphony. And during the orchestra's annual fund drive, it raises contributions among the teachers (not the pupils).

Until this winter, the committee was in charge of ticket sale and distribution for the school concerts. Business sponsors are paying the costs this season, so the children are admitted free. The committee still helps to arouse interest in the programs, however. Broadcasting also has been added this year--something the committee will help teachers use increasingly in the future.

It was Miss Dulin who, in 1944, took over the chore of co-ordinating the committee's complicated functions. Her entirely voluntary interest has sparked the children's concert project--and teacher-support for the orchestra--in a manner that invariably brings her grateful applause at symphony association meetings.

Go to almost any children's concert and in the back of the auditorium, with youngsters on every side of her, you will find Miss Dulin. She will be sharing the general excitement.

"Once I played the piano, but not well enough to impress anybody," she said. "I went to the first concerts ever played by the National Symphony Orchestra in 1931. I was principal of Buchanan School, and it became my job to see that my pupils went to the first students concerts. I had 24 rooms and 24 teachers, which was a big school.

As principal and in retirement, Miss Dulin watched the students' series grow, both in number of concerts and in the enthusiasm they aroused. The year she took over as committee chairman, 12 concerts were given--the most in any one season.

A heavy debt incurred by that series forced a cut to only four the next winter, however, and since then there never have been more than six in a season. That is why, Miss Dulin explains, she takes a great personal part every year in the National Symphony's sustaining fund drive.

Body of Emil Dumais is Consigned to Earth

Conveyed to Grave in Congressional Cemetery With But Few Friends Present

Attended only by one or two friends and the employees of an undertaking establishment, the body of Emil Dumais, linguist, man of talent and soldier of fortune was conveyed to Congressional cemetery this afternoon and buried, following a brief religious cemetery.

It was learned today that the man who refused to divulge his identity to physicians at the Casualty Hospital until a few minutes before his death, Thursday, had been employed as a translator at the laboratory of M.A. Winter, U street northwest between 14th and 15th streets, for the last three years. He had resided in this city for more than four years. According to Charles C. Moore of the Department of Agriculture Dumais had always been secretive.

Was Friendless and Penniless

Mr. Moore first met him about three years ago, through W. Ross Edelen, a draughtsman. At that time Dumais was penniless and slept in the parks. Mr. Moore took an interest in the aged scholar, provided him with money and clothing and procured him a position as translator in the Winter laboratory in September, 1907.

Dumais was picked up in an exhausted condition in front of the quarters of No. 6 engine company about five weeks ago. He had $500 in his pockets. It appears he maintained the same frugality after obtaining employment as he had before and spent his spare time perfecting several inventions. He had worked for many years on a device to teach writing to the blind.

Points in His Career

Mr. Moore said this morning that Dumais had never told him that he had been a war correspondent for the London Times, as stated by physicians at the hospital. Friends of the deceased man also deny the story that he had just arrived in this country from England and was on his way to Florida

Years ago Dumais who was a native Frenchman, went to Canada and founded the first agricultural college in Ontario. He married in Canada and his widow and several sons still reside there. Disagreement with a brother over financial matters caused an estrangement about twenty years ago and Dumais left the Dominion and it is said had never returned to his family.

He traveled extensively in foreign countries and could speak five languages.

Nicholas Dunaev Dies, Long-Forgotten Actor

"There cannot be a happy ending to a poet's life, for the ending is its essential tragedy."

With this line from his own work, Nicholas Alexander Dunaev, the son of Russian Czarist nobility and one of the leading figurers in the early days of motion pictures in America was buried this morning in Congressional Cemetery.

Services for the writer, director and actor--forgotten by all but a few intimate friends--were at 10 a.m. in the Chevy Chase Funeral Home. He died Thursday in George Washington Hospital after a long illness.

The son of a former Lord Mayor of Moscow, Mr. Dunaev was born in that capital city in 1884. Active in the first Russian revolution in 1917, he was an associate of Alexander Kerensky, head of the provisional government which was toppled by the Bolshevik revolution.

Hailed as Actor

Because of his association with Kerensky, Mr. Dunaev was arrested and sentenced to exile in Siberia. He escaped, reportedly by breaking the iron bars of his prison with his bare hands, and made his way to Europe.

Mr. Dunaev was hailed later as a great Shakespearian actor and interpreter of Ibsen's dramas. While in France he married Edith Donnerburg, noted throughout Europe for her novels about the Russian revolution and the first World War and for her beauty. She died two years after their marriage.

Coming to this country in 1919, Mr. Dunaev went to work for the Vitagraph Corp., one of the first motion film companies, as a writer, director and actor. While with Vitagraph he wrote, directed and acted in "The Cheaters," starring Clare Kimball Young and John Bunny, now regarded as a silent film classic.

With the advent of "talkies," Mr. Dunaev moved to Hollywood where he worked in the studios of Pathe Films and the World Film Corp. It was there he received the nickname, "The Strongman from Moscow," from his ability to bend coins in his fingers, according to his friends.

