Nally, John Rufus	d. 16 May 1856		R77/130
The Evening Star, May 16, 1856
The Navy Yard Homicide
Early yesterday afternoon the eastern section of the city was thrown into great excitement by the announcement that John R. Nally, a young man of 20 or 21 years, had been shot dead by a fellow workman at the Navy Yard, named Daniel W. Jarboe, aged about 22.
Coroner Woodward held an inquest, the verdict of which was rendered about six o'clock in the evening. From the evidence before the jury it appears that about a quarter before one o'clock p.m., young Jarboe and his sister Sarah Jane, called at the house of an acquaintance (Mrs. Irwin) on Ninth street south, where they remained a short time, and when they left the house they met the deceased, who resided with his mother in the vicinity, and who was on his way to work in company with his brother William. Jarboe accused deceased with having seduced his sister, and asked if he intended to marry her. Nally's reply is stated to have been negative or evasive, whereupon Jarboe advanced and fired one barrel of a revolver at Nally, the ball entering the left breast. Nally ran a short distance, the blood flowing from his mouth, when his brother caught him in his arms. Nally died in about ten minutes after receiving the wound. After firing at Nally, Jarboe said to his sister, "Stand back till I shoot the other d---d son of a bitch," meaning Nally's brother. He did not fire again, however, and the pistol, which was a five-barrelled revolver, was found upon examination to have loads in the four barrels. Jarboe walked away, and meeting Officer Willard delivered himself up. He was taken before Justice Briggs, who committed him to the county jail for a further hearing. On hearing that Nally had died of the shot, he appeared much affected.
Nally was a member of the Anacostia Fire Company, and the different fire companies of the city have been invited to attend the funeral which takes place this afternoon.
This morning Justice Briggs was with the District Attorney to consult about a further hearing.

Burial of Nally.
Yesterday the remains of John R. Nally, who was killed by D.W. Jarboe in the recent affair at the Navy Yard, were consigned to the grave. The funeral procession was very long. The Anacostia Fire Company, of which the deceased was a member, and the American Hook and Ladder Company were out, accompanied by a fine band of music.

The Navy Yard Homicide
The deferred examination of Daniel W. Jarboe, for killing John R. Nally, took place at the guard room of the jail yesterday afternoon before Justice Briggs, commencing about five o'clock. The prisoner was brought in. He is of middle age, of youthful appearance with blue eyes; he looked pale and somewhat worn by confinement, but otherwise calm and collected.
Susana Irwin sworn--Resides on Ninth st., Navy Yard. The prisoner came in her house on the 15th of the month (May); she was looking out of a window up stairs; saw a gentleman and lady come in the house and saw Mr. Nally and his brother come around the corner of Mr. Padgett's; the gentleman that came with the lady sprang out of witnesses front door, and the lady followed him; the gentleman (the prisoner) said to Mr. Nally, "do you intend to marry her?" witness understood the answer to be "no;" with that prisoner pulled out a pistol and shot Nally; deceased ran and go to the end of the plank and bent over, with his hands to his breast, and said "Oh, Lord!" Then prisoner called the brother of deceased a d--d son of a bitch, and said if he did not get out of the way he (prisoner) would put a load in him. This is all witness knows of the affair. Deceased, after he was shot, ran around the corner, about the length of the guard room, and his brother after him; prisoner and his sister went off in another direction, around the opposite corner by the engine house; the sister was about a yard from prisoner when the pistol was fired; witness did not hear the sister of prisoner say anything; could not swear to the pistol.
Henrietta Cook sworn--Does not know the prisoner; saw the shooting on the 15th of the month; a gentleman and lady came into Mrs. Irwin's house, where witness lives; the gentleman staid about three minutes, when she saw the two Nallys coming from their dinner, going across the gutter; then the gentleman ran out to this Mr. Nally, and the lady after him; witness went to the door to see who it was they were talking to; when she got there the prisoner was pulling a pistol from his right pocket, and she saw him shoot deceased, she thinks in the left side; saw deceased turn around and run; heard the prisoner say to the lady with him "Stand back;" prisoner then said to the other Nally, "Now," with an oath, calling him a son of a bitch, "I have a great mind to put a load in you;" saw this Mr. Nally run; heard no words pass between deceased and the prisoner and his sister; Irwin's door is about as far from the place of the shot as from witness to the door of the guard room; the lady was about four feet from the prisoner when he fired the pistol.

Ann Armisted sworn--Does not know the prisoner, was up stairs in her own house; heard the report of a pistol, and looked out of the window; saw pistol pointed at Mr. Nally; this was about twenty yards from where witness stood; witness lives next door to Irwin's; the pistol was pointed at Mr. William Nally; heard the sound of one voice, but could not understand what the words were; cannot identify the prisoner as the person who pointed the pistol.

William W. Nally sworn--Is a brother of the deceased; the name of the deceased was John Rufus Nally; witness was present at the time his brother was shot; witness went to his mother's at dinner time; it was twenty minutes to 1 o'clock when he went there; witness and brother started to go to work; deceased said to witness, "Let's go over to Mr. Geddes, I want to get a piece of soap;" witness and his brother went across the gutter, and just as they got across the gutter, Mr. Jarboe jumped across the gutter in front of us, turned around, and called the lady (his sister) that was with him, and asked deceased "What he intended to do?" or, "Did he intend to marry her?" witness could not be certain which he asked him; deceased answered "You see," or, "Will see what I am going to do?" or something like that, witness does not remember the exact words; Mr. Jarboe drew his hand out of his pocket and shot deceased right down; does not know how far prisoner was from his brother at the time he fired the pistol, but supposes it was about as far as from witness to the gentleman by the table (about two feet;) his brother, after being shot, turned around and went towards home; then Jarboe said to witness, "You d--d son of a bitch, I'll shoot you too;" as he said that witness turned and ran and grabbed his brother and took him home, and put him in the hands of his grandmother, who met them at the door; their house was not more than twenty or twenty-five yards from where the shooting occurred; after witness gave the deceased in charge of his grandmother, he went for the doctor; returned in about ten minutes; his brother was dead when he got back; his brother made no movement at all, when, in reply to Jarboe's question, he said "I'll see what I'll do."

John A. Willett sworn--Was standing on Seventh street east talking to Mr. Burdine; heard a noise as of a good many walking, and turned around; saw a large crowd of persons coming up the street on the pavement, and, to the best of witness's recollection, Thomas Mansfield called to witness to "arrest that man;" witness went then to meet the crowd and asked them what man, and they pointed to the prisoner, whom he did not know then but afterwards ascertained was Mr. Jarboe; thinks prisoner is the man; witness caught hold of him by the arm; prisoner said he would go, and they went up to Squire Brigg's office on Seventh street, and after he had got in and taken his seat the Squire began to inquire about some witness; Jarboe then asked to let his sister come in, and said that he had done it; nothing more occurred of consequence until they went down the street to get a conveyance to come to the jail in; the prisoner, to the best of witness's recollection, said he wanted to get off as soon as possible; they were standing on the corner of Eighth and K streets, some person made mention that "he was shot" or "was dead," witness was not certain which; Jarboe said "I done it, and I am satisfied;" does not think anything was said between there and up by Mr. Marceron's until up by Capt. Sutherland's corner, when, as they were riding in the wagon, the prisoner turned to him and asked if deceased was dead; told him I did not know, had heard so, but he might not be; prisoner said "Poor fellow, I am sorry for him;" he seemed to take on right smartly about it; when prisoner came into the magistrate's office somebody said he had a pistol about him; witness turned and told him he would have to give it up; heard Mr. Briggs tell him previous to this that he must give up the pistol; the prisoner gave the pistol to witness; witness gave the pistol to Mr. Briggs.

(A pistol was here shown to witness, which he thought was the same. Mr. Briggs, the magistrate, identified the pistol as the same.)

Dr. S.A.H. McKim sworn--Made a post mortem examination of the body of deceased; deceased was dead when witness arrived; the first appearance of the body showed blood and froth issuing from the mouth; upon examining the body a wound was found upon the left side about four inches below and six inches back of the right nipple; upon making a post mortem the entrance of the bullet was found on the inner side of the chest between the 7th and 8th ribs, passing through the lower lobe of the left lung, passing behind without touching the heart, severing the large veing returing from the lower limbs, and the main artery, thence through the lower and middle lobe of the right lung passed out of the chest between the 5th and 6th ribs, and was there found imbedded in the muscles two inches below and two inches behind the right nipple. The direction of the wound was from behind, forwards and upwards, witness produced the bullet; was satisfied that the wound from the bullet caused death.

Dr. George M. Dove was sworn, and corroborated the testimony of Dr. McKim.

Thomas Irwin sworn--Has seen the prisoner; prisoner came to his house and asked witness to allow him to stop there for a few minutes to see a friend; witness told him "Certainly, sir;" a girl was along with prisoner; did not know either the gentleman or the girl; witness handed both a chair, and they both sat down; this was about ten minutes before 1 o'clock; witness went to get a cigar and then went to the back room; while in there, heard the report of a pistol or gun; did not see any body shot; knows nothing further; knows deceased very well; he resided close by them; that was the regular route for deceased to go to his work at the Navy Yard; prisoner had not been in witnesses house before; witness went to work in the yard after the transaction.

James S. Buckley sworn--Knows the prisoner, Mr. Daniel Jarboe; was on his way to work in the Navy Yard, and saw Mr. Nally and Mr. Jarboe conversing together, as witness thought, as friends. As witness proceeded, he heard the report of a pistol and saw the smoke between Mr. Jarboe and Mr. Nally. Mr. Nally turned from Mr. Jarboe and ran; there was then a female came to Mr. Jarboe's side, and they went off quietly; witness was going towards the parties all the time until the report of the pistol; was looking at them when he heard the report of the pistol, but cannot say who fired it; thought he saw Jarboe put something in his pocket.

