For the past few months, Miss Imirie had been in constant attendance at the bedside of an invalid mother, who died less than three weeks ago, and the strain of the long and anxious watching, together with the excessive heat, resulted in her death. Miss Imirie was of a happy and buoyant temperament, which endeared her to a large circle of friends which made her the light of her home. For sixteen years she had been a member of the First Presbyterian Church of this city, and during all that time she was a faithful attendant upon its services and lived a devoted Christian life. Her character was singularly sweet and strong, and there are many today who owe the beginning of their Christian faith very largely to her life and to the influence of her personality. She was indeed a woman whom to know was to honor and to love. The funeral of Miss Imirie was held from her father's residence on Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock, and the esteem in which she was held was evidenced by the large gathering of friends who were in attendance. Interment was had at the Congressional cemetery. Rev. Mr. Holmes officiated.

Serious Accident in South Washington

Four Youths Injured by a Powder Explosion

Between ten and eleven o'clock yesterday morning, while several youths were spending their holiday near the southeastern end of Armory Square, between 6th and 7th streets, South Washington, one of them, named Simon Imirie, whose father resides on 6th street, near Maryland avenue, fired a pistol at an old canteen cover, which ignited the canvas covering and scattering some of the fragments into a cigar box, about one-third full of powder, caused an explosion and serious injuries to himself and three other youths, named Alfred Wright, Peter Coleman, and Charles Riley. Wright and Coleman are shockingly, if not fatally burnt about the head, arms and body; but the other two though suffering severe pain, are not considered in a dangerous condition. The escape of young Wright from instant death is miraculous, as, besides the concussion and scorching which the powder produced, his linen clothes took fire and almost entirely burnt off his person. He is the son of Mr. George Wright, of the Arsenal, where he was employed. At the parties are residents of South Washington, and were seated around the box of powder, when young Imirie so recklessly fired near it. Dr. R.C. Croggen was first in attendance upon the unfortunate boys, and rendered all the assistance in his power.

The friends and acquaintances of the family are respectfully requested to attend his funeral tomorrow (Sunday) afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence of his father, Philip Inch, Navy Yard. The Huntress, November 16, 1839 Madam: Will you have the goodness to give place to the following Obituary notice of the late lamented Wm. Inch, of the Navy Yard. The funeral took place on Sunday, 10th inst. and was attended by a large concourse of the citizens. The procession formed about 3 o'clock, the Anacostia Fire Company to which Mr. I, belonged, taking the right. Next followed the pall-bearers, bearing the deceased. Next the mourners, and lastly the citizens, all deeply sympathizing with the afflicted relatives. The funeral sermon was delivered by the Rev. Mr. Bean, which was eloquent and impressive, and a prayer was offered up at the grave. Respectfully, A Friend to the Deceased [We sympathise deeply with the afflicted parents of the deceased, who was an amiable young man, and well known to us. It is a reproach to the Surgical Department of the Navy (as we understand they were called in,) that they could not, or did not save this man, whom we understand died from loss of blood from a wound in the hand, occasioned from the bursting of a gun. These are hopeful sprigs to be Pensioned upon the Government. We trust Dr. Lawrence will have the matter investigated!--at the seat of Government, too, Shame.] The Huntress, November 23, 1839 Mr. Inch--The Deceased It gives us much pleasure to contradict the report of the treatment of this worthy young man, who died at the residence of his father, near the Navy Yard, on the 8th inst., from a wound in the hand, as mentioned in our last paper. We have since heard the correct story from the young man's father, who exonerates the surgeons of the Navy Yard from all blame. It appears the young man was alone in the woods when he was wounded by the bursting of a gun, and nearly bled to death--alternately walking and fainting, until he was accidentally found by a lady, who brought him to his father's in a cart. The surgeons, under the direction of Dr. McWilliams, an old and successful practitioner, dressed the wound, and he continued doing well for eleven days--but leaving his room to walk about, contrary to the surgeons	d. 7 Nov 1839	22 yrs. instructions, the wound commenced bleeding afresh. Dr. Hall was called in and stopped the bleeding. But the patient was too weak to sustain the operation--was seized with spasms and died. Mr. Inch, the father, is quite a respectable man, and has no doubt given a true statement of the facts.