Mr. Dunaev was a poet, playwright, novelist and critic. His play, "The Spider," with himself in the leading role, played on Broadway in the 1920s. He also starred with Otis Skinner in the original production of "Kismet."

Active in Campaign

While in Hollywood, Mr. Dunaev was active in the presidential campaign of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, and received a special tribute and commendation from Mr. Roosevelt for his efforts.

During his Hollywood years, Mr. Dunaev met and married Ina Byron, a dancer with the Ziegfeld Follies. They were divorced after three years of marriage.

Mr. Dunaev came to Washington in 1937 and was active on Capitol Hill as a speech writer for many Senators and Representatives. During this time he formed a close friendship with James Roosevelt, and worked with the late Senator Robert A. Taft.

During World War II, a member of the Mark Twain Society, Mr. Dunaev gave up writing to take a job in a defense plant, where, in his 50s, he worked as a riveter and welder.

In recent years, Mr. Dunaev, only surviving member of a large family, had been living quietly, writing, and nearly forgotten by the top names of Hollywood who once hailed him.

The Late Daniel Duncan, From the Episcopal Recorder
Died, in the city of Washington, on the afternoon of Friday, the 18th instant, of a pulmonary affection, and in the forty-third year of his age, the Hon. Daniel Duncan, a member of the House of Representatives of the United States from the State of Ohio.
Mr. Duncan was born in Shippensburg, Pennsylvania, July 22, 1806. He lost his father when he was but six years old. At the age of nine, he accompanied Gen. Samuel F. McCracken, of Lancaster, to Ohio, on horseback. After having been employed in Gen. McC.'s store about six years, he returned to Pennsylvania and went to school. He entered to Pennsylvania and went to school. He entered the College at Canonsburg and spent some years there. His mother died in 1822. Upon attaining his majority, in 1827, he returned to Ohio, and established himself in mercantile business in Newark, which he prosecuted with diligence and ardor. On the 18th of October, 1832, he was married to the daughter of the late Col. Daniel Convers, of Zanesville.
Mr. D. was elected a member of the House of Representatives of the State of his adoption in 1844, and in 1846 was chosen to represent the Congressional district in which he resided in one National Legislature.
Great industry, untiring energy in the prosecution of any design he took in hand, clear reasoning powers, and a sound judgment, are characteristics for which he was distinguished. To his arduous labors in the cause to which he devoted himself during the last autumn is probably to be ascribed the disease that terminated his earthly existence. His great kindness of heart and amiability of temper could only be appreciated by those who knew him well. During a protracted illness of about five months no murmur or complaint escaped his lips.

The Evening Star, September 8, 1871 A Child Killed By A Druggist's Mistake Night before last Dr. S.A.H. McKim was called in to prescribe for the child of Mr. Robert Dunn, residing on G street, between 4th and 5th street S.E. The prescription consisted of calomel, ipecac, magnesia and rhubarb, in six powders, was put up at the drug store of Dr. Taber, 7th street east, and instead of the fifteen grains of rhubarb it is alleged that fifteen grains of opium were put in the six powders, making 2 1/2 grains for each. The first powder that was administered had the effect of throwing the child into a stupor, from which it never railed, although Dr. McKim did everything in his power to restore it, and it died early yesterday morning.

The Evening Star, September 9, 1871

The East Washington Drug Murder

Verdict of the Coroner's Jury

Yesterday's STAR contained an account of the death of the child of Mr. Robert Dunn, at the residence of its parents, in East Washington, from the effects of opium, put into a powder compounded at Taber's drugstore, on 7th street east, instead of rhubarb, as written by the physician on the prescription. The father of the child mixed one of the powders and gave it to the little patient, who soon after fell into a deep sleep. Nothing was thought of this until the following morning, when the parents were aroused by the heavy breathing of the child. The father ran for Dr. McKim, who, upon arriving, examined the powder, and found that opium was the principal ingredient, instead of rhubarb, which he had prescribed. Antidotes were administered at once, but too late, and death ensued at 9 o'clock a.m.

Lieut. Austin sent for the Coroner, on hearing of the affair, and soon afterwards Dr. J.F. Hartigan arrived. The child had been laid out on ice. A jury was summoned, and a post mortem examination was made by Drs. Lamb, McKim and Hartigan, who came to the conclusion that the opium caused the death of the child. A.C. Taber testified that he had put up the prescription; could not tell how the mistake was made; the writing on the prescription was plain.

The jury returned the following verdict--The jury, upon their oaths, find the deceased came to his death about 9 o'clock on the morning of September 8, 1871, on G street, between 4th and 5th streets southeast, from an overdose of opium, improperly compounded by A.C. Taber.

Dr. Taber does not belong to the Pharmaceutical Society of this District, but claims to be a graduate of a medical college.

Taber the Druggist to be Arrested

Dr. J.F. Hartigan, the deputy coroner, has had a warrant issued for the arrest of Taber and placed in the hands of officer Padgett for service and the accused, when brought before the deputy coroner, will be required to give bail for his appearance if required by the grand jury.