John T. Johnson sworn--Does not know the prisoner; on last Thursday was going towards the Navy Yard, and when near the corner of Ninth and L streets, observed a gentleman and lady standing; also saw two young men standing, one of whom he knew, Mr. William Nally; in about a second after noticing them standing he heard a report which he took to be a pistol; then he saw a young man place his hand upon his side and bend over; this was one of the young men standing in front of the gentleman and lady; he then saw William Nally advance a few steps towards the gentleman and lady; then he heard the gentleman that was with the lady remark that he would "shoot you;" don't know to whom he referred; William Nally then turned and ran towards deceased and overtook him about half way between the corner where he was shot and his mother's residence; hear the gentleman that was with the lady say "Come;" witness then followed after deceased, and on entering the yard of Nally's house, saw deceased lying in the side alley; witness went up to the deceased; he was not quite dead; looked witness, but said nothing; blood was flowing from the wound; when the gentleman with the lady turned around, after firing the pistol, witness saw a pistol in his hand.

The testimony for the United States closed here, and the magistrate deeming the evidence sufficient to justify the detention of the prisoner, committed him for trial.

The District Attorney appeared for the United States, and Messrs. Bradley, Ratcliffe, Jones and Maury for the defense. No witnesses were called for the defense upon this preliminary examination.

Death of Mr. Michael Nash

Mr. Michael Nash, an old citizen of Washington, died last night at his home in East Washington from the effects of injuries received in a fall about a week ago. Mr. Nash was throwing some wood in the cellar, and making a misstep, fell down the cellar-way, breaking several ribs and sustaining injuries to his head. He was about 80 years of age, and one of the best known citizens of the District. He came to this country from Ireland about the year 1818, and after stopping in Baltimore a short time, came to this city and had resided here ever since. He was, in his younger days, identified with the District militia and the old volunteer fire department. For many years he was superintendent of the shoemaking establishment connected with the old penitentiary. He was a charter member and large stockholder of the Firemen's Insurance company, and also a stockholder in the Great Falls Ice company.

Woman Dies; Man, Also Shot, Held

William Poland Accused by Police of Being Slayer of Mrs. Lola Naylor

Tragedy Follows Boat Trip Down The River

Painter Denies Firing Pistol in Room With Fellow-Boarder, Husband Also Arrested

Mrs. Lola Naylor twenty-five years old, who had been separated from her husband, John Naylor, since Christmas, died at Casualty Hospital this morning at 2:30 o'clock as a result of two bullet wounds in her chest. She was shot about 1 o'clock this morning while in the room of William Poland, a boarder at 1525 23d street, Randle Highlands.

William Poland, who is a painter, about thirty-eight years old, is a patient at Casualty Hospital suffering from one bullet wound in his left chest, and the police have preferred a charge of murder against him. It was stated at the hospital today that Poland is seriously wounded, although he may recover.

John Naylor, husband of the dead woman, was taken into custody by the police this morning and held for investigation. Several persons told the police that Naylor had threatened the couple, but Naylor denies this. He said that if his wife did not want to live with him she was at liberty to go where she pleased.

The tragedy followed a trip to Marshall Hall last night on an excursion given by an organization composed of employes of a local business house where Mrs. Naylor was employed. Poland and Mrs. Naylor were apparently in the best of humor when they returned home about midnight and were seen on a Randle Highlands car by Motorman Hutchinson.

Were Chatting and Laughing

"They were chatting and laughing," said the motorman, "and I heard Mrs. Naylor say she would 'bet a dollar.' The man said he would 'bet ten,' but I did not hear what they were talking about."

Mrs. W.L. Wilkins in whose home the couple boarded and occupied separate rooms, heard one of her boarders moving about the house about midnight, a few minutes after the couple reached the house, and nothing more was heard until she was awakened to the reports of the pistol shots.

Following the sounds of the shots, Mrs. Wilkins states, Mrs. Naylor called. "May, he's shot me." Mrs. Wilkins ran to Poland's room, a large front room on the second floor and saw the wounded pair lying side by side. The smoking revolver was on the bed near Poland's hand.

Mrs. Naylor was unconscious and unable to speak, Mrs. Wilkins said, and Poland refused to speak. Mr. Wilkins carried Mrs. Naylor to a small hall room, the room she occupied and placed her on her bed. He then ran from the house to find a policeman, his wife following him.

Policeman Heard Shots

Policeman J.R. Harrover of the eleventh precinct heard the reports of two of the four shots that were fired and was on his way to the house when he met Wilkins. Hurrying to the house the policeman and Mrs. Wilkins saw the wounded couple, and the policeman summoned an ambulance and patrol wagon.

"I spoke to Mrs. Naylor and pushed back an eyelid" said the policeman, "but she was too far gone to be able to speak or give any sign of recognition."

"I've finished both of us," is what Mrs. Wilkins says Poland told her, and he added, "I've finished the pair of us, and am not going to live long, bring me some ice."

Mrs. Wilkins chided Poland, but when he said he was not going to live long she procured ice for him and remained there until the arrival of the ambulance.

At the hospital, it is stated, the wounded man blamed first one person and then another for the shooting. He was questioned by Detectives Vermillion and Armstrong soon after he reached the hospital and to them he denied that he had done the shooting.

Lieut. Plemmons Investigates

Lieut. Plemmons of the 11th precinct was the first officer to reach the house in response to the call sent in by Policeman Harrover, and he took a hand in the investigation. Mrs. Wilkins and her husband talked freely of the tragedy and told what they knew of the boarders.

Mrs. Naylor, the police were told, was a daughter of Thomas Mitchell, 713 P street southwest.

"And," stated Mrs. Wilkins "she has been with me off and on since she was ten years old. She called me 'mother' and called my husband 'daddy.' Mr. Poland always seemed to be a very gentlemanly man, although my husband had known him only about three months. He had boarded with us only since the latter part of last month."

John Naylor, husband of the dead woman, is a bartender and resides at 1311 C street southwest. It was not until after 7 o'clock this morning that the husband learned of the shooting and hurried to the hospital. He had previously told the police that he suspected something wrong and asked them to watch her movements about the Randle Highlands house.

Planned Trip Down River

Mrs. Wilkins said Mrs. Naylor told her she was going to Marshall Hall last night, and dressed for the excursion yesterday morning before she went to work. Poland came home about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, she stated, said he was in a hurry, that he had to go to a Mr. Buckey's on business and asked her to iron an outing shirt for him. She complied with his request, she stated and he tossed her a quarter.

"I'm in too big a hurry to stop for dinner," Mrs. Wilkins says her boarder told her, "and I asked him if he were going to Marshall Hall with Lola. He told me he was not, and declared he was going to see about work."

The shooting created absolutely no excitement in the vicinity of the Wilkins home, and practically none of the neighbors knew what had happened until they read of the shooting in the morning papers.

Detectives Vermillion and Armstrong spent some time about the house early this morning seeking testimony to convince them of the identity of the individual who had done the shooting and to ascertain the motive.

Two Pistols in Room

They learned from Mr. and Mrs. Wilkins what they knew of the affair, and two pistols found in the room were taken charge of by them. Before leaving the room in charge of the police and a physician from Casualty Hospital, Poland said he had forty cartridges in his closet, indicating the part of the closet in which he kept them. The cartridges were found at the place indicated by the wounded man.

One of the four bullets fired from the weapon, the only one that went wild, crashed through the transom and was imbedded in the ceiling of the room occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Wilkins.

"Whether the bullet was intended to kill one of us when Poland heard us getting out of bed or whether it was fired into our room accidentally," said Mrs. Wilkins, "I do not know."

"It may be," she added, "that he heard us responding to Lola's call for help and tried to shoot us."

Bullet Passed Through Body

When the body of Mrs. Naylor was examined at the morgue today it was found that one bullet had passed entirely through her body, while the second one was found imbedded just under the skin. The bullet that passed through her body, it is thought, the floor near the bed, although the police say that bullet may have passed through the transom over the door between the rooms of Poland and Wilkins and his wife.

The police were told that when Mrs. Naylor and her husband separated the wife went to her parents' home. She remained there until less than a month ago, when she went to the Wilkins home to live. She left home against the wishes of her parents, it is said, and the latter kept her furniture at their home in South Washington.

Interviewed at the hospital today, the wounded man repeated the assertion that he did not know who did the shooting, although he admitted ownership of the weapon with which the shooting was done.

Denies Alleged Admission

Sergt. Weber of the eleventh precinct saw Poland at the hospital later and questioned him as to the statement Mrs. Wilkins made of his alleged admission. He denied he had made the statement. "I have finished both of us," which was attributed to him by Mrs. Wilkins.

Mr. Naylor, husband of the dead woman, was questioned by the police as to his whereabouts last night, his name having been mentioned in the affair by Poland. He explained that he retired about 10:30 o'clock last night and said the first he knew of the affair was when his father-in-law called at his house early this morning and told him of it. He was still in bed when his father-in-law called.

Assistant United States Attorney Harvey Given took a hand in the investigation this afternoon and sent for the witnesses to obtain their statements.

Poland's father, Thomas C. Poland, 11 15th street southeast, a motorman in the employ of the Washington Railway and Electric Company, and Attorney Philip Lee Scantling saw the wounded man at the hospital today. The police were told that an inquest will be held at the morgue tomorrow morning.

The Evening Star, July 11, 1914, p. 2

Poland in Quarrel With Mrs. Naylor

Police Say They Have Found Witnesses Who Know of Controversy

Inquest into Death of Woman in Double Tragedy Conducted by Coroner

Continuing their investigation of the double tragedy enacted early yesterday morning in the house of Mr. and Mrs. W.L. Wilkins, 1525 23d street, Randle Highlands, the police say they found witnesses who stated that William Poland and Mrs. Lola Naylor engaged in a quarrel while on the excursion to Marshall Hall Thursday night.

These witnesses and all others who were found by the police were summoned to appear at the inquest, which was scheduled for today, Coroner Nevitt was on hand at the morgue at 11:30 o'clock this morning ready to proceed with the hearing, and the detectives and policemen who conducted the investigation were also there.

In a room adjoining that in which the jury and spectators assembled was the body of Mrs. Naylor, the young woman who separated from her husband about Christmas, while her husband, John C. Naylor, who had been detained over night at the Anacostia police station as a material witness, was in attendance to tell of his domestic woes.