Obituary
That "we all do fade as a leaf," is a sentiment which, since the days of the Prophet, has been, by each revolving season, brought home to mankind in all its force and beauty. Autumn comes with its saddened charms, its pale leaf and scattered flower, again to remind us of our mortality; yes, even the "winds have a voice and give eloquent teachings;" yet man is unmoved by the silent language of Nature; "line upon line" must be given to convince us that earth is not our home. Such a monition has been recently felt, while following to the grave the remains of one fallen at our side in all the pride of health and manhood --the late lamented Ingle. Those who knew him best, need no testimonials of his worth; deeply and permanently are they written in the hearts of those who were dear to him. Yet there were traits in his character not so generally known, which, in this day of speculation and fraud, it were well to recall for the benefit of those entering upon the stage of life. We allude more especially to his unwavering integrity, ever daring to be true, feeling no exigence to require any departure from it; likewise, his unflinching stand in behalf of sound principles. As a business-man, in all his designs, to be right, and to do right, may almost be said to have been with him a passion. There are few, if any, who have a higher standard of moral excellence. No motive no force of sophistry, no seduction of influence, could induce him to turn aside for a moment from the beacon-light which guided him. Engaged till recently in an extensive and arduous business, he yet was foremost in every call of humanity, hazarding life and fortune in the path of duty. When the ravages of cholera made desolate many a heart in our city, none were more ardent in planning, none more willing to execute, measures for the relief of the sick and dying. Emphatically he was a workingman; punctual to all his engagements, he never caused, as is to often the case, others to wait for him, and in this respect the various benevolent associations to which he was attached have experienced a loss not easily repaired. With these excellences of character, may be added a veneration and respect for the religion of the savior. Feeling religion to be the only safeguard of the State, and that mere knowledge without it is of but little avail, he sought for that mere knowledge without it is of but little avail, he sought for that in the education of his children, endeavoring to bring them up in the fear of God. The constancy with which his seat at church was filled is remarkable, while his means and time were freely spent in advancing the interests of the Gospel. Although not a communicant, we know that his reasons for not connecting himself with the church were creditable to himself, though by us deemed erroneous.
That such a man should have been respected, is but a natural consequence of a life so spent; but, for the intense solicitude manifested by the community during his last illness, we were not prepared. Yet it is gratifying to our nature to feel that it was so. May we never be regardless of those teachings which his sudden death brings home to the heart; and, while we press onward in life's journey, let us occasionally pause and "ponder well our paths;" let the young, especially those engaged in the active pursuits of business, be careful at the outset of their career to have a high standard of duty, and, as the pestilence avoid every departure from truth, that, like our departed friend, they may leave a character unstained and without reproach, at peace with God and man. E.M.T.

Another Old Citizen Gone

John P. Ingle, Esq., one of the oldest and most respected citizens of Washington, died this morning early, aged 71 years. Mr. Ingle's death was sudden. On Saturday morning, when he got up, he felt well as usual, and after eating a hearty breakfast went to attend to his business at the office of the Franklin Insurance Company, of which he was president. He was there taken suddenly ill of inflammation of the bowels, and was taken home, and died as above stated. Mr. Ingle has, during his long life, held many prominent and responsible positions, as president of the Patriotic Bank, cashier of the Bank of Washington, etc., etc. Mr. Ingle has held various municipal offices with much credit.

Dr. J.E. Ingle Rites To Be Tomorrow
Episcopal Clergyman Was Member of Old Washington Family
 Funeral services for Dr. Julian Edward Ingle, 91 years old, one of the oldest Episcopal clergymen in the United States, native of this city and member of an old Washington family, who died in Raleigh, N.C., yesterday will be conducted in Hines' funeral parlors, 2901 Fourteenth street, tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock. Interment will be in Congressional Cemetery. Preliminary funeral services are being held in Raleigh this afternoon, the services being conducted by Bishop Joseph Blount, assisted by Episcopal clergymen of Raleigh.