Her death occurred suddenly last Wednesday morning. She had been an almost helpless invalid for more than thirty years, but as a member of the Shut In Society her efforts were most zealous in helping others whose lives were as restricted as her own, and from the confines of her invalid's chair she looked upon the world with eyes that saw only the good.

Her interest in the mission work of this city was especially keen, and one of her chief sources of happiness lay in the services conducted by the mission wagons which frequently stopped at her door.

A large circle of friends in all parts of the city will mourn her death.

The Evening Star, Monday, March 29, 1909 Veteran Policeman is Dead James Dunnington on Force Forty-Two Years Had Performed Duty in Almost Every Precinct in the City. Ill Only Five Days James A. Dunnington, one of the oldest and most highly respected members of the police force, died yesterday at his home, 622 North Carolina avenue, after an illness of about five days, his death having resulted from an attack of pneumonia. The deceased, who was seventy-six years of age, had been a member of the force since January 31, 1867, and had performed duty in almost every precinct. His last employment was under Lieut. Sutton at the harbor precinct. Many years ago he performed duty in South Washington when almost every arrest meant a struggle.  He served as sergeant from 1878 to 1880, returning to the ranks at his own request. Always an active man, he found the duties of sergeant rather tame, and it was for that reason that he preferred active police duty. He filled a number of important details from time to time, including duty at the White House. Shortly after the completion of the Corcoran Art Gallery he was detailed in the vicinity of the building. Later he was sent to the harbor precinct for duty.  Last Tuesday morning Mr. Dunnington left his house to go on duty, but was taken ill and had to return. He had lost but little time from duty because of sickness, and it was impossible for members of his family to keep him at home unless he actually had to remain in bed. When he returned to his home last Tuesday he became delirious. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary St. John Dunnington; one son, Abner Dunnington, and five daughters. One daughter is the wife of Dr. Nelson Gapen, U.S.A., on duty in the Phillippines, and the others are Mrs. Guy Neely, Mrs. Robert Otterback, Mrs. F.G. Nottingham and Miss Blanche Dunnington.  Arrangements have been made for the funeral to take place from the family home tomorrow afternoon. Rev. E. Hez Swenn, pastor of the Second Baptist Church, will officiate and delegations from the Odd, Fellows and the police department will accompany the remains to Congressional cemetery.

Accident on the Washington Aqueduct

On Friday, William Darran, employed as a rigger, in charge of the derricks used in the rock excavation at the Great Falls, was so severely injured that it is feared he cannot recover. It seems that while a stone was being hoisted on the boom, he ascended to examine the head of the mast, which is forty or fifty feet high. While thus engaged, one of the stays parted, and he fell with the mast into the rock cut. He had lately inspected the rope which parted, and pronounced it good for a year's service. But on examination, after the accident, it was discovered that the rope had been nearly cut through by a stone thrown out in blasting. The injury had escaped his notice. This accident should be a warning to those employed on the heavy works now going on in t his neighborhood. It is not enough that the engineer carefully proportions the parts of his machines to secure the proper strength to each. Constant watchfulness is necessary for their own safety on the part of those using them. The chafing against a wall, or the careless tying of a rope, or, as in this case, the blow of a stone in blasting, may, if not watched for and repaired, at any time cause a fatal accident.

Prominent Resident of the District Passes Away

Was Returning From Europe and Died At Sea
Commissioners of the District and Supreme Court Pay Tribute to His Memory
 By a wireless telegraph message, received in New York yesterday from the steamer Philadelphia, and thence forwarded to Washington by wire, the family and friends of Andrew Brown Duvall, corporation counsel of the District of Columbia, last night were apprised of his death, which occurred when the steamer was three days out from Liverpool. Mr. Duvall was on the way home after a vacation of about six weeks spent abroad, and the news of his sudden demise came very unexpectedly because all recent messages and letters from his wife and son, A.B. Duvall, jr., conveyed the assurance that the husband and father seemed much improved in health.

Taking formal action in reference to the loss of a valued public servant Commissioners West and Biddle today adopted the following order:

"The Commissioners of the District of Columbia desire to place upon record their deep sense of loss in the death of Andrew B. Duvall, who since June 1, 1899, has occupied the position of corporation counsel. In the discharge of the duties of this onerous and responsible position Mr. Duvall displayed the highest qualities of character. He was conscientious, industrious and faithful. His judgment, always rendered after careful consideration, was based upon experience and legal knowledge acquired during many years of active and successful practice before the courts, and was so accurate that the Commissioners relied upon it with perfect confidence. His work was performed with sincerity and enthusiasm, and the record of the results which he achieved in cases in which the District of Columbia was a party stands as a high and lasting testimonial to his ability and industry.

"In his hands the interests of the degree. Not only was he a faithful public servant, but as a man he possessed those virtues which are endeared him to all with whom he was brought in contact. This tribute to his memory they are which the community owes to the honestly and so ably before the

Suffered from Heart Disease
 Owing to an organic disease of the heart, Corporation Counsel Duvall best of health, and it was for this, for some time past was not in the was determined that his annual leave more than any other reason, that it ocean trip, it was thought, would be should be spent in England. The heart, Corporation Counsel Duvall of much benefit, and Mr. and Mrs. Duvall sailed from New York on July 22. Scarcely three weeks later, however, Mr. Duvall developed alarming symptoms, and his son, A.B. Duvall, jr., was summoned to London. After that again came encouraging reports and the last news in the hands of the family was that the return journey would be undertaken September 9, the invalid having improved so much that it was thought he could make the trip with safety.