Poland Still At Hospital

Poland, who is accused of the killing of Mrs. Naylor and is alleged to have attempted suicide, is still in Casualty Hospital. He was unable to attend the inquest, although physicians at the hospital said he probably will be able to leave there next week.

The wounded man still denies that he fired the four shots in the room in which he and Mrs. Naylor were found wounded. His statement is that he returned from the excursion with Mrs. Naylor, and that he was still awake when the shots were fired, but by whom, he says, he does not know.

It is charged by the police that Poland shot Mrs. Naylor and himself, and in support of their theory they point to the nature of the wound Poland received. The bullet that passed through his body and probably imbedded itself in the washboard, it is stated, entered near the second rib on the right side, took a downward glancing course and found exit near the seventh rib on the left side.

The police claim it is just such a wound as would ordinarily be inflicted by a person attempting suicide by shooting himself through the body.

Not Done by Outsider, They Say

Mr. and Mrs. Wilkins claim that an outsider could not possibly have done the shooting, the police say, declaring the doors were locked and the windows closed when they started for assistance, following the shooting.

Had a person from the outside followed the couple or been secreted in the house, the police say, a door or window would have been found open by Mr. Wilkins, who was first to leave the house.

Arrangements for the funeral of Mrs. Naylor have not been completed. Her husband stated that her life was insured for a small amount and that as soon as the inquest is concluded he will arrange for the funeral. It is possible that the body will be taken to the home of Mrs. Naylor's parents in South Washington and that the funeral will take place Monday.

Relatives of both the dead woman and the wounded man were at the morgue to attend the inquest and counsel for Poland were also on hand.

Her Murder Laid To Wounded Man

Coroner's Jury Accuses William Poland of Killing Mrs. Naylor

William Poland, who is lying on a cot at Casualty Hospital with a bullet wound in his breast, was held today by a coroner's jury for the action of the grand jury on a charge of being responsible for the death of Mrs. Lola Naylor, who was shot to death at 1525 23d street, Randle Highlands early yesterday morning.

The inquest over the body of Mrs. Naylor was held at the District morgue at noon today and the testimony was listened to by a score of friends of Poland and Mrs. Naylor. Poland's injuries were such that he could not attend the inquest, but he was represented by counsel. Assistant United States Attorney S. McComas Hawken represented the government.

Tell of Woman's Death

Physicians at Casualty Hospital testified as to the death of Mrs. Naylor at that institution half an hour after she had been taken there in the ambulance early yesterday morning. Two bullet holes in her chest and one in the back where one of the bullets from the front had gone through, were described by the physicians. They also told of a bullet wound in Poland's chest and stated that his condition today is improved.

Detective Sergt. Howard Vermillion, of police headquarters, who with Detective Armstrong investigated the shooting, testified that he went to Casualty Hospital after Mrs. Naylor and Poland had been removed there. He stated Poland told him that he was at Marshall Hall Thursday night, as was Mrs. Naylor, but said that he did not accompany her there. He also said that Poland told of having been on friendly terms with Mrs. Naylor.

The witness stated that Poland said that he and Mrs. Naylor were lying in his (Poland's) bed early Friday morning and that neither of them was asleep. He said that about twenty minutes after they had been lying there he heard a shot and discovered that Mrs. Naylor had been shot and that as he turned over toward her he was shot. The detective said that Poland said he did not see any one in the room.

Bought Two Revolvers

The witness testified also as to a statement of Poland's that he had purchased two revolvers at a store on 9th street northwest. Detective Vermillion identified photographs of the interior of the room in which the shooting occurred and pointed out to the jury places about the room where bullets had struck. He also said that one of the bullets had passed through the mattress of the bed on the side on which Mrs. Naylor had been lying.

Lieut. C.L. Plemmons of the eleventh precinct was the next witness. He told of going to the scene of the shooting early Friday morning, but said that Mrs. Naylor and Poland had been taken to the hospital when he arrived at the house.

William Wilkins and his wife, Mrs. May Wilkins, were the principal witnesses. Both of them testified that they were in bed in another part of the house when they heard shots fired. They jumped out of bed and the husband ran into the room in which the shooting took place, they testified. The wife followed.

Mrs. Wilkins said that almost immediately following the shooting she heard Mrs. Naylor cry in a faint voice, "May, May, he shot me!" The two witnesses testified to having gone into the room and also of the husband carrying Mrs. Naylor from that room into another room.

Mrs. Wilkins said Poland asked for a drink of water, but that she said: "No. Why did you shoot her?" She said that Poland made no statement as to the shooting to her.

Poland Still at Hospital

Poland was unable to attend the inquest, although physicians at the hospital said he probably will be able to leave there next week.

The wounded man still denies that he fired the four shots in the room in which he and Mrs. Naylor were found wounded. His statement is that he returned from the excursion with Mrs. Naylor, and that he was still awake when the shots were fired, but by whom, he says, he does not know.

It is charged by the police that Poland shot Mrs. Naylor and himself and in support of their theory they point to the nature of the wound Poland received. The bullet that passed through his body and probably imbedded itself in the washboard, it is stated, entered near the second rib on the right side, took a downward glancing course and found exit near the seventh rib on the left side.

The police claim it is just such a wound as would ordinarily be inflicted by a person attempting suicide by shooting himself through the body.

Not Done by Outsider, They Say

Mr. and Mrs. Wilkins claim that an outsider could not possibly have done the shooting, the police say, declaring the doors were locked and the windows closed when they started for assistance, following the shooting.

Had a person from the outside followed the couple or been secreted in the house, the police say, a door or window would have been found open by Mr. Wilkins, who was first to leave the house.

Died At Hospital

The Railroad Brakeman Who Was Hurt in a Smash-Up

Charles Neitzey, the railroad brakeman who was injured in the rear-end collision near Maryland avenue and 13 1/2 street southwest early Sunday morning, as published in Monday's Star, died at the Emergency Hospital last night about 7:15 o'clock. The accident resulted from an alleged defective coupling, as stated in The Star at the time, and the several runaway cars crashed into the train carrying Buffalo Bill's show. Neitzey, who lived at No. 58 N street northwest, and had been in the railroad company's employ for some time, was in the caboose attached to the runaway cars, and he made an unsuccessful attempt to put down the brakes. Seeing he could not succeed, he stepped inside the caboose, thinking the force of the collision would not be great enough to do much damage. But when the crash came the caboose was splintered, and it was with considerable difficulty that the injured brakeman was rescued from the debris before he was dead. Although his condition was serious when he was taken to the hospital, the physicians thought he would recover. But yesterday morning there was a change for the worse, and death ended his sufferings about the time stated.

The operation of laparotomy was performed for the internal injuries and the examination showed that Neitzey's pelvis had been seriously injured. A splintered bone, it appeared, had entered the bladder and this injury had given serious trouble. Several hours before he died Neitzey conversed with an agent of the railroad company about the case of the man. Kibble, who was found severely injured lying beside the railroad tracks some days ago. Kibble, who is in the Emergency Hospital still under treatment, made a statement that the brakeman of a freight train had pushed him off a car. Neitzey was the man whom he implicated, but during the conversation yesterday, knowing full well that he had but a short time to live, he declared in positive terms that he had not shoved the man from the train. He first saw the man, he said, when the latter was lying beside the tracks, and then he did all he could to assist him.

Coroner Carr viewed the body at the hospital this morning and gave permission for its removal to his late home on N street.

The coroner made an investigation, and it was stated at the Emergency Hospital this afternoon that no inquest will be held.

Biographical Directory of the United States Congress 1774-1989
A Representative from Pennsylvania; born in York, Pa., May 20, 1799; completed preparatory studies and was graduated from Princeton College; studied medicine and practiced in York, Pa.; elected as an Independent to the 28th Congress (March 4, 1843 - March 3, 1845); elected to the 30th and 31st Congresses and served from March 4, 1847 until his death in York, Pa., September 10, 1850; interment in Prospect Hill Cemetery
The National Intelligencer, Friday, September 13, 1850
We regret to learn that Dr. Henry Nes, a Representative in Congress, from the 15th District of Pennsylvania, died at his residence in York on Tuesday night. He has been ill for a long time and in consequence of sickness has been absent from his seat in the House during most of the present session. His death will be no doubt be formally announced in the House today.
The National Intelligencer, Saturday, Sept. 14, 1850
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
The Journal of yesterday having been read--
Mr. Stevens, of Pennsylvania, rose and addressed the House as follows:
Mr. Speaker: It is my painful duty to announce the death of another member of this House. The Hon. Henry Nes, late Representative of the fifteenth Congressional District of Pennsylvania, expired at his residence on the evening of the 10th instant. For a long time he had been afflicted with a painful and wasting disease.
Dr. Nes was a native of the borough of York, where he constantly resided until his death. His parents were among the most respectable and influential citizens of that ancient town. Properly appreciating the benefits of knowledge, they gave their son a liberal and professional education. He rose to considerable eminence, and acquired a large practice in his profession; which he followed until the people of his district required his public services.
How he was esteemed here, I need not inform you, who knew him. When his health permitted, and sometimes when it would hardly justify his attendance, he was assiduous in the discharge of his public duties. At the commencement of this session of Congress he rose from a bed of sickness, and at great personal risk came here to attend the organization of this House. Nor did he permit himself to be a day absent until disease rendered him too feeble to attend.
Few men possessed as great and as enviable popularity as he. He was repeatedly elected to Congress from a district which never returned any other man of the same political party. His popularity was not accidental, or evanescent; for his constituents had known him from his childhood. It was founded on the most amiable qualities of the human heart. Benevolence, generosity, and unfeigned pity for misfortune were prominent characteristics of his nature. No child of affliction was ever so poor or humble as to seek his professional or pecuniary assistance in vain. The poor and the afflicted were all his friends; and their sorrow at his grave will do more honor to his obsequies, than could the most splendid equipages of the great.
He has left behind him numerous respectable, attached, and mourning friends; but not a single enemy. If the blessings of the unfortunate and the sincere prayers of pure and grateful hearts can furnish a safe passport to a better world, his has been a happy exit from this.
I move the following resolutions:
Resolved, That this House has heard with deep sensibility the annunciation of the death of the Hon. Henry Nes, a member from the State of Pennsylvania.
Resolved. That this House tenders to the relatives of the deceased the expression of its sympathy in this afflicting event; and, as a testimony of respect for the memory of the deceased, the members and officers of the House will go into mourning by wearing crape on the left arm for thirty days.
Resolved. That, as a further mark of respect to the memory of the deceased, the House do now adjourn.
The resolutions were unanimously agreed to.
And the House accordingly adjourned.