Dr. Ingle was born in a house which occupied the site of the present House Office Building here.

Dr. Ingle, who had made his home in Raleigh since his retirement from the active ministry in 1910, is survived by his widow and one son, Bassett Ingle of New York.

His education was received at Rittenhouse Academy, Washington, the Episcopal High School, Alexandria; the University of Virginia, and the General Theological Seminary, New York. His first assignment was at St. Paul's Church, Baltimore, in 1864, where he was assistant rector. He was also chaplain of the Church Home in Baltimore; later he became rector at Ascension Church, Westminster, Md. and Trinity Church, Woodbridge, N.J.

Accepting a call to Holy Innocents Church, Henderson in 1879, he remained in charge of that parish for 30 years.

The diocese of North Carolina conferred many honors on him. He served as dean of the diocese for a number of years. He was also examining chaplain, secretary of the diocese of North Carolina for over 25 years, and delegate to three triennial general conventions of the church. He was a trustee of St. Mary's School and St. Augustine's School.

The National Intelligencer, Saturday, October 5, 1844
 On Thursday, at eleven o'clock a.m., Mrs. Mary Ingle, relict of Mr. Henry Ingle, in the 79th year of her age. This excellent and beloved "mother in Israel" was sick but a few days. Death did not, however, find her unprepared. She had long since "set her house in order," and just after prayer by a dear Christian friend from a distance, her dying bed surrounded by her children and her children's children, she peacefully closed a long and well-spent life, in the full confidence of a glorious immortality, leaving a bright example of Christian character for their imitation, and the recollection of her many virtues, that will long be cherished. Her funeral will take place from the residence of her son, John P. Ingle, this day, (Saturday,) at eleven o'clock a.m., to which the friends of the family are invited.

Will of Mary Ingle, of City and Co. of Washington (dtd. Oct. 2, 1844, probated Oct. 12, 1844; Book 5, pp. 375-377; O.S. 2507; Box 17)

To the American Bible Society, $200; to the American Trust Society, $200; to the Missionary Society of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the U.S., $200; to the Education Society of the Protestant Episcopal Church in Va., $200; to the vestry of Washington Parish, D.C., $150; all to be appropriated as son John P. Ingle may approve.

To nephew Henry Ingle, $100 to be paid within 3 years; and to his mother Mrs. Polly Ingle, $200 to be paid within 1 year.

To brother William Pechin, $30.

To son William Ingle, $400 to be paid within 1 year; exonerated of any claim which I may possess against him as one of the heirs of my late husband Henry; a mahogany chamber table with drawers, which formerly belonged to his grandmother; a copy of the holy Bible with notes by Thomas Scott, D.D.

Exrs. to receive $100 to support Kitty Kaw, formerly a slave and servant of my family.

To daughters Anna, Mary and Christiana, wearing apparel to be divided among them as son John may approve.

To son John P. Ingle, my mahogany case of drawers and wardrobe.

To son Joseph Ingle, my mahogany bedstead with the bed, mattress and curtains.

To daughter Anna Lindsley, my mahogany bureau.

To daughter Mary I. Campbell, my mahogany framed looking glass.

To daughter Christiana Underwood, my mahogany circular table and my cushioned chair.

To niece Catharine Ingle, as the representative of my late son Edward Ingle, my mahogany candle stand.

To children John P. Ingle, Joseph Ingle, Anna Lindsley, Mary I. Campbell, and Christiana Underwood, 5/6 of all residue of estate; remaining 1/6 to Mary Catharine Ingle, William Pechin Ingle, Christopher Ingle, Adeline Ingle, and Julian Edward Ingle, children of my late son Edward, to share alike.

Exrs.: John P. Ingle, son; John Underwood, son-in-law

The recent death of Mrs. John P. Ingle obliges us to mourn the loss of one who had endeared herself to a large circle of friends by all those noble qualities which are the characteristics of a Christian. As a wife, daughter, mother, and sister, her loss is only the more keenly felt that it can never be repaired; and those who knew her best can alone tell how much they have to mourn. Although for months death has been approaching her with rapid steps she has looked with calmness and resignation for the time of her departure; and her constant prayer, when the hand of affliction was laid upon her family by her sickness, was that they might be sustained in the hour of their trouble by Him who can alone send consolation to the wounded heart. When we look around we see a void in the circle of those friends whose society it was our happiness to cultivate. But while we sympathize with the bereaved family, we hope the pleasing consolation that her troubles have forever ceased, and that she has gone to that home where sickness and sorrow enter not.