Members of the family and his friends as well, were accordingly ill prepared for the news of the fatality in mid ocean, and all were overwhelmed by grief when the message announcing his death was read. The steamer Philadelphia sailed from Liverpool on Saturday, and the tidings brought by the wireless message were that Mr. Duvall died Tuesday. No additional particulars were conveyed by the telegram, and the circumstances surrounding the last illness will not be unknown until the Philadelphia reaches New York tomorrow.

It is expected that the body will be brought to Washington on Sunday. Arrangements for the funeral will not be made until that time, although it is almost assured that the service will be held in the Metropolitan Memorial M.E. Church, of which the deceased was long a consistent member, and that the sermon will be delivered by Rev. Frank M. Bristol, the pastor.

Announced at the Church

News of the death of Mr. Duvall was received by the members of the Metropolitan Church at the prayer meeting last night. Rev. Dr. Bristol made the announcement, and so great was the shock to the parishioners that nearly all of the evening was given over to discussing the loss sustained by the church and by the cause of religion. Many of those at the meeting voiced their sincere sorrow at hearing of Mr. Duvall's death and many were the eloquent tributes paid his memory.

For a long time Mr. Duvall filled the position of superintendent of the Sunday school and even before that time he was one of the most active workers in the church. More recently, and until the time of his death, he filled the position of president of the board of trustees, he having succeeded the late Matthew Emery in that position.

Andrew B. Duvall was a native of Washington, having been born here March 20, 1847, and all of his life was spent in this city. Records of the family history show that he was descended from Mareen Duvall, who fled to America from France at the time of the Huguenot prosecutions. This ancestor spent much of his life in Maryland, where he settled soon after landing.

Mr. Duvall's Career

Mr. Duvall was educated in the public schools of the city and in 1867 he graduated from the Columbian University, now the George Washington University. Two years later he received his degree of LL.B. Soon after his admission to the bar young Duvall entered the law office of Daniel Bradley, and later branched out for himself. For several years past he has ranked as one of the best instructors of young lawyers in the city, giving lectures before one or another of the local law schools. He was one of the character members of the Sigma Chi Fraternity, and he was also treasurer and one of the trustees of the Bar Association.

A.B. Duvall was appointed attorney for the District of Columbia March 15, 1889. When the new District code was enacted the title of his office was changed to that of corporation counsel. The value of the service he rendered the District in that office can never be estimated in cold dollars and cents, because Mr. Duvall has rendered many decisions upon which great issues have depended, and from almost invariably finding his advice to be right the Commissioners in later years came to be guided by it more and more in questions of law.

Unexpected always in their character and as varied as only a large municipality can produce, the matters submitted to Mr. Duvall in his years in the office never once found him unwilling to devote his every energy to their solution. Recently he was heard frequently to speak of the increasing volume of the work imposed upon his office, and it is thought that the strain incident to the number and size of the tasks had much to do with the breakdown which resulted in the Commissioners extending the corporation counsel's annual leave this year into a sick leave, and that it might bear no inconsiderable part in the culmination which has now spread sorrow in so many circles.

Date of Marriage

In May 1872, Mr. Duvall married Mary M. Walker, daughter, daughter of Charles E. Walker, and a niece of Capt. Samuel H. Walker, who won fame in the Mexican war. Six children--four daughters and two sons--compose the family, which was the joy and pride of Mr. Duvall's private life. The eldest daughter, Juliet Maude, is the wife of Dr. H.T.A. Lemon, who resides at 629 G street southwest. The eldest son is Andrew B. Duvall, jr., a graduate of Princeton University of the class of 1899, a young lawyer of promise in this city.

He is now on the passage across the ocean with his mother, bringing the remains of his father to this country. The other children are Misses Louise, Mary M., Marjorie B. and Master Walker Mareen.

Three brothers and two sisters survive Mr. Duvall. The are W.C. Duvall, engaged in the real estate business; J. Walter Duvall, assistant cashier of the city post office; J. Albert Duvall, associated with his brother in the real estate business; Miss Helen Duvall and Mrs. Annie Brown of Rutherford, N.J.

His Worth as Citizen

Many tributes to the worth of the deceased were heard on all sides about the offices of the District government, in the courts and elsewhere in the downtown business section where the late corporation counsel was best known.

Dr. William Tindall, secretary of the board of Commissioners, said: "The death of Mr. Duvall will be deeply regretted by all who knew him. He carried with him an atmosphere of kindliness which made him a welcome visitor at the District building and which will be sorrowfully missed by all who were so fortunate as to enjoy his acquaintance. The District greatly benefited by his professional skill and tact. He spared no pains to obtain information bearing upon any matter submitted to him for his advice, and no one who was likely to have knowledge or opinions which might give him light was too humble for him to consult. His place as an official, fellow-citizen or friend will be hard to fill."