Nevitt Dies; Was District Coroner From 1900 Till 1931 Dr J. Ramsey Nevitt, 85, District coroner from 1900 to 1931 did Saturday at Cedarcroft Sanitarium, Silver Spring. He had been at the sanitarium for the last three years. Dr. Nevitt began his coroner's job at $1,500 a year, plus 50-cents a day for horse and livery hire. The Morgue was then a little structure of second-hand brick beside a stable behind the sixth police precinct. Later the morgue was moved to the waterfront and then to Gallinger Hospital grounds. During Dr. Nevitt's career, a police homicide squad was established to supplement the coroner's efforts to investigate murders. Strange Cases Recalled When Dr. Nevitt retired he recalled some of his strange death cases: The man who died of bed bug bites, the three Chinese members of a special mission to the United States who were murdered, the painter who killed himself while working in Dr. Nevitt's home and the son of an Ambassador who was found hanging in an embassy attic. The Ambassador demanded that Coroner Nevitt give no publicity to the case and with the help of the Commissioners and the Secretary of State a certificate of death was issued quietly and filed in the District Building. Dr. Nevitt directed rescue of the injured after the Knickerbocker Theater disaster in 1922. The theater, at Eighteenth street and Columbia road N.W., was around the corner from his home at 1820 Calvert street N.W. He issued certificates for 101 dead after the disaster. He also was on the job at the Terra Cotta railroad wreck in which 48 persons died. Born in Virginia Dr. Nevitt was born in Naylor's Hole, Richmond County, Va. He had lived in Washington since he was 2 years old. He was graduated from Columbia University, now George Washington, and received his medical degree there in 1892. He was in the District Engineer Department from 1890 to 1891. Dr. Nevitt gained fame combating a smallpox epidemic in the Washington area when he was in charge of the District Hospital for Contagious Diseases from 1892 to 1894. He was appointed to the Board of Police Surgeons in 1894 and became president the following year. After his retirement Dr. Nevitt lived on a farm near Potomac Beach, Va., in the summer and at 3639 Van Ness streets N.W. in the winter. He married Mary Hine in 1894. She died in 1948. Dr. Nevitt was a member of the Masons, Washington Heights Presbyterian Church, Washington Medical and Surgical Society and the American Medical Association. Survivors are a son, Leman H. Nevitt, 3121 Patterson street N.W., an employee of the District Bridge Department, a daughter, Miss Ramsay Nevitt, 3639 Van Ness street, N.W., a teacher at Woodrow Wilson high school, and three granddaughters. Memorial services will be held at 4 p.m. tomorrow at the Lee funeral home, Fourth street and Massachusetts avenue N.E. The Evening Star, June 19, 1914, p 10 Enters Protest Against Removal of Dr. Nevitt Civic Betterment Association Informed District Coroner Is Not Republican Members of the Civic Betterment Association held a meeting last night and adopted a resolution protesting against the proposed removal from office of Dr. J. Ramsay Nevitt, District coroner, on the grounds that he is a republican, and the appointment of Dr. C.W. Chipman, a democrat, to the position.

The meeting was held at the residence of Mayo Mitchell, secretary of the association, 15 Grant place northwest, Capt. J.W. Mitchell, president of the association, presided.

A statement made at the meeting contained an absolute denial of the allegation that Dr. Nevitt is a republican. It was stated that he is a native of Rappahannock county, Va., and that all his relatives are democrats and warm personal friends of the two United States senators from that state.

The late L.G. Hine, father-in-law of Dr. Nevitt, was a democrat. He served as a District Commissioner, Dr. Nevitt, it was stated, came to this city when he was a boy, and has never taken any part in politics.

Dr. Nevitt, it was stated, has served as coroner for fourteen years without any complaint against his manner of conducting business, and the association voiced an objection to his removal for alleged political reasons.

Other civic bodies will be asked to take action. It is the intention of the association to send President Wilson a communication voicing the sentiments expressed at the meeting.

Dr. Nevitt A Success In Santa Claus Role

District Official Gives Joy to Family of Six Little People

Dr. J. Ramsay Nevitt, the District Coroner, recently appeared in the role of Santa Claus and brought happiness to the hearts of a family of six little children, their mother and grandparents. Playing Santa Claus was a little out of the coroner's line, but on an official visit to the vicinity of Good Hope, a week ago, he witnessed a sight that suggested the necessity of a volunteer to make it possible for the children to have a Christmas celebration.

Getting together a number of packages of toys, candles, fruits and clothing Monday afternoon, Dr. Nevitt motored to the house. He found the aged grandfather in front of the house chopping wood, a son of a neighbor assisting him.

When the physician's automobile was brought to a stop on the road about 100 yards from the house, the wood choppers put down their implements and walked to the house.

They were unable to understand the meaning of a stranger coming with his arms filled with packages.

"Guess he's made a mistake," the aged man suggested, calling his wife to the door.

"I was here a few days ago," said the coroner to the grandmother. "Don't you recall that I was here when the baby died?"

They recalled the visit, and when the packages were handed the grandmother and she was told they were for a Christmas celebration for the benefit of the little people, she exclaimed. "People certainly are good to us. I didn't know what we would do to get something for the children, but it's all right now."

New Coroner Appointed

Dr. J. Ramsay Nevitt to Succeed Dr. Carr

Dr. L.W. Glazebrook Reappointed Deputy Coroner--

Order Takes Effect the 16th Instant

Upon the nomination of Commissioner Macfarland, who has immediate supervision of the office, the Commissioners this afternoon appointed Dr. J. Ramsay Nevitt as coroner of the District, to succeed, the 16th instant, Dr. W.P. Carr. Upon Mr. Macfarland's motion, the Commissioners also reappointed Dr. Larkin W. Glazebrook as deputy coroner, to succeed himself the same date. Both appointments are to continue during the pleasure of the Commissioners, the order fixing the terms of these officers heretofore at three years being rescinded.

Dr. Nevitt is one of the best-known of the younger of the local physicians, and has resided here for thirty-one of his thirty-three years. He was born near Richmond, Va. He was educated in the public schools of the District, graduated from Columbian University after a course of four years, and subsequently graduated from the medical department of that university. He was for a time resident student at the Washington Asylum Hospital, and later became the resident physician of that institution. Still later he became a member of the Emergency Hospital's staff, serving under Dr. H.L.E. Johnson, and seven years ago was appointed a member of the District's board of police and fire surgeons, which position he still retains.

Man of Courage

Dr. Nevitt is not only an accomplished physician, but he is also a man of rare courage, as has been attested on more than one occasion when he volunteered for service as physician in charge of the local smallpox hospital. During the Grand Army encampment here in 1893 he was placed in charge of the contagious hospital at a time when it was expected that this country would be visited by an epidemic of cholera. Several cases of smallpox developed here a little later and he continued in charge of the hospital while such afflicted patients were there, as he has done on several occasions later. Dr. Nevitt rendered heroic service at the Louisiana avenue fire several years ago, when he risked his life by rendering medical attention to members of the fire department, who were at the time pinned down in one of the fiercely burning buildings, and at a time, took when the walls threatened to fall in and crush every one within the structure to death.

The Deputy Coroner

Dr. Glazebrook, the reappointed deputy coroner, is also a native of Virginia, and he, too, was born near Richmond. He was educated here. He has held the position of deputy coroner since the office was created, in 1893, and has, it is stated, been very successful in the performance of autopsies, in which he is admitted to be a specialist. Both men are republicans, and it is understood that this fact was a most important consideration in the mind of Commissioner Macfarland in his determination to nominate them. Dr. Nevitt's general qualifications, and the fact that he was most highly recommended for the position, were also material inducements in the minds of the Commissioners, who also desired to pay recognition to his heroic services in assuming charge of the smallpox hospital on several occasions, and for his conduct at the Louisiana avenue fire. Dr. Glazebrook, while a candidate for the position of coroner, expressed his satisfaction with the appointment of Dr. Nevitt, of whom he entertains a very high regard, and the former's reappointment as deputy coroner was due to the great success he has attained in the office, as well as the many high indorsements filed in his behalf.

Complimented by Police

Members of the police department express themselves as delighted at the action of the Commissioners in appointing Dr. Nevitt to succeed Coroner Carr. At the same time they regret very much that they are to lose his services as surgeon to the department. Dr. Nevitt has given entire satisfaction as a police surgeon, and because of his popularity and recognized ability his services were much in demand. He is regarded by many as the most popular surgeon that has been connected with the police department for many years. The police are satisfied that as coroner he will prove to be as successful as he has been as a police surgeon.

Coroner's Inquest
About 7 o'clock yesterday morning, the body of a man was discovered floating in the canal at the foot of 9th street west. It was taken out and conveyed to the Central Guard House where a jury was summoned, and an inquest disclosed the following facts. The deceased was Gen. David Newland of Sheboygan, Wisconsin, but formerly of North Carolina, where he ran for Congress, was defeated and contested the seat of his opponent.
Mr. Newland was formerly Speaker of the House of Delegates of Wisconsin. He had been in Washington some five or six months, acting as agent, it is understood, for various parties who were applying for office. He has been latterly in very straightened pecuniary circumstances, and this fact probably gave rise to the suspicion that he deliberately put an end to his existence, but the facts elicited before the jury seemed to indicate that his death was accidental, and the jury brought in a verdict accordingly. The papers upon his person were not wet through, indicating that he had been a short time in the water when discovered. Among these papers was a Free Mason's diploma of twenty years' standing, and the body was accordingly taken charge of by members of the Order and conveyed to their hall on 9th street, from whence he was buried at 3 o'clock this morning.
It is high time something was done with that infernal man-trap, the city canal. Let it either be filled up, ("a consummation devoutly to be wished,") arched over, or railed in, as is the case with Jones' Falls in Baltimore. We wonder the city fathers are not afraid to cross the canal after night fall, lest they should be confronted by some of the pale specters of the drowned, who, if there be any truth in ghost stories, must hover over its torrid waters in squadrons!