Death of Alfred C. Irvine

Superintendent of Station D of City Post Office Passes Away

Alfred C. Irvine, superintendent of Station D of the local post office, died yesterday afternoon at his residence, 2718 13th street northwest, after an illness of several months. The funeral will be held from the family home tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, Mr. J.J. Murphy, assistant superintendent of Station D, attending as the representative of the post office. The deceased was 62 years of age and left a widow and six children, all grown.

For many years Mr. Irvine had been connected with the Post Office Department. He was a soldier in the civil war and rose, by merit alone, to a captaincy in the federal army, his command being from Pennsylvania. After the war he entered the service of the Pennsylvania railroad, where he served with credit for a number of years, when he became attached to the Post Office Department and was given charge of Station D in South Washington.

During the administration of President Cleveland he was dismissed, but upon the election of Harrison he again entered the service in his old position, where he remained until his death. He was a Mason and had been commander of Garfield Post, G.A.R.

The interment tomorrow will be in Congressional cemetery, under the auspices of the G.A.R.

Last Rites Over Dead

Funeral of Alfred C. Irvine This Afternoon

Funeral services over the remains of the late Alfred C. Irvine were held at 2718 13th street northwest this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, Rev. D.W. Skellenger of the Sixth Presbyterian Church officiating. Interment was made in the Congressional cemetery.

The following persons served as pallbearers: John R. Young, H.S. Clarke, J. Fickling, L.E. Robey, A.K. Wagner, J.J. Murphy.

Mr. Irvine died Thursday after a lingering illness. He was superintendent of station D of the local postal system. He served through the civil war, rising to the rank of captain in the federal army. He was in the service of the Pennsylvania railroad for a number of years before entering the service of the Post Office Department. Except for a space of two years during the term of President Cleveland he had been constantly with the department since 1891. He was a Mason and for several terms commander of Garfield Post, G.A.R. Mr. Irvine was a prominent member of the 6th Street Presbyterian Church, being treasurer and trustee at the time of his death. He is survived by a widow, two sons and four daughters.

J.J. Murphy, assistant superintendent of station D, and other representatives of the department, attended the services.

Death From an Overdose of Morphine
Yesterday morning, Mr. William Irving, a nephew of Washington Irving, formerly chief clerk of the Census Bureau, but at the time of his death a clerk in the office of the Fourth Auditor, took an overdose of morphine, and died about 8 o'clock last night at his boarding house in this city. His design in taking the morphine was evidently to quiet his nerves. About two o'clock p.m., he was discovered to be asleep from it; and being aroused, he went up to his room and laid upon his bed, from which he did not afterwards rise--dying in about six hours, despite the efforts made by Drs. Richards and Holmead to relieve him. He was a gentleman of remarkably fine requirements, and much beloved by his friends. He leaves a distressed wife and three children, one of whom is now with his uncle, Washington Irving.

Funeral of Mrs. Isdell

A Resident of the District of Columbia for Sixty Years

The funeral of Mrs. Caroline Isdell, one of the oldest residents of the District of Columbia, who died at the family home, 903 North Carolina avenue southeast, Tuesday, will take place tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. The interment will be made in Congressional cemetery.

Mrs. Isdell was born in Saratoga county, New York, in 1827, and lacked only four days of being eighty-three years of age. She was the widow of Nelson Isdell, a wood and coal merchant, who died in 1874. She came to Washington with her husband in 1850, and continued the business after his death for eighteen years, when she retired. She lived in the house in which she died for eighteen years, and in the same square for forty-three years. Although she was the mother of five children, only one, Reuben W. Isdell, survives her.

Early in life she identified herself with the Methodist Church, and while her health permitted was a regular attendant.