Court Pays Tribute

Immediately on the convening of the District Supreme Court this morning, Assistant Corporation Counsel Edward H. Thomas announced the death of Corporation Counsel, A.B. Duvall and moved an adjournment of the court out of respect to his memory.

"It is my sad duty, your honor," said Mr. Thomas, "to announce to the court and bar the death of our brother and friend, Andrew B. Duvall, and I move an adjournment out of respect to his memory."

"Mr. Duvall's death is sad; especially in view of the circumstances. He left this city for a trip to Europe with high hopes of recovering his health, and was suddenly stricken down, and died on shipboard in mid-ocean. He was a link between the old and the new bar, and his long and faithful public service and the high position which he occupied make fitting my motion to adjourn the court."

Justice Gould, in granting the motion and directing an adjournment of court until Monday next, said:

"The court read with surprise and grief the announcement of Mr. Duvall's death. As Mr. Thomas had said, Mr. Duvall was a connecting link between the older and newer members of the bar. I doubt if any lawyer ever attained more thoroughly the respect of the bar of the District Supreme Court than did Mr. Duvall. He was an honorable lawyer and measured up to all the qualifications."

"The court will be adjourned out of respect."

Arrangements Subject to Mrs. Duvall's Approval

Information was received here today that the steamship Philadelphia from Southampton has brought to port the body of Andrew B. Duvall of Washington, D.C., corporation counsel of the District of Columbia, who died at sea last Tuesday.

The remains are expected to reach Washington late this afternoon or tonight. Mr. Frederic D. McKenney, a nephew of the deceased corporation counsel, when seen this afternoon by a Star reporter, said he expected to receive a telegram at any moment from Mrs. Duvall, the widow, and Mr. Andrew B. Duvall, jr., son of the deceased, who were with him on the voyage abroad.

Prospective funeral arrangements provide for the services at the Metropolitan M.E. Church at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon. Among those named as probable pallbearers are Chief Justice Clabaugh, Mr. William F. Mattingly, Judge Nathaniel Wilson and Mr. Ed H. Thomas, assistant corporation attorney, others to be selected when the remains arrive.

Undertaker Wright, who will have charge of the funeral, went to New York last night to await the arrival of the steamship Philadelphia.

The steamship was not detained at quarantine owing to the representations made to the New York health authorities by Mr. McKenney. The honorary pallbearers will consist of fourteen prominent gentlemen and the tentative funeral arrangements are subject to change by Mrs. Duvall upon her arrival here.

The members of the Bar Association will be notified by card to attend the funeral in a body.

Officers of the Bar Association of the District of Columbia yesterday evening promulgated a notice calling upon members of the bar of the District of Columbia "to meet in the old circuit court room at 3 o'clock, p.m., Monday, September 18, 1905, for the purpose of attending in a body the funeral of their late professional brother, Andrew B. Duvall," and announcing that "the funeral will take place at 3:30 o'clock p.m., at the Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal Church, corner of John Marshall place and C street northwest."

Dies of Heart Disease

The death of Andrew Brown Duvall was due to organic disease of the heart, and occurred in mid ocean while he was returning to this country from England on the steamship Philadelphia, which vessel sailed from Liverpool on Saturday, September 9. Deceased was fifty-nine years of age. He was born in Washington and spent all his life here. Mr. Duvall was educated in the public schools of this city, and in 1867 he graduated from the Columbian University, now the George Washington University. Employee of the District Government Meet and Adopt Resolutions of Respect

The funeral of Andrew Brown Duvall, corporation counsel of the District of Columbia, who died at sea on Tuesday last while on his way home from a tour of England, was held this afternoon from the Metropolitan M.E. Church, John Marshall Place and C street northwest. The sermon was preached by Rev. Frank Bristol, pastor of the church, and interment was made in the Duvall lot in Congressional cemetery.

By the number of friends and acquaintances who attended the services to pay their final tribute of respect to the dead, it was possible to glean at least an inkling of the depth of the love inspired in life by the deceased legal representative of the local government. On every side tears were shed, and the number and beauty of floral offerings which lay upon and around the bier but served to add to the sadness which everywhere seemed to indicate the loss sustained by the death of a valued member of the community.

In recognition of the expressed wish of many of his fellow employees to attend the funeral, Commissioner Weste, with the approval of Commissioner Biddle, ordered that the District building offices close at 3 o'clock today in order that all who desire might attend the obsequies. Nearly every office in the great building was deserted at 3 o'clock, when the body was borne into the church, a majority of the clerks and heads of departments were assembled in the church.

Services at the Church

The Duvall family and the honorary pallbearers met at the Duvall home, 1831 M street northwest, at 3 o'clock this afternoon, and immediately proceeded with the body in the Metropolitan M.E. Church. Awaiting their arrival there were assembled, beside the District employees, almost the entire body of the Bar Association, and hundreds of friends and business acquaintances of the deceased.