Death of Commodore Newton
We stopped the press yesterday afternoon when our edition of the day was half worked off, to announce the sudden illness of Commodore John T. Newton, then supposed to be from paralysis.
He was the president of one of the Naval Courts of Inquiry now sitting in this city, and at the time of its adjournment, at noon yesterday, appeared to be in the enjoyment of his customary vigorous health. On leaving the Court, he walked to the residence of Charles Winder, Esq., and in a few minutes after entering the house of that gentleman was attacked with apoplexy—surviving the attack only one hour.
He was a native of Alexandria, Va., the son of the late William Newton of that town, and brother of the late Hon. Thomas W. Newton, who served a term in the House of Representatives of the United States from Arkansas, and also a member of the extensive and widely known Newton family of the Northern Neck of Virginia.
Commodore Newton was a scrupulous gentleman in all his relations and a skillful and gallant officer. He leaves a wife and children, as well as a large circle of relatives and friends to mourn his untimely death.
The following General Orders, bearing on this melancholy occurrence, have been issued:

The Funeral of the Late Commodore Newton

The volunteer companies of the District of Columbia have been ordered out to attend the funeral of the late Commodore Newton. We presume that the volunteer companies of Alexandria, Va., of which city the late Commodore N. was a native, will also participate in the mournful ceremonies of the day. The funeral cortege will move from the Meade House, where the corpse now rests, shortly after 10 a.m., tomorrow. The marines have, of course, been ordered to attend.

The Evening Star, July 30, 1857

The Funeral of Commodore Newton took place this morning from the Meade House, where the corpse has remained since his death. The funeral service was there performed by the Rev. Mr. Hall, of the church of the Epiphany.

The procession consisted of a military escort--the United States Marines stationed here, under command of Brevet Major Zeilin, with the entire band of the corps, a very long line of coaches, containing the relatives and friends of the deceased officer; members of the Naval Courts of Inquiry; officers of the United States Navy and Army in uniform, and others connected with the government and citizens of the District, Virginia and other States.

When the procession started it was raining hard, but a number of spectators assembled on the sidewalks and followed the line to the Congressional Cemetery, where the body was deposited.

The Evening Star, August 3, 1857

The Late Commodore Newton.

Having frequently heard surprise expressed that this gentleman should have died of apoplexy—his figure and general health being such as to create the impression that he could never suffer from such a cause—we may explain the mystery, by stating that apoplexy is hereditary on one side of his family. His mother died of it, as did also his brother, the Hon. Thomas Newton, of Arkansas, who was dressing to dine or spend the evening out, when attacked much as the Commodore was. A few hours only before the Commodore was attacked, being complimented on his appearance of fine health, he replied that he was never in better health than then. A few minutes before he fell, seeing a lady friend on the sidewalk opposite the house in which the Naval Courts are held, he joined her, escorted her home—not a hundred yards off, we hear—and, after sitting a few moments in cheerful conversation, rose to take his leave; when he was attacked with apoplexy as suddenly as though struck by lightning, and, staggering, sank back, into his seat, complaining of pain the left side and head. While he remained conscious, which was up to a few minutes of his death, we hear, he repeatedly apologized for the trouble he thought he was giving to those surrounding him, and was evidently unconscious that the hand of the fell destroyer had been laid upon him. There was no more courteous gentleman in the Union, and that sentiment maintained its wonted ascendancy in his mind to the last moment it was capable of thought, notwithstanding the pain and oppression under which he was suffering. His death occurred in an hour after he staggered and sank back, as explained above.

Thomas J. Newton Dies at Age of 75
Masonic Leader Succumbs After Long Illness
Burial Tomorrow

Thomas John Newton, past grand master of the Grand Lodge of Masons in the District of Columbia, long a leader in Masonic activities here and retired employee of the Department of State, where he worked for about 48 years, died at his residence, 18 Rhode Island avenue, yesterday. He would have been 76 years old the 20th of this month. He had been in failing health for several years.

Serving as a clerk in the Bureau of Indices and Archives, Department of State, until his retirement a little more than five years ago. Mr. Newton was recognized for his intimate knowledge of old records dealing with the early conduct of government in this country.

He served as grand master of Masons in the District in 1914. He also had held various other important positions in Masonry, in which he was widely known both in the United States and Canada. He was the sixtieth grand master of Masons for this jurisdiction.

Born in England

Born in Liverpool, England, Mr. Newton went to Philadelphia when 9 years old and received his education in the public schools of that city. After engaging in mercantile pursuits for several years, he came to this city and, July 1, 1874, was appointed a clerk in the Department of State, filling many positions of trust there.

He was initiated in National Lodge, No. 12, F.A.A.M., in 1880, and served the lodge as junior warden in 1882 and 1883; as senior warden in 1884, and as worshipful master in 1885 and 1886. Also in March, 1883, he joined the Eureka Chapter, No. 4, Royal Arch Masons, and served as high priest of the chapter in 1889. He also belonged to Washington Commandery, No. 1, Knights Templar, and the Masonic Veteran Association. He entered the official line of the Grand Lodge as junior steward in 1904.

He had devoted much of his attention to Masonic relief work, with which he had been identified since 1882. From that date until his illness, he served as delegate from his lodge to the local Masonic Board of Relief. He was secretary of the board continuously from 1905 to 1912. Prior to then he had served it as secretary from 1886 to 1890, as vice president from 1892 to 1893 and as president from 1894 to 1895.

Leader in Relief Work

Since the formation in 1885 of the Masonic Relief Association of the United States and Canada, with which the local board is affiliated he attended every meeting as a delegate from the board, except that of 1903, until his illness. He also served the association as a member of its advisory board from 1890 to 1899, second vice president in 1900, first vice president in 1901 and 1902, and president in 1903 and 1904, and by virtue of his position as past president was a permanent member of the association.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Lillie E. Newton. Funeral services will be conducted in the chapel of Thomas S. Sergeant, undertaker, 1911 Seventh Street, tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment will be in Congressional Cemetery, with Masonic rites at the grave.

Funeral services for Thomas John Newton, past grand master of the Grand Lodge of Masons in the District of Columbia, who died at his residence, 18 Rhode Island avenue, Monday, were conducted in the chapel of Thomas S. Sergeant, undertaker, 1011 Seventh Street, this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Episcopal services were conducted by Rev. James W. Morris, assistant rector of the Church of the Epiphany, followed by Knights Templar services conducted by Washington Commandery, No. 1, K.T. Interment was in Congressional Cemetery, with Masonic services conducted by the Grand Lodge of Masons in the District of Columbia.

Mr. Newton, who would have been 76 years old the twentieth of this month, had long been a leader in Masonic activities in this city. He was employed for about 48 years in the Department of State, where he served as a clerk in the Bureau of Indices and Archives until his retirement a little more than 5 years ago. He was recognized for his knowledge of old records, dealing with the early conduct of Government in this city.

Harper, Kenton N., History of the Grand Lodge, 1911

p. 407-408: Junior Grand Warden, 1911

Born in Liverpool, England, January 20, 1852, he came to Philadelphia, Pa., when nine years of age, and received his education in the public schools of the latter city. After engaging in mercantile pursuits for a few years he removed to Washington, D.C., and entered the Government service as a clerk in the Department of State, July 1, 1874, and has been continuously employed in that service to the present time, filling many positions of trust, among them that of Special Disbursing Officer of the Department for the Alaskan Boundary Tribunal, which met in London, England, from August 1 to November 18, 1903.

Bro. Newton was raised in National Lodge, No. 12, April 20, 1880, and filled the East in that body for the years 1885 and 1886; was exalted in Eureka R.A. Chapter, No. 4, March 23, 1883, and served as High Priest in 1889; was knighted in Washington Commandery, No. 1, K.T., May 23, 1883.

Bro. Newton has been an indefatigable worker in the different branches of local Masonry, but perhaps his most valuable efforts have been directed towards the perfection of the Masonic Relief work, and along this line he has built for himself and the jurisdiction an enviable record. His work in this direction commenced on the local Board as a delegate from his lodge in 1882, and he has been in continuous active service to the present time, serving as Secretary from 1886 to 1890, inclusive, when he was elected Vice President and then President, serving in the latter office two years. In 1904 he again took up the duties as Secretary and is still holding that position.

On the formation of the General Masonic Relief Association for the United States and Canada, in 1885, our Board became a contributing member, and it has been his privilege to attend all its meetings as a delegate from our local Board, with the single exception of the 1903 meeting, when he was absent from the country on government business. He has served the Association in various capacities, i.e., as a member of the Advisory Board from September, 1890 to 1899, when he was elected Second Vice President; in 1901, elected First Vice President, and in 1903, notwithstanding his absence, was elected President, serving until 1905, and by virtue of such service is a permanent member of said association. At the present time, he is holding the important position of Chairman of the Committee on Organization and Membership.

Gifted with an unusually attractive personality, of courteous, kindly demeanor, Bro. Newton has a deservedly wide circle of friends, while his exceptional mental equipment and earnestness of purpose insures for the jurisdiction a successful administration under his guidance when he shall have been installed as Grand Master.