The honorary pallbearers were: District Commissioners Henry B.F. Macfarland, H.L. West and John Biddle, Chief Justice H.M. Clabaugh, Justice Thomas H. Anderson, Justice Ashley M. Gould, Nathaniel M. Wilson, R. Ross Perry, William F. Mattingly, S.T. Thomas, Aldis B. Browne, E.H. Thomas, John Joy Edson, A.D. Lynch, Brainerd H. Warner and Dr. Richard Kingsman. Body bearers carried the remains.

In his sermon, Dr. Bristol said:

"In the presence of the calm and silent dignity of death the petty accidents of this mortal life--wealth, eloquence, learning, genius, official rank and social station--all seem but superficialities and tinselry in comparison with a strong and loving manhood, a pure and lofty character, a life of honor, a name without a blemish and a memory revered. Our final estimate of men is based upon the moral principles which have controlled their lives. What were the ideals! To what did they aspire! How nearly did they approximate the perfect man--the measure of the stature of the followers of Christ?"

Farewell Tribute

"So, as we come into God's house to pay our farewell tribute to the memory of Andrew Brown Duvall, ur minds are again most profoundly impressed with the superlative value of Christian character. How little, how almost contemptible does everything else seem here today in comparison with those simple, sturdy qualities of mind and heart which furnish the moral basis of a pure and symmetrical manhood and the inspiration of a generous and useful life!

As a lad of sixteen Mr. Duvall stood with his brothers and sisters beside the death bed of a saintly father and there received the tender loving charge, "Meet me in heaven." Forty and two years have passed, but never did that faithful son forget his father's dying words. Though from childhood he had been brought up in nurture and admonition of the Lord, it was beside that death bed of a Christian father that he formed the resolution which developed into a steadfast faith, a sterling integrity, a living, joyful Christian experience and a life of piety, honor and good work.

"Few men in this community were better known than Mr. Duvall. Boy and man Washington has known him for fifty-eight years. Here he was born and here he lived his life. It was an earnest and joyful life. This life of a man who walked in the sunshine of a genial disposition and beside the still waters of serene contentment and quiet dignity. Happy, supremely happy in his ideal home life, he did not long for the contentious and excitements of the political activities which disturb the peace of mind more than they satisfy ambition. Yet he was not selfish in his enjoyment of life.

"He belonged to wife and children and home with sweet and constant devotion, but he also belonged to the church of God with a loyalty never excelled, and he belonged to this community and to the body politic with a conscientious persuasion of the high duties which he owed to society and to his country.

His Characteristics

"To the discharge of his official duties he brought his legal learning, his sound judgment, his fine sense of justice and honor, his tireless patience and his capacity for painstaking and unremitting work. The District of Columbia, to whose interest he consecrated his best powers and for whose welfare he made the sacrifices which doubtless shortened his life, may truly say this day: "Well done thou good and faithful servant."

"Andrew B. Duvall was truly a representative man. He was a representative citizen, a representative lawyer, a representative Methodist, a representative Christian. As a lawyer he adorned his profession. Appreciating the nobility of his calling, he never lowered the standards of professional ethics, but always aimed in his own practice to observe, respect and exalt those ideals of old-fashioned honor which had brought historic dignity and veneration to the law.

"But it was here, here in the church of his choice and his love, that the character of Brother Duvall shone forth with a light and beauty which made him a religious, spiritual force and benediction to hundreds of souls and lives.

"For thirty-two years he had been an honored and beloved member of this church. During all that time he had been an active, living, working Christian, participating in all the trials and triumphs which have attended the development of the Metropolitan Church. He never swerved from his steadfast faith in the great truths and doctrines of the Christian religion as held and taught by the people called Methodists. He inherited in his Huguenot blood a reverence for things sacred and divine.

"He was a man of prayer. His home was a home of prayer, and among the richest legacies which he left his wife and children in the memory of that tender, manly voice pleading with God in prayer in the sweet and sacred hours of family worship.

Formulation of Creed

"On e poem in particular seemed to formulate his creed. He repeated it is one of the last prayer meetings he attended, and, when on the eve of his departure for Europe, he was requested to furnish his favorite quotation for a book of quotations preparing for publication by one of our church societies, he sent the beautiful poem by Miss Hevergel:

"Lord, for tomorrow and its seeds
I do not pray;
Keep me, my God, from stain of sin
Just for today.

Let me both diligently work
And duly pray
Let me be kind in word and deed
Just for today.

Let me no wrong or idle word
Unthinkingly say,
Set thou a seal upon my lips
Just for today.

Let me be slow to do my will,
Prompt to obey;
Help me to sacrifice myself
Just for today.

So, for tomorrow and its needs
I do not pray;
But keep me, guide me, love me, Lord
Just for today.

District Clerks Take Action

On the initiative of Assessor H.H. Danneille, heads of all departments of the District government met in the executive office on the fifth floor of the District building at noon today, and unanimously passed the following resolution, which was prepared by a committee consisting of Mr. Darneille, Dr. Woodward, Mr. Tweedale, Dr. Tindall and Mr. Hunt, setting forth the death of "Andrew Brown Duvall, corporation counsel of the District of Columbia," and that "we meet to express our respect for his memory, our sorrow at the severance of our earthly relations with him, and our sympathy with those to whom he was endeared by the closer ties of domestic affection.