Nichols, Dr. Charles Henry The Evening Star, December 17, 1889 The Former Superintendent of St. Elizabeth Insane Hospital Dr. W.W. Godding, the superintendent of the St. Elizabeth insane hospital today received the following dispatch: "Dr. C.H. Nichols died at 11 last night. Funeral services here Thursday morning. Interment in Washington on Friday from Miss Maury's. S.B. Lyon." Dr. C.H. Nichols was formerly superintendent of St. Elizabeth's hospital and had many warm friends in the community who will regret to hear of his death. He was in his 69th year. Dr. Nichols had been in bad health for quite a long time and recently he went to Europe for his health, but received little or no benefit from the journey. He leaves a son, who is a lieutenant in the navy. The body, as stated, will be brought to this city for interment. The funeral will take place on Friday, but the arrangements have not yet been completed. The Evening Star, December 18, 1889 The Late Dr. Nichols His Life Work for the Insane and His Services in Washington Dr. C.H. Nichols, the superintendent of Bloomingdale asylum, who died yesterday, as stated in The Star, came of a Quaker family. He was born in Vassalboro, Me., in 1820, and received a classical education at the Friends' school in Providence, R.I. He graduated from the college of physicians and surgeons in 1842. He began his work with the insane under Dr. Amariah Brigham in the state asylum of Utica, N.Y., where he was chosen medical assistant in 1847. In 1849 he was appointed superintendent at Bloomingdale. He remained there until 1852, when he resigned, having been selected by President Fillmore to superintend the construction and take charge of the government hospital for the insane in this District. With the money appropriated--$120,000--he purchased a site of 200 acres at St. Elizabeth. The appropriation was not large enough to erect the building, but Dr. Nicholas eked out the deficiency and made bricks out of the soil removed for the foundation of the building. Finally he had the satisfaction of completing the structure without asking for additional money from the United States Treasury. A lodge for the colored insane--said to be the first distinct provision of the kind ever made for that race--was attached to the institution. He was at the head of the institution twenty-five years, and, by means of additional appropriations, erected many additional buildings, doubled the lands, extended the accommodations and kept the treatment up with the latest methods. He served as trustee of Columbian university, president of the police board, etc. He was at the battle of Bull Run, and was nearly captured while attending to the wounded. He was on Gen. McDowell's staff. Dr. Nichols was married in 1860 to Miss Ellen Maury, daughter of John Maury, who was at one time mayor of Washington. Mrs. Nicols died a few years afterward, leaving one son, Lieut Maury Nichols, who is attached to the engineers' corps at Willet's Point, L.I. In 1872 Dr. Nichols married Miss Sarah Lathrop, the daughter of a college professor at Pittsfield, Mass. Dr. Nichols returned to the Bloomingdale asylum in 1877, when the office of superintendent was created for him. He succeeded the unfortunate Dr. David Tilden Brown, who hanged himself recently in Illinois. Dr. Nichols was a contributor to the American Journal of Insanity and other periodicals. For many years he was the president of the association of American superintendents of institutions for the insane and an honorary member of the medico-psychological association of Great Britain. He received the honorary degree of M.A. from Union college and LL.D. from Columbian university. He was a member of the New York medical society and the academy of medicine. The Evening Star, April 28, 1971 Nichols Avenue SE Will Get Name Change Honoring King The D.C. City Council voted yesterday to rename Nichols Avenue SE in honor of slain civil rights leader, the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. The Councils action, which takes effect May 6, came after an April 2 public hearing at which most persons testifying supported the name change. Councilman Stanley Anderson, who represents Anacostia, called the renaming a small but important step in focusing attention on the plight of Southeast Washington. Dr. Charles H. Nichols, after whom the street is now named, helped found St. Elizabeths Hospital. Dr. King, who won the Nobel peace prize and was head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, was assassinated in Memphis, Tenn., in April, 1968.	d. 16 Dec 1889		R49/175

Outrageous Attack on Dr. C.H. Nichols

About eight o'clock last night, as Dr. C.H. Nichols, superintendent of the Government Insane Asylum, was returning home with his family from a drive, he was attacked in his carriage, at Uniontown, by James Haggamacker, who seemed to be drunk, and who struck at the doctor in his seat. The doctor's wife became very much alarmed, and jumped from the carriage with one of her children, injuring herself severely by the leap, and all were considerably frightened. Officer W.T. Anderson, who was on duty on that beat, happily came along and quick stepped. Haggamacker to the station house, where the key was turned on him until sober, when he left colateral for his appearance, which was forfeited at the Police Court this morning.

The Insane Asylum

Already one of the most imposing institutions of this vicinity, and indeed of the whole country, is about two-thirds built. Under the direction of the resourceful and self-reliant gentleman who has it in charge, it pushes itself forward, without noise or bustle, gradually fulfilling the grand and noble ideal of its projectors. We think that scarcely any public edifice was ever more cheaply or substantially erected, and we believe all we say when we ascribe this to the energy, judgment, and enterprise of Dr. Nichols, wisely backed and supported by the Department of the Interior, under whose principal supervision it lies. When completed, and the foundation is now digging out for the remaining third part, it will be a longer building by some sixteen feet, than the Capitol itself in its finished state. A considerable suite of rooms in the middle and largest section which has been built this summer are in a state of forward preparation for occupation. This, by the way, is well, for the existing accommodations are pressed to their uttermost by the numerous applications for admission which are steadily made. At this time the institution has sixty female and seventy-three male patients, under about twenty attendants of all grades.

Besides the great amount of work done on the main building, and the large barn of the establishment, a substantial brick wall, coped with brick, made like all the rest on the spot, has been built, and porters' lodges set at the entrance. The great and increasing number of visitors has made these things necessary. We notice, also, that good crops of corn, vegetables and fruit have been obtained this year, and even the constituents of the little menagerie, by their healthy and thriving appearance, tell of the plenty and good treatment which prevail. At the rate that work has been pushed during the last twelve months, we should judge that by or before 1860 the whole establishment may receive its finishing touch, and then it will certainly have, a fair title to be considered as in all respects a proud monument of our country's humanity, munificence and taste.

Long before the death of his father he had become wild and had figured in many fights and been many times in jail. When rather young he married, but his life resulted in causing his wife endless fears and suffering. At times Frank professed reformation, and was taken back, but he seldom kept sober more than a few weeks at a time, and when he went on a spree he invariably landed behind the bars. He escaped from jail once and managed to swim across the Eastern branch.	d. 10 Oct 1897	35 yrs.	R3/94

Philip W. Nicholson, 96, former deputy chief of the District Fire Department and a fire fighter here for almost half a century, died of a cerebral hemorrhage yesterday at his home, 5504 Thirteenth street N.W.

Chief Nicholson, known as "Old Nick" to the men with whom he worked, had an outstanding record during his long career.

He was injured on five occasions in line of duty, and commended five times for courageous action. He was awarded a ribbon decoration on February 27, 1923, for his service at the collapse of the Knickerbocker Theater in which 98 persons died.

Injured in 1896 Fire

He also saw action at the five-alarm wharf fire at Twelfth and Water streets S.W. on September 29, 1897, where he was in charge of all the apparatus used in fighting the blaze. Chief Nicholson was injured at the 1896 Louisiana avenue fire, in which 22 buildings were destroyed, when a mass of debris fell on him while he was trying to rescue another fireman who had been caught under a falling wall.

Wrote Book on Department

A lifelong resident and the son of a Metropolitan policeman, Chief Nicholson joined the Fire Department when he was 21. He served as fire marshall before becoming deputy chief. When he came to the department there were only six engines and two trucks in service, all of them horse-drawn.

Chief Nicholson was the author of a history of the Washington Fire Department up to 1931, the year of his retirement.

He was a member of the Oldest Inhabitants and the Rhode Island Avenue Methodist Church. A Mason he belonged to St. John's Lodge, No. 11.

Chief Nicholson's wife died in 1934. He leaves two daughters, Mrs. George J. Dreyer, 4915 Sargent road N.E., and Miss Hattie Nicholson, of the home address; and a son Philip C., also of the home address. Mr. Walter L. Nicholson, the first topographer of the Post Office Department, holding that responsible position for twenty-two years, died this morning, aged seventy years, at the residence of his son-in-law. Dr. Davis, after a long period of declining health. Mr. Nicholson was a man of scholarly attainments and wide reading, and was well known in Washington scientific circles. He was a native of Edinburgh, Scotland, and was the son of William Nicholson, the Scotch artist, one of the founders of the Royal Scottish Academy. Mr. Nicholson came to Washington in 1856 at the request of Prof. Bache, then superintendent of the coast survey, and filled a responsible position there until 1863, when he was selected to establish the topographical department of the Post Office Department, a position which during the war was of peculiar importance to the government. He held the position for over a score of years, and since his retirement was engaged in occasional scientific work, notwithstanding his failing health. Mr. Nicholson was a devoted public servant, sedulously caring for the establishment and growth of his department, working for years day and night, giving to it his best energies.

The funeral services will be held on Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock at 1013 16th street.

Mr. Nicholson leaves a widow, two daughters and a son, Dr. William Nicholson, engaged in practice in New England.

We had a little treasure once,
He was our joy and pride;
We loved him, ah, perhaps too well,
For soon he slept and died.

All is dark within our dwelling,
Lonely are our hearts today,
For the one we loved so dearly
Has forever passed away.

Death of Dr. William Nicholson

The many friends of Dr. William Nicholson were sadly shocked at the announcement of his sudden death, which occurred in Salem, Mass., Saturday. Dr. Nicholson left Washington some years ago, suffering from nervous prostration, from which he never fully recovered. He had, however, but lately returned from a trip around the world, so much improved in health that his friends were looking forward to his return to the profession in which he had been so successful. He is gratefully remembered by many as the attendant physician at the National Eye and Ear Infirmary, also in connection with the practice of Dr. F. Loring. His kindness of disposition and a peculiar gentleness of manner, joined with his skill in the practice of his profession, gained him the love and confidence of all with whom he came in contact. Dr. Nicholson was the son of the late W.L. Nicholson, for many years topographer of the Post Office Department. Funeral services were held this afternoon at the residence of his brother-in-law, Dr. Chas. A. Davis, 1010 15th street.

Nicollet, Joseph Nicholas

d. 11 Sep 1843

R37/27*National Intelligencer, Sept. 12, 1843*

Yesterday morning, 11th of September, at a quarter past 6 o'clock, after a lingering illness, Mr. J.N. Nicollet, the eminent mathematician and astronomer.