"The association of Mr. Duvall with the government of the District of Columbia has been an uninterrupted record of official efficiency, courtesy and diligence of disposing of the vast number of intricate problems of municipal jurisprudence it became his duty to consider. His unfailing urbanity and consideration for the feelings of his fellow officials render the knowledge that they shall hereafter miss his welcome presence a sorrowful heritage.

"The authorities of the District of Columbia have lost the services of a wise counsellor; the community at large the fellowship of a worthy citizen and man.

"We tender to his bereaved family our heartfelt condolence in the hope that the knowledge of our regard for the husband and father and our sympathy with them may in some degree enable them to better bear the grief which cannot be assuaged by any human words of aid."

Duvall, George (Sr.) The Evening Star November 12, 1915, p. 3 George Duval Succumbs To Attack of Pneumonia Noted Cabinet Maker, Veteran of Civil War and Long a Resident of Washington George Duval, seventh-three years old, veteran cabinet maker, who is said to have built the desk in Vice President Marshall's office at the Capitol; who was veteran of the civil war and resident of Washington for half a century, died yesterday at his home, 456 Maryland avenue southwest. He became ill Monday afternoon of pneumonia, which proved fatal. Friends say that Mr. Duval had hardly been ill a day in his life prior to the final attack. Funeral services have not been arranged.  Was Native of France Mr. Duval was born in Bordeaux, France, September 9, 1842. He came to the United States when he was about twenty years old, and enlisted in Company D, 16th Massachusetts Infantry, with which he served until the close of the war. He was held a prisoner in Libby prison at Richmond for eleven months.  He had resided in Washington since civil war days, plying his trade of cabinet maker, at the same time collecting a library which was the delight of himself and of his friends. His collection of books embraced many rare volumes. In recent months Mr. Duval, it is said, took special interest in the European war situation, and he was considered an authority on details of the conflict.  Noted as Cabinet Maker As a cabinet maker he hardly had a peer in the city, it is said. Much of his work is in the Capitol, including the desk mentioned. He retired from business several years ago, devoting himself to his books.  He was one of the oldest members of the Metropolitan M.E. Church, and a member of the Royal Arcanum and of the Order of Heptasophs.	d. 15 Nov 1915	73 yrs.	R70/280

The National Intelligencer, March 24, 1854

In this city, on the morning of the 19th instant, Gov. William P. Duvall, of Texas, aged about seventy years. Gov. Duval was a native of Virginia, went to Kentucky in his boyhood, where he studied law and entered on its practice, and attained considerable eminence in early life. In 1812 he was elected a member to Congress from the Bardstown district, and served as such during the sessions of 1813-14, and was an energetic and influential member in the prosecution of the war then being carried on.

In 1822 he was appointed Governor of Florida by President Monroe, and was re-appointed by Mr. Adams and by Gen. Jackson. By his administrative acts in that Territory he gave entire satisfaction to those to whom he was officially responsible at Washington, and to the people whose interest were confided to his management. In 1848 he removed to and settled in the State of Texas, where most of his children now reside. Professional business brought him to Washington some months ago and it has been the will of Providence that his mortal career should terminate at a distance from his home, but yet not among strangers; for in this city and in Congress he had friends whose kindness and attentions during his illness soothed his sufferings and tranquilized him in his dying moments. His illness he bore with uncomplaining fortitude, and encountered death with calmness and resignation. Gov. Duval, whilst distinguished in public life, was much esteemed and beloved for his virtues and estimable qualities in private. He was a man of cheerful, equable temper, kind, sociable, sincere, and in all the accidents and exigencies of life reliable and true, and those who best knew him are those who will most deplore his loss.

Gov. William P. Duval

The late William P. Duval, whose death took place at Washington on the 19th instant, was a type of the genuine American character -- apt, self-relying, and fertile in natural resources. He was born in Virginia of one of its old families. Some early pranks of a whimsical but innocent kind gained him the character of an "unlucky boy," prone to all kinds of mischief. The harsh treatment he experienced in consequences stung him to the quick. He considered himself misunderstood and undervalued. "I'll go home," said he, "and shift for myself." There was at that time in Virginia a rage for emigration to Kentucky. He had heard wonders of that country, and of the glorious, independent life of the hunters who ranged its forests and lived by the rifle. He determined to go there and adopt that mode of life. His father considered it the passing caprice of a boy, being little aware of his wounded spirit and of the dogged resolution of his character. Finding, however, that he was not to be moved either by persuasion or remonstrance, he gave way to his humor, trusting that a little rough experience would soon bring him home again. He even gave him a well-filled purse to assist him on his wayfaring. The hunter in embryo asked for a horse and servant.

"A horse! Why you would not go a mile without racing him and breaking your neck, and as to a servant, you cannot take care of yourself, much less of him."

"How am I to travel there?"

"Why, I suppose you are man enough to travel on foot."