Mr. Nicollet was a native of Savoy and a citizen of France, but had passed the last ten years of his life in this country engaged in important researches, chiefly under the auspices and in the employment of the Government of the United States.

A more extended notice of this distinguished man, and one more commensurate with his fame, will doubtless appear hereafter. At present we can do no more than give hasty expression to our admiration, our friendship, and our regret. When this light is extinguished who measured the distance from star to star, who traced the secular path of the comet, and surveyed the majestic works of God so profusely scattered through the infinite heavens, who does not feel in the eloquent words of the poet so applicable to such an eclipse, "A glorious sympathy with suns that set!"

The friends and acquaintances of the deceased are invited to attend his funeral from Galabrun's European Hotel, on Wednesday, at 12 o'clock a.m.

National Intelligencer, Friday, Sept. 15, 1843

Our readers are indebted to an intelligent friend of the late Mr. Nicollet for the following appropriate notice of the life and character of this lamented gentleman:

The Funeral of the lamented Mr. Nicollet, on Wednesday last; was attended by our most respectable citizens, including members of the reverend clergy from Baltimore, Georgetown, and Washington, the Mayor of the city, Col. His early opportunities were the age of twenty he proceeded to attracted to his intellectual aptitude, which that capital so abundantly furnished to him. He became the soon rose to great eminence as a astronomer. He was particularly and in the department of physical

Mr. Nicollet was the author of several works of great merit, and of many papers and memoirs in astronomy and the higher mathematics, which gave him an enviable reputation in the scientific world. He was a member of the "Bureau des Longitudes," and a principal examiner in the French Navy, a post of rank and importance. Had he remained in France he would probably have occupied the next place in the scientific department of the French Institute. He came to this country about ten years ago, recommended by his high reputation and by letters from the most elevated sources. After travelling a few years, he was engaged by the Secretary of War, Mr. Poinsett, to make a scientific exploration of the vast regions beyond the Mississippi and Missouri, in which duty he spent much time and collected much valuable information. At the time of his death he was engaged in preparing a map and report of the country traversed by the headwaters of the Mississippi. The map is completed; but the report had not received the finishing touch of its author. During his expeditions, Mr. Nicollet paid great attention to the history, laws, customs, and language of our Indian tribes, upon which interesting topics he had designed an elaborate work. He laboriously collected vocabularies and grammars of their numerous dialects, and even notated their national airs, as illustrative of their manners and sentiments. He has left a precious collection of manuscripts upon these subjects, which it is to be regretted for the cause of science, he was not spared to complete and arrange for publication.

Mr. Nicollet was extensively known throughout the United States, and his worth and kindness, as well as his singular talents and acquirements, were generally appreciated. The news of his death will excite general regret both at home and abroad. Of an ardent mind and delicate frame, the labors and anxieties of the last few years were too much for his overtaken spirit. His nervous energies became gradually impaired; the cords of life lost their tone from extreme and unremitted tension. He arrived in Washington about four months ago, since which he has been almost constantly confined by a distressing affection of the stomach and heart, accompanied by great nervous excitability and depression. At times the lamp of life, which was sensibly decaying, flashed up for a moment and gave faint hopes to his numerous friends and admirers. In one of these intervals, about two months ago, he prepared a remarkable paper upon the interesting but obscure subject of "aerolites," which was read for him by a friend at the National Institute, and was much admired. But this was his last labor. On Sunday last, after a violent attack of his habitual symptoms, he fell into a state of utter prostration, from which the most energetic measures could not arouse him, and at a little after six o'clock on Monday morning he expired, gently, nay almost insensibly, it is believed, in the forty-eighth year of his age.

It is thought that these imperfect details will not be without interest to the numerous and distant friends of the departed astronomer. As we stood beside his grave and saw so much genius and knowledge eclipsed beneath the clods of the valley, we were impressively reminded of the vanity of fame, the narrow bounds of knowledge, and the inexorable decrees of death.

Dragged To Death By Belting

Corby Factory Employee Is Crushed In Machinery

Alone at Time of Accident --

Sleeve Supposed to Have Caught as He Was Oiling Up

Andrew Nelson, caught in the belting while oiling the machinery at Corby's yeast factory, Langdon, was dragged into the machinery, when his skull was crushed, a number of ribs fractured and injuries inflicted to his chest. He died in a few minutes.

Dr. Lee, resident physician of the Casualty Hospital, went to the scene of the accident in the ambulance. It was believed there was still life in the body when the man was extricated from the machinery. Life was extinct, however, when Dr. Lee arrived.

Nelson, said to have been a naive of Denmark, had been in this country about two years, and had been employed as a laborer at the yeast factory for several months. He had no relatives in this country.

This morning he was alone in the drying room at the factory when the accident occurred. His loud screams attracted the attention of others in the building.

Fellow-employees hurried to his assistance and removed his body from the machinery. A message was sent to the hospital without delay.

The police of the ninth precinct went to the factory and made an investigation learning that the victim alone was responsible for his death. It is believed that while engaged in the work of oiling the machinery his sleeve was caught in the belting and he was dragged to the part of the machinery where he was killed before he had an opportunity to do more than make an outcry.

This afternoon the body was removed to the morgue. Coroner Nevitt made a partial investigation of the affair, and will probably give a certificate of accidental death without the formality of holding an inquest.

Nixon, Sally Wood The New York Times, June 16, 1937, p. 24 Mrs. Lewis Nixon Wife of Former Shipbuilder Who Designed Three Battleships Mrs. Sally Lewis Wood Nixon, wife of Lewis Nixon, shipbuilder, now president of the Nixon Nitration Works, died at 10 o'clock last night at her residence, 16 East Seventy-ninth Street, after an illness of ten months. Her husband, their son, Stanhope Wood Nixon, and the latter's family, were with her. Mrs. Nixon, originally a resident of Washington, was a descendant of General Andrew Lewis of Colonial Virginia. Her marriage took place in 1891, the year in which her husband resigned from the navy after designing the battleships Oregon, Indiana and Massachusetts, to become superintending constructor of the Cramp Shipyard, Philadelphia. Nixon, William J. The Evening Star, February 18, 1862 Inquest Yesterday, Justice Johnson, for Coroner Woodward, held an inquest in view of the body of William Nixon of Co. A, 5th U.S. Artillery, who was found dead in the premises of Mary Magee, alias Mary Marshall, corner of Sixth St., East and Maryland Avenue, yesterday morning. The jury examined a large number of persons, from whom nothing of any account was elicited, except from two intelligent boys, sons of Mrs. Magee, and an employee in the house--Mrs. Goodin. The children testified that they went to bed about seven o'clock--their sister Mary, a girl of about sixteen, their mother, and the man, James Marshall, who she says is her husband, and Mrs. Goodin, being then in the house. They were aroused between twelve and one o'clock by the report of a gun or pistol, and they smelled the burning powder. They did not hear any disturbance, or know of the homicide till the morning, when they were told of it. Mrs. Goodin substantiated the statement of the children. She was aroused from sleep by the report of the gun or pistol, and also smelled the powder. They all say that Mrs. Magee, Marshall, Mrs. Magee's children, and Mrs. Goodin were the only persons in the house when they retired. From the appearance of the premises, it would seem that the deceased had come to the back window, the blinds of which were open; and that the shot was fired from within, through the glass, which was fresh broken; and there were marks of powder on the sash. The ball entered through the top of his cap, striking upon the side of his nose \, and glanced, passing entirely through the head, causing instant death. Blood marks were found on the side of the shutter. During the night the body was dragged from the yard to the street, as was evident from his clothing and the trail in the mud, and was there found by passengers, who had the body carried out of the rain to a shed in the same yard. Mrs. Magee has long been a resident of the Fifth Ward, and carried on a little groggery at this place, and James Marshall, who she says is her husband, is a soldier belonging to the 1st U.S. Cavalry. The jury returned as a verdict that the said William Nixon came to his death from the effects of a ball discharged from a pistol or gun from the inside of the house occupied by Mrs. Mary Marshall, alias Magee, and they further believe that the gun or pistol was discharged by one James Marshall. Justice Johnson, upon the verdict being rendered, committed James Marshall, as principal, for a further hearing, and admitted Mrs. Marshall, as principal, for a further hearing, and admitted, Mrs. Marshall, alias Magee to bail in $1,000 as accessory, Mr. J.H. Bradley, jr., appeared as counsel for the defense. The Evening Star, February 22, 1862 Further Hearing of the Nixon Murder Case Yesterday morning, Justice Johnson, to avoid any prejudicial effect that the hearing of the evidence before the jury of inquest in the case of William Nixon, the soldier who was killed on Capitol Hill, Sunday night, might have upon his mind, invited, Justice Giberson to sit with him in the hearing of the evidence, and the parties charged, James Marshall and Mary Marshall, appeared at Justice Johnson's office for trial, Mr. Bradley, jr., appearing for the defense. The witnesses were those examined at the inquest, together with the jurors, and some soldiers. The testimony differed in some points from that elicited before the inquest. Mr. Goodin testified substantially as before the inquest. She retired to bed, about ten o'clock, leaving Mr. and Mrs. Marshall down stairs. She was aroused in the night by the report of a gun or pistol, and smelled what she presumed was powder in the house immediately after. She knew nothing of the killing until she was told of it next morning by Mrs. Marshall.	d. 17 Feb 1862		R73/78 ®

Miss Mary Magee, daughter of Mrs. Marshall, said she went to bed before Mrs. Goodin. She was aroused in the night by a loud noise--the report of a gun she supposed. She did not smell powder, and denied having said so before the inquest. She knew nothing of the homicide till the next morning.

James Magee, (son of Mrs. Marshall, 13 years old) said he went to bed between seven and eight o'clock; was followed soon after by his younger brother. They were aroused by the report of a gun or pistol and by his mother coming up out of the cellar calling Mrs. Goodin. He smelled powder, but could not say if the gun was fired in or out of the house.

The next witnesses (there were eighteen in all) testified uniformly to the following facts: They found the body lying outside of Marshall's premises, near the street; they found a pool of blood under the window, in the yard, a blood stain on the shutter, a hand print, a freshly broken pane, and fresh powder on the inside sash.

Surgeon A.C. Williams, 5th U.S. artillery, testified that death must have ensued instantly from the wound, and the body was probably dragged from the pool of blood in the yard to the street outside.

One of the inquest jurors--Mr. W. Readdy--when about to be qualified, refused to be sworn according to law, saying that it was contrary to his religious belief, and cited Matthew, 5th chapter, verses 33 to 37, in justification. He would not use the name of God, nor swear by the uplifted hand.

Mr. Bradley, jr., for defense, objected, on the ground that he was an unbeliever. The Justice asked Readdy if he believed the Scriptures, and the doctrine of future rewards and punishment.

He said he did. He was declared competent, and proceeded with his evidence, substantiating generally the statements of the other witnesses. The character of Marshall was shown to be excellent. The deceased had the character of being intemperate and quarrelsome. The certificate of marriage of Marshall and Mrs. Magee was produced, it being given under her maiden name of Mary McCarty. Her business has been conducted under the name of Magee, simply because established in that name.

The case was fully dismissed by Justices Johnson and Giberson, who could discover nothing in the evidence to justify a commitment of either of the parties for trial at court.

A Little Boy Burned to Death

It was mentioned in The Star of last evening that the little son of Policeman G.W. Nokes was frightfully burned yesterday morning while the servant left in charge of the house was absent. The little sufferer, notwithstanding the efforts of the physicians--Dr.s Roberts and Adams--died about five o'clock yesterday afternoon. Mr. Nokes' wife died a few months since leaving a number of small children, and he concluded to continue house keeping, employing a servant woman to take charge of the house and children. Yesterday morning this woman locked the youngest child, Noval, a boy three years old, in the kitchen, while she went out on some business, and it is supposed that while passing near the stove the child's clothing took fire.

The Evening Star, July 14, 1859

A Dreadful Accident

This forenoon, between 10 and 11 o'clock, while the gunner's crew at the Washington Navy Yard were engaged in their usual battery practice, a sixty-four pounder—an army gun—which had been fired once only there (though it had evidently been often fired before) burst, killing James Wilson and William Nokes. The former was a seafaring man, married with one child. The latter was a married man, and was preparing to become a gunner in the service. He leaves no children.

The accident also wounded ten men—eight severely and two slightly—as follows: Richard Gormley (cut about the head;) Charles Stuart (badly cut about the head;) Roderick McMillan, (collar-bone broken;) P. Ludwig, (splinter in the side;) Andrew Wilson (cut about the face and head;) J. Roach, (ditto;) Elijah Beacham (badly hurt;) Dennis Leary, John Conner, and John Holland (slightly hurt.)

Mr. Wilson was killed instantly, half his head being blown off; and Mr. Nokes lived but five or ten minutes after the accident; the lower part of his face and head was blown off. The force of the accident threw Mr. Wilson's body a distance of thirty feet, and Mr. Nokes and Mr. Beachem ten or twelve feet. All who were injured were on the gun platform, which is elevated ten feet from the ground. Some of the fragments of the gun were cast more than two hundred yards, to the great danger of the workmen around.

At 1 p.m. the presence of the coroner to hold an inquest over the remains of Messrs. Wilson and Nokes (who were most estimable and valuable men in all their relations in life) was momentarily expected. Indeed, all the gunner's crew are necessarily picked men.

Hopes of the recovery of all the wounded are entertained by Dr. A.W. Miller and the medical officers of the Yard in attendance.

Everything possible to relieve the condition of the wounded, has been done by the officers of the Yard.

(... See James H. Wilson for inquest and funeral ...)

The Navy Yard Tragedy -- Further Particulars

The Killed

James H. Wilson was a man about thirty-five years old, who never had any knowledge of who his parents were, and had no relative that he knew of in the world. He was partially raised in Brooklyn, N.Y., and has been in the United States service here about nine years. He was a man of unusual abilities, and stood high in the service as an expert and intelligent gunner. He has been for years the keeper of the battery, and he was universally esteemed by his mates and by the officers.

Nokes was a young man, new in the service; had but been in the Paraguay expedition in the character of yeoman. He had been placed in the gunner's department about two weeks ago, on account of the fair promise he gave, under the observation of Capt. Dahlgren, of becoming a first class gunner in time.

It was rumored yesterday that the wives of both of the deceased were absent from home on an excursion at the time of the accident. Such was not the case, they both being at their homes. It is understood that every effort will be made by the officers of the yard to have their afflicted families, who are poor, properly provided for by the Department.

Funeral of Enoch M. Norris
By the death of Mr. Enoch M. Norris, at his home, 1307 3d street southeast, that section of the city has lost one of its oldest residents. Mr. Norris was born in St. Mary's county, Md., upward of seventy years ago. He moved to this city about forty years ago, and shortly afterward married Miss Sarah Williams of Southeast Washington, by whom he had a large family of sons and daughters. His life in this city had been passed altogether in the section where he married and died. He was a pleasant neighbor and a man of many friends. His funeral took place yesterday afternoon from his late residence, the interment being at Congressional cemetery. Although belonging to a Christian denomination other than the Episcopal Church, it was his dying request that the Rev. Mr. McKee, who is pastor of the Episcopal Chapel of St. Matthew, in that vicinity, officiate at his funeral. In accordance with his wishes, the burial service of the Episcopal Church was read over him at the house and cemetery by that clergyman.

In Memoriam

Norwood. The remains of Mr. John R. Norwood, who died in this city on the 28th of September last, were Saturday evening laid to final rest in Congressional Cemetery. Mr. Norwood will be remembered and regretted by friends in the West and South where he was known as a newspaper publisher of ability. He was born in 1838, we forget what State, but he was raised in Wisconsin, and at an early age became a practical printer. In 1872 he became a member of a stock publishing company known as the Southern Newspaper Union, and located first at Nashville, and then at Memphis. As manager, he carried his house through three epidemics of cholera and yellow fever successfully and with heroism. During the last yellow fever epidemic at Memphis he located at Atlanta, Ga., and, in company with Mr. E.B. Brown, a talented publisher of Cincinnati, founded there the Southern Publishers' Union, now known as the Atlanta Newspaper Union, which, in its permanent success, commemorates him. Though strictly a business man, giving no time to literary work, and thinking of no honor. Mr. Norwood possessed a rare humor, freshness, pith and descriptive power, together with a tender, sympathetic vein, that were well known in his friendly exchange list with the pen, and which, had he used his gift, might have classed him with the most original and popular of our humorists. To those who loved him best it will be a pleasure to know that though even from the first of his final decline, his mind failed partially at intervals, in rational hours, as the world receded, he gave thought to the serious things; finally affirming an undoubting belief in the future life, confessing repentance for errors past and a faith in Jesus which those who witnessed place hope in. As a man of the world, he was honest in business, genial in friendship, substantial in charity. Those who knew his unflagging mental energy and continuous physical unhealth will not be surprised to learn that, wasted and spent in middle life, his earthly shadow has passed to the restful silence.

Probable Homicide
A Supposed Insane Man Shoots a Friend Through The Body
Saturday night Henry W. Fenner, who had been boarding at Mrs. Ross', 102 B street northwest for some weeks, became somewhat violent and abusive to Mrs. Ross, and was thought to be insane. Mrs. Ross becoming alarmed sent for a policeman, and Officer Skelley started to the house. He was joined by Mr. Samuel Nugent, a well known painter, who, being an acquaintance of Fenner's thought that he could pacify him. When they entered the house Fenner drew a pistol and fired, the ball striking Nugent in the left side and passing entirely through him. Fenner was at once taken to the seventh precinct station and locked up, and Dr. Townsend, after examining Nugent's wound, directed that he be sent to Providence hospital. Fenner is quite a respectable looking man, about 49 years of age, and claims that the officer had no right to enter his room without a warrant.

He also stated that the injured man was in the hospital in a critical condition. Judge Bundy committed the prisoner without bail to await the result of Nugent's injuries. Nugent died at 12 o'clock today.

A coroner's inquest was held this afternoon at the undertaking establishment of Mr. Henry Lee, 332 Pennsylvania avenue, on the body of Samuel Nugent, who was shot Saturday night at the boarding house of Mrs. Julia Ross, on B street, by a man named Henry W. Fenner.
Mrs. Rosa, the first witness, gave the details of what took place at her house, and gave an account of strange conduct on the part of Fenner. Policeman Skelley testified to going to the house at Mrs. Ross' request to secure Fenner. Nugent volunteered his services. While Fenner and witness were struggling, a pistol in Fenner's hand was discharged, and Nugent was shot. Joseph Dennis, who also accompanied Kelly, corroborated his testimony.
The inquest was in progress at 2:30 p.m.

Funerals

The funeral of the late Capt. John Nye, whose death was noticed in Friday's STAR, took place yesterday afternoon from the Masonic Temple, W.J. Stephenson, W.M. of Dawson Lodge, having charge of the exercises. Ex-Governor J. Neely Johnson, Judge J.W. McCorkle, Henry D. Barron, Fifth Auditor; Colonel George T. Jones, Colonel I.S. Tichnor, and Mr. W.P Partello, were the pall-bearers. Rev. Dr. Newman, of the Metropolitan M.E. Church, officiated and the impressive burial service of the Masonic fraternity was read at the grave at Congressional Cemetery by M.W. Grand Master Stansbury, the solemn exercises closing with the usual Masonic honors. The Masonic Choir of the District sang appropriate dirges at the temple and grave.

A Captain John Nye filed claim on April 20, 1852, for bounty land under the Act of September 28, 1850, and stated under oath at that time that he was then 67 years old, a resident of Lee, Berkshire County, Massachusetts; that he was a Captain in a company in the Regiment commanded by Colonel Solomon R. Chamberlin, in the War of 1812 (2nd Regiment Massachusetts Militia); was drafted about September 10, 1812; honorably discharged at Cambridge Port about November 1, 1814. Was granted 40 acres of land under this claim. Made another application on September 3, 1855, for additional bounty land under the Act of March 3, 1855, stating under oath the same facts as above. A claim for pension was rejected on account of insufficient service.