He spoke jestingly, little thinking the lad would take him at his word; but the latter was thoroughly piqued in respect to the enterprise, so he pocketed the purse, made up his pack, and girded up his loins for the journey.

"When will you come back?" asked his sister, as she hung round his neck weeping. "Never, by heavens! Till I come back a member of Congress from Kentucky. I am determined to show that I am not the tail end of the family."

Such was the launch forth in life of a youth but a little way in his teens. His pedestrian journey had its hardships. He was at one time in danger of being stopped as a runaway apprentice; after which he avoided houses as much as possible, lighting a fire at night in some wood or ravine, and sleeping before it in hunter's style.

At length he arrived at Brownsville, leg-weary, way-worn, and in shabby plight, having "Camped out" for several nights. The landlord of the inn was unwilling to receive a vagrant boy beneath his roof; he was about to turn him off, when his wife interfered.

"Where can you be going, my lad!" she said.

"To Kentucky."

"What are you going there for?"

"To hunt."

She looked earnestly at him for a moment or two "Have you a mother living?" said she, at length.

"No madam; she has been dead for some time."

"I thought so," said she, warmly; "I know if you had a mother living you would not be here." From that moment the good woman treated him during his sojourn with a woman's kindness.

Embarking at Wheeling on a flat-bottomed boat, called a broad horn, he floated down the Ohio past Cincinnati, then a mere group of log cabins, and the site of Louisville, where then stood a solitary house, until, after a voyage of several days, he landed near the mouth of Green river, and struck for the interior of Kentucky. He had relations in Lexington and other settled places, but he resolved to keep clear of them all, being resolutely bent on making his own way in the world without assistance or control. So he made for the wildest part of the country, camping out at night, and supping on a wild turkey which he had shot. In the midst of the wilderness he was accosted by a man in a hunting dress.

"Where are you from?" said the latter.

"From Richmond."
 "What! in old Virginy?"
 "The same."
 "How on earth did you get here?"
 "I landed at Green river from a broad horn."
 "And where are your companions?"
 "I have none."
 "Where are you going?"
 "Any where."
 "What have you come here for?"
 "To hunt."
 "Well," cried the other, laughing, "you'll make a real hunter, there's no mistaking that. But come, go home with me; my name is Bill Smithers; I live not far off; stay with me a little while and I'll teach you how to hunt."

This was his first introduction to the hunting life. He soon became expert in "wood craft," and was a great favorite among the hardy hunters of Kentucky. He remained among them until, from the influx of population, game became scarce; and until, probably, he had satisfied the hunting humor. He now began to think he was ...

The National Intelligencer, Wednesday, April 23, 1845
Departed this life on Monday evening last, in the sixty third year of her age, Mrs. Ann Dyer, relict of the late Captain William B. Dyer, formerly of Baltimore, but for many years a highly respectable inhabitant of this city.
In the life of the departed all the excellencies of the Christian character were beautifully portrayed. In her death the supports and consolations of religion were strikingly exhibited. Her life was without reproach--her death without gloom.
For the greater part of her life the deceased was an exemplary member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Her piety was pure, ardent, and unostentatious. She enjoyed in a high degree the confidence, and esteem of all who knew her, and has descended to the tomb leaving as a legacy to her children an example worthy of imitation, a character as pure and unblemished as belongs to the lot of humanity.
The remains of the deceased will be removed from the residence of her son-in-law, R.W. Bates, on Wednesday, the 23d, at 3 o'clock, to the Foundry Meeting-house, on 14th street, where the funeral services will be performed, and where all the friends of the family are invited to attend.

Special Services Held Last Evening at Waugh M.E. Church

A large audience gathered at Waugh M.E. Church last evening to attend a special service held in memory of the late Wm. W.S. Dyre, who died on the 11th day of November last, and who for a period of thirty-one years was a highly respected resident of Capitol Hill. The service was under the direct charge of Penn Council, No. 6, Order of Chosen Friends, of which the deceased was for many years a faithful and efficient officer. Many friends, members of the order and of the church were in attendance to pay a final tribute to the departed. After the singing of an opening ode of the order by the church choir, prayer was offered by the Rev. A.E. Gibson, D.D., pastor of the church. Addresses were made by G.W. Callahan, acting supreme councillor of the District; W.H. Barton, past councillor of Penn Council; Messrs. I. Fearing, L.A. Randolph, Rev. Richard Evans, all of whom are active in Chosen Friends circles; and by Rev. Dr. Gibson.

The speakers of the evening all spoke in the highest terms of the life and character of the deceased, urging others to emulate his good example. His personal, social, religious and official life were each feelingly touched upon. It was stated that for thirty-two consecutive years he had been connected with the Navy Department in this city, and for ten years prior he had been employed in the navy yard and Naval Asylum at Philadelphia, his former home.

With the exception of the first year or two of his residence in this city he was actively, and most of the time officially, connected with Waugh M.E. Church, being its recording steward at the time the present edifice was built, and for twenty years past the teacher of the primary department of the Sunday school, in which he took and felt the deepest interest.

Singing of an anthem, a closing ode by the choir, and a solo by Miss Gertrude Dana, completed the musical program.
